MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, April 7—(AP)—Reactionary price tendencies developed in today's market after an uninterrupted advance of nearly one week. The selling represented profit taking by traders who had bought stocks "for a turn" and sporadic bear attacks on the industrials issues based on theory that the market was due for a technical reaction. Both the rail and industrial averages closed moderately lower.

Trading was extremely quiet during the morning but picked up in the afternoon, the day's sales aggregating 1,700,000 shares. The late selling movement was checked by a spirited rally in the rubber stocks.

The day's trade news provided a good background for the selling movement. The weekly steel trade reviews expressed some doubt as to whether the high rate of mill operations could be maintained, and emphasized a sharp drop in pig iron, making the new price level the lowest since last October. U. S. Steel common closed a point lower at 123 but substantial gains were recorded by shares of some of the independent companies, particularly Vanadium, Otis Steel preferred and Midland Steel Products preferred.

A further softening took place in money rates. Funds on call renewed at 4 per cent., as against 4 1-4 yesterday and 4 1-2 on Monday, holding at that figure all day with large sums available. Time money which has been quoted at 4 1-2 per cent., flat since last Friday, is reported to have been loaned as low as 4 3-8 for some of the shorter maturities. Completion of quarterly payments, drastic reduction of brokers' loans, heavy gold imports from Canada, and relatively light discounting of commercial paper are among the reasons ascribed for the relative cheapness of money.

The report of the American Petroleum Institute showing an increase of over 13,000 barrels in the daily average of gross crude oil production last week tended to restrain bullish operations in the oil shares and net changes, as a rule, were fractional. Motor shares were featured by the strength and activity of Packard, which was bid up over two points to 37 1-4 in anticipation of a special dividend distribution in June, but part of the gain was lost on realizing. Hudson closed 3-4 lower at 77 3-8 after having fluctuated between 76 and 78 1-4, and Mack Trucks showed a similar fractional loss at 111 7-8 after having touched 113 3-4.

The late rally in the rubber shares appeared to be a drive against the short interests. U. S. Rubber common was bid up nearly four points to 70 3-4 closing near the top, and Fisk, Goodrich and Kelly Springfield advanced a point or so. Good buying also was noted in Allied Chemical, International Combustion Engineering, Philadelphia company and Pittsburgh Utilities preferred.

American Beet Sugar dropped 2 1-2 points to a new low at 23 1-2 in further reflection of the omission of the dividend and marked heaviness also developed in Foundation company. General Electric, R. H. Macy, Pathe Exchange and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

Trading in the rail shares was sluggish in strength of Chicago Great Western preferred, St. Louis Southwestern and the "Van" issues being counteracted by the heaviness of Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, Delaware and Lackawanna, and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Commodity markets moved within narrow and irregular limits. Active cotton futures moved steadily higher on a scale limited 1 to 12 points on buying influenced by reports of bad weather. Raw sugar declined 1.32 of a cent a pound and the futures were also easier, coffee opened 16 to 25 points lower but rallied on short covering closing 7 to 15 points net higher.

Bullion trades rallied nearly 50 cents to above 3.90 cents on short covering in expectation of an early settlement on a new international basis. Sterling and French francs were firm around $4.75 7-8 and 3.96 cents respectively. Japanese yen were slightly firmer but the other far eastern exchanges were weak. Indian rupees falling below 35 cents to a new low level for years.

NORWICH, CONN. THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Thursday, April 8, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the lakes yesterday night has moved eastward and is now centered near Birmingham, Alabama, where the barometer reads 29.62 inches. Pressure is quite high in the vicinity of Bismarck and relatively high over the Northwest and northern Ontario.

The southern disturbance will move northeastward and it will be attended by rains Thursday almost generally in the Washington forecast district except in the western portion, extending the passage of this disturbance. Colder weather will overspread the Ohio valley, Tennessee and the eastern gulf states.

Winds

Winds, off Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh, east and southeast, weather clear; and showers Thursday.

Off Nantucket: Light to fresh, variable to southeast and overcast; showery afternoon.

Forecast

For southern New England: Rain Thursday and Thursday night; probably ending Friday; not much change in temperature.

WATERFORD AND SALEM COWS HOLD LEAD IN THE COUNTY FOR MARCH

The first months work of the New London County Cow Testing association has been completed. This association started with twenty-six herds, twenty-five having been tested. One was not tested because of sickness in the family. Sixty-eight cows filled the requirements for the honor roll, which is placed at 1200 pounds of milk or forty pounds of butter fat. The high cow for the month was a Holstein owned by Mr. Thomas Wood of Waterford, producing 2064.6 lbs or 66.6 lbs. per day. The high cow for butterfat for the month was a pure bred Guernsey owned by the Fairy Lake Farm of Salem, producing 62.58 lbs. or 2.2 lbs. per day. The members of the association are finding the cow testing work very interesting and much to their advantage, and it will no doubt be increasingly interesting as the year advances. The five high herds of the association are as follows:

Owner	Number of cows	Average lb. milk	Average lb. But. Fat	Breed

Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau, department of labor, Washington, D. C., and nationally known figure in child welfare work, will speak at the opening session of the 16th annual Connecticut conference of social work to convene April 25-28 in this city. Miss Abbott's subject will be "Advancing Child Welfare Standards."

As chief of the children's bureau, to which office she succeeded Miss Julia Lathrop some ten years ago, Miss Abbott directs that department's studies of the welfare of children throughout the United States. At the Geneva conference last summer she represented the United States in an official and consultative capacity on the child welfare committee of the advisory commission for the protection and welfare of children and young people, which functioned under the League of Nations. Miss Abbott [illegible] the bureau's personnel [illegible] with a thorough expert knowledge and comparative information for the assistance of local communities which are developing their own child welfare programs.

Mrs. Frank A. Meserve, president of the conference, will preside at the first session on April 25, and respond to the address of welcome from the Hon. Milo R. Waters, mayor of Norwich. The Rev. [illegible] Norwich, will speak on "Child Welfare Today," and the topic of a round table discussion during the morning of April 26, when Dr. Arnold Gesell of Yale university will act as chairman.

Hon. [illegible] Hartford, justice of the supreme court, and Hon. [illegible] of the Hartford police court, are scheduled to lead sessions on April 26, also Judge Maltbie will speak with "Delinquency and Correction," and Judge Day will be chairman of the Connecticut commission on [illegible] Institutions.

Miss [illegible] Worcester, Mass., will speak on "Child Welfare Work in Rural Districts," and Dean George C. Kirchwey, of [illegible] university, Sunday, "Mental Hygiene," to be given particular consideration by the conference, will include Dr. Elton Mayo of Philadelphia, and Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, lecturer in psychiatry, Yale university. Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve of this city will be one of the leaders in the general [illegible] on "Health."

Additional program speakers and features are being arranged for the conference by Ralph Barrow, general secretary and the section chairman. The conference is divided into six sections, as follows: Children, Mrs. Percy B. Walden, New Haven, chairman; community life, Mrs. Frederick P. Storrs, Norwich, chairman; delinquency and correction, Judge W. M. Maltbie, Hartford, chairman; family, George L. Warren, Bridgeport, chairman; health, Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve, Norwich, chairman; mental hygiene, Mrs. L. M. Daggett, New Haven, chairman.

Engagements Announced.

At a pleasant card party given Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Helen M. Bates, 36 Cliff street, in honor of her birthday, several tables of bridge were played and refreshments were served by the hostess. During the evening Mrs. Greenhalgh, mother of Miss Bates announced the engagement of her daughter Helen, to John Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leonard of Wallingford. The date of the wedding has not yet been decided.

FINE IMPOSED FOR PASSING STANDING TROLLEY

For passing a standing trolley car while it was discharging passengers, John F. Shutz, 38, Groton, was fined $25 and costs, total $25.86, by Judge H. H. Pettis in the city court Wednesday morning. Judge Arthur F. Libby, who would ordinarily have presided over the court, was a witness in the cases against Shutz, and turned the bench over to Judge Pettis.

Shutz was found guilty of passing a trolley car Sunday about 10:30 while the car was discharging passengers at McKinley avenue and Spalding street. Charles E. Ladd, motorman of the one-man car, testified that he had stopped the car to allow a passenger, James E. Harrington, to alight. He saw an automobile traveling at 35 or 40 miles an hour go past the car and pass. He secured the number as SX-736.

James E. Harrington, testified [illegible] from the car when [illegible] the car [illegible] passed and [illegible] Main [illegible].

Judge Arthur F. Libby testified that he was riding in the vestibule of the trolley, which was crowded. He saw Mr. Harrington step off the car and the automobile shoot by. He got the number as SX-736.

Edwin C. Ross testified to being a passenger on the car. He knew that [illegible] passed [illegible] [illegible] the car [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible].

Officer Charles Smith told of securing the name of the owner of the machine from the motor vehicle department at Hartford, and that the owner was John F. Shutz.

VARIOUS REASONS GIVEN IN ADVOCACY OF LIBERALIZATION OF THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Attorney Buckner of New York Proposed Modification as an Inducement to Have the Empire State Cooperate With Federal Agencies in Enforcing the Law—Senator Reed Objected to Making the Volstead Law Transcend the Federal Statutes by Abolishing the Right of Trial by Jury—Reasons Assigned by Others Were to Check the Spread of Crime, Insanity and the Sale of Poisonous Liquor.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—Liberalization of the Volstead act as a means of checking crime and as an incentive for New York state to adopt dry laws of its own was urged today before a senate committee at the fourth day's presentation of the wet side of the prohibition issue.

Winding up two days of testimony, United States District Attorney Buckner of New York city proposed modification as an inducement for New York state to reenact an enabling act and permit the police to cooperate with federal agencies in enforcing the law.

Modification to check the spread of crime, insanity and the sale of poisonous liquor was advocated in statements filed with the committee by Judge L. Bretzius, democratic national committeeman from Illinois, and Anton J. Cermak, leading anti-committeeman from Cook county (Chicago).

Both came here from Chicago to appear in person, neither Mr. Bretzius nor the democratic candidate for senator from Illinois, had been able to take the stand, submitting instead written statements and tables of statistics. These were ordered in the record by Julien Goodrich, Boston, counsel for the Women's Christian Temperance union.

District Attorney Buckner, the only witness heard at the two hour session, discussed the view that he could enforce prohibition if given the necessary machinery and if congress would provide for police court instead of jury trials for "petty offenders."

If jury trials are required, Mr. Buckner said, 65 additional district attorneys are needed for his district, with accompanying district attorneys, marshals, clerks, stenographers and a total enforcement force of 1,000 dry agents. Machinery for the whole state of New York, he estimated, would cost $10,000,000 annually if all trials were by juries and $3,000,000 if "petty offenders" were tried by commissioners instead of juries. He advocated the latter method of trial, declaring that this would greatly facilitate the disposition of cases.

Urging against the proposal that the city have should pay for its own enforcement, Mr. Buckner said this would be a bad situation; that the treasury should collect revenue and the department of justice enforce the laws.

Jail sentences rather than fines were urged by the district attorney as the most effective way of bringing about observance of the prohibition laws. He asserted that hundreds of thousands of "white collar men" in New York who now buy liquor would cease if arrest were certain.

"Do you want to put everybody in jail who violates a law?" demanded Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

"No," returned Mr. Buckner, "if I were prosecuting under a traffic law, I certainly would not."

Senator Reed objected to any proposal to abolish the right of jury trial for offenses against federal statutes.

"I suppose we ought to abolish every Anglo-Saxon right so as to prevent someone from selling a glass of beer," he declared.

Higher salaries for prohibition agents in order to raise the character of the men employed also were urged by Mr. Buckner who said an agent with a family could not live on his $2,000 salary in New York city.

The witness said many agents who had quit were trying now to get back.

"Why?" lashed out Senator Reed.

"One man told me he had a good business and wanted to get his job back because he enjoyed the work," Buckner replied.

"Just frankly now isn't it because there is opportunity to make money, asked Senator Reed.

The district attorney would not commit himself on that, although he did tell of efforts to get evidence against agents. In one case, he said, a man who was paying for protection refused to tell to whom he had paid money, explaining that if he did he would be killed within 24 hours.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor will be called by the wets tomorrow as they press their case and Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, will be recalled later.

W. J. BRYAN'S DAUGHTER SEEKS SEAT IN THE HOUSE

MIAMI, Fla., April 8.—(AP)—A daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan will seek a seat in the national house of representatives where once her father served.

A sincere desire to serve the state of Florida," Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen said in a statement today, has caused her to announce that she will seek the democratic nomination for the fourth Florida district at the primary on June 1. The term of Congressman William J. Sears, the incumbent, expires in 1927.

Mrs. Owen is vice president of the University of Miami and prominent in women's club activities. She has informed friends of her intention to wage a vigorous speaking campaign throughout the district, visiting embraces all the counties along the east coast. She has made no pronouncement of her platform.

She said the announcement was made "with a sincere desire to give the citizens of Florida and what I believe I can best serve her interests in the national house of representatives."

The election is two years off, except for personnel of the house of representatives, who declare the familiarity with national and international questions entitles one to a seat.

Mrs. Owen's first public appearance will be made tomorrow night as principal speaker at a meeting of the Miami business chamber of commerce.

PROCLAMATION FOR ARBOR AND BIRD DAY

HARTFORD, April 8.—(AP)—Designating, by proclamation, Friday, April 23, as Arbor and Bird day in Connecticut, Governor Trumbull urges all citizens, and especially the children and teachers to plant trees, make gardens, assist in beautifying homes and highways by "systematic shrubbery and ornamental" and take care of birds.

"In these days of industrial activity and commercial pursuit," the proclamation says, "we are prone to forget that the best asset of our state and the originality upon which the bounty of God are presented to us only by the industry of man.

"That we may awaken a stimulation in the minds of our youth the need of preserving these blessings and that our love of nature may express itself, on one day at least in terms of practical and intelligent husbandry, I hereby designate Friday, the 23rd day of April, next, as Arbor and Bird day. I urge and enjoin especially the children and teachers of children, to turn their thoughts and their hands on this day to the planting of trees, the making of gardens, the reclaiming of soil to the uses of agriculture, the beautifying by flowers and shrubbery of our homes and highways, the care of our bird life and all similar activities, to the end that the fecundity of earth may be preserved in abundance for us and for those who shall come after us."

APRIL AMERICAN MERCURY HAS BEEN BARRED FROM MAILS

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—The April number of the American Mercury has been barred from the mails.

Action was taken late today by the post office department after Solicitor Donnelly had held that the article "Hatrack," which has stirred up a controversy, warranted exclusion of the issue.

Instructions were issued by the postmaster at New York to deny it transmission through the mails and postmasters in other cities were instructed to exclude also any publication which reproduces the article.

SHERIFF ARE SUSTAINED SHERIFF SUSPENDED

AUGUSTA, Me., April 8.—(AP)—The charges against Sheriff Henry F. Cummings of Kennebec county, under investigation for laxities in office, were sustained by the governor and council late tonight by a vote of four to three.

A petition to have the Arrow Picture corporation declared in bankruptcy was file by creditors in New York.

HOUSE DISCUSSED THE $85,000,000 AVIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—Turning its attention to aviation, the house today began consideration of the bill which would authorize an expenditure of $85,000,000 during the next five years of new equipment for the army air service. Debate was limited to four hours, and a vote is expected tonight.

The measure, which proposes the five year expansion building program for army aviation ever before congress, would provide at the end of five years for 1,800 airplanes and 1,650 pilots, more than the sum of the present squadrons.

A program for the army air service as a part approved by the military committee, is expected to come up in the senate before the end of the week.

Debate today was in charge of the committee chairman, Ruling of the committee, which has approved the bill, came before the house had come to order to adopt a rule providing for it to be considered under the five minute rule.

Representative Pou of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the rules committee, urged that the bill be given right of way in the house, explaining that he personally had found it necessary to support it. "While we see the nations of the world preparing for the next conflict," he declared, "we should not say that we only should legislate as the nations of Europe get ready for war. We are witnessing their armies and navies and we would find the way to peace. I no longer have any faith in the League of Nations. Back in the days when I was a young man, I used to hear the orators of that time say that the time would come when there would be no more war. So I say to prepare for the worst for that must come."

FRANCE AND SPAIN IN ACCORD ON RIFF CAMPAIGN

PARIS, April 8.—(AP)—That peace in the Riff depends upon acceptance of the Spanish terms by Abd-El-Krim the Moroccan leader, was the general opinion after the conference between Premier Briand, and the Spanish ambassador, Count Quinones de Leon, today.

The two governments are in accord, it was said. The talk covered not only eventual peace terms, but conditions under which negotiations may be understaken. The procedure as outlined in official circles is this: The Spanish and French will agree as to how the discussion may be engaged; then the Cats who thus far have served as intermediaries, will be informed of the basis of the negotiations.

Abd-El-Krim will be given to understand that the authority of the sultan of Morocco and the supervision of Spain must be recognized before there is talk of peace. If the Riffian chief wants to continue the conversations on these terms, his representatives will be invited to Rabat, where delegates of the sultan, Spain and France will be ready to talk with them.

BINGHAM SUPPORTS SENATOR BROOKHART

In the Iowa Senatorial Contest—Endeavoring to Have Vote Before the Week-End.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—With the hopes of the two contestants in the Iowa senatorial contest rising and falling on the wave of oratory that has engulfed the senate for four days, debate continued today unslackened.

Senate leaders will make an effort, however, to shut off discussion in time to get a vote before the week end, but they fear it may run into next week.

Meanwhile various senators are conducting polls of the senate, with each one showing a close vote. One poll gave Senator Brookhart, the republican incumbent, a majority of five votes while another gave Daniel F. Steck, his democratic opponent, a majority of two.

Supporters of Senator Brookhart today declared openly that they were disturbed over the rumors of white house influence against Brookhart. However, denial that the president had expressed any wishes in the case was made by Senator Butler, republican, Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee. Senator Curtis, the republican leader and others. During much of the discussion today Frank W. Stearns, personal friend of the president, sat in the gallery in the president's row.

The claim of Senator Brookhart to his seat was defended by Senators Reed, Pennsylvania, and Bingham, Connecticut, republicans, and it was opposed by Senator George, democrat, Georgia, who declared that even if Brookhart is given every vote that he claims, Steck would have a majority of 22 votes.

An effort was made by Senator Bingham to have the whole case referred back to the Iowa election committee for reconsideration but no action was taken on his motion.

Both he and Senator Reed declared the majority of the committee in recommending the unseating of Brookhart had not followed the laws of Iowa, which was a violation of state rights.

Senator Bingham characterized as a "specious plea" the majority's declaration that it had followed the "intent of the voter" rather than the law, adding that there was no precedent for such action.

Senator George declared Steck had "honorably beaten" Brookhart and that the only real question at issue was the charge that the committee had adopted one rule for one precinct and another for four or five others. The committee did this, he declared, because the official representatives of both Brookhart and Steck had agreed to this plan among themselves and the committee accepted it.

He said Brookhart did not question this agreement until he saw he had lost and then he came forward with this charge after the case had been closed.

SEARCHING FOR ROBBERS OF BANK IN WESTMONT, N. J.

WESTMONT, N. J., April 8.—(AP)—Four robbers, who held up and robbed the Westmont National bank of $4,000 today, after binding the cashier and woman bookkeeper with adhesive tape were still at large tonight.

A posse of citizens and police of surrounding towns took up the chase soon after the robbers disappeared in their automobile, but found no trace of them. The car bore a Pennsylvania license and it is believed the men were from Philadelphia. They were described as under 30 years old and well dressed. In their escape they almost ran down a schoolboy and raced past a red traffic light.

The robbers entered the bank, a comparatively new institution, shortly after the doors were opened for business. Approaching the cashier, Harold Kirkride, one of them asked for change, when Kirkride returned to the window of his cage with the change which he had taken from the vault, he was commanded at the point of a pistol to "tick 'em up." At the same time, two other members of the band entered the bank. One of them forced two customers to stand in the corner with their faces to the wall and the other, in charge of the bookkeeper, Miss Frances Sullivan.

"I tried to reach a telephone, but one of them hollad me," said Kirkride in describing the holdup. "They ran over to me and I heard one of them say 'Put cover her,' meaning Miss Sullivan. Speaking quickly, I advised Miss Sullivan she had better do what they told her."

RADIO HEARINGS BEFORE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—An appeal for congressional consideration of the rights of composers, whose music, he said, has made possible the extensive development of radio, was made before the senate and house patent committees today by Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Opposing the Dill-Vestal bill to fix the terms on which broadcasters might use copyright music, he said the measure was an attempt at practically of the most radical nature.

In answer to charges of monopoly made before the committees recently by Paul B. Klugh, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, Mr. Buck asserted that his society was not operating in restraint of trade. Broadcasting stations can operate without using music controlled by the society, he said, pointing out that the Radio Corporation of America, operating seven stations, has not been listed by the society to use the music of its members.

The proposed legislation was declared by Mr. Buck to be an attempt to legalize "piracy" of music, which, he said, caused the late Victor Herbert twelve years ago to form an organization to protect the rights of composers.

WORKING FOR PROHIBITION REFERENDUM IN NEW YORK

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—In a letter to every member of the New York legislature, Representative Emanuel Celler, democrat, of New York, urged today a prohibition referendum in the state next fall.

"The drys in the epresent congress," he said, "can prevent a national referendum. They mistake stubbornness for true conviction and fear o fconstituents for courage. They will not see that a supposedly moral cause has made the country most immoral."

MUSSOLINI STARTS FOR TRIPOLI ON DREADNOUGHT

FIUMICINO, Italy, April 8.—(AP)—Italian dreadnought Cavour departed, accompanied by a large number of other warships, is on its way to Tripoli with Premier Mussolini. The warships sailed from this port at 3:30 this afternoon, after Mussolini had brought together the members of the fascist directorate and the provincial secretaries of the Fascist party. Mussolini's narrow escape from death in Rome yesterday has had no apparent effect either on his spirits or his physical condition. His wound is giving little trouble, and today he was just as forcible in greeting the officials of his government as he was in making further pronouncements for the good of the country.

The voyage to Tripoli, with a show of naval force, is for the purpose, as set forth in the newspapers, of demonstrating that Italy faces the country as a united nation conscious of its needs, and furthermore to emphasize the value of Italy's colonial possessions for the future development of the nation.

In introducing the practically secret trip to the members of the directorate, Mussolini said: "This ceremony is held on a warship for four reasons:

"First: I wish you to render homage to our glorious navy, in which are based our hopes for the future. Second I want you to become for the whole Italian people agents of my will. I want the spirit with which your hearts and spirits may be enkindled, fourth, however, comes from telegrams and letters from your many comrades who are unable to be present. We are on the Mediterranean and one destiny will bind together always the people on the land and those on the sea."

WEALTHY N. Y. BANKER DIED ABOARD HIS YACHT

MOSS GATHERER DIED AT SCITUATE, MASS, AGED 103

SCITUATE, Mass., April 8.—(AP)—Simon Jelbows, veteran among the mossers on these shores and, by reason of his 103 years, the oldest resident of Scituate, was laid to rest today. Through his calling the old moss gatherer had become well known to the summer colony here. During many years he made regular trips daily the shore in his sloop, taking Irish moss, or carrageen as some call it, from the rocks when the tide was low.

Irish moss, which is an edible seaweed, is a delicacy to dwellers along the New England seacoast. After it is cured and bleached, it is sold to be used in the making of moss pudding, a sort of gelatinous pudding that smacks of the sea and has a flavor all its own. Brewers used it in the old days, before prohibition. In the manufacture of beer, and it is still used, it is said, in the manufacture of certain near beers.

CONFERENCE OF N. E. EVANGELICAL CHURCH

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 8.—(AP)—It is safer, saner and surer to save souls in 50 weeks than 50 souls in one week, Bishop J. P. Dunlap of Cleveland said in an address here today. He was speaking at the annual New England conference of the Evangelical church.

Bishop Dunlap urged his hearers to continue their support of foreign missions but exhorted them to "stay at home in heathen America to do your missionary work."

"We have a China, a Japan in this country," he went on. "We in Cleveland have an Africa." Therin, he said, there was an ample field for the work of evangelism and conversion. Personal evangelism he held should be practiced in this country in preference to missionary endeavor in the Far East and Africa.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE URGES THE PRESS TO PROMOTE JUSTICE AND TOLERATION

In Address at Laying of the Cornerstone of the National Press Building in Washington—Chief Executive Declared That Race Hatred, Class Feeling, Religious Persecution Have No Justification in Reason and Are Disastrous in Their Consequences—Defined the Attitude of the United States in International Affairs.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—The press of the nation was urged to "creat a noble and inspired public opinion" and to aid in developing a spirit of justice and toleration by President Coolidge today in laying the corner stone of the National Press building, new home of the National Press club.

Speaking before an audience of Washington correspondents and newspaper editors and publishers not only from many sections of the United States but from Latin-America through the presence of delegates to the Pan-American Congress of Journalists in session here, the president restated the position of the government on international questions including the world court, the league of nations, and limitation of armaments.

To the surprise of the spectators, Mr. Coolidge in laying the cornerstone, instead of depositing a dab or two of mortar as officials often do at such occasions, had all the mortar necessary with a trowel handed to him by Secretary Davis of the labor department. When he was through, after several minutes of effort, there was nothing for the workmen to do but lower the stone in place.

The exercises took place with the cabinet in attendance and with the press of North and South America representing among the speakers, through Frank B. Noyes, president of The Associated Press and Arturo Peliserano, director of Listen Diario of Santo Domingo.

While the United States has refrained from interfering in the political affairs of others by refusing to adhere to the league of nations," President Coolidge declared in his address, it has adhered to the world court that it may "take part in administering international justice because it affects us."

The reservations had down as a condition of adherence to the world court, the president asserted, "adequately safeguard American rights and also tend to strengthen the independence of the country."

"Our government," he added, "has taken this step because it believed that it was the most practical method by which it could exercise its great influence in establishing the principle of a reign of international law under which disputes and differences would be adjusted, not by force but by reason."

As to armament limitation he said the American government was seeking it by "the only practical method"

TOWNS PAYS FINAL HONORS TO POLICE CHIEF M'ARTHUR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 8—In the presence of a large representative gathering of the community, relatives and friends, final tribute to the memory of Chief of Police Allan McArthur was paid in services at the First Congregational church, Thursday afternoon. In spite of rainy weather the church was well filled with sorrowing acquaintances. The casket was placed below the pulpit and was banked with floral tributes.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the church, offered prayer and pronounced the impressive eulogy. Chief McArthur received all the tributes rendered for his genial, social and loyal life. The Imperial Quartet, Arthur L. Clark, Ray B. Tallman, Edwin F. Cross and Claude Ide sang during the services, Rest We Meet Beyond the River, and Lead Kindly Light.

The Elks' ritual was then conducted by Exalted Ruler Clarence M. Mathewson, with responses by Esteemed Leading Knight P. D. Donohue, Esteemed Loyal Knight Maurice S. Leonard, James L. Quinn acting for Esteemed Lecturing Knight and Chaplain J. Francis Kane. During this ritual the quartet sang I Am Nearer Home Now.

Burial was in the new Willimantic cemetery.

At the grave the committal service was carried out by Chancellor Commander Samuel Anthony and Capt. R. Alford, of Natchaug lodge, No. — Knights of Pythias.

The bearers were Captain Thomas F. Brady and Lieutenant Frank McLean of the police department, Charles A. Yates of Natchaug lodge, Knights of Pythias, Town Clerk Frank P. Preston and John F. Donahue of Willimantic lodge No. 1314, B. P. O. Elks.

Among the city and town officials present were Mayor John C. Tracy and the entire common council, Corporation Counsel William A. King, City Clerk James S. Donohue Jr., First Selectman Ernest P. Chesebro and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Also in attendance as a double squad of members of the police department, a detail of members of the fire department headed by Chief Percy J. Kelsey and members of the board of engineers of the department. A delegation from Rockville police department also attended and a detail of Eastern Long Wharf, K. of P. lodge No 28 represented that organization.

The L. C. Lincoln company had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TESTMAN CHAS. E. SMITH PRAISED FOR HEROISM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 8—Charles E. Smith, testman, connected with the Willimantic office of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company, has received favorable, honorable mention in the April issue of the Telephone Bulletin for distinguished action, showing that he had public safety and welfare in consideration. Testman Smith, upon investigating the reason for the continued running of an automobile motor in a neighboring garage on the evening of November 3, last, found George Pirkle unconscious by carbon monoxide gas. Mr. Smith threw open the doors, shut off the motor and with help took the man outside and applied artificial respiration. Mr. Pirkle responded to the treatment and for a time was believed out of danger but he died several hours later.

MOTORIST TOOK CHANCES, RISK COST HIM $5.75

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 8—On complaint of Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs, Eugene Little of New York city, who is employed in business, was arraigned in the Willimantic police court, Thursday morning, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Little was driving on Main street, near Bridge street, Wednesday afternoon. Like a pleased him in the machine and cut a figure in front were two other vehicles, one of them a truck, approached from the opposite direction. Briggs stated that there was no evidence that the man was speeding, but due to the nature of the junction of two streets and the amount of traffic. Little was fined $5 and costs, totaling $5.75. Briggs asserted Little at the time and the time of his arrest seemed to him much confused that he should not be at large. Briggs then came to police headquarters and after he had filed his complaint, word was sent on to the Rockville police and they passed Little on return to which he did. Mr. Briggs was accompanied by Lieutenant Lewis of the state police.

Mrs. Clara Upton, generally regarded as a regular boarder at the county jail in Brooklyn, pleaded guilty Thursday to a charge of intoxication and was committed to the county jail for a period of sixty days. Mrs. Upton was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Clarence Lombard on the Windham road. She was found in the gutter. Officer Lombard took her to the police station and she was locked up. Mrs. Upton is well known to the police and has been in jail many times. She was given a suspended sentence on one occasion.

Mary A. Thompson, 31, wife of Louis Lapierre, of this city, died at Windham Memorial hospital Wednesday morning after a short illness. She was a patient there for pneumonia. Mrs. Peters was born in Johnstown, Scotland, October 1894, a daughter of John J. and Jeanette Officer Thompson. Besides her husband she leaves three children, Lester Eileen and Louis Peters, two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Larkin of Worcester and Mrs. Bessie Lanier of this city and a brother John Thompson of Putnam. The family home was at 407 Jackson street, this city.

Granite blocks to match those of the main floor are being laid as a facing on the front of the second floor of the Windham National Bank building. The work is being completed after being delayed by the several months ago. Capstone surmounts the first course of granite. As a result there is no front appearance of the legend of the Bank of Windham. Between the first and second floor the granite on the lower floor which has been in place for about four years was being polished Thursday to match the new work. On the second floor, carpenters and plasterers are busy remodelling the rooms, which are to be occupied by the bank, with the exception of an office suite to be occupied by Attorney W. A. King. There will be ten rooms on this floor.

Mechanics are rushing to completion the alterations being made at the Gem theater building. The interior and entrances have been completely remodeled and decorators are now at work on the side walls. Manager John E. Pickett hopes to reopen the house on or about April 22.

A drive for new members of l'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique will be inaugurated here soon, in charge of Organizer Sabourin who arrived in this city Thursday. Officers of both Conseil Ste. Cecile and Conseil Florimond met Wednesday evening and the following officers were elected: Rev. J. J. Papillon and Rev. H. C. Belec, chaplains; F. J. Laramee, director; C. E. Dufresne, president; Miss A. Rousseau, vice-president; F. Lambert, secretary and Mrs. L. Grenier, assistant secretary.

Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal, has been confined to the Windham Center rectory with a severe case of tonsilitis. He was taken ill with throat trouble during Holy Week and last Monday his physician recommended a rest indoors. His condition was improved Thursday.

Rain still falls and roads and city streets grow worse as the second week in April nears an end. Due to continuous rain, nothing of lasting nature can be done to improve traveling conditions. Upper and lower Main street sections are a rough-rider's paradise. Hold your eggs on high and keep a hand on your hat" is the slogan which motorists have adopted as they head their cars into the mud and baby ponds to be found in these sections.

Archibald W. Buchanan, of Mansfield center agent for the state board of education met three children between 14 and 16 seeking employment certificates, at his weekly test in the town building Thursday forenoon.

Noting her 84th birthday, Mrs. Carolyn M. Smith was tendered an enjoyable birthday party at her home, 24 Chestnut street, Wednesday. Her sons, Benjamin L. Smith of New Haven, Postmaster Frank M. Smith and Ellison S. Smith of this city with their families and her daughter, Miss Annie Smith also of this city, assisted in making the day a pleasant one. Mrs. Smith received many gifts, flowers and a shower of greeting cards.

Brave hearts dared wet streets and rain-blurred windshields Thursday, to display their skill at operating a motor vehicle to State Policeman Harold Wills of the Stafford Springs barracks, who was at the police headquarters here Thursday to issue certificates to operators' licenses. A number of applicants called between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Mrs. Katie Vogel observed her 79th birthday at her home, 943 Main street Wednesday evening, with a supper and social hour. Several friends attended and they presented Mrs. Vogel beautiful and useful gifts.

Dr. and Mrs. A. V. Segar have as their guest Miss Minnie A. Segar of New Haven.

APRIL CRIMINAL TERM AT WILLIMANTIC APRIL 13th

County Clerk Edgar M. Warren, of Putnam, has issued the following:

Windham county superior court notice—The April criminal term, 1926, of the Windham county superior court, will open at Willimantic, Tuesday, April 13, at 10:30 a. m. Each accused person who has not as yet pleaded must appear in court at the above time and place prepared to plead, and if the plea is not guilty, elect trial by court or jury. All persons pleading not guilty must be prepared to proceed to trial as the court may direct. No cases will be tried Tuesday.

It's a poor rule that won't work both ways, but it's a poorer one that won't work at all.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. ALLEN LATHAM HEARD AT LOCAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 8—The Women's Missionary meeting of the Congregational church was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss S. K. Adams. Mrs. F. E. Robinson presided, conducting an Easter offering service. The secretary's report was read by Mrs. John Whalley and the treasurer's report by Miss Helen Hull. Letters and bulletins were read by Mrs. Whalley and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. The Easter offering envelopes were received. Mrs. Allen Latham of Norwich gave a very entertaining and instructive talk on the several aspects of work which the Home Missionary union is asked to support. She spoke of the annual meeting in Hartford this month and stated that, as the president, Mrs. Charles Thayer has resigned, it will be the last one over which she will preside. During the six years Mrs. Thayer has been president, the funds are increased from twelve thousand dollars to sixty thousand. At the close of the meeting tea, cinnamon toast and wafers were served.

The death of Mrs. Charles H. Van Natter at Oak Bluffs, Mass. was announced at the sessions of the Methodist, Southern New England conference being held in South Manchester. It caused sadness to Jewett City people. Mr. and Mrs. Van Natter having been much beloved by their parish and other friends during Mr. Van Natter's pastorate at the Methodist church here. Mrs. Van Natter was a member of Dorcas circle of The King's Daughters when she lived here, and a card was sent to her from the circle when she was in the Deaconess hospital in Boston, a few weeks ago. A letter from Mr. Van Natter in response, testifies to his wife's Christian courage. It said "She is very weak and feeble in body but strong in spirit. When last our church sent her a beautiful plant she sent this message, "My faith sustains me and my anchor holds." The people here say that her faith and courage have been an inspiration to all.

The northeast storm of the past two days, with a certain shade of blue sky, has somewhat dampened the ardor of local anglers, but Willey is still to be seen with a basket of the best Griswold brooks, and so far not one returning fisherman has had much to show for his pains.

Yet, as one local lover of the sport was wont to say, He had been fishing anyway, hinting at the same time that even if returning with empty creel, yet there was a certain something he had, that neither bit at his hook, nor swam in the brook.

Rifle club dance, Rioux hall, tonight. Round and square dances. Lee's old time fiddler's orchestra. Bridgeport.—adv.

John Reed, from the office of R. A Bridgett in Boston, chief clerk of the railway mail service, was at the local postoffice Thursday. Assistant Postmaster Thomas Barnett and mailing clerk Gilbert Miner were examined on the distribution of the state of Connecticut.

Musical tableaux. Congregational vestry tonight. Home made candy Come!—adv

Miss Nellie Franklin went to Boston Thursday for two days.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The April meeting of the Town school committee is to be held Monday evening at the library instead of on the last Monday in the month as has been the custom for several years.

Joseph Calderado of Willimantic was presented in court Tuesday afternoon on complaint of his wife charged with non-support. Mrs. Calderado claims that she was married in March 1925 that she has one child and that she has never received anything toward her support from her husband since she was married. Judge Heald placed Calderado under a bond of $200 for appearance in the borough court April 15th.

HAROLD CLAWSON FINED IN NORWICH CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 8.—Harold Clawson was before Judge Arthur F. Libby of Norwich yesterday morning charged with not having the proper lights on his car and not having his license with him. He was fined $5 for defective lights and $5 for being without his license and the costs which amounted to $16.60. He was arrested early Wednesday morning when he appeared to the left of the flashing beacon at the foot of Scotfield Hill, with only one light burning.

Another boxing exhibition is to be held under the auspices of the Putnam Sporting club in St. John's hall. Ten fast bouts are scheduled between the very best amateurs in this section of the state.

The next meeting of the Parent Teacher association is to be held in the High School auditorium Tuesday evening, April 13. The programme will consist of ballad singing by Miss Alice Stevens and readings from modern poetry by Miss Sara King of the high school faculty who has arranged the programme for this meeting. Refreshments will be served. The meeting is open to the public.

KEEPING GERMS ALIVE PROVES DELICATE TASK FOR STUDENT

BERKELEY, Calif., April 8—(AP)—Keeping alive dyphtheria and tuberculosis germs is one of the tasks of Anthony Salle, graduate student, who is seeking a doctor's degree at the University of California.

Bacteria must be had for experimental purposes and under Salle's care are approximately one hundred varieties.

No epicures are more exacting in their diet requirements than these wards of his—the invisible enemies of the human race. The hardier germs will thrive in a medium of beef infusion and other ingredients with Japanese agar or gelatine added to make the solution solid. Among these are the staphylococcus which causes boils and the typhoid bacteria.

The pneumonia germ and the streptococcus, which causes sore throat, arfed agar and blood. More delicate germs must have an egg or beef serum.

Temperature is a vital consideration in the "culture" of germs, for virtually all are killed at 60 degrees or less.

HIGHER TAXI FARES WILL GREET AMERICAN TOURISTS IN FRANCE

PARIS, April 8—(AP)—Taxi-drivers known to tourists as one of the cheapest pleasures of Paris, will cost more for American visits this summer.

Day rates pending the installation of new meters on the cabs, have been increased by one franc and night rates will be double the present meter-readings. Chauffeurs agitated for months to get the new scale of tariffs arranged, using increased prices they had to pay for tires and gasoline as their principal argument.

As a compensation for the passenger, the police have received orders to prevent chauffeurs from bargaining or charging excessive fares late at night, which has been a scandalous abuse in Montmartre where cabarets and night clubs do not close until four or five o'clock in the morning.

Use Gift to Move Schools

SOFIA, April 8 (AP)—Part of the income from $400,000 given American evangelical schools for boys and girls in Bulgaria from the estate of Charles Martin Hall, of Oberlin, O., will be used in transferring the institutions from Samokov to an improved location in Sofia.

WESTERLY

SUDDEN SPURT OF GEYSER MYSTIFIES POPULACE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 8. — Between heavy showers early Thursday, when in Dixon square about 11 a. m., the sidewalk in front of the main entrance to the Rhode Island hotel yawned. The bricks in the sidewalk pavement bobbed up, followed by spurts and then a rush of water as though the walk were smitten by the rod of some unseen Moses. Police Officer Michael Curtin on duty in the square, and at the time just in front of the Industrial Trust company up the street, had become accustomed to water falling but this new invasion of moisture in his precinct, in spite of congressional investigation and state legislative action, was too much for him to cope with single handed.

He connected the flow of moisture first with the Westerly water department and hastily had their forces summoned by telephone. After their arrival, too, could be of no immediate avail, for there was no break in the water main.

At last Walter S. Price, agent for the hotel property, admitted his part in the sudden flood. During the heavy showers water had collected on the roofs above the store. In seeking to allow its escape in small quantities at a time it started all at once and the waters rose from a break in the lead-off under the sidewalk. So great was the rush of waters at flood that some of it found its way back into the hotel lobby on the ground floor. When the waters had receeded the pavement bricks were replaced, the dust down and commerce proceeded as usual.

Westerly Christian Endeavor Union, George R. Dowding, president, and made up of the societies of six Westerly churches is to hold a union meeting Sunday evening in Pawcatuck Congregational church. The societies participating are the Epworth league of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Christian Endeavor societies of Ashaway and Potter Hill, Seventh Day Baptist, Broad Street Christian, First Baptist, Pawcatuck Congregational and Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist churches.

Stephen Ettoure of Providence, president of the Rhode Island Society of Christian Endeavor will be the principal speaker at the services at which President Dowding will preside. The program arranged follows: 6:30 to 7:45, praise service; 7:45 to 8, business with local presidents; 8 to 8:05, roll call of societies; 8:05 to 8:20 address of Campbell Ettoure, president of R. I. C. E. U.; 8:20 to 8:30, awarding of C. E. banner; 8:30 to 9:00, social hour. The Christian Endeavor banner is awarded the society having the largest percentage of its members in attendance.

At the home of the bride, 15 Noyes avenue, Pawcatuck, Wednesday, Miss Anna Veronica Schulze, daughter of Mrs. Margaretha Schulze, and William H. Dodz of 245 Park street, Hartford, were married by Rev. Walter Heinze, pastor of Trinity Evangelical church of Westerly. Miss Katherine Rose of Westerly was bridesmaid and Fred Schulze, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride wore a gown of pink georgette. Her bouquet was two colored sweet peas and a shower of butterfly roses. Her bridesmaid wore tan crepe romaine with hat to match and carried yellow roses. Mr. and Mrs. Dodz left on a wedding trip to New York and Washington. Upon their return they will make their home after May 1 at 31 Morgan street, Hartford, Conn.

John N. Giatrelis left Thursday morning for a business visit in Boston.

MYSTIC

The April meeting of Fanny Ledyard chapter, Daughter of the American Revolution, held in Masonic temple Wednesday afternoon, opened with roll call of officers and devotional exercises by the chaplain, the pledge to the flag and singing of America. The regent, Mrs. Alida S. Hill and Mrs. Marie N. Dickinson gave most interesting reports of the state meeting held at Stamford March 18 and 19. Since the last annual meeting one chapter, in the state has disbanded, leaving 52 chapters at present. The membership a year ago was 6376 and the latest reports state it is 6589. According to these figures the membership has increased only 13. Many of the older members have passed away during the year and a few dropped out and not so many new members were added. This is the year for the election of the nation officers. The regent by virtue of her office is the first delegate and the vice regent her alternate. One delegate is allowed for each one hundred members, so this chapter is entitled to two votes. Every state in the union has chapters with one in Alaska, Cuba, China, Hawaii, France, Panama, Philippine Islands and one formed in London a year ago. At the national board meeting, Feb. 4 1926 the drawing of seats for the thirty-fifth Continental Congress resulted in Connecticut being assigned thirty-ninth place. South Carolina secured No. 1 and Oregon the last, No. 56. Only three states have over 100 chapters. New York leads with 156 and 15,593 members; Pennsylvania has 111 with 10,660, Massachusetts 103 with 8220 members, Connecticut is entitled to 120 or more votes, two chapters, New Haven and Bridgeport each having over 400 members, entitling them to 5 votes each, in the Connecticut chapters. Mystic was organized June 8, 1893 and was number 10. Mrs. Eliza Miner Denison was the first regent and to her belongs the credit of securing 16 charter members and the chapter being formed. The thirty-second annual state meeting was held last Oct. 13, 1925 in New Britain. The state has had but four state regents in the 32 years and is the only one to continue reelecting the same one to the office. The first state regent was Mrs. De E. Randolph Kein, whose national number was 2960; she was untiring in her efforts to advance the cause of the D. A. R. in the state. At the end of two years Mrs. Sara Thompson Kinney was elected, serving 14 years when the vice regent, Mrs. John L. Buell was elected. Mrs. Kinney recommending her for the office. Mrs. Buell served for 10 years when she desired to be vice president-general and was elected. The vice regent, Mrs. Charles H. Bissell was elected state regent and has served for four years. At the last meeting March 19 in Stamford it was voted that the officers cannot hold office for more than 5 years so it looks as if Connecticut will get in line with the other states to change officers, thereby giving more of the members an opportunity to serve the state. The committee after the local meeting served refreshments.

The St. Petersburg, Fla., Evening Independent gave a report of a card party at the Gotham hotel and among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Williams of Mystic.

The April meeting of the Parent-Teachers association will be held in Mystic Academy tonight (Friday). Mr. Harrington representing a New York publishing house, will give a talk and will have with him about 100 books on various subjects, suitable for children of all ages. The committee in charge is Mrs. H. F. Hill, Mrs. Jane Woodbury, Mrs. Louis Bendett and Mrs. Benjamin Bendett.

Williams W. R. Cobb held its meeting in G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening. At the close of the business session at which the president, Mrs. Leota Wilcox presided, an entertainment was given followed by a social time, when refreshments were served. The brief corps from Westerly and Stonington were guests for the evening.

The Home missionary society of the Methodist church met with Mrs. Henry Schroder of Greenmanville avenue, Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting of Stonington Lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F., was held Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall.

Helen Starkey chapter met in St. Mark's parish house Thursday afternoon and tied a quilt.

Mrs. Jennie Plumb, who spent the winter with Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Congdon, is ill at her home in Colchester.

The Methodist church omitted the prayer meeting Wednesday evening, owing to the Methodist conference being held at South Manchester.

Rev. H. B. Sloat of Hartford was the speaker at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting of the Union Baptist church.

Miss Patricia Northrup of New London is the guest of her grandparents, C. W. Haynes.

PLAINFIELD

GEORGE BERIL FINED SUM OF $100 ON TWO COUNTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, April 8—At the session of the town court at Central Village this week, George Beril of Moosup was fined $100 and costs, by Judge George L. Torrey, being found guilty on a charge of reckless driving and leaving the location of an accident. Saturday night last, the car he was driving collided with a car owned by E. Medbury, which was parked near his house in Central Village. Mr. Medbury immediately called the state police barracks at Danielson and notified them and then gave chase after Beril, catching him at a nearby gasoline station, and brought him back to see his car. Beril waited an opportunity to evade Medbury, got into his machine and started to drive away again, but in crossing the railroad tracks the wheels got caught in the rails and stalled the engine. The help of several men was required to move the car from this position, making it necessary to flag an approaching train. Officer Nelson of the state police arrived in the meantime and arrested Beril. Last summer Beril figured in an accident which caused the death of W. Anthony. For this his license was revoked and was only reissued to him April 1st of this year. Under the present ruling quoted by Judge Torrey it will be again suspended.

Harry Richardson has been appointed one of the directors of the Danielson Rotary club for the ensuing year.

Superintendent of Schools John L. Chapman has secured the services of Alban R. Rice to replace Mr. Emery, who recently resigned as teacher of science, and coach of athletics at the high school, Central Village. Mr. Rice is a graduate of Bates college, Me., and comes here from Boston, where he was formerly engaged in teaching. He reported for duty Monday at the opening of the term following the Easter vacation. The basketball team is practicing hard in preparation for the first game of the season with Warwick high school at Moosup, to be played Saturday afternoon.

Miss Elizabeth Gorman, nurse at the Lawton mills was called home Tuesday, by the news of the sudden death of her father at Clinton, Mass.

The ladies' bowling team of Plainfield again suffered defeat at the hands of a strong team from Goodyear, Tuesday evening at the community house 1458 to 1142. The Goodyear bowlers showed consistent rolling skill and were favored by the breaks. The high single of 122 was rolled by Ruth McGovern of Goodyear, who also got the high three of 330. Mrs. Gee rolled the high single 95 of the Plainfield team and Teresa Sullivan rolled high three 258. The teams were as follows: Plainfield, Teresa Sullivan Daisy Gee, Mary Baldwin, Margaret Marriott, Mrs. Harry Hilton and Marion Lee; Goodyear, Almer Foster, Ruth McGovern, Mrs. Picard, Marie Sareault and Mrs. B. Lis.

Consideration was given to plans presented by one architect, at a special meeting of the school board held at the high school, at Central Village, this week for the construction of an addition to the present school building in Plainfield. The architect went over the plans in minute detail. Another meeting was called for Thursday night to continue the discussion. Due to the fact that four architects are submitting plans, it is likely that several meetings will be required, before the board will be able to arrive at a decision.

The last meeting of the year of the primary teachers of all the schools in the town was held at the high school in Central Village, Tuesday afternoon. A number of reports were read.

FOLLOW THE RIGHT COURSE

When the federal fiscal year ends June 30 the indications at the present time point strongly to the fact that there will be a good sized surplus. This is, of course, as it should be. It cannot be regarded as good business to pile up a deficit. But the concern which is being displayed by the president does not concern the present fiscal year, but the year to come. Affairs have been so handled that the present year will permit the balancing of the books on the right side of the ledger and contribute a substantial amount in the way of debt reduction, a benefit to the taxpayer which goes hand in hand with tax reduction.

But because the present year is going to end all right according to the present outlook does not warrant a disregard for the year to come. There is need for the continuance of the same wise policy and that will be more likely to be given to the advice which the chief executive continues to offer.

Under reduced taxation the government has experienced a smaller reduction in revenue than was anticipated. That would easily prompt indulgence in unrestrained expenditures. It is when the government is considered to be flush that restrictions are often removed and it is that should be done. There is no telling where a stop would be made.

The tax returns are pleasing but it must be carried in mind that only the first quarter has been heard from. What the others are going to produce no one knows. They may equal the estimates and they may fall below, but whatever the result is the situation can be completely changed if there is a departure from the policy which has been followed in the past year. By the time the next fiscal year is completed in June 1927 there's no telling what the situation will be. It therefore behooves those who are making the appropriations to proceed cautiously and keep in the middle of the road. The country would be the gainer if a larger surplus than estimated should be accumulated. Such would certainly not be the case if an estimated surplus should be turned into a serious deficit.

FREIGHT, BUT NO SHIPS

How water traffic between the east and west coasts of this country has developed is clearly demonstrated by the records which are kept at the Panama canal. The tolls collected have outdistanced the fondest hopes and even awakened talk concerning increasing the canal facilities.

But with such results gained at the canal there are other reports which indicate that the only reason that more goods are not moving from the west coast to the east is that there are not enough vessels to handle it. Large cargoes are being carried but tons and tons of freight are left upon the docks because there is no room for it on the ships. The lack of ships to handle the business is set forth in explanation of the situation.

But with the great number of merchant vessels owned by this government and rolling idly at anchor it would seem that this situation ought to be met in some degree if the demand for the movement of the goods is pressing.

What can be expected of our merchant marine if it cannot be employed for such service? It is probable that all of the idle ships would not meet the requirements, but it is certainly a sad situation if none of them would, for certainly if none of them can be employed to meet such a situation it furnishes another reason for disposing of them at the earliest possible moment.

Looked at in another way the picture is even more disturbing, for if the idle ships cannot be employed for intercoastal freight transportation purposes now they certainly are not going to be adaptable to such uses as time goes on. Repeatedly it has been said that our merchant fleet under government control, that is not in active service, is rusting away and increasing the loss that must be borne sooner or later and the meaning of such a statement is accentuated when it is claimed that it is impossible to get vessels to handle the freight that is waiting to be moved.

RUSSIA AND DISARMAMENT

It is still a question whether disarmament is going to amount to anything. Before things seemed to go to smash at the Geneva conference everything looked rosy and enthusiasm ran high. The chief obstacle then was the indication that Russia would not participate because of its unwillingness to send a delegation to Switzerland. If the conference should be held elsewhere than at Geneva that difficulty might be avoided.

But the failure to agree at the meeting of the league of nations had its disturbing influence regardless of the fact that it was insisted that the spirit of Locarno remained undamaged, though it has not as yet served to cause another postponement of the disarmament conference. But Russia remains obdurate. It maintains that it has never received proper amends from Switzerland for the murder of a Russian observer at the treaty conference at Lausanne by a Swiss and it will not disregard that fact.

Because of the feeling, Russia has declared that it will not participate in the disarmament conference, which declaration amounts to the throwing of a monkey wrench into the disarmament machinery. Russia is an important European country when it comes to the question of armaments. It maintains a large army and a sizable navy and it is a country where war isn't the last resort always in the adjustment of difficulties.

Under the conditions, how many of the countries of Europe are going to whittle down their armies and reduce their war machines when it is known that Russia is going to do nothing of the kind and isn't even participating in the consideration of such action?

Armaments are maintained and increased because that is what is being done in other countries. The country that refuses to reduce armaments is the one that will get the style, especially if it is a large country like Russia. The refusal of that country to participate in the disarmament conference is therefore a solar plexus before the preliminary conference opens.

SHOULD BEAR GOOD FRUIT

In his address to the first Pan-American Congress of Journalists at Washington, President Coolidge graciously welcomed the newspaper men of the western hemisphere. It was an opportunity in keeping with a Pan-American congress and he made the most of it by calling attention to the fact that it should promote a better understanding between the republics so represented and pointing out that it "should foster a spirit of sympathy, harmony and cooperation."

For a great many years, for too long, there has not been that contact and close relationship between the nations of this hemisphere that ought to have existed. In some quarters there seems to have been a misinterpretation of our efforts to better that relationship and to stand up for the interests of the little fellows. We have not mingled commercially and socially in such a way as to eliminate some of these misunderstandings.

But conditions have been undergoing a change for the better. Increased efforts have been made for better understandings, visits have been exchanged by leading citizens and delegations representing various lines of enterprise. We have not only succeeded in developing a greater business with these countries but we have come to a better mutual understanding. And it is a furtherance of that very same acquaintanceship that should result from the gathering of the journalists from all corners of this hemisphere and the president correctly says that "Your newspapers may do much to emphasize and make more effective the efforts of this organization (Pan-American Union) to bring the United States and the Latin American republic into close bonds of helpfulness."

STRIKING CAPE COD

Coming from Barry, Wales, a British tramp steamer, the Hillcroft, with coal's dozen tons of coal for Providence struck on the Little Round shoals, eight miles off Chatham. It found one of those shallow spots on Cape Cod where so many vessels have gone aground or been wrecked.

Inasmuch as it was coming from abroad it is probable that the vessel would not have made use of Cape Cod canal had it been capable of handling larger vessels, but what this British tramp did is only what scores and scores of other vessels, from tramps to warships have done in trying to get around the treacherous shoals off Cape Cod and wind in through the narrow and crooked channel of Nantucket and Vineyard sound.

Through the provisions of the rivers and harbors bill the purchase of the Cape Cod canal by the government will be accomplished if the measure is passed. This will mean the cutting off of 70 miles of distance for the coasting vessels and the elimination of a most dangerous stretch of navigation for vessels of all types. The canal is already doing this for many vessels, including the large passenger ships running between New York and Boston and for certain other water traffic, but increased protection that will go with the acquisition of this waterway by the government, accompanied as it is to be expected by a widening and deepening of the canal, will be adequate compensation to say nothing of the facilities which will be afforded the government itself in the movement of warships and other vessels in times of peace as well as conflict. Many a ship has gone ashore on Cape Cod since the acquisition of the canal by the government was advocated, that would have escaped had the facilities of the canal been available. What happened to the British tramp occurs repeated to American vessels.

EDITORIAL NOTES

By the time the prohibition evidence is all obtained there should be a drought or a flood.

April apparently doesn't intend that there shall be any of last winter's coal supply carried over.

KILLING TWO BIRDS

"That dog barked all night again," said Mrs. Grady at breakfast.

"All night is a long time," her husband remarked, setting down his coffee cup, and his smile was enough to madden a saint.

"It certainly seemed long enough to me."

"Most people have little idea of time in the night," he continued placidly. "Five minutes awake seems an hour; an hour is all night. Truth is, my dear, I've never heard that dog bark from bedtime till daylight."

"And no wonder—the way you lie there and smo—" but Mrs. Grady drew the line at the most insulting taunt a wakeful person can possibly fling at a good sleeper. "I hear it, anyway, and those people have no business to chain their dog out there. Mrs. Tranum says it's a public nuisance. She says if you'd take the trouble to report it to the police it would be stopped."

"That sounds like Mrs. Tranum," said Grady. "It's my guess she isn't any too well liked in her own neighborhood. My dear, listen: If you'd had your way last week when that small boy was ringing our bell and running away, you'd have gone to his parents and made enemies of them. I counseled you that, having just moved in, we should be careful not to get in wrong the first thing with our neighbors. I told you to ignore it—and see the result. He stopped it himself."

"Oh, no he didn't! I stopped talking about it, that's all. I ran to answer that bell four times yesterday, and no one there—but I saw the little imp running away. And what with that dog all night and the boy all day on the other side—"

"There now—gently, gently! You're too hasty, my dear. Patience is what you lack. See here, you take a good long nap today and rest up. It's nerves that ails you."

Sage advice—and it went where sage advice goes. The door had scarcely closed behind her husband that morning when Mrs. Grady, with her head high, sat down at the telephone and called the police station. Her complaint was of the barking dog, and the response was most satisfactory.

Not 15 minutes later the doorbell rang, and, like a flash, she darted to the threshold, getting there just in time to clutch by the arm, great severity, a dirty-faced little boy to the sidewalk, where, as luck had it, she came face to face with a hopeless looking mother on her way home from marketing.

At sight of his parent Johnny began to kick and scream. Above the din Mrs. Grady explained and Johnny's mother commanded him to apologize.

"I won't!" yelled Johnny. "I'll ring her old doorbell all I want to." And he made a frightful face at Mrs. Grady, who still held him fast in spite of his struggles.

The next instant, without warning, Johnny went limp. His eyes popped. His jaw fell. To Mrs. Grady's amazement his mother was doing the same.

The reason was that two herculean policemen, in full regalia, had sprung from nowhere, close beside the group. "Was it you telephoned the station?" one of them asked Mrs. Grady and she said, "yes."

"I-I 'pologise! I won't do it again!" Johnny was whimpering as he crowded against his mothers' skirts.

"Oh, very good. Then you may go for now." His captor's manner was grim, but she released her hold, and as Johnny and his mother hurried away with nervous backward glances she turned to the officers and gave them what they wanted—the address of the people who owned the barking dog.

Three peaceful weeks followed before Mrs. Grady's husband, remarking one evening on the fact that he had heard nothing about barking dogs and ringing doorbells for some time past, added wisely:

"Now, don't you see, my dear? I told you it would settle itself. The whole trouble with you was nerves—just as I said."

And then, being human, she told him.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Serious Question

Mr. Editor: Recently Former Secretary Weeks, referring to the weakness of our defense remarked, "About one half of our population is sub-normal." He added, "It may be too late for any constructive action on a national scale to eradicate the physical weakness of the present generation, but it is certainly not too late to prevent the oncoming generation from developing similar defects. He lamented that this weakness placed our nation in the position of having to defend itself with one arm tied behind its back." It would seem that these timely remarks had awakened the citizens of Washington to the necessity of doing something that would be constructive; for legislation is being prepared by a local civic group, with the cooperation of the district health officer and will shortly be introduced in congress. The proposed measure will provide for a medical inspection of all school children in the city, of all the teachers in the public schools, inspection of all children applying for permits to work, inspection of all buildings used for school purposes by sanitation and health experts and inspection in hygiene in the schools. It is hoped to have this legislation passed by this congress.

This is truly the right step forward. During the war we realized that there was a marked degeneracy among our young Americans, as 66 per cent of 1,300,000 volunteers for the army and navy were rejected because of physical unfitness. Is it not strange that we are so slow in recognizing the absolute necessity of taking some drastic measures to correct this degenerating process going on among our young people!

Hon. Herbert Hoover in a letter to President Coolidge a short time ago said, "There is no agency in the world today that is so uniformly affecting the health, efficiency education and character of boys and girls as the cigarette habit."

Trust Washington is alive to this menace. Reports in the course of lectures being given in the public schools upon the use of tobacco especially cigarettes by Dr. D. H. Kress of the Washington sanatorium and hospital.

What is being done in Washington can be done in every state in the union. The boys and girls of today are to carry the burdens of the coming generations. We know what poor stuff we had to select from in our late war for soldiers. If our boys and girls of today keep up the habit of cigarette smoking which has increased at an alarming rate what sort of men and women can we expect to have not only to defend our country, but to be leaders as statesmen, teachers, preachers and business men? It is the most serious question before our country today. What will we do with it?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peeper's Adventures

Big and little, swift and slow,
We all of us adventuring go.
—Peeper the Hyla.

Peeper the Hyla is a very tiny fellow and little folk are always having adventures. They have more adventures than big folk, because always there are so many big folk looking for little folk. Life for Peeper the Hyla is one adventure after another from the time he awakens in early spring until he goes to bed again in the mud for his long winter sleep. When Mr. and Mrs. Quack arrived at the Smiling Pool Peeper knew that his adventures would be greatly increased. He knew that either Mr. Quack or Mrs. Quack would be delighted to catch him, and that they would be watching for him. Yet he must sing. He just had to sing. He felt as if he couldn't live if he didn't sing. So, very cautiously he would creep up on a little twig, poke his nose above the water, look all around until he could see Mr. and Mrs. Quack, and then if it were safe, he would fill that little music bag of his with air and begin to sing. He would sing with all his might. But he was always ready to dive and hide at the least sound.

One little wee second more and that pickerel would have had him

Once as he dived to hide among the dead leaves on the bottom of the Smiling Pool, a long slim form darted after him. It was a pickerel, which you know is a kind of fish; a kind of fish that is very, very fond of little frogs. Peeper went into the mud under those leaves just in time. One little wee second more and that pickerel would have had him.

It was a long time before Peeper dared come out and swim to the surface again. When he could no longer stand the ache in his throat because he so much wanted to sing, he went to the surface again. This time he was left in peace for quite a while. Mr. and Mrs. Quack were on the farther side of the Smiling Pool, so Peeper sang and sang. But he kept his ears wide open all the time. He caught the sound of just the faintest little splash. He didn't wait to see what or who had made it. He disappeared, and he did it so quickly that had you been there looking right at him you probably would not have seen which he went. Peeper believes in safety first. He says that if you are safe, you have always plenty of time to investigate afterwards. So, often he hides when there is no need of hiding. But he considers it worth the trouble. In this particular case, it was well for Peeper that he disappeared so quickly. It was only a moment later that Mr. Watersnake came along.

Again when he thought it safe, he came up and renewed his song. This time he had hardly begun singing when a long body with a long spear-like bill shot down at him. It came like a flash, but quick as it was, Peeper was just a wee bit quicker, so it was that Longlegs the Heron just missed him. "My," exclaimed Peeper to himself. "Old Longlegs gets quicker and quicker. I didn't know that as had arrived, but evidently he has, and so he is one more to watch out for. Life certainly is exciting. I don't know what I would do if it were not. It would be very tame. But there is such a thing as too much excitement. It interferes with my singing, and just now I want to sing. I must sing. Yes, sir, I must sing. I can no more help singing than I can help breathing. I have been saving this spring song up for nearly a year and now I just must sing."

And once more, Peeper the Hyla who you know is a very tiny tree frog, went to the surface, filled his music bag and was just about to start when slap, came Jerry Muskrat's tail on the water, which was Jerry's danger signal. Again Peeper waited not at all but plunged for the bottom. And it was just this way all day and all night. Peeper had so many narrow escapes that he didn't even try to count them.

The next story: "An Exciting Moment."

Tripods are tidal waves on the sea of matrimony.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Park Trammell, who is in line for congratulations today on his 50th birthday anniversary, is serving his second term as United States senator from Florida. Senator Trammell is a lawyer who though a native of Florida, was educated in Tennessee. His first business experiences in Florida were in rather humble positions in trade, such as clerking, and bookkeeping. Once he got on his feet, he turned to law, which he had studied at Cumberland university, Tennessee, and when admitted to the bar he settled at Lakeland. There he entered politics, became mayor, and then rose to be a state lawmaker, first as representative and later as senator. From that he went to attorney-general of the state and then to being governor—these were the rungs on which he climbed into the national senate. As Mr. Trammell has proved serviceable to Florida, it is likely the state will follow the traditional policy of the south and keep him in the senate for some time to come.

Stories That Recall Others

A Nude Horse

Dorothy and Sally, aged five and three, were visiting their grandparents. One morning they had been out playing when they suddenly burst into the house very much excited and breathless. Being asked the reason for their hurried entrance, Dorothy gasped out: "Oh, there was a horse went running down the street and nobody was with it. And it didn't have a thing on, not even a strap—nothing but just its skin and its tail."

As She Is Spoken

Up drives a small coupe, considerably crowded. Honk, honk, and out rushes a maiden wearing galoshes and sans other things.

"Go Bo," she cries to the lad behind the honks.

"Bo, Dutchess," he says. "Hop on this pony for a little spell."

"Thanks," said the maiden.

"Welks," said the lad.

Honk, honk, they're off.

From Small Beginnings

William H. Seward, the Country Boy, Lincoln's Great Secretary of State.

In the dark days of the Civil war, Abraham Lincoln gathered about him a brilliant coterie of advisers. Among the most able and the most distinguished men in his cabinet was William Henry Seward, the secretary of state. Owing to his efforts the great powers of Europe were kept from taking part in the American Civil war. Seward had an experience with government and with diplomacy that Lincoln lacked. His ability and training, united with Lincoln's rock-founded patriotism and honesty, brought the land through its period of despair into the bright days of fully established union.

William H. Seward was a country boy, unable to obtain the money with which to gain an education, except by his own hard work. Always eager for learning, he went to school and prepared for college. Then, like so many other boys of his time, he worked his way through college. By the time he was 21 he had studied law and had gained his place at the bar. Here his keen mind at once drew clients to him, and his unusual personality attracted hosts of friends. Through his own interests as well as through the solicitations of his friends he entered political life, in which he became both active and prominent. At 33, he was nominated for governor of New York. Defeated on that occasion, he was again put forward and became governor at 37, serving two terms. At 43 he became United States senator. He was so energetic, so able and so talented that he seemed the natural candidate for the presidency, but he had offended many people of all parties, largely because of his opposition to slavery. Abraham Lincoln, who placed all his thoughts of the saving of the Union, was nominated, and Lincoln at once made his rival secretary of state.

As a member of Lincoln's cabinet, William H. Seward at first seemed to outshine the rough Lincoln, but Lincoln had a power of character that was superior to any gift that Seward possessed. Seward, therefore, became Lincoln's great admirer and trusted adviser. Because of this, the assassins of Lincoln endeavored to murder Seward as well, but failed in the attempt.

Perhaps Seward's greatest work was the purchase of Alaska from Russia, in the time when he served as secretary of state under President Johnson. That purchase has brought to the United States untold wealth.

Seward lived until he was 71. His statue in New York city well presents the scholar, the gentleman and the diplomat.

CHILD TRAINING

A CHINESE VASE

Virginia Carey

There was a shattering crash. Carolino Shepherd rushed into the living room, and there on the floor was her beautiful Chinese vase. Blind, unreasoning anger seized her.

Little Man looked up at her pitifully. She was too angry to see how frightened he was. All he could see was the beloved vase, broken beyond repair. It had been a trying morning with an endless number of annoyances and irritations. This was the Climax.

With unusual asperity, she said, "I am going to whip you. I've told you and told you not to touch that cover."

Little Man did not flinch or beg. The strap fell around his plump little body. He was only four, but the physical sting was less than the sting of helplessness. He was filled with a sort of impotent rage at this injustice. At his first cry, a protest against his powerlessness rather than his hurt, Caroline's anger melted. She wanted to take her baby into her arms and tell him she was sorry, but that would not be dismissed—or good discipline.

"Promise Mother you will never touch the vase again," she said.

He gave her a tearful promise.

Some one has well described herself as "a woman who has the patience of the child to make him a better boy—or merely to amuse her own exasperation?" Poor Little Man! It had not been quite fair.

He was now in a new corner viciously to stuff cotton.

She looked at the fragments of the Chinese vase.

What did it matter after all—the vase?

WHAT SAVING WILL DO

At the age of [illegible] a certain young man and [illegible] bought a farm worth he received [illegible] a year, a horse to work in, a garden plot and free milk. The first year [illegible] the next seven years the [illegible] on the farm, adding [illegible] to [illegible]. Then they moved to a nearby city where he secured employment in a factory. In due time his thrift and industry brought him to the special attention of his employers, greater responsibilities were placed on his shoulders, and he began to move up.

Today he is at the head of one of America's [illegible].

This story is not unusual. Developments of the kind are so common that they attract only passing interest and comment.

But none of us can afford to be indifferent to the [illegible] which such, [illegible] have [illegible].

It should be realized first of all that the [illegible] amounts will [illegible] proportion to [illegible] by. Remember also that these small amounts in the course of [illegible] will grow to [illegible] when [illegible] be ready for opportunity [illegible] knocking at the door.

But what is of still greater importance is the [illegible] discipline which comes with saving money at a period in one's life when such saving means real personal sacrifice.

These are the processes that build character.

We hear a great deal about saving for the rainy day. This is laudable. We do not hear nearly so much about saving for the sunshine days—saving in the midst of prosperity for the prosperity and success that are bound to come to [illegible] who [illegible].

If there is [illegible] in the [illegible] of [illegible] it is in the [illegible] savings.—American Society for Thrift.

Liberty by ones acts has been recommended as a [illegible] remedy.

APRIL SOCIAL MEETING OF CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB

In spite of unfavorable weather, there was an unusually large attendance at the April meeting of the Catholic Women's club, held Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus. The president, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, was in charge of the meeting, at which a number of business matters were discussed. Plans were outlined for a food sale next month. Mrs. Nelson C. Disco was appointed general chairman.

At the close of the afternoon, sandwiches, cakes and tea were served by the hostesses for the day, Mrs. Charles F. Lee of Broad street, Mrs. John B. Sullivan and Mrs. Patrick M. Coleman. The table decorations were in white and yellow. During the social hour Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle entertained with songs and piano numbers.

The club, which works for the poor of St. Patrick's parish, holds one social meeting each month, the other meetings being devoted to sewing for charity.

Oil Heater Flares Back.

A smokepipe, choked with soot, caused an oil heater to flare back in the cellar of the residence at No. 110 Union street, occupied by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, about 8:30 o'clock Thursday night and resulted in a telephone call to the fire department. Squad A and Deputy Chief Beatty R. Taft responded to the call and after discovering the cause, cleaned out the furnace which was well filled with burning soot. There was no damage. Dr. Cassidy happened to go into the cellar and smelling smoke opened the furnace door. Flames shot from the furnace, so he quickly shut the door, shut off the oil flow and summoned the fire department.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Peter Kuzenska

Following an illness of several months Mary Kuzenska, wife of Peter Kuzenska, died at her home in North Stonington, Thursday afternoon. She was 30 years old. She is survived by her husband and several children.

P. August Peterson

P. August Peterson, well known resident of the Greeneville section of the city, died Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, after a short illness, at his home, No. 448 Boswell avenue. He was born in Sweden, November 14, 1856, and came to this country when a young man. For 40 years he had lived in Norwich. In Gothenburg, Sweden, Dec. 5, 1876 he was united in marriage with Augusta M. Anderson. Mr. Peterson was a machinist by trade and was employed by the E. H. Rogers company, with that concern removed from Norwich. Mrs. Peterson died in this city April 1, 1909 and their only son, Joseph Peterson, died Jan. 21, 1920.

Mr. Peterson was a member of the Swedish Lutheran church. He is survived by three children, Mrs. Charles E. Johnson, Uncas-on-Thames; Lieut. E. Peterson of Hartford, and Miss Ida V. Peterson, of this city. There are also a grandchild and three sisters in Sweden.

John Dryzba

John Dryzba, 62, died Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at his home, No. 15 Quarry street, following an illness of two years. He was born in Poland and married in that country. Mr. Dryzba was employed as a laborer. His wife died five years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Eugenia Szatkowski and Mrs. Mary Nowakowski of this city and two granddaughters. Anna Dryzba, wife of Stanislaus Dryzba, both of Norwich. Mr. Dryzba was a member of St. Joseph's church.

Charles E. Babcock

Charles E. Babcock, 64 and well-known attorney of this city, died in Baltimore afternoon after a three months' illness of heart trouble. He had been in poor health for several years owing to ailments of the heart and kidneys. His condition became critical for about a month. Mr. Babcock had been a resident of Palmertown for many years. His wife died several years ago. He is survived by two daughters and three sons.

Mrs. George Banfield

Mrs. Lucy Ann Chapel Banfield of No. 41 Four-Mile road, West Hartford, widow of George Banfield of New York, died Wednesday morning after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Mrs. Banfield was born in Chesterfield on January 4, 1845. Following her marriage in 1866, she lived in New York until the death of her husband in 1924, after which she resided in New London. She was a direct descendant of William Chapel, who settled in New London in 1653. For the past 12 years she had lived in Hartford and West Hartford. She leaves two sons, Elwood Banfield of New York and Gerard Banfield of Hartford and three grandchildren.

Miss Imogene A. Cash

Miss Imogene A. Cash, for years librarian at the Otis library, died Thursday morning following an illness extending over a long period. She had been critically ill, however, for only a few days. Miss Cash was born in Central Falls 76 years ago but came to this city with her parents when a young girl. She had resided at No. 39 Union street. For 25 years she had been employed by the Otis library and for the last 14 years was the librarian succeeding the late Jonathan Trumbull, when he resigned in 1911.

Affew months ago Miss Cash was given a much deserved vacation from her duties. She was a woman of high ideals and was widely known throughout the city, especially among the patrons of the library. Her death is deeply regretted by all who knew her. Miss Cash is survived by one nephew, Fred N. Cash of this city.

Mrs. Edward McNerney

After serious illness for the past two days the death of Ellen, widow of Edward McNerney, occurred at 11:15 Thursday night at her home, 47 North Main street. Mrs. McNerney, whose maiden name was Ellen Macken, was born in Ireland, but had lived in the Greeneville section of the city since she was 21, coming here with her husband after their marriage in Ireland. His death occurred three years ago.

Mrs. McNerney was a faithful member of St. Mary's Memorial church, a loving and devoted wife and mother, and a kindly neighbor and friend. She is survived by five sons and a daughter, all residents of this city, Dennis, Edward J., James A., Patrick J., and Frank A. McNerney, and Mrs. John A. Coombes. She also leaves several grandchildren.

McVeigh, chairman of the hospital committee, and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, treasurer.

METHODIST PASTOR AT NORWICH TOWN IS ASKING RETIREMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 8—This morning the devotional exercises opening the New England Southern conference of the Methodist churches were in charge of Bishop Richardson who spoke impressively and earnestly from the words of Philippians 1-3, "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you." After the roll call, the roll of the ministers who failed to respond at the roll call on Wednesday was called. The names of the charges who have not handed in their statistics and account of conference moneys with either cash or vouchers, were read.

Gift to Rev. LeBaron

Rev. Ira W. LeBaron passed in character and was asked to read his report. Rev. J. F. Bartholomew gained the floor on special privilege and after a few pertinent remarks mingled with pleasantry, presented to Mr. LeBaron a sum of money in behalf of the ministers of Providence district as a testimonial of their love and best wishes. Rev. Mr. LeBaron responded in a few happy remarks in which he expressed his deep appreciation of the gift. Rev. Mr. LeBaron presented his annual report.

Rev. Dr. L. O. Hartman, editor of Zion's Herald, was introduced and addressed the conference. He warned that a certain type of atheism is appearing in many forms and he named four battlefields where he will fight this evil. These he said were the schools, the schools of religious education, the pulpit and the field of journalism. At this point, he emphasized the value of the religious paper of which Zion's Herald is the representative claiming the support of all New England Methodists.

Rev. Dr. E. V. Hinchcliffe, agent of the New England White Cross society of the Methodist denomination addressed the conference, telling interesting facts as to the work of this society. He spoke of the enlarging of Palmer Memorial hospital, for incurables and said that expert treatment would be brought to this institution for the treatment of cancer. The churches of the Boston area have contributed to the White Cross society in the past five years the sum of $50,000. During the same period, free work has been granted to the ministers and others of the Methodist people in New England to the amount of $200,000.

Against Modification

In view of the hearing in Washington next Monday, upon motion of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Spaulding, it was voted to authorize the sending of a telegram to the judiciary committee of the United States senate expressing the unanimous sentiment of this conference as opposed to any change in the 18th amendment and to any modification of the Volstead act.

Rev. W. H Moseley of New Bedford was elected as auditor of the conference.

A reply to the note of sympathy to Rev. Charles H. Van Natter expressing the deep appreciation of the bereaved was read by the secretary. It was voted that a committee of five be appointed to represent the conference at the funeral in Wareham, Dec. 9.

The name of Myron E. Genter, superintendent of the Norwich district, was called and being passed in character, he presented the report of his district.

The names of the retired preachers and of those in the supernumerary relation were read and they were passed in character.

Gustave Benjamin, secretary of the Connecticut Temperance Union was introduced and gave a stirring address in behalf of prohibition.

For Retired Supply Preachers

Rev. Dr. Bartholomew introduced a resolution asking that the conference go home to make provision for retired supply preachers who are aged and unable longer to preach who have given 15 or more years to the work of the ministry of our church. The resolution was adopted and the board of stewards of the conference was asked to devise a plan and submit it to the conference.

$3,173 From Book Concern

Rev. G. C. Douglass, one of the publishing agents of the denomination, resident of Cincinnati, Ohio, made an able and eloquent plea for the support of the book concern the literary output of which he said had been estimated by experts as second to none in the world. He presented as the share of the dividends of the book concern belonging to the New England Southern conference a check for $3,173 and an additional check of $12 from the charered fund.

After announcements the conference adjourned for dinner.

Afternoon Meetings.

At 2 p. m. there was held an executive session of the conference the purpose being to give Dr. J. B. Hingeley, secretary of the board of conference claimants an opportunity to explain the proposed new pension system, which is now being laid before the clergymen of the denomination. At this meeting, Dr. Hingeley presented a check of $600 to the conference, its share of the dividends from the board for the present year.

A resolution relating to the death of Charles R. Magee the lamented publishing agent of the Boston depository of the Methodist book concern which occurred last week, was presented by a committee comprising Reverends R. S. Moore, C. E. Spaulding, and H. P. Davis, the same being adopted.

It was voted to send a letter of sympathy to Rev. Dr. G. A. Grant absent from the conference for the first time in 46 years on account of illness. Similar action was taken in reference to Rev. Francis H. Spears, seriously ill in the Deaconess hospital. Dr. Grant was a pastor in Norwich 1891-95. Mr. Spears has served Attawaugan and East Glastonbury at different times on Norwich districts.

In the pleasantry passed between J. L. Bartholomew and I. W. Le Baron in the morning session, the former pointed to the latter and said, "That is the only man in the conference who knew that he had to move before he came to conference and that by a law for which he voted in the general conference (laughter). "I didn't vote for that law. I don't think the almanac is competent to say when a man ought to move."

Mr. Le Baron in responding said that he voted for that law because the conference which sent him had expressed itself as in favor of that principle and he felt it due to the body which he represented. However said he, I do not mean to reflect on Dr. Bartholomew for we all know that he is a law unto himself. (Applause)

Mr. Le Baron in deferring to his retirement from the superintendency said he had been listening to reference to it for some time and it reminded him of a funeral he had heard about where a eulogy had been delivered and after the casket had been covered a woman came out and asked that the casket be again opened. Why do you want to open it again? asked the undertaker. Because, said she, I have wondered if I haven't come to the wrong funeral. So said Mr. Le Baron, I have heard so much about myself that doesn't fit that I am wondering if there isn't some mistake.

The following ministers' wives and widows have died during the past year and these will be given a printed obituary in the conference year book: Mrs. E. Edgar Montgomery, wife of the pastor at Niantic, Conn.; Mrs. Coote, widow of Rev. Dr. James Coote; Mrs. Morrison, widow of Rev. Dr. W. V. Morrison; Mrs. Flecken, widow of Rev. L. M. Flecken; and Mrs. Ewer, widow of Rev. C. H. Ewer.

In reporting the Italian work in Providence, Mr. Le Baron playfully referred to her that was Miss Minnie Bourne the deaconess worker who married the Sunday school superintendent and became Mrs. Minnie Bromley. Said he, "she continues to do as well the same work she did before she was married but we hope the other deaconesses will not take this as a hint to go and do likewise. Norwich people will be interested to know that her husband is Harlan L. Bromley, a former Norwich boy.

Asks Retired Relationship.

Rev. J. B. Aldrich, pastor at Norwich Town, for the past five years and a minister of the church for the past 12 years, is asking for the retired relationship this year. He served Uncasville 1917-19; Attawaugan, 1919-17; Jewett City 1917-21 and is highly respected on Norwich district, within the bounds of which he has spent the last 15 years of his ministry.

At four o'clock a large congregation gathered in the auditorium of the church. Rev. G. Leon Wells presided. Rev. J. G. Sallis offered prayer. The speaker was Miss Helen Wherle and her subject, "The Southern Highlanders." She is a missionary, working in Tennessee among this interesting group of people, a very bright and entertaining speaker and her illuminating address was much appreciated by her hearers.

The following have been named as the committee to represent the conference at the funeral of Mrs. C. H. Van Natter on Friday: Rev. John S. Bradford, Rev. W. H. Bath, Rev. W. I. Ward, Rev. H. H. Critchlow and Rev. E. P. Phraner.

METHODIST COMMITTEE IS KEEPING ACTIVITIES SECRET

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 8—(AP)—Secrecy continues to surround the activities of the committee of fifteen appointed to investigate charges of improper conduct brought by Rev. Guy W. Lee Holmes of New Bedford, Mass., a member of the New England Southern conference of the Methodist church now in its 64th annual session in the South church here. Rev. Mr. Holmes was unable to attend the morning sessions of the conference today, being confined to his room here with a severe cold.

In the early afternoon Rev. Mr. Holmes and his counsel, Ernest Lacoss, also of New Bedford, gave out a statement relative to the investigation, saying that they would have charges to present. The New Bedford pastor said that he understood a delegation from his parish would attend the session of the conference tomorrow and would present a petition signed by 1,000 residents of the city, asking that he be returned to the New Bedford church for another year.

Attorney Lacoss announced that his client would attend the afternoon session which was to be held in New Bedford and later in Boston to protest Rev. Mr. Holmes' interests in an action now being taken by the grand jury of Suffolk county.

The next move of the investigating committee of the church will be considered at the hearing to be attended by Rev. Mr. Holmes this morning. It was learned that there is a possibility that the committee may go to New Bedford to continue its investigations and examination of witnesses.

The first hearing of the minister will be given at the meeting of the committee at noon tomorrow, but it was said that probably no action will be taken for at least two days. There are a large number of witnesses to be examined and Inspector Superintendent Robert J. Roberts of the New Bedford district, who preferred the charges against Rev. Mr. Holmes said that the entire investigation and action of the committee would be guided by strict impartiality.

Committee Members

The names of several members of the committee have been mentioned and the following were confirmed by an official of the conference: Revs. John Buckey, of Brockton, Mass.; J. W. Annis of East Weymouth, Mass.; Robert A. Colpitts, of Fall River, Mass.; Earl E. Story of Providence, R. I.; H. H. Crawford, of Arnold Mills, R. I.; George W. Manning of Bourne, Mass.; W. H. Bath, of East Providence, R. I.; C. E. Spaulding of New London; John Duxbury of Manchester and Windsorville; and Robert Moore, of Providence, R. I.

It was also learned that Rev. George

FUNERALS

Mrs. Moses Hyatt

The funeral of Mrs. Bessie Hyatt, widow of Moses Hyatt, was held from her home, No. 69 Spring street, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, with Rev. J. N. Rosebrugh officiating. Relatives and friends were present and burial took place in the Brethren and Joseph cemetery, at Preston's Neck.

Mrs. Hyatt died Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. Krieger, No. 92 Mechanic street, following a brief illness. She was born in Russia and 60 years ago in her native country was united in marriage with the late Moses Hyatt, who for some years was an overall manufacturer in this city. Mrs. Hyatt has lived in Norwich for many years.

She is survived by five children, Mrs. Sarah Shafrin of New York city, Albert, Louis, Alfred and Miss Anna Hyatt of this city, four grandchildren, George and Julius Hillsburg of New London and Adeline and Harold Shafrin of New York city. There is also a sister, Mrs. R. Krieger of No. 92 Mechanic street and a sister in London, England.

Albert Lebel

Funeral services for Albert Lebel, 12 years and 7 months, old son of Peter and Mary Lemoine Lebel, were held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the home of his parents in Baltic. At the requiem mass in Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock, Rev. William T. O'Brien was celebrant. Interment among the large attendance of relatives and friends were members of the boy's class at grammar school, who attended the services at the church. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. O'Brien. The bearers were Albert Caron, Joseph Authier, Norman Deschamp, Rudolph Desjardins, Wilfred Cote and Henry Tonin. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George Grant of Taftville.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The annual assembly of Franklin council, No. 1, R. and S. M., was held Thursday evening at the Masonic temple when reports of the treasurer and trustees showed a substantial balance in the treasury and a goodly sum in the hands of the trustees.

A prosperous year is predicted under T. I. M. Finlayson.

GAVE NOVEL BAZAAR FOR TEACHERS' LEAGUE

Thursday evening at the Bishop school on the East Side the Norwich Teachers' League was entertained in a novel and original way by the teachers of the Bishop, Wequonnoc, Smith avenue, Laurel Hill and Occum schools. The entertainment was carried out in the form of a bazaar and upon arrival each teacher had presented to her a pocketbook containing ten cents, which was to be used in patronizing all the attractions of the bazaar, a penny a throw at the various booths. These were arranged in the large room on the main floor, each one prettily and appropriately decorated. They included a fish pond, with fish, alligators and palm trees, an ice cream booth for home-made ice cream in cones, a ball game, a palmistry booth, hot dogs and rolls, fortune telling by cards, candy booth, popcorn booth, game of fortune and orangeade.

When this feature of the evening had been thoroughly enjoyed, the guests were invited to the kindergarten room where parodies on popular songs, with games, were provided in the entertainment which also included the dancing of the Charleston in costume by five children from the Bishop school. The clever dancers were Tony, Mary and Claudie Belgrade, Lethia Brewer and Evelina Santos.

At 9:15 a side show was given on the platform, this consisting of imitations of many of the well known characters in the comic supplements of the newspapers. In an upstairs room of the school one was arranged a chamber of horrors, the whole plan of the evening providing an entertainment that won the enthusiastic approbation of all who attended.

The bazaar was carried out under the direction of the principals, Miss Lillian Brewster, Bishop school; Miss Martha Reynolds, Wequonnoc school; Mrs. Spaulding, Smith avenue school; Miss Anna Welch, Occum school; Miss Alice Kilroy, Laurel Hill school; who were assisted by the teachers of the five schools.

DWOJAKOWSKY COMMITTED TO HOSPITAL AT MIDDLETOWN

William Dwojakowsky of this city was Thursday committed to the insane hospital at Middletown by Judge Edwin W. Yeomans at New Haven. Dwojakowsky was charged with assault with intent to kill and with theft of an automobile. Dr. J. H. Thompson of Hartford and Dr. N. D. Schenk of this city, alienists who examined Dwojakowsky Wednesday night at the New Haven county jail, told Judge Yeomans in court Thursday that they believed him to be mentally deficient. Policeman William Dietsch, who was shot by Dwojakowsky when the officer tried to stop him and other officers testified at the court session.

Dwojakowsky got into trouble in Lisbon sometime ago when he was arrested in connection with the shooting of a young man at a club house. He was afterwards found not guilty of the charge and the case against him was dropped.

COWS IN HEBRON HERD MAY HAVE BEEN POISONED

WILLIMANTIC, April 8—(AP)—Four of a herd of cows on the farm of Louis Luenberger in Hebron, which died recently may have been poisoned, it was said today. The case is being investigated by the state police. The investigative officers, it was said, found weeds eaten in one of the pastures. Mr. Luenberger has been in New York all summer, the farm having been cared for by a hired man.

WEDDING
O'Neil-Harrison

At St. Mary's church, Pawtucket, R. I., last Monday morning John Edward O'Neil and Miss Bernice Bernadetta Harrison were united in marriage, the nuptial high mass being celebrated by Rev. Father McKenna and the double ring service being used.

The bride was attractively attired in a specially designed gown of charming effect with corresponding hat and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. She was accompanied by Miss Madeline E. O'Neil, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, who was also very attractive in a gown of pale pink with corresponding hat and carried a bouquet of pink tea roses.

The groom was accompanied by Joseph H. O'Neil as best man.

After the ceremony a delightful wedding reception was held at the home of the bride. Many beautiful and varied gifts with messages of congratulations were received during the day.

Miss Harrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Harrison of Pawtucket, R. I., and is popular among the younger set of that city and a graduate of the schools there.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. O'Neil of this city and attended the Norwich Free academy. He is employed as assistant manager of the Pawtucket branch of the Mohican chain stores and has a wide circle of friends who wish him every success.

After an extended wedding tour the bridal couple will reside in a modern apartment in Pawtucket, R. I.

WRITES OF HIS WORK AT JOHANNESBURG MISSION

The arrival of a party of American tourists at Johannesburg, South Africa, and the greeting they were given with United States' flags made an interesting incident for Rev. Arthur Carey Adams of which he writes to The Bulletin in a letter dated March 6. Rev. Mr. Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adams of East Great Plain and is stationed at the Bantu Men's Social Center at Johannesburgh.

He writes as follows:

"It occurs to me that you might be interested in a line from across the sea and southward. You will remember me I think, as I was ordained in Norwich, my old home town on Oct. 12th, 1925. I am sending under separate cover marked copies of the "Rand Daily Mail". I think they will interest you as they contain many pictures and statistics of Johannesburg for particular information to the party of American tourists who are here this week. You can imagine the thrill I got last Saturday morning when all the public buildings and the town hall were flying the Stars and Stripes. I didn't know there were so many in Johannesburg. The tourists have received a wonderful welcome and Johannesburg knows something of hospitality. I was invited by Councillor Leake, mayor of Johannesburg, to a tea, held in honor of the visiting Americans. I had opportunity thereby to meet many of them and to hear the good old Yankee language again. We get a mixture of Dutch and English, here, on the streets at least. The tourists were also entertained with a native war dance at the mining compound of the City Deep mine. These dances are very weird (nothing like the Charleston) but most fascinating to watch. They would make good gym exercises—a fine "daily dozen". You will note the pictures of the dance in the "Mail".

"Johannesburg is a fine modern city. It has the problems of any large city plus the burden of the race problem. It is almost a pity that my work out here is called missionary work because it seems to put in a fellow's mind the old antiquated idea of palm trees, long greenish black coats, ministerial hat, etc., trailing through the wilds carrying a fan, and attended by a pious-looking black convert. There isn't much of that in my job. I'm frank to say that I'm wearing Oxford bags (they are right in style out here now) and the latest in men's haberdashery just out from England and there's some wonderful stuff here—it would make a Yale college freshman's eyes pop out of his head with a bang like a pistol shot. The Europeans certainly do know how to dress. I mean the men of course—they have brought that characteristic with them from London. But they do not dress for comfort, it is all for appearance sake and in appearance they do excel.

"There are a great many humorous sidelights that occur during a day's work. I have been coaching the men and boys in baseball just lately. They get it pretty well, but if they knock a good hit away out in the field they don't want to stop with a home run but want to keep right on and run the bases as many times as they can before the ball is recovered. The men here in the city of Johnnesburg that I deal with have had some education and there are some fine young men among them. They are not the raw native just in from the "veld" state, although you don't have to go very far outside the city to see them in their crude state and indeed most of the native labour recruited for the mines comes directly from the primitive native villages.

"They only have one kind of ice cream out here, Vanilla! I should know that by this time, but when I enter a fine looking tea room and soda fountain I still have hopes that they may possibly have other flavours. I went in one last week and asked what kind of ice cream they had and after examining me critically the waiter suddenly thinking he must have got the idea said, "Nel's Rust"—the name of the brand. I then asked another perfectly innocent question, "Do you have ice cream sundaes?" The waiter eyed me with an evil eye as if to say "Cut your kiddin'!" (But of course that's American), what he really would have said probably would be "You silly fool"—He said actually, with an air of patience tried to the utmost—"Sure we have ice cream every day." There are one or two American ice cream shops and it is said that the proprietors of these have studied ice cream in America!

"But my work is attractive and pleasing—just an idea of what I'm doing. The Bantu Men's Social Centre is practically a native Y. M. C. A. and secretary of that I am promoting regular "Y" activities. We have a fine modern, new building with a splendid gymnasium. This gym is kept busy morning, afternoon and evening with school boys and girls in the day time and native young men in the evenings. We have a bioscope (motion picture show) for the young men and for the kiddies each week, the pictures shown are properly censored. Together with this work at the building is another well deserving enterprise, that of showing motion pictures in the mine compounds. There are thousands of natives doing the heavy work in the gold mines here and they are all housed together in a crude sort of dormitory—called compounds. We have a bioscope circuit for the natives in all these compounds. This is financed by the chamber of mines as a most favorable recreation for the natives. Indeed the work is as modern in every line and as progressive as you would find in New York city practically, as far as the organization of social activities are concerned.

"You may be interested in noting the American articles advertised in the papers I am sending you. Motion picture films are all American except for some English news reels. It is like being right at home to go to the movies out here.

"I would hesitate to give a dogmatic opinion on many of the questions that are worrying this country, but it is a goodly education in itself to be here and observe how they do things in other parts of the world and to render some little bit of recreation and education to a people who are certainly in need of help."

NORWICH TOWN

The useful life of Mrs. William Howard, 69, of 29 Otrobando avenue, came to a close Thursday morning at 3:15 o'clock, following a serious illness for the past three weeks, although she had been in failing health about a year. Ella Howard was born in Norwich, September, 1856, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Howard. In January, 1882, she was united in marriage at East Lyme, with William Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Howard lived in Norwich for a few years and before locating in Norwich Town resided for many years in Franklin. They have been residents of Otrobando avenue for the past 26 years, during which time Joseph Teleche has been a member of the family, also resided previously with Mr. Howard's mother in Franklin. Miss Hattie Lyons, also has been a member of the family for a number of years.

Mrs. Howard was a member of Christ Episcopal church, Norwich. She was a most industrious woman all her life and was most happy when doing for others. Although she had no children of her own, she mothered the three small sons of her sister, Harry, Charles and Earl Spicer, rearing them to manhood, with unceasing care and devotion as though they were her own, the mother having died when the boys were very young.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard's hospitable home has always been open to friends and many times those in need have been assisted through their kindness. She was a loyal wife, friend and neighbor, devoted to her home, she retained the same interests during her illness. She was tenderly cared for by friends she had known for many years. Besides her husband, Mrs. Howard is survived by a brother Charles Howard, of Norwich, and five nephews, Harry, Charles and Earl Spicer and Harvey Howard of Norwich, Raymond Howard of New London, also by two nieces, daughters of Charles Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tracy of Town street, are entertaining for a week, Miss Day Williams of the faculty at East Hampton school, and Miss Joyce Brown, a student at Middletown high school, nieces of Mrs. Tracy. Mr. and Mrs. Tracy and their guests were visitors in Hartford Tuesday.

SUZANNE LENGLEN ACCEPTS OFFER TO STAR IN THE MOTION PICTURES

NICE, France, April 8—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen, France's star tennis player, is likely soon to be seen in the moving pictures. After a four-hour conference which Mlle. Lenglen, her family and friends had with William H. Pickens, representing C. C. Pyle, an American sports promoter, it was announced this afternoon that a tentative agreement had been reached with Suzanne to go to America in October and make a film version of a book she has written.

The salary agreed upon and the exact duration of the trip have not been made public, but the representatives of both parties took occasion to declare that tennis playing does not enter into the agreement, which will soon be drafted into a formal contract.

Mr. Pickens had been waiting at Nice for three days hoping to meet Mlle. Lenglen, who returned here only last night, and he was preparing to leave without seeing her, when he succeeded in having a last minute interview.

Mlle. Lenglen appeared willing to accept arrangements which did not call for her playing professional tennis, and the family's objections to her appearing in moving pictures [illegible] withdrawn.

Dr. Charles H. Wilson, Mlle. Lenglen's American adviser, conferred with Mr. Pickens later, and then an announcement was issued by Suzanne that plans for the American trip were well under way.

FANS LOOK FOR BIG INCREASE IN DOUBLE-PLAYS

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP)—The home run epidemic, threatened by rosin and a lessened ball, may give way to a new major league craze in the form of a double play [illegible]

The Washington Senators [illegible] titers was been attributed to [illegible] pre-season practice to double-play combination in Roger Peckinpaugh and Sammy Harris, are credited with responsibility for the innovation. Their record of twin-putouts [illegible] over, has brought about concentration on the construction of fast baseline combinations already has resulted in the assembly of many [illegible] Bobby Jones and Young Stahl [illegible] Washington holds the major league record of 142 double plays [illegible]

The spring season has [illegible] an unusual number of [illegible] changes. Ty Cobb has displaced Danny Hilgery at shortstop with the sensational Jack Tavener. He also has threatened to [illegible] Frank O'Rourke, a [illegible] ing second baseman for Young [illegible] regular, a strong-armed Texan [illegible] star who hasn't been [illegible] to [illegible] to [illegible] Detroit [illegible] offensive power. Hilgery, now with the Red Sox, may take the shortstop [illegible] from Lee.

George Sisler has been [illegible] his recruit find. Milton [illegible] second, while Greenow will work regularly [illegible] Hornsby in a [illegible] combination for the Cardinals. [illegible] changes will find the [illegible] Boley Scott, at shortstop [illegible] White Sox, Rabbit Maranville [illegible] ed with Milton Stock for Brooklyn, and Maurice Shannon hooked up with Adams for the Cubs.

The double-play campaign has attracted chief interest, however, in the Yankees' new keystone combination of Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri.

"The way Koenig and Lazzeri have been working at second base has been the most remarkable development of our training season," says Manager Miller Huggins. "Second base was the hole through which many of our defeats slipped last year. We lost over 20 games by one run, and most of these leaked through that hole [illegible]

"Both Koenig and Lazzeri appear to be real finds. They are what I would call instinctive ball players. It takes time to break in a new infield combination, but this pair already is making a lot of double plays.

NORTH AND SOUTH GOLF REACHES THE SEMI-FINALS

PINEHURST, N. C., April 8—(AP)—[illegible] tomorrow [illegible] North and South amateur golf championship will bring [illegible] Arthur W. Yates, Rochester, N. CURLEY SAYS HE CANNOT MATCH CARPENTIER YET

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP)—Promoter Curley, American representative of Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight, said tonight that no contract has been signed and no agreements reached for Carpentier to meet Young Stribling at Miami on May 31.

Curley said he had a [illegible] with Carpentier's business [illegible] and "We have just started [illegible] for a match with Eddie Huffman of Baltimore, on May 21 at Madison Square Garden and we must get the match with Paul Berlenbach if we are successful against Huffman. Everything depends on this match and we cannot tie ourselves up so far ahead."

Curley said, however, that Carpentier would be willing to talk terms for a Stribling match after his encounter with Huffman.

FOURTEEN TEAMS START BIKE RACE AT BERLIN

BERLIN, April 8—(AP)—Fourteen teams started tonight in the [illegible] second six-day bicycle race. Anthony Beckman of Secaucus, N. J., and Ray Eaton, of Newark, N. J., competing the American team which is competing against one Italian, one Austrian, four Belgian-German and seven combinations. The other teams are:

RAIN CURTAILS PLAYING OF PRE-SEASON GAMES

CHICAGO, April 8. — (AP) — The weather and the Washington Senators today continued their practice of disconfiting various major league baseball managers during the final preseason week.

Rain shut out a fair portion of the league teams, downpours stopping scheduled games between the two Boston teams at home, the Detroit Tigers at Nashville, the Chicago White Sox encounter at Evansville, Ind., and sending the Cincinnati Reds home after two idle days at Louisville.

The Senators' shutout was not so generally directed involving only one club. After resting up from a 13-2 win over the Giants at Birmingham Monday, the Harris crew engaged the New Yorkers again today at Atlanta and took the bit 7 to 0.

Kansas City's association outfit downed the Chicago Cubs in the first of a closing four-game series, 6 to 2. The veteran Grover Alexander was credited with the defeat, the Blues pasting his offerings for eight hits and three runs during his five innings on the hill.

New York broke even on the day by an impressive showing of the Yankees, who collected 15 hits for a 14 to 4 victory over their neighboring Brooklyn Dodgers.

The St. Louis Browns stopped off at Memphis, on their way home and were warmly welcomed by the Chicks, who battled the major leaguers to a 3-3 draw in a nine inning game finally called by darkness. Concluding their long stay in the south, the Cardinals struck Springfield, Mo., in a cheerful humor and departed for St. Louis after winning from the local club, 16 to 2.

Tris Speaker and his Cleveland Indians wound up their training at New Orleans with a two hour batting and fielding practice and left tonight for Tuscaloosa, Ala., where they play the Rama Varsity tomorrow. And thence to Cincinnati for final games with the Reds on Saturday and Sunday.

The release of recruit catcher, Tommy McCarthy to the St. Paul team of the American association, was announced today by Ty Cobb, Detroit obtained McCarthy from Waterbury in the Eastern league last season.

YALE POLO TEAM CLINCHES COLLEGIATE TITLE

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP) — Yale University retained the intercollegiate indoor polo championship tonight by defeating Pennsylvania Military college 12 goals to minus 2 1-2.

The New Haven team, champion the past three years, outclassed its opponent from the start.

Penn Military in seven fours scored one goal gave it the minus figures, each foul being penalized by [illegible] goal.

Goals—Yale, Barrett 9; Guest 6; Murfit; Simmons 1; Baldwin 1. Penn Military—Putt 1. Fouls, Yale—4, Penn Military—1.

SHEIK LEONARD TO FIGHT IN PORTLAND, ME. BOUT

Sheik Leonard, local welterweight, has been signed to meet Marty Mathews of Portland, Me., in the main bout of the card in that city on April 28th. Leonard is now working out with Frankie Busch and other local boxers at the Army-Navy club gym in Taftville and expects to be in good condition when he steps in the ring in Portland.

Leonard denied the report that he has retired from the ring and is now considering an extensive summer campaign. He has been taking things easy for the past few months but now feels to resume his quest for the New England welterweight title.

STATE DONATES $40 FOR BLIND BOXER

HARTFORD, April 8—(AP)—The milk of human kindness sometimes is found in official life for the board of control today refunded the $40 state tax collected at a benefit for "Battling" Green, a former pugilist who is blind. The benefit bouts were held in the Foot Guard armory here.

JONES AND HAGEN FAVORED TO WIN IN 1926

NEW YORK, April 8—The dominating positions that Walter Hagen and Bobby Jones occupy in golf stand in striking relief as the 1926 campaign spreads its frontiers northward.

Nowhere among the deeds of knights of the niblick, here or abroad, has there been a record to surpass the achievements of these two stars over the past four years.

In a sport conspicuous for its inconsistencies, where champions rise to dizzy heights one day and "flop" with a dull thud the next, the feats of Hagen and Jones gain added lustre by contrast.

Here and in other countries during the last four seasons, Hagen twice lifted the British open championship, missed it once by a stroke on a third occasion and captured the professional Golfer's association title for the past two years.

In the same span, Jones, combining his activities chiefly to his homeland, has won the open championship once, finished second in his three other tries for it and gained the national amateur crown twice in succession.

Others have reaped laurels in this time. Sarazen in 1922, Walker in 1924 and Willie McFarlane last season carried off the open championship. Sarazen also held the P. G. A. honors in 1922 and 1923, but none of these stars has quite approached the all around, consistent brilliance of Hagen and Jones.

In the last six years of play in the American open championship, Jones has averaged 296 1-3 strokes for each 72-hole test, three strokes better than Hagen's average of 299 1-2. These marks top the performance of all rivals.

In the approaching renewals of championship events, no competitors will be more feared than these two. Hagen's recently sensational victory over Jones in a 72-hole test in Florida at match play, followed by a medal play victory over Jones in the West Coast open, have boosted Sir Walter's stock but the Georgian is likely to suffer no more than temporary loss of prestige on this account.

Such aces as MacSmith, "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, Harry Cooper, George Von Elm, Macfarlane, Sarazen, Bobby Cruikshank, Johnny Farrell, and Archie Compston, the British star, will have their backers in forthcoming American title tournaments. The shortest odds however, are likely to be on Jones and Hagen.

Among women golfers, Miss Glenna Collett has been the most consistent of American players over the same span which has seen Jones and Hagen in the ascendent. But the Providence girl is likely to face a strenuous battle in defending her hold on the national championship.

Not alone has she such seasoned rivals as Mary K. Browne, and Mrs Dorothy Campbell Hurd to contend with, but a fresh menace is before her in the rise of such youthful stars as Dorothy Klotz and Virginia Van Wie, both of Chicago, Maureen Orcutt of New Jersey, and Helen Payson of Portland, Maine.

The champion's defeats in Florida at the hands of three of these women rivals have indicated the strength of her position.

PLANNING RACE BETWEEN WASH. AND PRINCETON CREWS

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP)—Tentative negotiations have been made for a race between the varsity crews of Princeton and the University of Washington on Lake Carnegie, Princeton about June 15.

Final arrangements, it is understood, will depend on the outcome of tomorrow's race at Seattle between Washington and California for the Pacific coast championship, the winner of which is to come east for the title regatta at Poughkeepsie, June 26. The Huskies have beaten California for the past four years.

Washington's rowing authorities made it known recently they would like a preliminary race in the east if their varsity crew was sent to the Poughkeepsie regatta. Negotiations with Princeton progress favorably, it was said, with the aid of Charles Logg, former Washington oarsman now serving as head coach at the Tiger institution.

P.A.

is pippin pipe tobacco

THOSE fellows who get so much fun out of pipe—don't envy them . . . emulate them! Get yourself a jimmy-pipe and a tidy red tin of Prince Albert. That's what they did, and look at them. Wearing smiles a mile wide. Puffing away on good old P. A. and happy as ducklings in their first rain-storm.

There's no trick about it . . . no deep, dark secret. P. A. is pippin pipe tobacco, made for pleasure and lots of it. Prince Albert is mellow as moonlight on a silent summer sea. Fragrant as a breeze that filters through apple-blossoms. Cool and sweet in a way that spells comfort to a pipe-smoker.

Not the least of P. A.'s virtues is the kindly way it treats a fellow's tongue. The Prince Albert process cut out bite and parch years ago, thereby opening the gates to smoke-peace for millions of men. No matter how hard you smoke P. A., there is no protest from your tongue or throat.

To make sure that you are not missing the full enjoyment of your pipe, go to the nearest tobacco shop and tell the man you want a tidy red tin of Prince Albert. He knows of hundreds of men that have found the enjoyment that's waiting for you. There's a revelation coming to you with a pipe—and P. A.

P. A. is sold everywhere in fifty cent tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

MORE LAURELS FOR LAUFER IN TANK MEET AND ANOTHER RECORD BROKEN

CHICAGO, April 8.—(AP)—Walter Laufer, youthful star of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. team, tonight added to his laurels in the National A. A. U. swimming championships by stroking to an easy victory for the 100 yard free style title. He narrowly missed the world's record for the event with his time of 53 2-5 seconds.

Another Cincinnati "Y" swimmer, Lewis Rutledge, was second and Arne Borg, Illinois A. C. was third. Johnny Weismuller, record holder and previous champion for the distance, was out because of illness.

Spashing to her third new international indoor mark during the meet, Agnes Geraghty of New York raced the stop watch to make the 100 yard breast stroke in 1:23 3-5. Last night she lowered the feminine time for the 100 meter breast stroke and the night before she reached 50 yards with the stroke in 38 seconds flat.

Eric Rademacher, German Aquatic star who set a new record in last's night's competition for the 220 yard men's breast stroke title, tonight missed by more than two seconds the record time for the 200 yard breast stroke. Racing against time, he made the distance in 3:34 1-5.

Laufer of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. virtually clinched the championship for his team by winning his second victory of the night and his third of the week when he established a new world's record for the Medley swim. Covering the distance in 3:45.3, seven seconds under the old record held by Walter Spence of Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A.

DANIELSON

SCHOLARSHIP FUND PLANNED BY WOMEN'S CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 8.—Significant of the organization's intent to do something more than to benefit as individuals from the cultural opportunities presented periodically for its members, Killingly Woman's club has made known its intention to establish a scholarship fund for a graduate of Killingly high school.

The nucleus of this fund is already at hand. A dramatic production the club is arranging is the next step in increasing it and arousing greater interest in its continued growth.

No definite minimum or maximum sum has been set for this fund by the club. An ambitious hope is that it may be, some time, of sufficient size to produce in income as much as $200 annually, but it may be established with a much smaller annual income than that.

The scholarship fund is not a new conception of Killingly's Woman's club. It was talked of a number of years ago; in fact, money raised from a percent of the nations given some time after the close of the World war was to have been used as a basis for the fund, but the pressure at that time for money for relief in the Near East led to a decision of the club to divide amount raised for that purpose—some $200.

Meanwhile some gifts for the scholarship fund have been received by the club. Two of these gifts are of $100 each. One of them came from William Phillips, member of Dillon, Read and company, New York, and a graduate of Killingly high school. Two other gifts, one of $25 and one of $5, make the fund at the present time $230. On this foundation the club purposes to build until the fund is of such proportions as to produce income sufficient to warrant the giving of a scholarship. Whether that scholarship amounts to $50 annually or to $200 or more, depends, of course, on the general interest there may be in this community in providing opportunities for further study by especially promising students of Killingly high school.

As yet, the club has not decided all details relative to the scholarship, whether it shall be as an aid to those desiring to attend normal school in preparation for teaching, or whether for a college course. Fixed, however, is the plan to surround the scholarship fund with all the legal safeguards for its perpetuation through the years, and to assure to many future students of Killingly high school a fund that will aid them with courses that will make for their greater service to humanity.

BOOTLEGGING WEATHER FROM FEB. AND MARCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 8.—A great plot was discovered here Thursday. April bootlegging weather out of late February and early March. All the poetry and inspiration accredited to this period of the year is submerged under a gigantic plot to flood southern New England with late winter storms and discomforts.

The coal strike figures in this. Something after this style, it may be mentioned that a surplus of cold, stormy and uncomfortable weather was ordered last fall to make the coal strike more effective. The strike coming to an end in February, much of this bad weather was left over and is now being dumped on the market—the market being the countryside.

There is no relief from the present dubious period. All the long distance weather forecasts for six months to come have been made, and they cannot be changed, being in accordance with rules followed for generations. The daily weather forecasters say they are powerless to help because they are only foretelling things just as they are to come between sunrise and sunset. No statute exists—by some strange oversight—for prosecuting the month of April. The weather wins — gosh darn it!

At the state armory Thursday evening the carnival under the auspices of the American legion was opened and those who attended found a great deal to interest them. There were booths, offering various attractions, dancing and various other diversions. The legion post will apply the profits from the carnival to its Community house fund.

A matter in the warning for the annual borough meeting next week has to do with compensating borough officials—the warden at the rate of $50 annually, the members of the court of burgesses at the rate of $25 each annually. This would be restoring an old arrangement instead of asking these officials to give their valuable time and efforts to the borough gratis. They certainly earn the money, whether the borough votes to give it to them or not.

No definite information as to what Daylight saving is to do about daylight saving was available Thursday, but may be today (Friday). Scores of individuals await the decision, anxious to know just how it will effect them and their daily routine for several months from the last Sunday of April.

It is significant that there have been no requests for fishing-state-leased Still Meadow brook ahead of the time established, Thursday of next week. The majority of fishermen here know that the brook still remains closed. Those who do not readily discover it by reading the multitude of warning signs along its banks. By 5 a.m. what a rush there will be to fish it next Thursday morning. S. R. O. signs, probably.

A great deal of satisfaction has come to people hereabouts for months past, because the run of serious accidents at Dark Lautern hill has been checked. Difficulty may be encountered in accounting for this. The hill was kept sanded during the icy periods of the winter and that helped a great deal. The hill has had widespread publicity and is, therefore, well known. It would be wonderfully nice if the good record of the past few months could be maintained.

The Danielson Masonic Building association has elected Judge Sabin S. Russell, president, E. L. Darbie, secretary and Walter Anderson, treasurer. The corporation was formed to hold the property, formerly the Westfield Congregational church parsonage, which is to be remodeled and enlarged for the use as a home by the Masonic bodies of Danielson.

Edward C. Greene, sophomore at Yale university, has been spending the Easter recess with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Greene of North Main street. Mr. Greene is a resident of Denver, Col.

After spending the holiday period at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Tillinghast, Miss Frances Tillinghast has returned to her studies at Connecticut college.

Mrs. Leonard James is seriously ill at the home of her brother in Putnam, where Mr and Mrs. James have been staying for a number of weeks.

Thursday, the body of Arthur Whitney, 78, arrived in this town from Utica, where he died. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. The service there conducted by Rev William Swainson of th Dayville Congregational church. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements. Mr. Whitney, a brother-in-law of Jabez Bowen of this town, formerly was a resident of Goodyear.

Two days of rain again have transformed country highways that were drying out nicely into quagmires—and forecasts another week's delay in getting over these routs with cars without difficulty.

A delegation of members of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Danielson was at Brooklyn Thursday afternoon, to attend funeral services for former Representative Charles S. Hyde of that town.

The Central Worsted company plant is having a season of great prosperity and is operating on a day and night schedule.

In ten days Collector James R. Walsh will begin collecting the annual assessments against the taxpayers of the town of Killingly. At appointed times he will be for a day in various communities of the town.

Excavating for the additions to Killingly high school are under way at the northerly end of the present structure. The greater part of the dirt to be removed has been taken out.

On a recent visit to Worcester, Chief A. P. Woodward, of the Danielson Fire department was given by the Worcester chief an opportunity to inspect the new fire alarm station being erected in a park in that city.

CHARLES S. HYDE'S FUNERAL AT BROOKLYN THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 8.—There was a large congregation Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the funeral of Charles S. Hyde, at the Congregational church a Brooklyn. Rev. John R. Pratt conducted the service. Members of Brooklyn grange attended in a body and there was a delegation of members from Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M. Danielson. Burial was in the South cemetery, the committal service being conducted by Master John R. Marsh and Chaplain Harry Brearley, of Moriah lodge. The bearers were members of Moriah lodge—Willis Kenyon, Robert K. Bard, Harry E. Magoon, J. Lawson Hargraves, Elbra Baker and Charles T. Anderson. F. W. Tillinghast and Sons were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The budget prepared for presentation to the annual borough meeting next week shows that a mike will be sufficient to raise the amount required. The gross of the budget is $27,895.07. Estimated receipts, chiefly from sewer assessments, collections by the police and rental of the borough farm, will be $1,705.09. This leaves $22,190.98 to be raised by taxation.

TO ORGANIZE TENT OF DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

Past Department Presidents D. Louise Atterbury of Norwich and Lillie Topping of New London of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war have been spending much time in town organizing a tent of this organization, Monday evening, April 12, at 7 o'clock in G. A. R. hall. Department President Nellie S. May of New London with her staff of officers will institute the tent. She is desirous that all who are eligible to membership such being lineal descendants of Union veterans of the Civil war, should meet her then and become charter members. She also extends the invitation to every Comrade to be present and every son of a veteran who belongs to the order of Sons of Veterans to be present to be obligated. Members of the Daughters of Veterans is of two kinds, active and contributing. It is the aim of the organization to enroll every eligible daughter, granddaughter, great granddaughter and so on of an honorably discharged Union army or navy veteran of the Civil war. It is a patriotic organization, enrollment in which keeps its members in touch with what their country stands for and is doing and prepares them to be on the defense against any propaganda that threatens American institutions. It includes a united body of patriotic women proclaiming to the world they are standing by the colors their fathers saved.

ANNULS DIVORCE DECREE OBTAINED BY DOUBLE FRAUD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 8—Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, in a written decision forwarded to Edgar M. Warner, clerk of courts, has annulled the decree of divorce granted in 1924 to Joseph Thibeault from Dorilda Thibeault, holding that it was obtained through fraud.

This is the first action of the kind ever tried in a Windham county court, or at least none of the local attorneys recall a similar suit.

One unfortunate feature of the case is that Thibeault married again six months after obtaining the divorce. In his decision, Judge Dickenson says that Thibeault's testimony in the divorce suit was apparently of bonef and he charges that his son Napoleon Thibeault, who is married and lives in Goodyear, committed perjury in the divorce trial.

The proceedings in the suit brought by Dorilda Thibeault to have the divorce decree set aside, which suit was tried here two weeks ago, set forth that service was through an order of notice published in a Windham county newspaper, that the plaintiff in this case who was the defendant in the divorce action, did not know that the divorce suit had been brought that Thibeault, if such I not actually know could have learned when by the use due diligence that he failed to make the proper effort to locate her, and that the divorce decree was consequently obtained through fraud.

Their oldest child, Napoleon Thibeault, is married and lives at Goodyear. In the summer of 1922 he visited his mother at her home in Greenfield, N. H., where she was living with her two daughters. But in the divorce suit, brought later in the same year, he testified that he had seen his mother but once and that was at Goodyear. He lived with the father in the home of Amedee G. Bilodeau, farmer, at Danielson, and had not the idea of showing that his mother was living at Greenfield a few months before. In the hearing of two weeks ago the plaintiff's attorney, directly accused him of lying. The memorandum of Judge Dickenson's decision follows:

"The gravamen of the complaint is that the defendant practiced a fraud upon the plaintiff and upon the court and in a former action wherein the present defendant was the plaintiff and the present plaintiff was the defendant, by fraudulently misrepresenting that he did not know the whereabouts of the then defendant, and so securing an order of notice by publication and the decree of divorce on ex parte hearing.

"Natural justice requires in all judicial proceedings notice to the defendant an dthe right to come into court and make defense.

Judge Dickenson then quotes a part of the testimony of Thibeault in the divorce action, as follows:

Question, do you know where the defendant went from Danielson?

Answer, From Danielson to Goodyear and lived there a year or two, then I lost trace.

Q. Ever heard since?

A. Never heard since.

Q. Made inquiries?

A. I made inquiries at different places but I couldn't get track of her.

Q. And you have not no track of her from the time she left Goodyear until the present time?

A. Since she left Goodyear I didn't know where she went to.

Q. That is the last you heard of her?

A. That is the last I heard of her.

Then the court quotes the following from the testimony of the son, Napoleon Thibeault, given at the same hearing.

Q. How long did you stay at home after your father left?

A. A month and a half; I don't know as I stayed that long.

Q. Ever seen your mother or your sister since?

A. Once, in Goodyear.

Q How long ago?

A. Just a little while after they moved to Goodyear.

Continuing, Judge Dickenson said: "The plaintiff gave substantially the same information, or misinformation, as appears in the above testimony. The evidence shows that the son, Napoleon, visited his mother in Greenfield, N. H., in 1922, and corresponded with his sister, who lived with his mother at that place, at a later date. The father and son were on friendly terms and they visited the office of the former's attorney together.

"A consideration of the entire testimony leads to the conviction that the defendant herein knew of the presence of the plaintiff in Greenville at the time the divorce action was tried, and that he kept the knowledge from his attorney and from the court in order to prevent the appearance of his wife to defend.

"That this constitutes a fraud for which the decree should be set aside hardly ned sthe citation of authority.

"It appears that the present defendant knew the whereabouts of his wife before and at the time of the hearing on the divorce petition, and a further appears that the son, Napoleon Thibeault, committed perjury in the original action.

"The unfortunate part of the affair is, that the defendant secured a marriage in Pawtucket, R. I., but six months after obtaining a decree of divorce granted in 1924 to Joseph Tribeault from Dorilda Thibeault, holding that it was obtained through fraud.

"To overlook this conduct on the part of the present defendant is not only to deprive the defendant of rights but would sanction fraud upon the court.

"Wherefore it is adjudged that the judgment for divorce, dated October 16, 1922, is void and the same is hereby set aside and declared of no effect."

They Stand the Gaff

NOT long ago a hurricane of unrivalled severity swept the Atlantic Coast. Windows were blown in and roofs blown off. Great liners at sea did not escape. A life boat on the upper deck of the S.S. Arabic, fifty feet from the water line, was wrecked by the huge seas.

On a high bluff overlooking the Atlantic near Duxbury, Mass., stands an old windmill which felt the full strength of the storm. It trembled from top to bottom but it was damaged neither without nor within—largely because the Ruberoid Roof stood the gaff. Not a shingle budged from its place. Not one curled or buckled.

Ruberoid Products always do stand the gaff. On many a roof, Ruberoid Products have given over thirty years of continuous service. Come in or phone us today for samples and descriptive folders.

RUTHERFORD C. PLAUT MEETS MANY NORWICH PEOPLE ON WESTERN TRIP

Rutherford C. Plaut, president of the Plaut-Cadden Co., who is on a trip through the west and along the Pacific coast, during which he has met a number of one-time Norwich people has written home from Los Angeles one of the interesting incidents of his trip. His letter follows.

Los Angeles, Cal.
March 25, 1926

My dear ones all:

You perhaps will remember that the night before I left home I had an appointment at the Uncas [illegible] to transact some business with Judge Ayling and, as I was saying good-bye to the judge, he said to me "Fordie, do you know the last thing my mother said to me as I was leaving tonight, after I told her you were going for a trip? She said, 'You tell him to write a letter about his trip and so, I am going to write one just because Judge Ayling's mother asked him to ask me if I would. Now, I tell you honestly, I would much prefer being whisked along some of the thousands of boulevards that they have here, but, as I always said, 'A promise made is a debt unpaid.'

I had a good trip to Jacksonville Florida, and I enjoyed my stay in Montgomery, Alabama. I liked New Orleans, also, and I stopped off long enough in El Paso, Texas, to say "Hello" to Rose Kronig Nordwald and her mother, Mrs. Samuel Kronig, then journeyed on to Globe, Arizona where I swapped my train for an auto to go take a 120 mile auto ride over the Apache Trail from Globe to Phoenix, the capital, stopping and viewing the famous Roosevelt dam. I enjoyed that trip as well as any ride I have ever taken and can recommend it to anyone who is going to California, via the southern route, because, for a few dollars additional, the railroad allows you to do this as a side trip.

I want to say right here, without any fear of contradiction, that I think Los Angeles is the garden spot of the world, and I won't take it back. My folks, as you may know, went to Porto Rico and wanted me to go along. They tried to argue me out of going to the coast. They asked, "Why do you want to go?" The only excuse I could offer was that I thought perhaps the coast might be captured by Japan or the lumber interests might cut down the big trees. Then again, some contractor might start to fill up the Pacific ocean.

The first thing I did after I got settled here at the Hotel Alexandria was to take a sightseeing bus, or, as they are called commonly, a rubber neck wagon. We started from Fifth and Main streets. "We are now crossing Spring street," says the man with the megaphone on the big gray car. "The building on the left is the tallest in the city." It was built before the ordinance was passed, limiting the height of buildings in Los Angeles to one hundred and fifty feet. This was done to protect the city's chief asset—sunshine, and, incidentally, to make the business section spread out sidewise rather than up in the air. "This is Pico street we are on now," said the megaphone man a little later. Confidentially, I will tell you it was really Thirteenth street. The city fathers slipped one over on the residents around here and covered up an unlucky omen with the name of a late Spanish governor. We traveled for miles through fashionable residential districts, past the homes of nationally famous actors, actresses, financiers, and had pointed out to us reproductions of Yorke Castle, Washington's Mount Vernon home and other noted architectural masterpieces. We rode along the famous palm drive with its seventy-five foot trees, towering above us in perfect symmetry and we tarried for a while to walk among the rare flowers and vines of Singleton court, the master of which discovered the Yellow Aster Mine and built the thirty thousand dollar stable, which I had mistaken for a fashionable church. And he, who, with his great wealth, made this famous court a beauty spot and seemed to have everything to make life happy, died under the cloud of debt. Again we traveled along tree-lined streets. "We are over eight miles from the business section," said our guide, "and you will see we are not yet to the outskirts of Los Angeles." This city covers an area of 364 square miles and is still growing. The people are coming here so fast you have to pay as you enter a street car, because the conductor can't get around to collect all the fares. The river could not supply enough water, so the citizens built a twenty five million dollar aqueduct to annex another one. The restaurants can't take time to wait on the crowds so the crowds wait on themselves in cafeterias. To relieve the congestion, it has been suggested that bargain sales be held only at night that the parks be made to fold up and the issuing of marriage licenses be suspended. "Here is the Plaza and Old Mission," continued the guide, after we had journeyed through the shopping and wholesale districts. "To this spot in 1781 a solemn procession came from San Gabriel Mission. With ceremony and prayer the City of Our Lady Queen of the Angels was founded." The prayers for the future of Los Angeles have been so well answered that real estate men are now trying it every time they put on a new subdivision.

Los Angeles was one of the first socialistic cities in the world. Ten families were the first residents. Each had a city lot around the Plaza and a ten-acre field down by the river. Tools and machinery were owned by the city and loaned to residents. Stock and grain were divided equally. Money was advanced for building of homes, et cetera, but as was to be expected, one or two residents had everybody working for them in a short time, leaving nothing equitly divided but the climate. This one item, however, still follows the socialistic idea. It has made Los Angeles Whether you live in a tent or a mansion, the joy or living, the sunshine, and the great outdoors, can never be taken away from you here.

It would not be fair if I did not take you to Hollywood. A young gentleman, it seems, once boasted to his lady friend that he possessed a remarkable power. He claimed he was able to classify any sort of wood by merely smelling it. As they walked along the country road one day, the young lad proceeded to test his acute sense of smell. While he dutifully closed his eyes, she took up one piece of wood after another and held it in more or less immediate juxtaposition to his nose. After a slight sniff at the first twig, he said, "That's alder" and he was right. Soon she found another piece of a tree, and the young man sniffed again and announced, "That's chestnut" and it was. Then she let him smell a short piece of board, "That's pine," he said at once. He was correct again, but the next time she tried to fool him. Quickly opening her handbag, she took out her lipstick and held it under his nose. His face lit up. "Why," he said, "that's Hollywood." Well, friends, it's an awful place. That's why so many other cities are trying to get the film studios to leave Los Angeles. Merely say "moving pictures" to any one of a number of towns. They would present you with the key of the city without any further argument. There is no use in saying Hollywood is simply an overflow meeting of tin angels. There are a lot of things going on in Hollywood that never appear in the society columns and the latest news of a private nature is not shouted from the housetops—at least, not by those vitally concerned, but the same could be said of any town in this country, irrespective of its size or standing among the communities. The one thing more than any other that has made "Hollywood" almost equivalent to a swear word and a name to frighten children at night, is the diligence of the studio press agents. It is related that a highly respected young man, on a trip to the east, artlessly told many people that he came from Hollywood. His new acquaintances gave him such queer looks that he decided he had gotten off on the wrong foot. Thereafter, if anyone asked where he came from he said "Los Angeles." Although Hollywood is a part of Los Angeles, it seems one sounds all right and the other—not so good. However, right here in the heart of Hollywood, at 1212 North Edermont street, in a beautiful bungalow lives Ernest Johnson, happy and prosperous. Besides Ernest and his wife, there are two beautiful children, Eleanor and Russell, both born in Norwich but reared in Hollywood. Both of the children go to the Hollywood high school and will go next year to the new California university in Beverly Hills. I have had Ernie's car at my disposal and he has rolled me a good many miles. Let me tell you what we did yesterday. First, we went to Culver City, where we visited Mary C. McGrath, R. N. When I first knew Mary, she was a little tot going to the West Thames street school. Then she worked for R. Gothlieb company as a saleslady. The next I heard of her she was over seas and now she has the distinction of being the head one at Doctor Murphy's hospital, 6677 Venice Boulevard in Culver City, California.

We then went on to Santa Monica and we saw Tom Shurrue and his family. Tom is a brother of John Shurrue, the well known plumber of 28 River avenue, Norwich. He is working at the Goldwyn studios as an electrician.

At 1020 Lincoln Boulevard, we saw Maria Buckley and her uncle John Shannon who had only seen Norwich once in forty three years. Maria, who has traveled around the world in the capacity of a government nurse on board a government transport, is satisfied to make her home in a beautiful bungalow, where the sun shines every day and you don't have to think of buying coal. From her front porch she can hear the swish of the mighty Pacific. Maria is a sister of Maurice and Henry Buckley and they can well be proud of having such a fine sister.

We then went on to Pasadena, the city of over 50,000 people, 121 millionaires and no visible saloons. There on the right of Colorado street is one of the finest Christian Science churches in the world and across the street is a Presbyterian church that has no pews in it for less than one thousand dollars per year rental so you see it costs a lot of money to go to Heaven from Pasadena. Orange Grove avenue, the famous street of Pasadena, has over 100 millionaires living on it. Most all of us have helped to build it in some way. A big house on the right belongs to the Steel King. Besides all the millionaires who live in Pasadena, there also lives Louis Frazier—Louis, one and only—who formerly worked for Rumford, the butcher, on the square. Well, Louis has not changed much. He welcomed us with his usual "Hello, darling" and "How are Chief Linton, and Bill McKnight?" and "Do you ever see my sister, Mrs. Berry of Oak street?"

I had lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis and Mrs. Stiles Chapman, all Norwich people whom I had seen here before. Mr. Mofin will remember Harry Scott, who, with his wife and son, formerly lived in Taftville. Well, Harry Scott has a fine home of his own at 2742 Malabar street, right here in Los Angeles. Harry is the boss upholstery cutter for Barker Brothers. Barker Brothers is the largest furniture store in the world and their monthly rental is $55,000. They employ over 2,000 in help. Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. Kempster is living with her and her son, Jesse Kempster, is to be married soon. Harry Scott's son is a big boy now and climbs the mountains with the Boy Scouts.

John Caples who formerly lived on Jail Hill, is very well. He and his oldest daughter called on me at the hotel today. He wants to be remembered to all. John has a very beautiful flower-covered bungalow at 223 East 82nd street and anyone from Norwich is always welcome. He is in the paper box business here and his business is flourishing.

Ernest Johnson's mother and brothers and sister are all well and they still have their heartrings out for dear old Norwich.

Grove Fitch and family at 901 avenue 66, South Pasadena, are just fine. They expect to come east in the summer.

One of the show spots of South Pasadena is the beautiful new home of Mrs. Jean Kellas Williams. Mrs. Williams' husband is a renowned architect and that is why they have such a beautifully designed home. They also have a marvelous baby. You know I fathered the baby show for several years in Norwich and I ought to know

MRS. ROSS' PETTICOAT ONLY MYTH, SAYS AUTHOR

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., April 3 (AP) — The commonly accepted story of Betsy Ross's petticoat as the forerunner of the flag is due for the limbo of historical myths, according to Dr. George E. Hastings, associate professor of English at the University of Arkansas, who has his way.

His findings are in a book The Life and Works of Francis Hopkinson, which a reputation for Mrs. Ross' famous needle. Professor Hastings says was the first to make the stripes for the first American flag. The book, which is the culmination of many years of research, credits Hopkinson with the design of the stars and stripes.

Tradition has it that Betsy Ross was asked to make the first American flag by General Washington. Dr. Hastings believes that he can trace this tradition back no further than 1870 when a grandson of Mrs. Ross announced that it was his grandmother who had done the designing of the flag, he having heard his forbears make that statement.

In going through the papers of the Continental congress in the Congressional library, Washington, Dr. Hastings came upon a receipt signed by Hopkinson for services rendered the Congress.

Hopkinson had suggested that a quarter of a cask of wine would be a suitable reward for designing the seal for the department of admiralty and that for a number of other governmental departments. Hopkinson, in 1780, was asked to submit an itemized statement of all his charges.

This statement, including that for designing the flag, is on file in the Congressional library and amounts to 2,700 pounds sterling.

In addition to designing the first flag, the author says, Hopkinson had the distinction of being the author of the first book of music ever published in America. The book was a compilation entitled Seven Songs.

Although Hopkinson died in 1791 at the age of 54, his achievements were many. A painter, poet, essayist, inventor and lawyer, he was a close friend of Washington, Jefferson and Franklin and like the first two was a signer of the Declaration of Independence and a member of the Second Continental congress. Sidelights of these illustrious figures in early American history are brought out in correspondence contained in the book.

Besides serving in the Continental congress, Hopkinson had charge of the administration of the navy. He also designed seals for the American Philosophic society, the state of New Jersey and the university of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Hastings became interested in Hopkinson while a graduate student at Harvard and made him the subject of his doctoral thesis. Since that time he has continued the study into Revolutionary war records of a score of the larger public libraries on the Atlantic seaboard.

COMMON RADIO LANGUAGE SOUGHT BY COMMISSION

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP) — A world language of electricity which will enable radio fans the world over to discuss their hobby in common terms is one of the problems to be worked out at the ten-day convention of the International Electrotechnical Commission beginning here April 12th.

National committees in the various countries which will send delegates to the convention have been conducting studies in this field and will report to the commission.

"Radio expansion," said Dr. Dexter for Harvey S. Mudd, president of the United States committee of the commission, "has increased the demand for common terms and symbols. Electricity is looming as a powerful instrument of concord among all peoples and apart from all scientific consideration, it is important to commerce that there be standardization of terms in the electri-technical field so that people in different lands can know what they are talking about.

"This new international tongue may in part consist of symbols [illegible] special text [illegible] for rating, [illegible] performances of electrical machinery. Standardized requirements need to be used in asking for bids and tenders in business."

Delegates from Great Britain, France, Germany, Norway, Russia, Switzerland will attend the meeting.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SEED CORN NEEDS GERMINATION TEST

Seed corn in many sections was in bad shape last fall and there is greater need than usual to test all seed corn for germination. It will be necessary to replenish stocks to some extent over wide stretches of farm territory and in getting a new supply only tested seed should be bought. The warning to test seed corn has been issued in Illinois and other states of the central west.

The extremes of moisture after the corn reached a good maturity with the freezing and freezing after the grain was water-soaked is to blame for the poor germination. Much matured corn failed to grow because of the unusually wet fall after the hard frost. In some fields where the corn matured well it will not sprout and respond to the tests as a good seed ear would. A simple good seed is placed under the control. But farmers have no excuse not picking seed corn. The time to make reliable test by responsible people is the only kind that should be purchased.

SWEET CLOVER ACREAGE INCREASES

Sweet clover, once looked upon as a roadside weed, is becoming popular in many states not only as a forage crop, but for use in crop rotation systems. The demand is growing very rapidly, and the acreage sown shows a steady increase. Where it is used in the place of red clover the farmer should study carefully its character of growth, which differs materially from that of red clover.

Nebraska and South Dakota experiment stations both praise sweet clover highly as a soil builder and declare it fits better into crop rotation than alfalfa. Good strains of sweet clover are now handled by all high-grade seed houses who have taken much trouble to study the sweet clover situation and select the best available types.

Here is the Nebraska opinion: "Sweet clover is a very valuable crop for soil improvement. Many farmers claim that it is more satisfactory for this purpose than either red clover or alfalfa. It fits into the rotation system better than alfalfa and will probably improve the productivity of the soil in a shorter time. The roots of sweet clover are large and vigorous and decay very rapidly at the end of the second year's growth.

"Not only does this crop add much organic matter to the soil but, in common with other legumes, it has the power of fixing atmospheric nitrogen by means of the nitrogen-gathering bacteria in the nodules on the roots. The large and vigorous root system is very important on soils which have a heavy impervious subsoil or hardpan so near the surface as to interfere in crop production. The sweet clover roots are able to penetrate such soils and upon decaying leave openings which facilitate drainage and aeration and improve the physical condition of the soil.

"One of the important uses of sweet clover is that of reclaiming alkali soil along river bottoms, particularly in the Platte valley."

METHOD OF TREATMENT FOR EUROPEAN RED MITE

European red mite has infested many towns and is a pest in apple orchards of such importance that the following information prepared by W. D. Whitcomb, entomologist at Massachusetts field station, will be of importance and great interest to fruit growers.

Although the European red mite was first repotred as a pest of deciduous fruit trees in the United States in 1913 by S. W. Frost in Pennsylvania, subsequent studies have determined this species to be identical with the citrus red spider which has been recognized in California for about 40 years. It was noted in Connecticut in 1926 and is now generally distributed over the fruit-growing area of the eastern United States.

This mite has been found on practically all species of deciduous fruit trees as well as rose and elm. All varieties of apples are subject to attack, the greatest injury occurring on Baldwin and other thin-leaved varieties and the least injury to greening. Injury by this pest is manifested by brown and dying leaves in the summer and early fall which results in poorly developed fruit and weak fruit buds.

The dark red winter eggs having a short stalk arising from the center hatch in late April or early May or about the time blossom buds show pink and the leaves are an inch long. The mites develop from egg to egg in about 15 days and multiply rapidly throughout the summer, five or six generations being completed. The adult females are dark velvety red the larvae nymphs and male mites dark brown or green. Summer eggs are pearly brown. The winter eggs appear in large numbers in August and September on the twigs, and in the axils and scale cavities of the bark. Dry hot summer weather favors rapid development of the mites. They are spread from tree to tree by the wind.

The European red mite is most successfully controlled by thoroughly applying an oil spray to the winter eggs. Applications at either the dormant or delayed dormant period are equally effective and in cases of severe infestation both are advisable. Commercial miscible oils or home-made soap-oil emulsions when used at the recommended dormant strength will kill the eggs. Soap-oil emulsions can usually be made or purchased much cheaper than miscible oils. Lime-sulphur will not effectively control the winter eggs of this mite and it cannot be mixed with oil sprays.

Summer sprayings with lime-sulphur, 1 gallon in 50 gallons of spray, or dusting with mixtures containing at least 75 per cent sulphur as recommended for the control of apple scab and other fungous diseases will check a red mite infestation somewhat. However summer applications of sulphur cannot be successfully substituted for the dormant oil sprays to control this mite.

LIME SULPHUR BEST FOR APPLE SCAB

Apple scab, a very destructive and widely distributed fungous disease affecting most commercial varieties of apples, is best controlled by spraying with lime-sulphur solution diluted at the rate of 1 1-2 gallons of the solution to 50 gallons of water.

The disease not only seriously damages the fruit itself but also frequently causes premature loss of leaves with consequent stunting of the trees. Furthermore, says the United States department of agriculture, it often kills the blossom buds or blossoms, especially in northern orchards, in that way reducing or entirely destroying the prospective crop.

The spray is best applied as a fine mist, thus avoiding too heavy applications and lessening the risk of injury to fruit and foliage. Removal of fallen leaves from the ground or plowing them under in the fall or early spring is a valuable aid to control by spraying.

Grimes, golden, Ingram, and York imperial varieties are the most resistant to the scab. Baldwin, Jonathan, lowland-raspberry, maiden blush, Mann, Oldenburg, Ortley, Red Astrachan, Wagener, and yellow transparent are moderately resistant.

The old steamer City of Gloucester, which was named for service on the Boston-Gloucester run, was sold for $350.

"The Old Home Town"

The old home-town in the nestling hills
Is a proud old town as its bosom thrills
And hearts beat glad (as heart beats should)
At the loud acclaim (as a parent's would)
When a child, well loved, has fairly won
A place secure in the sought-for sun.

The rattling carts may come and go,
The dales resound from the whistle's blow.
The streets a-ring from the strife of trade,
The air be charged with its schemes, man-made;
But every heart from the greatest down
Is proud tonight in the old home-town.

Oh, what is life and love and all?
Or what means smoke from chimneys tall?
Or coursing streets, the busy mart,
Without a vision or a heart
To beat, to guide, direct and plan
The things supreme for good of man?

The old home-town in the nestling hills
Is proud tonight as its bosom thrills
To a silvered voice in a golden song
Above the din of a busy throng;
But never you fear—the tears course down
Glad tears of joy—in the old home-town

THE YAWPING OF A WESTERNER.

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

A valued correspondent sends me a "poem" clipped from some western paper and titled The Spirit of the West.

I call it "poem," for it is written in free verse. Moreover, it rhymes now and then and is accentual, after a fashion. These forms of form could be presume that the writer thought it was a "poem." Certainly seems to indicate that the rest of us let it go at that.

My correspondent begs me to read it and then tell him what we're coming to. Well, I've read it. It's too long. I can't quote it. I call out verses as samples from which you, too, may judge of its quality.

"All our parties are united
In one Great Common Cause.
And we're going to have fair prices
In spite of Hell and Dawes.

"Our laws were made to please the East;
And pauperize the West;
But now that Congress has convened
We'll put them to a test.

"Bunk about supply and demand,
Was made to get free food:
New England put it over on
The poor old Western boob.

"You'll better vote our farm bills
Help pass those profits 'round;
For if you don't your factories
We'll run into the ground.

"We're going to fight for our just rights—
The East can go to Hell;
We're going to TAKE a profit on
The things we've got to sell.

"For we are rough old Westerners,
So take the little tip.
In this great game of politics
We've got you on the hip.

"Oh you say you cannot help us.
In God to put our trust.
You change your tune, you traitors, or,
We'll flop you in the dust.

"Oh you money grafting Yankees,
You can safely bet your feet,
That New England, in the future,
Will pay for what she eats.

"We are done with our slave labor
To furnish a free feast
To that gang of lawful robbers
Who populate the East."

There are three things which impress me most in this effusion.

The first is its fanatical and bigoted intolerance.

The writer is one of that too large class whose members think that their likes and dislikes, their desires and their aversions, their wishes, their purposes, their plans are all divinely inspired. What they believe is so must be so; what they think is right must be right; what they want must be desirable. The mere fact that they desire, think and believe it makes it infallibly and incontestably right. Anyone who thinks differently is a heretic; to the stake with him! And if the wood is green and the fire burns slow, so much the better; he will suffer more in dying.

It was that spirit which led the Spanish Inquisition to burn many thousands of heretics and Jews. It was that spirit which sent Savonarola and Servetus to the stake. It was that spirit which slew the old men and women of Salem as "witches." It is that spirit which is actuating many self-styled "reformers" of the present day in their opinionated endeavors to make everybody else sneeze when their noses itch.

It is the spirit which demands unlimited license for its own ideas of freedom, but forbids all liberty to those who don't march under its banners. Its father is ignorance and its mother is self-conceit. It is at once one of the most contemptible and the most dangerous characteristics of a sadly imperfect human nature.

The community, be it town, city, state or nation, which yields control to this spirit is aiming a straight course to the precipice over which like the Gadarene swine, it is doomed to plunge into the sea.

The writer of the stuff from which I have quoted sees just one thing clearly and wants just one thing hungrily. His vision can't take in the whole broad land but is bounded by his own or his immediate neighbors' line-fences. Wherefore he demands that the whole theory and structure of government and society be made over, instanter, to meet what he considers the needs of his corn-patch. Anything else is "bunk," and all who dare demur are "you traitors," or a "gang of lawful robbers."—I've heard of lawless robbers many times, but I don't seem to recall being introduced to any "lawful" ones before. They must be something like white blackbirds or hundred-legged rattlesnakes. Some museums ought to put a few on exhibition so common people could see what they look like.

The second thing which strikes me in the lucubration from which I've quoted is its coarseness and vulgarity. The man actually goes out of his way to be profane and abusive. Various tendencies in contemporary literature indicate that the popular taste isn't revolted, as it once was, by even the milder forms of profanity. "Damn" and "devil" are words no longer barred from certain forms of literature. They really seem to titillate pleasantly some ears. But to search out opportunities for busting into profanity, for dragging it in by the tail, as one might a half-rotten dead cat,—that's a different thing. Even the duke of Alva who burned heretics by the hundred and the Salem Puritans who strangled witches by the score did their work without resorting to "cussing" in any but the dignified theological sense.

But this wild-eyed potwalloper who assumes to voice "the spirit of the west" would apparently rather cuss than not. He takes pride in being a "rough old westerner." The ordinary restraints of speech are not for him. He wants it understood that he's tough with a "hell" and a "by" and a "douche." No touch in the word for him.

I once knew a man who always ate with his knife and dug out gobs of butter from the common dish with the same knife. He did both things with a flourish, too, so as to make it sure that the other diners would understand he was above and beyond all forms of "mandy-pandyism." He gloried in his rudeness, asking others to believe that it was merely a form of homely ruggedness.

Similarly our friend from the west seems to feel that he is showing his "manly spirit" when he disregards the ordinary amenities of writing. He probably would object to you as a "pantywaist" if you objected to "soft words butter no parsnips," failing to note at the same time, that hard words don't, either.

When he tells the east that it "can go to hell," there's at least one easterner who feels like responding, "After you, please!" One always likes an experienced guide in going into strange places.

His very abusiveness arouses an antagonism. Even the shrewdest-witted of court politicians knows that, when a lawyer begins to abuse the opposing counsel, it's because he hasn't an case of his own. One of the shrewdest politicians old Norwich ever knew used to say that he could catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar. There will always be room to appeal to you, too, may judge of its quality.

"All our parties are united
In one Great Common Cause.
And we're going to have fair prices
In spite of Hell and Dawes.

"Our laws were made to please the East;
And pauperize the West;
But now that Congress has convened
We'll put them to a test.

"Bunk about supply and demand,
Was made to get free food:
New England put it over on
The poor old Western boob.

Professor—"Never will I forget the day I drew this blade for the first time."

Stude—"Where did you draw it, sir?" an awe-struck freshman asked.

Prof.—"At a raffle."—Bison.

"Do you understand the traffic signals?"

"Perfectly," answered the girl who was driving with an out of town license tag. "When the car ahead of me starts, I do the same."—Washington Star.

"Do you remember Miss Smith?"

"No, I can't say I do."

"Oh, you must remember her! She was the plainest girl in the village. But I forgot—that was after you left."—Progressive Grocer.

Newlywed—"What's wrong with the pie-crust? It doesn't half cover the pie."

Mrs. Newlywed—"Why, dearest, I asked your mother how to make pies to suit you, and she said to make the crust very short."—Punch.

"Yes, my friends," said the theological lecturer, "some admire Moses, who instituted the old law; some Paul, who spread the new. But, after all, which character in the Bible has the largest following?" As he paused, a voice from the back bench shouted—"Ananias!"—Exchange.

A man was trying to sell a horse. The animal was broken-winded, but sleek. The owner trotted it around for inspection, and remarked: "Hasn't he a lovely coat?"

The prospective buyer looked at the heaving flanks of the animal, and replied: "Yes, his coat's all right; but I don't like his pants."—Good Hardware.

Tsarskoe-Selo, once the favorite summer home of the emperors and empresses of Russia, is now a playground for the children of the Russian masses. The great imperial estate which was the gift of Peter the Great to his wife Catherine I, now resembles a vast American recreation center. The former palaces, villas, gardens, churches and lakes have been converted into museums, schools, hospitals and sanatoriums for children.

A sight of the sun and the novelty of feeling its warm radiance was worth $150 to a party of six Londoners who became bored with the perpetual shadow of the city which has prevailed this winter. They went to Croydon Aerodrome and hired an airplane, specifying that they must be taken above the layer of fog and the smoke and kept in the sunshine for an hour. They paid $25 each. The machine reached an altitude of 6,500 feet and came into brilliant sunshine. When the passengers landed they said the experience of seeing the sun was worth the money.

Forty thousand square miles of country covered by snowcaps, great forests, glaciers and volcanoes in Southeastern Alaska will be mapped the coming summer from the air. For years the geological survey has been struggling to complete its maps of this part of Alaska, but the ground survey has been slow and in many places almost impossible. So the navy has been asked to assist. The expedition will be started in the spring. The territory to be mapped extends from the Aleutians and the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes to Ketchikan. The rough country, fogs and clouds present hazards. Most of the mapping will be done from an elevation of 10,000 feet.

Early action on farm relief legislation was predicted in the house by Representative Tincher, republican, Kansas, one of the agricultural leaders in congress.

Miss Catherine Murphy, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Roger J. Murphy of 31 St. Bernard's Terrace, Rockville, and H. Alden Middleton, son of Howard A. Middletown of Broad Brook, were married Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the rectory of St. Bernard's Catholic church. Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. Miss Janice Middleton sister of the bridegroom was bridesmaid and Henry Murphy, brother of the bride was best man.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls and the bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bracelet. Mr. and Mrs. Middleton left for a wedding trip following the reception. Upon their return they will live in Ellington. Both Mr. and Mrs. Middleton were graduated from Rockville high school in 1920. Mr. Middleton is postmaster at Broad Brook.

DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT GENTER MAKES REPORT FOR THE YEAR

Rev. Myron E. Genter of this city, district superintendent for the Norwich district, gave a review of the year in the Methodist churches of the district, when he presented his annual report Thursday at the New England Southern conference annual meeting held at South Manchester. The report by Rev. Mr. Genter follows:

Dear Comrades of Christ in Arms:

One year ago we accepted appointment to the supervision of this district, consisting of 57 active churches, in charge of 45 ministers, ordained and supply,—there being five churches, active and three of which should soon be sold.

Delightful receptions were given to the superintendent and his family, by the New London church on May 1, and the Norwich, Trinity church, on May 28.

We have high commendation for our predecessor, and on the district there is abundant evidence, of his progressive administration.

However, we have found much to do in the holding of conferences, attendance upon district, county and state gatherings, addresses before other communions, and various social stoups. We have also sought to find a way to a large district unity, which has involved the assembling of data, district, conference, and governmental —in order that the churches may overcome weaknesses and take on power for sublimer achievement. Part of this appears in charts and graphs as found in the survey room of this district. We acknowledge the splendid assistance of ministers who desire their names withheld.

The labor of the year has involved travel of about 18,000 miles, much of this at night, and mostly by automobile.

In all of the work we have desired supremely, the spirit of Christ and whatever may have been achieved, has been in his Holy name.

Evangelism and Spiritual Labor

In 22 churches more than 400 members have been received. The more outstanding churches are as follows: Baltic and Versailles, 137. It is marvelous that Brother Conklin the pastor, using the combined methods, actually had 170 decisions for Christ, in three different churches in four weeks.

Burnside, Gales Ferry, Moosup, New London, North Grosvernordale, Norwich Trinity, Putnam, Rockville, Stafford Springs, South Manchester, Thompsonville, Warehouse Point, and Willimantic have received large numbers.

In no charge has there been more amazing increase in proportion to opportunity, than at Sterling where Brother C. H. Wright and his loyal wife have received 32.

Of course other items will show the real net gain, but it is heartening to know of this impact on the hearts of men.

The heart-ache, the heart-break and the heart-hunger of the masses, requires the continued prophetic message from the pulpit with daring and conviction, if conversions are to be expected.

The shepherding of souls is so vital that no excuse can be tolerated for frittering away time in secondary tasks or managerial details, which laymen should be performing. Some of the most outstanding spiritual leaders, counsel or victory, are ministers well past 50 years of age.

REV. MYRON E. GENTER
District Superintendent

Religious Education

Many of our churches have good graded schools, few have completely departmentalized instruction, and most of them use our own denominational supplies. Several churches, have special classes with instruction in Life of Christ, special classes for teachers and workers, are in operation in Manchester, New London, Moosup, Mystic, Norwich Trinity, Putnam, South Manchester and Wapping.

Danielson has a daily vacation Bible school and week day Junior school while Rockville, has week day religious instruction with good equipment, and excellent curriculum for a large group. There has been a remarkable growth of organizations for men.

World Service and Stewardship

In world service all churches have been urged to raise every dollar possible toward their full share of $18,500,000 which is the actual basis of maintenance. We expect an advance over last year. We have sharply condemned the practice of generosity toward many other benevolences until they have provided for their own denominational ones.

Forty-one churches report having the financial plan of the discipline in whole or part, most of them have an annual budget system, weekly payment, and pay their bills promptly.

We have reason to believe that all items for ministerial support will be met that there will be a slight increase to the permanent fund for conference claimants invested funds, which has been urged by the superintendent, and several churches will meet this in full for this year. Classes in stewardship and missionary instruction on Sundays and week days are growing.

Local Anniversaries, Notable Occasions

East Hampton reports celebrating its 50th anniversary of use of its present building, on October 28th.

Gales Ferry had an inspiring community picnic in August. Moosup had its annual parish supper, and roll call on Dec. 19th. Norwich District Laymen's Night, last January, with Dr. Bartholo as speaker, and with about 300 men present was thrilling. Rockville observed Old Folks day, with excellent results on Oct. 11. Staffordville reopened its church on Nov. 26th. The untiring pastor, W. D. Woodward, raised more than $1,700 for renovation and repairs.

Stafford Springs has achieved a stupendous feat, in complete renovation of its church, repairs, improvement, and beautiful decoration at a cost of $7,200. Provision of funds for all of this was made before its reopening on December 6th.

South Manchester dedicated its very fine organ on Oct. 25th, with Dr. Dillon Bronson, as preacher. This beautiful church here, was dedicated by William F. Anderson, after a noble prophetic message, on November first.

What a structure! What superb equipment! What loyal people! What ministerial leadership! What obligation to Christ! May God pour out his spirit mightily among this people.

Quarryville, on the last Sunday in January, opened its newly decorated church. Warehouse Point had a very notable occasion on June 21st, in re-dedication services. Uncasville has also made extensive improvements.

Personal and Family Matters

The mother of W. E. Plaxton entered the life immortal the last of May. Mrs. J. E. Montgomery, saint and counsellor, left us for heavenly associations on June 10. Her husband has arisen heroically to his task with spirit unsurpassed. Rev. B. F. Raynor, faithful preacher, entered his heavenly home on last summer. On December 6, last, the angel spirit of Ruth, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Graham, became a permanent guest of God in the Father's house. Mrs. James Coote, after weeks of suffering and waiting, was crowned of God, Jan. 26. Rev. W. P. Buck, faithful for so many years in the ministry, passed suddenly to the land of the redeemed in the late fall. Several had a long and prolonged illness, but on the whole critical illness has not been in large amount, and there is good reason for abounding joy, (princely)

Mr. A. Willard Case, layman of this church, who gave so magnificently for its erection, was ushered into the heavenly country just a few weeks after its dedication.

Mr. Walter S. Calvert of New London, was struck by a passing train and after a few hours, died from the injuries. His record for devotion is rare—equalled.

On July 7 last, G. S. Sallock, student supply pastor at East Hartford was married. On April 8, Marjorie Evelyn came to gladden the lives of Rev. and Mrs. N. B. Burton. On June 2, Josephine, came to share the name and home of Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Woodward.

Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer, report that one daughter and one son, are happily married. Dr. C. E. Spaulding reports that he has become a grandfather for the first time.

Camp Meeting and Institute

The joint meeting of these two last August was highly inspirational. The attendance was excellent, and the speakers and instructors were of the best. However, for several years, the conviction has been growing that the work for the young people should be of the Standard Institute type and at the time of other groups in the country in June, and it has been arranged that way. The camp meeting will be held at the usual time, Aug. 15-23, with more attractive program than ever.

Church Literature and Periodicals

As to these, there are reports of 238 Zions Heralds, 134 Epworth Heralds and 41 Christian Advocates being taken, although we are confident there are many more.

Industrial Depression

This has greatly interfered with the progress of our churches during the last year at Oneco, Sterling, Thompson and Rockville. The closing of mills at Mapleville, looked disastrous for the church, but our pastor, P. A. Ahern, has been heroic. The strike at Willimantic, protracted for months, threatened our church there but Pastor Muirhead, has given superb leadership.

Property Improvement and Repairs

Nearly $20,000 have been spent in upkeep of the physical equipment on the district. The more outstanding churches, having expended sums of $300 or more, are as follows: Baltic and Versailles, Jewett City, Manchester, North Grosvenordale, Norwich Town, Oneco, Old Mystic, Portland, Rockville, Stafford Springs, Staffordville, Quarryville, Wapping, Warehouse Point and Windsorville.

Church Debts and Bequests

Churches which have paid on debt are: Hazardville $1,500; Mystic $300; New London $2,225; Norwich Trinity $1,000; Thompsonville $350; Uncasville $300.

Several bequests may be noted. Miss Lillian Riley, the sum of $5,500 to Burnside church.

Gales Ferry has added $700 to its permanent fund. Danielson by the will of Mrs. E. H. Codding, and also by the will of Mrs. H. H. Danielson, in legacies of $1,000 each. Jewett City by the will of Mrs. Barrett for $500. The New London church has been willed $1,000 by W. S. Calvert, $1,000 by Miss Harrison and $1,000 by Rev. W. P. Buck, North Grosvenordale, the sum of $200 by will of Mrs. John Lamb, Portland receives $500 from the Weir estate and Putnam $100 the use of which is for the choir. Our church at Windsorville, had a bequest of $10,000 from W. E. Morton, which is held by the Hartford Trust Co., income for the general use of the church. All pastors should constantly encourage people to remember the church in their wills.

The increased wealth of the country for a decade has been enormous and wise laymen should see that a just share of this is used to maintain the Church of our Lord.

Salary Increases

As against the increased cost of living, which is about 72 per cent in the last decade, the Norwich district has increased its salaries about 35 1-3 per cent, so there is great need of rise of salaries in some churches rapidly, if ministers are to live and pay their bills. South Manchester leads the list with increase this year of $800 for its pastor. Burnside has voted $280 more. Gales

NEW LONDON STREET REPAIR COST LIGHT IF ALL SHARE THE EXPENSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 8. — The opinion is growing that the city, if it ever makes the improvements in Bank street that are contemplated, will assess the costs of the work against all the taxable property in the city. The arguments made before the compensation board Monday to the effect that the Bank street owners of property should not be compelled to pay for what they regard as a detriment rather than a benefit to their possessions appear to have the endorsement of people in general. It is represented that the share of the cost the city is to pay is the money that will be provided by all the taxpayers and that the owners on Bank street are numbered among that list. So the owners of property on Bank street would be, in reality, paying even more than their proportionate share of the cost. It is claimed also that the rails of the Connecticut company in Bank street are worn out because they have been welded so much that they cannot be so treated longer and that the company would prefer to have them taken up if some of the expense is charged up to the account of improvements. Then there are damages claimed by certain property owners, so that the cost of the improvements, now estimated at some $65,000 will be far above that amount. That there will be resistance to carrying out the plans of the city seems certain. It may be that the improvements will be abandoned for the time being. The agitation of the project has brought out varying opinions among property owners. Some of them are in favor of the improvements provided they are paid some damages, others object to having Bank street a one-way thoroughfare, others declare that they want automobiles parked on both sides of the street, while still others favor parking on one side only. Double-tracking of the street does not seem to enter into the problem so far as against the business interests

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP)—Industrial shares again lost ground on today's market, but the railroad issues held relatively steady. Trading was largely of a professional character, the days sales aggregating 1,700,000 shares, the smallest, with the exception of Monday, of any full session since last September.

The day's business news was largely favorable. It included the announcement that the minority stockholders' committee of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad would be granted two places on the directorate at the annua. meeting April 20, reviving hopes of a new "Nickel Plate" merger plan; the declaration of a dividend on Jay Consolidated Copper common for the first time in five years, and an increase of one cent a gallon in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Selling of the steel shares reflected the decrease in pig iron prices U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem Republic and Sheffield each fell back a point or more. Steel ingot production in March established a new high monthly record.

Selling pressure was renewed against the motor shares on reports that dealers were again overstocked with new cars. Nash fell back nearly 5 points to 110, and then rallied feebly, and General Motors, Hudson, Jordan, Mack Packard and Wayne showed net losses of a point or two.

Woolworth, Woolen common dropped over five points to 245, the lowest price since 1915, on rumors, later officially denied, of an impending $50,000,000 stock issue. Central Leather common and preferred each dropped about 3 points to new low levels for the year at 45 and 85, respectively. Marked weakness also was shown by General Asphalt, National Cloak and Suit preferred and National Tea, off 3 to 4 points.

Investment of Union Oil of California dropped nearly 3 points to 40 1-4 followed reports that the company's large tank farm in California had been practically wiped out by fire. Other oils failed to respond to higher gasoline prices in eastern territory, Houston, Simms, Associated and the Pan-American issues yielding 1 to 4 points.

Rail operations were apparent in a few industrial issues International Combustion Engineering advanced nearly 2 points to 45 3-8 and moderate gains also were recorded by Columbia Carbon, Fox Film, Motion Pictures and Vanadium Steel.

Chesapeake and Ohio featured the rail group by running up over 3 points to 164 7-8, but it reacted about a point on profit taking. Most of the other active rails showed only narrow changes.

Commodity prices were mainly higher on the day. Active wheat futures moved up almost two cents a bushel, May option selling at $1.59 5-8 Cotton trading was quiet with closing prices unchanged to 4 points net lower. The coffee market was higher on reports of renewed purchases in Brazil prices advancing 35 to 40 points. Sugar prices dropped 1-64 of a cent a pound, terminating the season's rally.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. renewed at that rate all day. Time loans continued easy, money 60 days being available at 4 3-8 with 4 1-2 asked for the longer maturities.

The foreign exchange market was dull and changes were narrow. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 while French francs eased slightly to about 3.66 cents. The Canadian dollar held nearly for the first time since December.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP)—Stock prices drifted lower in today's extremely quiet curb market. Trading was at a dead standstill for minutes at a time, with little incentive furnished professional traders to move prices in either direction.

Speculative interest was confined almost exclusively to the baking shares which showed irregular changes on the day. Continental Baking A closed 1 5-8 points higher at 90 1-2 after having sold as low as 84 1-8 earlier in the session, and the B stock showed a small fractional gain at 15 1-2. General Baking A recorded a slight fractional loss at 55 1-2 although it had sold 3 points below that figure, and the B stock closed unchanged at 7 3-4.

Oil shares failed to respond to the announcement of an increase in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its principal competitors. Most of the active oil issues closed fractionally lower.

Trading in the public utilities narrowed down considerably and there was little or no discussion of merger and dividend rumors which had been freely circulated earlier in the week. American Light and Traction jumped six points to 210 on a few sales.

Motors turned heavy on unfavorable trade reports. Ford Motors of Canada which had sold as high as 655 earlier in the year, broke 8 points to 585 on a few odd-lot transactions in apparent reflection of speculative disappointment that the parent company had failed to earn as much in 1925 as in the preceding year. Durant and Rickenbacker each sold within a fraction of the year's lows. Heavyness also developed in such issues as Brill corporation A, Gen Aviation, and Goodyear Tire.

American Machine and Foundry (new shares) and "rights" were admitted to trading.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP)—The buying power which has carried bond prices forward at a rapid pace for several days began to show signs of exhaustion today and the market developed pronounced irregularity. Contributing factors to the unsettlement were the downward drift of stocks and the disposition of professional traders to take profits in some of the recent strong points.

Buying of several railroad bonds, notably the Van Sweringen issues was stimulated by special developments of a favorable nature. Another indication that the Nickel Plate merger plan would be rebuilt was given by the agreement between the Chesapeake and Ohio minority stockholders and the sponsors of the consolidation. Nickel Plate and Erie obligations responded with brisk rallies. The demand in this group also embraced Great Northern 5 1-2s, Chicago and Western Ind and 4s, Louisville and Nashville 5s, Union Pacific First 4s and Wabash Debs. Illinois Central refunding 4s and Iowa Central 4s were heavy.

Oil companies issues drifted lower in the face of advancing gasoline prices. Part of the selling was attributed to reports that the completion of pending mergers was being delayed by special investigation. Sinclair, Simms and Pan-American convertibles moved downward with the issues of the companies whose Union Oil of California stocks were hammered by the corporate heavy tax loss.

A local banking syndicate headed by Hallgarten and Company announced today that $5,000,000 additional new high had been underwritten for the Argentine Republic and that subscription books would be opened tomorrow. Definite announcement of the terms of the issue is expected.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 8—(AP)—Wheat advanced sharply today in response to heavy selling to realize on recent Broadmarket gains. Export business was responsible, together with predictions that the Argentine government would take action tomorrow to put down 15 per cent. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 1-4 to 1 3-4 net higher. May (new) $1.59 to $1.59 5-8 and July (new) $1.37 1-8 to $1.37 1-4. Corn finished 3-4 to 2 3-4 up, oats 1 1-4 to 1 1-2c gain and provisions showing a rise of 10 and 12 cents to 47 cents.

Speculative trading in wheat was on larger volume today than at any time this week. From the outset prices here displayed a decided upward trend influenced a good deal by the fact that the Liverpool market was making substantial gains on account of expected reduction of the Argentine official crop estimate.

Besides, notwithstanding that dry weather is favorable for domestic winter wheat the majority of reports appeared to be getting apprehensive about delays to spring wheat seeding both south and north of the Canadian boundary.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat strength. Furthermore, additional wet weather was forecast.

Provisions went higher with hog values and with grain.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES ROAD SIGN; GARAGE DOORS ARE KNOCKED IN

Two crashes by automobiles in the city Thursday night, one of them knocking over a road sign and the other breaking in the doors of a garage, were followed by arrest of the drivers of the machines.

The road sign at the head of Water street giving warning of the work in progress on the Norwich-Trading Cove road was knocked over by an automobile driven by Frederick Leffingwell, 30 of this city. Mr. Leffingwell was placed under arrest for driving with defective brakes after his machine had come down the Main street hill, struck the sign and then traveled across West Main street, with the brakes on right until it came to a stop opposite Lane's battery station. Officer Gwazdowski made the arrest after Officer P. Murphy had tested the brakes and found they were useless. Bonds were given for Leffingwell's appearance in court.

Smashed Garage Doors

Elmer C. Sayles, 34, of Smithfield, R. I., was arrested on the charge of evading responsibility after the roadster he was driving had crushed in the doors of a garage on Talman street at the foot of Hinckley hill. But for hitting the garage, the machine would have gone over the bank into the Shetucket river.

Sayles had two men in the machine with him as they started to drive up Hinckley street. The automobile wouldn't make the grade, slipped down backwards and crashed through the doors of the garage belonging to Joseph Lynch. It was claimed that the party of three drove off up the hill in an attempt to get away, but the police were notified and Sergeant Mathew Delaney, Officers P. Murphy and Hugh McAvoy were waiting for them when they came down again and brought the three to police headquarters. There they claimed they did not know they had hit anything, but a rural free delivery man who had been standing on the corner gave testimony against them and Sergeant John H. Casey held Sayles for court. His two friends left for New London to endeavor to get the $300 bail required for his release.

The garage owner claimed that the damage done to the place would amount to $100. There was a machine in the garage but this was not damaged.

VERDICT UPHELD AGAINST MACK TRUCK COMPANY

In a decision handed down Thursday Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court denied the motion to set aside the verdict for the plaintiff in the case of Frank A. Rockwood of Franklin against the Mack Motor Truck Co., of Hartford. Rockwood was awarded a verdict of $1,892 by a jury in the superior court here recently. The motion in arrest of judgment which together with the former motion was made by the defendant was also denied.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Brown says:

In this action in which the plaintiff sought to recover $1,800 and interest for his Sterling motor truck ... delivered to the defendant Feb. 14, 1923 and never returned or paid for. It was the plaintiff's contention, in brief, that at the time he so delivered said truck, he signed an order to buy a new Mack truck of the defendant on the express understanding that upon his producing a customer to whom the defendant should sell said Mack truck, he should receive $1,600 in cash for the Sterling truck and be relieved of any further liability to the defendant, while the defendant claimed that the only agreement of the parties was for the sale of the Mack truck to the plaintiff in consideration of $1,600 allowed for the Sterling truck plus the balance to be paid in cash. The jury verdict indicates that it found the plaintiff's rather than the defendant's the true version of the transaction.

... rejected the defendant's claim ... these matters is that whatever ... may conceded as a matter of ... the jury could find that any agent ... of the defendant in dealing with the ... had authority to bind the ... by any such agreement as ... claimed by the plaintiff.

While in the light of all the evidence in the case as to the dealings carried on by Phelan as the conceded Hartford branch manager of the defendant and by Dana, agents subsequent to their implied and ostensible authority to act for the defendant in receiving and leasing trucks and as to conduct of the defendant amounting to a ratification of their arrangement made with the plaintiff or the defendant's claim so made upon these ... seems ... unimportant in view of the further conclusion which I have reached upon the question under consideration.

In reaching the jury's verdict upon the motion, it is to be borne in mind that it is a general verdict unbridled ... upon special findings in response ... to interrogatories or otherwise. It is ... also to be borne in mind that the ... complaint consists of two counts and ... that the controlling allegations of the ... second count are that "the defendant ... received a Sterling truck belonging to ... the plaintiff for an agreed price of ... $1,600 and although demanded, has ... failed and said $1,600 or any part ... thereof." These allegations which are ... denied by the defendant, the jury by ... its verdict and upon ample evidence, ... has found to be true. That the defendant has had the use and possession ... of the Sterling truck since Feb. 14, ... 1923, and never returned it to the ... plaintiff, is conceded upon such a set ... of facts as that, it be said, these ... words are used when Pascal, ... and Booth made the agreement with ... the plaintiff which the jury has found, ... they did, so getting possession of the ... plaintiff's truck they went beyond the ... authority given them by the defendant, it would be most inequitable ... and unwarrantable under the law to ... cast aside the plaintiff's verdict ... simply on the ground that the evidence of the authority of the defendant's agents is insufficient. SUES COLCHESTER FIRM TO COLLECT A NOTE

Maney J. Levinson of New York sues for damages of $1,500 from the Colchester Novelty Co., of Colchester, according to papers filed Thursday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court. The sum is claimed on a note, dated Oct. 27, 1924, which according to the allegations was endorsed to J. Simon, who later endorsed it over to Fishman Bros., and they in turn made the note over to the plaintiff, who claims it is now due and payable.

SHOWS HOW CLINICAL LABORATORY SERVES

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions' club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President William A. Anderson in the chair and with the usual large attendance. Rudolph Henschel was the song leader and Pete Ethier presided at the piano. The speaker was Mrs. Abbey Palmer Carley, bacteriologist at the W. W. Backus hospital. She gave an interesting talk on The Clinical Laboratory and Its Service to the Community.

President Anderson emphasized the fact that the Woonsocket Lions club charter night is to take place April 14 and urged the members of the local club to attend. Edward Rich, Joseph French, Harold Robbins, Jean Kieffer and Charles W. Taggart spoke briefly on the matter of securing a broadcasting station for Norwich. This committee recently held a conference with Mr. Cowles of the Travellers broadcasting station in Hartford but no definite action has been taken by the committee.

President Anderson called attention to the song recital to be given by Henry B. LaFontaine under the auspices of the Rotary club for the benefit of the John S. Blackmar fund. It was also announced that the chamber of commerce has 200 road signs directing automobilists to Norwich, the signs to be located about this vicinity.

A key container, the attendance contest prize, donated by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, was awarded to Max Hanover. Chairman Jean Kieffer of the entertainment committee introduced as the speaker Mrs. Abbey Carley, who gave a splendid talk on the subject, The Clinical Laboratory and Its Service to the Community.

In opening her address, Mrs. Carley spoke of the work being done for the community at large through hospitals, sanatoriums, and the various kinds of institutions, both civic and charitable organizations.

Continuing she said:

One of the most important requisites for a well conducted institution for the care of the sick is the proper laboratory facilities. In standardizing of hospitals it was recognized that no exact scientific work in the diagnosis and treatment of disease could be carried out without the aid of the laboratory. Thus we have the clinical laboratory here at the present time because certain laws demand it, but I feel assured the time is not far away when we can say we have the laboratory because the people demand it. Only through educating the public, can this be accomplished.

At the Backus hospital, a clinical laboratory has been doing work for a whole year. It has accepted the standard set by The American College of Surgeons and is doing work in chemistry, bacteriology, serology, pathology. The X-ray service is in a separate department. So-called routine laboratory examinations are performed on every patient admitted to the hospital regardless of the nature of the ailment. These consist of the following: Urinalysis, blood counts, white blood and red blood count, dif and hem.

In the interest of efficiency, we are compelled to avoid all unnecessary and useless examinations, which are time-consuming because of the strain on the personnel in the laboratory, thus taking their energy away from more essential duties. On the other hand, however, we cannot in our zeal for economy of effort, overlook the possible accidental discovery of unlooked for important findings in more elaborate routine examinations. We must steer toward a happy medium. Especially in a small hospital such as ours. So by order of the doctor in charge we do feces examinations, sputum, cultures from the throat and pus cases, wass, and simple smears without extra charge to the patient.

The above specified examinations may be termed the basic routine laboratory examinations. These alone however would not fulfill in letter or spirit the requirements of adequate laboratory service. By request of the doctors blood circulatory tests, serology procedures such as widal and wass tests and blood cultures, preparations of vaccines, spinal fluid examinations, gastric analysis and many other diagnostic and helpful tests can be carried out in our laboratory.

We aim to examine all tissues macroscopically and microscopically and hope to include this work as routine. At present we are unable to do this due to the expense of this procedure.

In the clinical evaluations of laboratory findings it must be remembered that it is not the isolated result the data of single examinations but the constancy with which abnormal findings occur, which in the long run, confers the greatest significance. The laboratory report is merely a source of information. A means of supplying the doctors (for the patients benefit) with data not otherwise available, so he can make a better and quicker diagnosis.

A monthly report is handed in to the ... and at the staff meetings. Our outside department gives the necessary laboratory service to the patients at home, the working being ordered by the doctor in charge. Diabetic patients and the so-called chronic patient appreciated this service greatly. The work in this department has doubled itself in a year's time. Last month's record shows $70 worth of tests were done. This branch of the work will grow as the public becomes educated to the full value of the work done by the clinical laboratory. The laboratory is not a money-making scheme, we try to be self-supporting, so as not to be a drag on the hospital. Our only advertising—are satisfied patients. The number grows day by day. There has been a great increase in hospital efficiency which has resulted through the establishment and development of the clinical laboratory, during the past few years. I believe that the clinical laboratory has done much to improve medical service. We might sum up very briefly a few of these points. It helps the doctor in making a more accurate diagnosis. It is eliminating the unnecessary and incompetent surgery. No longer do we find the specimens thrown in the bucket after operation, it goes to the laboratory for further study. It stimulated the staff to deeper study of cases. Can we not say truthfully then with these things in mind that the laboratory is a great blessing to a community. But it can't work alone for the desired results, all the spokes must be in the wheel, so as to speak, working for one main purpose in mind the community at large.

President Anderson thanked the speaker in behalf of the club and she was also extended a rising vote of thanks by the members and guests present. The gathering closed in the usual custom with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and salute to the flag.

METHODIST PASTOR ASKING RETIREMENT

Schriver of Nelspoint, R. I., will act as judge at the hearings. Dr. J. I. Bartlett, new of Pawtucket, R. I., will be counsel for the church, and Rev. W. Coleman, counsel for Rev. Mr. Holmes. There was also a possibility that Dr. Spaulding of New London, may act as assistant counsel for Rev. Holmes, while Rev. William I. Ward, of North Carver, Mass., may serve in that capacity for the church.

Unofficially, Superintendent Roberts is credited with stating that he was confident he had strong enough evidence to convict Rev. Mr. Holmes. On the other hand it was apparent that the defendant would have plenty of support back in the conference to annoy the prosecutors, one possible supporter of his foremost defenders is Rev. H. Kenneth Smith of Taunton, Mass.

It was reported among the delegates today that additional charges of heresy are to be brought against the minister for his affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan and with the holding of "right wing views" in his New Bedford pulpit. From a source believed to be reliable it was learned that such charges were not being considered at the committee at this time anyway.

Possible Punishment

As the date of the hearing draws nearer, considerable speculation as to the possible punishment to be meted out to Rev. Holmes in the event that the charges against him are sustained, is being indulged in. It was said officially that there are but two courses the conference can take.

When charges were preferred against the Rev. Mr. Holmes last Tuesday, he was automatically suspended from the ministry, but it was pointed out at the same time that all powers are theoretically suspended during a conference when their appointments are considered. The two possibilities in this case are either to suspend the minister, or to vindicate him by re-appointment to some parish, not necessarily the same one.

The question of the decision by the committee was raised and it was stated that this was improbable, though the committee fail to reach a decision, the conference would be unable to close without either suspending or reappointing the man against whom charges are preferred. If the committee failed to reach a decision, the case might be brought before the conference.

Despite the suppressed excitement caused by the rumors regarding the Rev. Mr. Holmes, the business of the conference continued without interruption. The outstanding session tonight was the address or presidium by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, D. C., head of the Methodist board of morals and temperance. There was an illustrated lecture on "Building the seven-day-a-week church" by Dr. E. M. Conover and an interesting talk by Miss Helen Wheeler story of her experiences among the white population in the mountain sections of the south.

DISTRICT SUPT. GENTER MAKES REPORT FOR THE YEAR

Ferry, $200; Warehouse Point, $100; Westerly, $200; South Coventry, $50; Mapleville, $100; Manchester, $200; East Hartford, $100; Baltic and Versailles has paid this last year $250 more than was expected last conference. Millville and East Blackstone, have increased $100 and Stafford Springs has voted an official salary of $200 more than last year.

This makes a total increase of $3,550 and we are expecting that several other churches, will vote soon, to pay what is the apparent obligation. It is very significant that there has never been a strike among Methodist preachers for larger salary although now, the average salary of these men is less than that of the street sweepers of New York.

Progress in District Unity

The district meetings have been fine, and interest of our laymen seems to be growing rapidly. The co-operation of the pastors in making a more complete survey of the district, appears here at the conference. The board of home missions in cultivation work has been inspiring. Several of our laymen are adding to maintain a chair of religion at Storrs Agricultural college, which is in our district area. The annual meetings of the divinity schools at Yale and Hartford, are very helpful, while convocation lectures at Conn. College for Women, are delightful.

We find a splendid spirit of interdenominational fellowship abounding, and personally, we have a ruling aspiration to manifest the spirit of Jesus, revealed in his word, "I am among you as he that serveth."

District Parsonage Improvements

This is a small, old house, and was in a deplorable condition. There has been no adequate system for maintenance, so the district stewards appointed a committee, with power to raise funds and make improvements. This committee, has rendered superb service. Trees have been removed, garage and drive to the same constructed, grounds improved, porch repaired, new bath room and equipment provided, book cases made, while on the ground floor of the house, new floors were laid, paper and paint, rugs and window draperies added and a range installed. It will not be possible to make this district home as convenient or commodious as any one of 20 other parsonages in this district, but when the district stewards will have completed the task, it will provide that the discipline suggests, "a comfortable support."

The Need of a Radiant Militant Church

We pray that the Son of God will help us to find the way to break the strangle hold on the church, which throttles normal Christian life. Who set the fashion anyway, of suppressing enthusiasm in religion, ignoring the emotions as though God had not given them a legitimate place and function in life. What is the argument for phrasing great ideas and toning of the voice so that sublime themes make little more impact on personality than a dissertation on roses?

Radiant religion is contagious, spiritual enthusiasm is irresistible, initiative and daring, when led by wisdom is compelling and publicity and promotion of the church is vital if Christ is to have the hearing which he deserves. The supervision of recreation and righteous hilarity, is imperative to protect the moral deposits made during religious instruction, and the tender angels of mercy and charity, are indispensable today. It is high time for prophets of gloom, pessimism, whining complacency, self satisfaction, philosophical uncertainty, disaster, doubt get out of the way and make room for the Christians who trail the gleam of world conquest in more normal fashion.

Glistening eyes, shining faces, buoyant spirits and hearts set to do the will of God, with eagerness and chivalry of a crusade are now in demand.

The Church of Christ can hardly justify her existence, in the world, unless she is a demonstrator of divine power as well as a proclaimer of divine truth.

Without this no minister, whatever his other assets, can possibly succeed.

Brethren, let us all seek a new and large incarnation of the spirit of Christ, and not for a day, but that it may abide and possess us, as we seek to explore, inspire, enrich, ennoble, and empower every life with which we have contact.

There may be some hesitancy in such leadership, from the humanistic point of view, but such are not a doubting Christ says, "I am with you always."

And the voice of God is sounding above the rattle of wheels on the street, above the babble of the throng, above the rumble of passing trains, above the pounding of surf on the shore, above the peal of bells in the towers, above the fury of the storm, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." The silent Christ still lends up. The Holy Spirit, waits to quicken, regenerate and inspire, and transfigure life, when we prepare the way.

Let us prostrate ourselves before God and dedicate again the whole of life, without any reservation, to this greatest business in all the world.

R. C. PLAUT MEETS MANY NORWICH PEOPLE

when I say their baby is just beautiful. I am invited to their house warming and, from the way I was entertained by Jodoin and Mrs. Jodoin I can bet I'll be there for the party.

In Hollywood, at 1601 North Hobart street, is a brand new luxurious house and there lives Barney Katz and family, formerly of Raymond Hill and Summit street, Norwich. They have picked a show place for a home and I am sure they are sitting pretty. Mr. Katz and the boys took me to Riverside in their new Cadillac and we sure did not pick dandelions en route. Their daughter Sara is now Mrs. Levitoff and her child adorned the front page of the rotogravure section of the Los Angeles Times in a subject entitled "Presenting Miss New Year 1926 Edition." The child sure is a peach. Mrs. Levitoff's husband is a native of Chesterfield.

At Redlands, California, I saw Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Lee. Mrs. Lee's maiden name was "Jodoin" and she lived in Taftville. Her sister is Mrs. Charles Bolduc of Taftville and her uncle Raymond Jodoin of Baltic.

Well, I am getting ready to go on to San Francisco and I will stop at Santa Barbara for a day. After that, I'll go to Portland and Seattle. I don't think I will stop at Tacoma, as I met the people I wanted to see there at my hotel in Los Angeles and they had rooms on the same floor. Was not that a coincidence?

Tell Parmelee I visited with his brothers and wife and they are just fine. The McHales are fine, too, and they told me to tell Jim that the avenue was being paved.

Give my regards to all and write. My next address will be Hotel Kahler Rochester Minnesota.

I am sincerely,

PAINT PICTURE OF GLOOM UNDER THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Leaders of Organized Labor, Representing 4,000,000 Men, Beseech Amendment of the Volstead Act so as to End Present 'Intolerable' Conditions Under Statutory Prohibition—Labor Officials Were Unanimous in the Opinion That Legalizing Light Wines and Beer Would Lead to Improvement in General Law Enforcement Conditions—Wets Have Eleven Hours Remaining in Which to Present Their Arguments.

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP)— Organized labor descended upon the senate prohibition committee today with a demand for legalized beer.

Called to the stand by the wets, almost only half through the presentation of their case, officials of the American Federation of Labor and affiliated organizations declared the working men for whom they spoke wanted the Volstead act amended so as to end present "intolerable" conditions under statutory prohibition.

Speaking for William Green, president of the federation, William Roberts challenged the drys to join in a referendum for a referendum on the subject. He expressed the belief that those who oppose light wines and beer realize that a referendum would declare in favor of the modification of the Volstead act.

"If this were not true why do they fear a referendum so strenuously?" he asked.

The question of what is known as the conclusions raised by the wets will be answered from the drys when they begin the presentation of their case next week. It appears now that the wets will not conclude before the middle of the week as they still have seven hours of the time remaining under the agreement reached by the committee.

Besides Mr. Roberts, the labor officials testifying today were William Mahoney, president of the Building Trades union; Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's union; James O'Connell, president of the Metal Trade Workers association; John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor and Henry F. Hilfers, secretary of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor.

Each one they painted a gloomy picture of the situation under Volstead prohibition, with workmen and others brewing terrible concoctions in their homes in an effort to obtain beer which it was declared they wanted. Disrespect for enforcement in Ohio and other places and a nation-wide disregard for the law also were emphasized.

Labor officials were unanimous in their opinion that the legalizing of light wines and beer would remove home brewing and the demand for the stuff bootleggers now peddle as well as make for improvement in general law enforcement conditions.

Reformers generally came in for a sharp assault. Mr. Roberts asserting that the defenders of the Volstead act apparently prefer to see the people of America affected by vicious concoctions of liquor rather than make this a temperance country by legalizing the manufacture of light beers."

Mr. Furuseth in scoring "reformers" declared that history had demonstrated that morals could not be forced into the people, while Mr. Hilfers said that methods used, such as the use of women as "lures" in seeking violations of the dry laws, had brought "the anti-saloon league and the Volstead act into disrepute."

Interesting personal observations on the temperament of the country they made in connection with their official duties Roberts and O'Connell declared prohibition was the one topic of which persons in all walks of life were interested and they asserted that a demand for modification of the law was increasing.

Mr. Roberts declared that the "preponderance of those opposed to the Volstead act is a stable, solid movement."

"What the people want is a chance to vote on the issue and there is no doubt of the result," he added.

Other labor officials declared against the return of the saloon. O'Connell and Furuseth particularly condemned prohibition, the former saying that it was a "general misunderstanding as to organized labor's attitude."

Further conditions in New Jersey, Hilfers said that where there used to be a saloon on every corner, as the saying was, "now there is a speak or distillery in every home." Instead of community drinking, where one spoke to a friend when he or she ordered another drink, the disorder distributed bootleg product, he said.

Another point on which the labor men appeared to be unanimous was that the present law could not be enforced. They contended that the urban appetite for intoxicants would not be curbed and O'Connell declared that the federal government could not collect enough money you spend for the additional laws that would be necessary to enforce the present law officials on hand could not be heard in the two hours remaining today and some of those who did not get on the stand may be called later. Tomorrow the wets will call former officials in Canada to describe the operations of the "Quebec plan" of government control of the manufacture and distribution of liquor.

At the conclusion of the fifth day of the hearings, Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, a leader in the wet movement, issued a formal statement asserting that the contention that the wets had made "that prohibition was unenforceable and thus a failure has been clearly and definitely established."

"If the opposition gets anywhere it must refute these facts and not by the past defend the law by exception or evasion. The country is today well enlightened and facts alone will be considered."

SEN. ANDREWS TO SEEK POWER FROM CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, will ask congress to give the treasury authority to refuse to renew alcohol withdrawal permits.

The federal court of appeals in New York has ruled that this practice is illegal under present statutes. General Andrews told the senate liquor committee recently that the decision was a severe blow to the campaign against diversion of alcohol.

If the decision stands, 213 permits revoked since the first of the year may have to be restored.

General Andrews conferred today with Attorney General Sargent relative to New York enforcement conditions, in an attempt to establish machinery which he believes necessary to bring about an improvement in conditions there.

WOULD MAKE PROHIBITION LEADING POLITICAL ISSUE

NEW YORK, April 9—(AP)—Support of the anti-saloon league in its efforts to elect only "dry" candidates to national and state offices and use of the "big stick" on "wet" incumbents was urged on today by the Laymen's association of the New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The organization which has some 50,000 members voted to appoint a committee of 100 which shall cooperate with similar committees of other conferences and religious bodies in the coming campaign, asserting that the Laymen's association does not intend to "surrender the victory of the 18th amendment without a fight."

Explaining the "big stick" the resolution says "since this present legislature persists in turning down enforcement measures, we must go into certain districts and set to work the machinery for sending the right type of men to Albany, even though we have to organize the smallest precincts."

The only claim that Governor Alfred E. Smith has to national distinction is "his shameless and open stand as a wet," the resolution said. "There is no hope for prohibition enforcement from a democratic party in this state and there is no hope from the republican either. The only distinction between U. S. Senator Wadsworth and Governor Smith is that the governor has the courage to be brutally frank about it."

SENATE RATIFIED THE RUM TREATY WITH CUBA

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—The rum treaty between the United States and Cuba, negotiated last month, was ratified today by the senate. It is similar to conventions with great Britain and a number of other countries.

FELL FROM WINDOW LEDGE OF 19th FLOOR OF HOTEL

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Leo J. Ainsworth, Cincinnati radio manufacturer who plunged to his death from a narrow ledge on the 19th floor of the Morrison hotel where he had taken refuge from a fire in his room, either fell or jumped from the window, a coroner's jury investigating his death decided tonight.

Literally clinging to life by his fingertips, Ainsworth lost his battle last night after hanging to the ledge 300 feet above the street for nearly five minutes while horrified theatre crowds watched his struggle and the efforts of people in adjoining rooms to rescue him.

It is believed Ainsworth fell asleep while smoking and awakened dazed to find the room in flames, making a dash for the window instead of the door. Rescuers making frantic attempts to reach Ainsworth as he clung to the narrow ledge, heard him murmur faintly, "Tell my wife and child . . ." then with a shriek he loosed his hold and plunged to the street.

STEPS TAKEN TO END WARFARE IN MOROCCO

PRIS, April 9—(AP)—Definite steps to bring peace to Morocco were taken today, when French and Spanish officials decided to invite representatives of the Riffian tribesmen to meet with Franco-Spanish delegates April 15 at the town of Oudjda, near the Moroccan-Algerian frontier.

It was learned officially that the first item on the agenda will be the conditions for an armistice.

After several conversations between the French and Spanish officials it was decided to invite the Riffian tribes to have independent delegates with the same standing as those of Abd-el-Krim, leader of the revolting tribesmen. The decision to invite the tribes to send their own delegates is regarded here as a measure to weaken any opposition to reasonable terms that may be offered to Abd-el-Krim.

The French representatives at the peace conference who were chosen today will be General Simon, an experienced colonial campaigner, and Henri-Ponsot, assistant director of African affairs at the foreign office.

Lopez Bolivas, director of the Moroccan section in the Spanish delegates will confer here before proceeding to Oudjda.

The Riffian delegation will be made up of Si Mohammed Azerkane, Riffian foreign minister and Si Ahmed Cheddi and Si Mohammed Hitui, designated by the tribes.

"LIFER" ESCAPED FROM NEW JERSEY STATE PRISON

TRENTON N. J., April 9.—(AP)—Making use of the same army truck which permitted "Peg Leg" Jack Gordon to scale the prison rascal wall on Sunday, Richard Hammock, a life termer, escaped today from the state prison. It was his second getaway from the institution.

Hammock, who was employed in the prison tailor shop slipped from a line of 40 or 50 men who were being taken back to the prison wings shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is believed that he got into the prison cellar, and made his way into the prison yard. Two bars were found broken from one of the cellar windows.

In the yard he went to the section where a new auto tag shop is being erected. There he had two long boards nailed together and fixed up with cleats. With these he was able to reach the top of the 32 foot wall, and he dropped to the other side into the arsenal yard.

As he ran through the yard five shots were fired at him by Deputy Ernest Ristow, in one of the towers, but apparently none found its mark.

Hammock ran to the army truck, which in spite of Gordon's escape Sunday was still standing near the 15-foot wall, and climbed to the top. He dropped into Cass street, leaped on the running board of an automobile and disappeared in the direction of the Delaware river bridge.

"DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS" PRESENTED IN COURT ROOM

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(AP)—"Desire Under the Elms," played to a court room here today in which the S. R. O. sign would have been appropriate.

Twenty six members of the cast are on trial on the charge that they took part in an immoral production.

Nine women and three men are on the jury which must listen to the play "word by word and line by line" according to the announcement of defense attorneys.

The defense today, casting about for parallel circumstances in an effort to prove that "Desire, etc.", is fundamentally sound, tried to introduce the song of Solomon and then the entire Bible in evidence, but the court ruled otherwise.

A police officer and a stage electrician went through a fine tooth-combing at the hands of defense counsel as to the merits and morals of some of Shakespeare's and Ibsen's works until finally the police officer, Sergeant Sweetman, exclaimed:

"Policemen don't use their mental faculties while on duty."

Predictions were freely made that the play will have at least a week's run in Judge William Frederickson's department of the municipal court.

TO START SECOND ALASKAN TRIP TODAY IN MONOPLANE

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 9.—(AP)—Captain George H. Wilkins will hop off tomorrow in the monoplane Alaskan on his second trip to Point Barrow. The North American newspaper alliance reported tonight, however, that the flight would not be an attempt to drop food to the overland supply division of the undertaking.

Alexander Malcolm Smith, in charge of that division which is now 120 miles south of the mouth of the Colville river, had reported he would have to kill dogs drawing his supply sleds if additional sustenance for the huskies was not obtained. The overland party is pushing northward to Jones Island, where they expect to obtain food.

The weather was clear here today, after a slight snow flurry yesterday. Captain Wilkins pronounced flying conditions ideal. The Alaskan has been thoroughly overhauled, and the engines pronounced in good shape.

$5,000,000 SUIT AGAINST SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO.

TRENTON, N. J., April 9—(AP)—Suit for approximately $5,000,000 damages, alleging breach of contract, was filed against Sears, Roebuck and company by the Murray Rubber Company in United States district court today. The Murray company manufactures tires for the mail order houses.

18 PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM TENNESSEE PENITENTIARY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 9.—(AP)—Eighteen prisoners in the Tennessee penitentiary tonight overpowered guards and escaped from the prison. The convicts commandeered a street car at the end of the West Nashville line, and escaped from their pursurers.

Senate to Vote on Iowa Contest Monday

Senator Bingham Stands for State Rights in Settling the Controversy.

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP)—The Iowa senatorial contest will be settled Monday when the senate votes under an unanimous consent agreement, reached late today. The agreement calls for the limitation of debate after 3 o'clock Monday to 15 minutes for each speaker and a roll call promptly at 5 o'clock.

The vote will decided whether Senator Brookhart, insurgent, republican, will retain his seat or be forced to step out in favor of Daniel F. Steck, his democratic opponent at the polls in 1924.

The outcome will have an important bearing on the political situation in Iowa as Senator Brookhart has indicated he will become a candidate in the primary against Senator Cummins, republican, who is running for renomination. If he is unseated, if Steck is seated, the democrats plan to wage a bitter fight against the republican nominee in the hope of getting another democratic senator for Iowa, which has not had two democratic senators since statehood.

As the senate was reaching an agreement for a vote Monday, the white house sought to quiet rumors that President Coolidge had expressed a preference for Steck over Brookhart, by denying that the president had any opinion in the case.

The president was represented as having no official information on the points at issue or any choice between the two contestants. He takes the position that since the constitution delegates the senate as sole judge of its membership, the executive has no authority in such matters.

Debate which started last Monday continued unabated today with Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, carrying the burden of Brookhart's defense. A large share of his time was consumed in answering opposing senators, who sought to puncture his argument by breaking in with questions.

Taking up the issue point by point, the Montana senator argued that from any angle the case was approached, Brookhart was elected. He stressed the importance of abiding by the Iowa election laws, which he declared gave Brookhart 1334 more votes than allowed by the senate elections committee, a majority of whom recommended the seating of Steck.

Senator Goff, republican, West Virginia, probably will be the next to argue for the seating of Steck while Senator Borah republican, Idaho, will seek to align doubtful senators into the Brookhart fold.

BINGHAM FOR STATE'S RIGHT IN BROOKHART CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, April 9—In his speech in the senate favoring the seating of Senator Brookhart, Senator Bingham sounded the praises of Connecticut in its stout determination to preserve states rights. He referred to Connecticut's refusal to subscribe to the 18th and 19th Constitutional amendments, and said Connecticut stood for her states rights even when practically every state in the Union yielded to changes by amendment. He stated that he believed the state of Iowa had the same right to decide on the election of her senators and protested against the report of the committee as being against the right of a state to make its own election laws. Mr. Bingham moved the resolution to unseat Brookhart be referred back to the committee on elections for reconsideration. "The safety of our nation" said Bingham, "depends on maintaining the strength of our state institutions and upholding the responsibility of state government." Mr. Bingham again referred to the splendid stand Connecticut never failed to take along that line.

OIL TANKER BURNING BELOW NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, April 9.—Grounded in the Mississippi river about 45 miles below New Orleans, the Dutch tanker Silvanus, which was rocked by explosions last night after it collided with the Standard Oil tank steamer Thomas H. Wheeler, tonight was still burning, seamen of several tugs continued to fight the flames which are believed to have caused the death of 28 sailors.

While circumstances surrounding this river tragedy were being probed by federal and steamship officials, searchers were seeking the bodies of five men officially missing since a series of explosions occurred here yesterday aboard the O. T. Waring, another Standard Oil tanker. Adolph M. Johnson, of New Orleans, an electrician, died in a hospital here tonight of injuries received in this disaster. One man injured aboard the O. T. Waring remained in a critical condition tonight and 44 others were suffering from injuries.

Damage caused by the series of the river disasters is conservatively estimated at $3,000,000. About two thirds of this amount probably will be borne by the owners of the Silvanus.

Newspaper Ethics Topic of Discussion

At Yesterday's Session of the Pan-American Congress of Journalists.

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP)—Criticisms of some "irresponsible" European correspondents of American newspapers who "deal with international affairs like they deal with a prize fight," was made by John Fahey, publisher of the Worcester Mass., Evening Post in discussing newspaper ethics at today's session of the Pan-American congress of journalists.

Pointing out that the service rendered to North American newspapers from Europe by "responsibe piress associations has been excellent," Mr. Fahey asserted that the writings "of an undue proportion of correspondents" abroad "has been irresponsible, sensational and superficial in extreme." Many of these special correspondents, he said, "have in their hands responsibilities for which they have not the training nor background to assume."

Too many of them, he added, "have devoted themselves to striving for first page stories when none existed, and

Why Americans Excel.

The genius of America is restless. It is always striving to master new problems; and when new problems are solved, it advances to others. It is never satisfied. For that reason we are constantly moving forward into new fields of discovery—insatiable, always demanding something newer, something better, something different.

Nothing demonstrates this more remarkably than the advertisements you read. They cover the entire range of human requirements—from the absolute necessities of life to the most refined luxuries. Yet they are constantly changing. This continual change means fresh material, fresh ideas, a stimulus to new endeavor.

The moment you cease to find interest in the advertisements of the offerings of industry, of commerce, of art—that moment you will begin to retrogress, and the world will slip away from you.

Reading The Bulletin's advertisements is looking forward.

SIX BIDS RECEIVED FOR LEASE OF MUSCLE SHOALS

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Six bids for the lease of Muscle Shoals have been received and two more are expected tomorrow when the congressional committee will close its doors against further offers.

W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid company, spent an hour in conference with the committee today and submitted a definite proposal. Thomas W. Martin, president of the Alabama Power company, also met with the committee but withheld his bid until tomorrow, when the Union Carbide company also is expected to come forward with an offer.

Just before the meeting ended, a messenger arrived with a bid from Frederick T. Hepburn, an engineer associated with New York capitalists. Other offers on hand include those of Elon H. Hooker of New York, the American Nitrogen Products company, J. E. Levering, a Washington engineer; and a Shreveport, Louisinia, bidder.

manufacturing suspicions out of half truths when any calm examination of the facts would prove the falsity of their statements.'

Emphasizing that he had "a profound respect for the careful work of a limited number of experienced special correspondents," Mr. Fahey declared that abroad "there are too many newspaper men who are dealing with the great affairs of nations and peoples with a carelessness and abandon that would never be permitted by their editors in work under closer supervision."

The publisher led the discussion after the topic of newspaper ethics had been introduced by Senor Juan Jose Tablada, of El Universal, Mexico City. The business session preceded another round of social affairs and eight seeing for the journalists, coming from this country and 20 southern republics.

Secretary Hoover was host to the visitors at luncheon at the bureau of standards, which they inspected, and later they placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. A cavalry drill was arranged for the newspaper men at Fort Myer and tonight they were guests at dinner of the chamber of commerce of the United States, being addressed by its President, John W. O'Leary.

Senor Tablada declared the newspapers have the "supreme function and indisputable privilege of being the disseminators par excellence of human thought," and that this supremacy "cannot be contested by recent inventions such as the motion picture and the radio, which need rather the newspaper to assure their efficacy."

Asserting that the newspaper derives its chief force and authority from its freedom and from ethics by which it is guided, the speaker added that the paper which puts "itself at the service of interests which are not directly related to the public interest and the welfare of society loses its quality and falls in proportion as it departs from this ideal."

Regret that the great discoveries of science generally "do not make big headlines" was expressed to the newspaper men by Secretary Hoover. He remarked that little space had been given in the press to the discovery of radio activity or of the principle of electrical induction, both of which had contributed more to the progress of civilization than to any other events of a century.

Growth of trade between the United States and the southern republics was pictured as "one of the most gratifying bits of progress" by Mr O'Leary at the chamber of commerce dinner. He counselled the Latin-American journalists to convey to their people "that business men in the United States have a sincere desire to know our neighbors of the American continents better—to work with them for the advancement of trade and understanding so that the future progress of our peoples may be the progress of peace and prosperity."

5,000,000 BARRELS OF OIL WERE CONSUMED BY FIRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 9—The greatest oil fire at the Union Oil Co., tank farm in San Luis Obispo, 200 miles north of here, was a dying monster tonight, while on the same company's storage area at Brea, 20 miles south of Los Angeles, the second blaze oil blaze still was a seething menace to that settlement.

Five of the flaming reservoirs at San Luis Obispo, where lightning started the blaze Wednesday, had virtually burned out today, one was still active, a dozen smaller surface tanks had burned out or were losing their fury and six or seven others of this size remained intact.

Revised estimates of oil loss here placed the aggregate at approximately 5,000,000 barrels, valued at about $7,000,000. The equipment loss was not estimated. The death list stood at two, A. H. and W. F. Seeber, father and son respectively.

At Brea, three reservoirs of a total capacity of 2,500,000 barrels still burned tonight, while the overflow from these, also fire, had crept to within an eighth of a mile of the western edge of the town. Fire fighters believed that with a continuance of the favorable wind there would be no danger to the town itself, which also is protected by a 20 acre orange orchard and a ravine between the burning oil and the outskirts of the settlement.

ACTION DEFERRED ON THE $85,000,000 AVIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP)—A barrage of amendments to the Butler bill for a five year naval aviation development program today forced the vote on the bill to go over to Monday.

The measure which provided for an $85,000,000 five year program to provide 1,000 airplanes and two dirigibles each of three times the capacity of the wrecked Shenandoah, was assailed on the floor as precluding any possibility during the five years of obtaining a unified air service. The contention was first made by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, and was concurred in by Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, who later withdrew his opposition after Chairman Butler of the naval affairs committee, said that it would add, rather than defeat, such amendation.

Chairman Butler, author of the bill received an ovation which lasted several minutes when Representation Vinson, democrat, Ga., paid him tribute as due first credit for outlining the development program.

NO THREAT IN VISIT OF MUSSOLININ TO AFRICA

ROME, April 9—(AP)—Premier Mussolini was steaming across the Mediterranean today for Tripoli, last stop to the care of the new fascist officerate, but before sailing he left a personally written message with officials of the foreign office explaining to reassure foreign powers that his dramatically heralded visit to Africa involves no threat to the interests of other countries.

"My voyage to Libya contains no menace," the Italian dictator wrote, as set forth in a statement made by officials today to a special correspondent of the Associated Press, "in spite of the armament presented by our warships, my voyage is merely a matter of prestige. We wish to concentrate attention on our colonies, to make them better known, better appreciated and better developed. But I refer only to the colonies we possess."

PROFESSIONAL FASTER CHARGED WITH FRAUD

LEIPSIC, Germany, April 9.—(AP)—Harry Nelson, a professional faster, with his manager, was arrested today on the charge that his exhibition of fasting at the Chrystal Palace was a fraud. Police asserted that Nelson, who was represented to have been fasting continuously since March 9th was being fed from outside his cage through a rubber tube with mixtures of soups and malt. Nelson has been removed to a hospital.

CONDITION OF LUTHER BURBANK IS CRITICAL

SANTA ROSA, Cal., April 9—(AP)—The condition of Luther Burbank, noted horticulturist, became critical tonight.

The patient was suffering extremely from weakness and exhaustion, it was announced in a bulletin issued by Dr. Joseph Shaw, the attending physician.

Dr. J. Wilson Shields, of San Francisco, is en route here.

55,000 BARREL OIL TANK STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

LULING, Texas, April 9 (AP)—Lightning struck a 55,000 barrel oil tank on the Magnolia tank farm near here today and set it afire. Fire holes were shot into the tank with small cannon late today and fire walls were being thrown up to prevent the flames from reaching nearby tanks.

The young man was a son of Frank L. Hilton, vice president of the Bank of Manhattan Company. At the time of the suicide he was at the Madison Avenue branch of the institution, of which he was the manager only three blocks from the scene of his son's death. The banker immediately went to his home in Jackson Ave., N. J., where his son had lived with him, and refused to be interviewed.

During the past Christmas holidays the engagement of young Hilton and Miss Mary Mayell of Bethelehem, Pa., was announced at an elaborate social function given in honor of the couple by Mrs. Hilton. No date had been set for the wedding.

Hilton was graduated in 1923 from Williams college where he was prominent in campus activities. He was a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity, editor of the Purple Cow, was on the staff of the Williams Record and was a member of the musical clubs.

The death was at first reported to have been accidental but it was soon positively proven to have been a suicide and was so recorded by police. A statement issued immediately after the tragedy by young Hilton's employer announced that the banker's son had been in poor health for several days and of late believed he had become dizzy and [illegible] after going to the window for [illegible] air.

STILL INVESTIGATING POISONING OF CATTLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 9—As told on The Bulletin's telegraph page Friday, repeated deaths in a herd of cows on the farm owned by Louis Ellenburg in Mansfield have led to a state police investigation and the discovery that a mixture of grain and Paris green had been fed the animals by some person as yet unidentified. Mr. Ellenburg spends his winters in New York city and the farm has been in charge of his hired man, Max Mickwaltz. The latter speaks but very little English and when he interests I have made with him [illegible] in attempting to learn anything of the matter from him, one would think that six weeks ago A second died very recently and two more were found dead Monday, one in the pasture and another in the barn floor. DANIELSON

FIGHT ON KILLINGLY FARM—PETER CHARRON CLUBBED

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 9—Charged with assault with intent to kill, Manzie Kamillian, about 60, will be presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Saturday.

Peter Charron, Putnam, regained consciousness at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Friday morning for the first time, after a battering he is alleged to have received at the hands of Kamillian Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock at the Kamillian farm in the northern section of Killingly near the Putnam line.

It will be charged in court Saturday that Kamillian beat Charron into unconsciousness by repeatedly striking him over the head with a heavy club and that he continued to strike him after Charron had been rendered helpless.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill, who is also counsel for Windham county, said Friday afternoon that Charron was on the danger list at the hospital and that the outcome of his injuries is very much in doubt. Charron may have a fractured skull. Mr. Bill said that the injured man is in such serious condition during which time it was impossible to question him as to the assault and the [illegible] Kamillian is charged with [illegible] Mr. Bill said Friday that he understands one of these men dragged Kamillian [illegible] Charron as the latter lay unconscious from the blows given, the police charge. Information is that the men at the Kamillian place had been drinking cider prior to the assault that resulted in the grievous injury of Charron.

Kamillian was locked up here Friday in default of $2,000 bonds required for his release. He was conducted to State Officer Nash of the Danielson barracks.

Kamillian will be fingerprinted and put on [illegible] today. If proof of cause is found for holding him for case will be continued until such time as the extent and seriousness of Charron's injuries can be determined, or until his death occurs, that being regarded on Friday as a possibility.

Attorney Bill did not question Kamillian relative to the affair.

Good seats available for "Old Lady 31, Orpheum theatre, 8.20. Adv. 14.—adv.

From Whitinsville, Mass., comes the information that the police department of the town of Northbridge is to number 70 men, including all the specials, appointments now being made by the selectmen of that town. This becomes of local interest because Former State Officer Merrill Keith of Danielson is now chief of police of Northbridge.

Another crowd enjoyed the features of the American Legion's grand carnival at the state armory Friday evening. In addition to all the interest aroused about the various booths there was vaudeville and dancing to add to the zest of the evening's pleasure.

Friday of next week has been set as the date for holding county oratorical contests in Danielson. The contestants will represent Killingly, Putnam, Plainfield and Windham high schools and Woodstock academy. The subjects will deal with the constitution and the influence of various outstanding national figures in framing or interpreting it.

Walter I. Chase is the newly elected captain of the Captain Put Engine company of the fire department, succeeding Captain C. A. Hamilton, recently advanced to be assistant chief engineer, he succeeding James Garfield, resigned. The other newly elected officers and committees of the Captain Put company are: Frederick O. Armington, first lieutenant; Edward Maher, second lieutenant; secretary-treasurer, W. Penner Woodward; trustees, Winthrop E. Short, Arthur W. Logee, Charles S. Francis; first pipeman, Gurdon E. Withey, Jr.; second pipeman, Joseph Carsetad, Everett W. Albro; third pipeman, Omer J. LaBarre, Joseph Mozenzy; hydrantman, W. Lester Woodward, Herbert E. Hopkins; social committee, F. O. Armington, W. L. Scott, Joseph Celotti; entertainment committee, Charles A. Lowry, A. J. Bernier, W. E. Short.

There will be no decision this week as to this town adopting a daylight saving schedule. A member of a committee of the chamber of commerce that is interviewing various interests about the matter said Friday afternoon that the canvass is not nearly completed. Representatives of the manufacturing concerns in Danielson, Goodyear, Dayville, Attawaugan, Elmville and East Killingly are to be interviewed about the proposal. The subject also will be taken up with the school heads, churches and business men. With all opinions at hand, a decision may be looked for. Uniformity is the thing desired, whether it be obtained by adhering to standard time or by making the change. The town does not want a dual system of time keeping, although this cannot be guaranteed in any case.

Mrs. A. C. Greene will have the members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Clinton Pellett will be the leader when the W. C. T. U. meets Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. J. Craig.

Mrs. S. B. Hunphrey will have the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church at her home for a meeting Wednesday.

Friday afternoon, an Easter sale was conducted in St. Alban's church house by St. Alban's Sewing society. A white seagull is making its home in the reservoir section near East Killingly.

There is a sufficient number of important matters on the call for the annual borough meeting the coming week to warrant a large attendance of voters.

Henry G. Dubois of Lowell is spending the week end with friends in Danielson. He formerly lived in town.

Warmer weather and soaring enthusiasm for baseball on Friday, when two of the scheduled sandlot teams of boys were getting practice.

George DeForest has organized a baseball team to represent Danielson, the schedule of the season opening a week from Sunday.

Tomorrow, Conference Sunday, the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church will be represented at South Manchester.

Having served the Methodist church as organist for 35 years, Mrs. S. H. Perry has resigned. Members of the church choir also have resigned and a volunteer choir of young people is to be formed.

A Well Baby conference is scheduled to be held in the town hall building next Tuesday afternoon.

RED CROSS NURSING CALLS NUMEROUS THIS SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 9.—During the past two months the people of Putnam have been showing their appreciation of the Red Cross Nursing service as is shown by the following report presented by the nurse, Mrs. Torrey, at the regular monthly meeting of the nursing committee:

Patients under care on March 1, 11; new patients admitted during March, 29; total patients under care during March, 37; total patients discharged, 27; total patients under care on April 1, 20; nursing visits, 200; advisory visits, 30; social service, 1. Total visits 230.

Cases of influenza have increased the amount of work to a great extent. The nurse cares for the Metropolitan insurance and the John Hancock policy holders, also many of the patients under insurance cases.

Two classes in home hygiene have been organized and are proving popular and are well attended. Through the co-operation of social agencies needy families have been supplied with food, clothing and medical supplies.

The growth of the maternity work is a sure indication that the people are coming more and more to realize the importance of care before and after confinement, while the value of nursing service at the time of an epidemic can scarcely be overestimated.

TEACHERS ARE REAPPOINTED FOR THE NEXT SCHOOL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 9.—The following teachers in the public schools have been reappointed for the term of 1926-27, at the same salary, and were ordered to notify some teachers, not on as prescribed by the schedule of the town school committee, and one an increase of $100 a year for Mr. Richards:

High school—Edwin L. Roberts, principal, salary, $3,300; Teachers, Addie H. Keith, $1,900; Janet S. Fraser, $1,300; Sarah C. Tackaberry, $1,500; Irene R. Bernier, $1,450; O. L. Smith, $2,250; Elizabeth Smith, $1,400; Marjorie McGilleudy, $1,150; Sara D. King.

Eighth grade—Edith M. Kerr, $1,350; Winifred S. Lufty, $1,350.

Israle Putnam school—J. V. Merrill, principal, $1,850. Teachers, Mrs. J. V. Merrill, $1,250; M. Etta Whiting, $1,250; Carrie B. Gascoigne, $1,250; Emma J. Dutton, $1,250; Sara E. Kerr, $1,200; Ethel D. Strahan, $1,250; Natalie B. Dion, $1,300; Lucy M. Farrows, $1,250; Gertrude C. Warner, $1,250; Ruth Morrison, $1,200; Beatrice W. Wilbur, $1,250.

Smith Street school—Ella I. Ballard, principal, $1,400; Gladys L. Packard, $1,100; Edith Cox, $1,250.

Sawyer District—Bertha O. White, principal, $1,300; Mary D. Wilbur, $1,250; Alice Cronin, $950.

East Putnam—Clara B. Gibson, $900.

Putnam Heights—Ruby P. Davison, $1,000.

Other school officials are: Viola Snyder, school nurse, $1,525; Annie Nash, music supervisor, $1,250; G. T. Lamarche, school physician, $900; A. C. Perelli, school dentist, $800; Louis Battey, Americanization officer, $400; Louis Battey, attendance officer, $250.

Janitors—Henry Duhamel, high school, $1,600; Frank Baker, Israel Putnam school, $1,050; John Lucier, Smith street school, $900; Louise Lawton, Putnam Heights, $50; A. Wilson, East Putnam, $80.

Clerk superintendent's office, $225; transportation for superintendent, $600; Mrs. T. Phillips, manager high school, $500.

The report of the superintendent further sets forth:

The only changes in the teachers as follows: Owing to the resignation of Miss Grace Edick at the Smith Street school, Miss Edith Fox is recommended for that position. Mrs. Gladys L. Packard, who has been filling out the remainder of the year for Miss Mabel Lee, resigned, is recommended as a regular teacher. I further recommend that a teacher be not assigned to grades and subjects at this time. The grand total for teachers and other employes will be slightly less next year than it has been this year. This will be because there will be one less teacher at the Sawyer school owing to th fact that there are fewer children.

Transportation: "In accordance with your request at the last meeting I have investigated the matter of transportation, for certain children from the River road to Putnam. I recommend that Oscar Leavestrom be engaged to transport five children from the River road, all of whom live over one and a half miles from a school house, to the Israel Putnam school, that he be paid $6.a week for the remainder of the school year and that liability insurance be taken out covering the property goods.

"The total registration in the evening school to date has been 97. The average attendance for the past month has been 30. During March five new pupils were added to the Americanization department and five to the commercial department. Nearly all of the class in bookkeeping are going to complete a full years' course as given in the high school in that subject. Twenty pupils in the commercial department have petitioned for an extension of six sessions. I have granted this extension, subject to the review of the board. Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent.

George Nelson Lyon, 83, one of the oldest residents of the town of Woodstock, died at his home in North Woodstock from a malady from which he has been a sufferer for many months. He celebrated his 83rd birthday February 25th. He was a member of one of Woodstock's oldest families and traced his lineage to Sir Roger de Leonne, who was taken back to England in 1066 and who for faithful service was granted certain lands in that country.

Mr Lyon in early life was a carpenter and followed that occupation for some years, but afterward settled in his native town and bought a large farm. He made a specialty of Devonshire cattle and his large exhibits of oxen, steers and cows was a familiar sight at the fairs of the surrounding towns for years. Funeral services at the home were private and burial was in the Harlow cemetery.

The Friendly Indians under the leadership of James Gifford are now in two groups. All of the boys over 12 are now members of "The Pioneers" under the leadership of Perry Barnet. The boys under 12 remain under the leadership of James Gifford who has been active in Y. M. C. A. work for the last four years.

The officers of the Friendly Indians for the coming year are: Chief, Lewis Davison; tom beater, Herbert Johnson; Indian runner, Kenneth Payne; wampum bearer, Milton Payne; medicine man, Leslie Woodis. A social meeting was held at the home of James Gifford Friday night.

ONE MAN IN HOSPITAL, COMPANIONS HELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 9.—As a result of a fight between four or five residents of Killingly, all of them more or less intoxicated, Peter Charron, one of the participants is at the Day Kimball hospital here with a fractured skull. Three of the others, Nelson Bochaine, M. Migneault and Menzie Kamilian, are locked up at the Putnam police station, where they will probably be held until it is determined if Charron's injuries prove fatal. As the fight occurred in Killingly, the men in any event will probably be turned over to the authorities of that town. The men appeared in Putnam inquiring for a doctor, as they said that one of their number had been injured. After they were directed to the office of a physician, he found Charron in a semi-unconscious condition and told his companions to take the man to the hospital. Capt. Jarvis' suspicions were aroused and after learning of the man's serious condition he had the others taken into custody.

METHODISTS AT CONFERENCE HEAR SPEAKERS PRAISE PROHIBITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 9—The New England Southern conference of the Methodist churches opened this morning with devotional exercises including an address by Bishop Richardson. It being reported that Rev. David Acquarone, pastor of the First Italian church, Providence, is detained by illness, a letter of sympathy was ordered sent to him.

Rev. John H. Buckey presented an extended report of the commission in charge of raising the $150,000 endowment to add to the conference fund for the retired ministers of the conference. Rev. John S. Biddeford, treasurer of this commission, reported in detail the funds already received and disbursed.

Rev. Dr. E. C. Bass announced the reception of a gift from Mrs. Marion Kirkly Pearson, daughter of the late Rev. William Kirkly, for many years a prominent member of this conference who died in 1911. She presents $550 to be added to the conference fund for retired ministers in memory of her father and mother.

The conference voted its endorsement to the effort soon to be made by the Deaconess home, Fall River to increase its funds.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, of Washington, D. C., was introduced and addressed the conference. In his stirring address he said some very practical things. He feared that most of the preachers had ceased to preach on temperance since about six years ago having preached a funeral sermon over John Barleycorn. He assured the audience that most of the wet propaganda was the talk of about six in the United States senate and about a dozen in the house. This minority is doing all the talking. He showed the steady advance made by his board since this part of the denominational work began several years ago.

E. L. G. Hohenthal, a former Manchester man, now engaged in reform work, was introduced. He has just returned from a trip in Europe investigating temperance conditions there. He said among other things that the movement to discredit prohibition in the United States is receiving strong financial support from men engaged in the liquor business in France and England.

R. P. Hutton, field agent for the Anti-Saloon League of Rhode Island, spoke optimistically expressing his faith that the American people will not always allow the interference with its affairs which alien lawbreakers are contributing at the present time.

Bishop Richardson added his contribution to the temperance talk. He said that news which the newspapers would be willing to publish must be extraordinary happenings. He said in a fifteen weeks tour in Europe he saw 25 drunken people among whom were 2 women. He decided to count the drunks he found in America during an itinerary of similar length. In a trip covering New York, the Atlantic seaboard, Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee, North Carolina, Chicago, New York again, Ohio, Indiana, Louisiana, Atlanta, Georgia, South Carolina, New York, Atlanta again, and Florida, 15 weeks, he saw no people that were drunk but saw one in Chicago and one in Atlanta who bore evidence of drinking. O yes, they tell us there is more drinking now than under license. Men addicted to drink, drank all they could hold in those days, what more can they do now? (Laughter). The bishop strongly urged that Christian people be alert and avoid political alliances which will allow deceptions to receive legal encouragement.

Triers of appeals were named as follows: W. I. Ward, W. M. Newton, G. G. Scrivener, J. F. Cooper, J. I. Bartholomew. Reserves, W. F. Davis and C. A. Stenhouse.

Sale of Church Buildings

Upon motion of Rev. M. E. Genter, superintendent of Norwich district, the church buildings on his district at the following places were ordered to be sold and the superintendent was authorized to make the sale. These are at Willington, Marlboro, and Eastford.

Rev. Jesse A. Martin, on the retired list, was, upon motion after favorable report from the committee on conference relations, changed to the effective relation. By a similar process the following ministers were changed from the effective relation to the retired relation each of whom was recommended with complimentary statements by his district superintendent: Rev. L. B. Fodding, Cochesett, Mass.; Rev. J. B. Aldrich, Norwich Town; Rev. F. L. Brooks, Eastham, Mass.

The following were elected as local preachers, to deacons' orders to be ordained on Sunday: Elmer G. Page, Harold W. McIlney, Kenneth H. Sansaman, J. Raymond Wonder, Alphonse M. Newell, Gordon G. Capen, and Frederico Medino.

The following as local deacons were elected to elders' orders: Edwin Winters, Frank Chamberlain, Joseph O. Bisbee was advanced to the studies of the second year. The following were advanced to the studies of the fourth year: Carlyle T. Borrton, Paul E. Johnson, William A. Milne and Frank W. Dunham.

Among the arrivals at conference on Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis L. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dunbar, Mrs. J. F. Cushing and Miss Alice Cushing of Taunton, Mass.; Mrs. Clinton E. Bromley of Brockton, Mass.; Mrs. A. M. Bruce of North Attleboro, Mass., and Mrs. W. E. Rugler of Providence.

The Laymen's association held its annual meeting at 10 a. m. in the junior room of the church.

Women's Foreign Missions.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society held its anniversary at 2:30 in the auditorium. Mrs. W. H. Thurber, the president of the conference organization, presided and the speaker was Miss Clementine Butler. Her subject was Mexico. Miss Butler's father was a missionary to India and her brother in Mexico. She has been a missionary in Mexico. Her interesting address explained the real meaning of Mexico's present drive against foreign religious teaching in their schools. The law is one which has been in existence in Mexico for many years. We may not agree with it but we must respect their right to make and enforce their own laws. They do not allow religion taught to children of the primary grade but they will allow them to attend church and sing religious hymns on Sunday. They do not allow foreigners to preach. Even our Methodist bishop cannot preach in Mexico. He can do other things. However, they are friendly if they see we are respecting their laws. There are enough things we can do for God in that country as missionary forerunners even as it is and the only thing we can do is to accommodate our methods to their laws. She said there are many evidences of real advancement as the result of Christian missionary effort among these people.

The Women's Home Missionary society held its anniversary at 3:30. Mrs. F. W. Coleman, the conference president, presided. The speaker was Rev. Dr. Charles E. Spaulding of New London, who has recently traveled in Latin America including Porto Rico. He explained several of the characteristics of the people of these countries and showed the differences in different localities which in missionary work must be considered. Mrs. Grace Bitgood of New London also gave a brief address speaking of the different projects to which the Women's Home Missionary society of this conference is attending.

At 4:30, Dr. David E. Kendall spoke on the subject, "How to Manage Church Debt." He spoke from experience and presented valuable ideas as to this problem.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Funeral services for Charles H. Learned, who died at his home late Easter afternoon after a brief illness were held at the family home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones conducted the service and prayer was offered by Rev. Mrs. Jones. A quartet, Mrs. R. L. Hahn, Mrs. G. H. Wyman, G. H. Wyman and R. E. Stearns sang Abide With Me and Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me. The active bearers were J. N. Jacobson, R. E. Searns, T. B. Wilcox and T. Arthur Barrows. The honorary bearers were A. W. Buchanan and C. E. Franklin. Burial was in the New Cemetery in the family lot. Mr. Learned had resided in this village for more than 53 years and was the oldest member of the Congregational church, which he had consistently supported with money and service. For many years he served as trustee and was a valued member, true to his convictions. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. W. Clifford Pendleton, of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

Just before the hour of the funeral of Charles H. Learned, a telegram was delivered to the son-in-law, W. Clifford Pendleton, announcing the death of his mother in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton left Thursday for Stonington, the Pendleton family home, where the funeral was to be held the last of the week.

WEST KINGSTON

The pageant held in the church here Sunday evening by the people from Shannock church, was very pleasing. The attendance was very good also.

The church financial committee met with Mrs E. P. Tucker Thursday afternoon of last week.

Both the grammar and primary teacher of the school here are ill. Mrs. Gavitt and Mrs. A. K. Webster are substituting.

T. T. Knowles who had been ill with pneumonia for several weeks, has seemed better for a few days, then suddenly grew worse and died, Tuesday afternoon. He was a young man of excellent character will liked by all. His wife died two years ago this month. He leaves his parents, a sister and brother.

Bible school will begin Sunday morning at 9:45. The reason for the change in time is as that Mr. Champney will be able to be present. He is pastor of Shannock and West Kingston churches.

The Pioneer club held a chowder supper in the church Friday evening.

The Northrup house has been sold to local parties.

It is reported that George Shantell and family are to move to a farm near Usquepaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. McElroy spent several days last week, their son and daughter-in-law in Peekskill, N. Y. They returned home Sunday afternoon.

Amos H. Kenyon of Auburn spent Saturday evening with the former's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Kenyon.

Sergeant and Mrs. Trill spent Tuesday evening in Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Belstow and daughters, and Mrs. A. K. Webster and Miss Mildred spent Sunday with relatives at Norwich Town, Conn.

Leonar Joslin and grandson, Leonard, of Exeter, were callers in this village Tuesday evening.

The road has been sanded and is in fair condition from the state road to Watson cross roads.

UNCASVILLE

Sunday services of the Methodist Episcopal church are to be conducted by Prof. Perry Howe of Worcester, Mass., on account of Rev. Charles Smith being at South Manchester for conference. The April meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union was held at the home of the president, Miss Nellie J. Starr Thursday afternoon, the main subject discussed was the membership campaign. There was reading by several members.

Oxoboxo lodge F. and A. M., met last week and Past Masters' night was observed. The presiding past master was Charles E. Ramage and the third degree was worked, the candidate being Charles J. Ramage, son of Charles E. Ramage, making the third generation of the Ramage family to join the lodge. Supper was served by the members of the Eastern Star.

Thursday evening a supper and dance was given by the Connecticut Power company for the employes. Although the weather was unfavorable there was a good attendance.

Mlle. Edmee Prettat of Waterbury is spending the week end with Mrs. Mary E. Starr, of Jerome place.

LAMPS OF OLDEN DAYS TO BE REPLACED IN VIEUX CARRE

NEW ORLEANS, April 9 (AP)—The Vieux Carre association has completed arrangements to bring lamps of other days into the lighting effects of the French Quarter of New Orleans.

The lanterns will be models of those used a century ago except that the illumination will be furnished by electricity.

Plans for the reconstruction of the old French opera house and the St. Louis hotel, destroyed by fire, also are being considered.

The association is charged with safeguarding the atmosphere of the French quarter and to protect it from possible inroads of modernism.

COMBINATION OF SEASIDE AND MOOR AT JERICHO LINKS

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 9—(AP)—Possibly no where else in the world is there a golf links with such a rare combination of seaside moor, forest and the flats and wooded hills as the Jericho Country club course just outside the harbor at Vancouver, British Columbia.

A [illegible] is rare in this Pacific outpost of the British empire, for only 40 years ago the site of the modern city was virgin forest.

Marvelous growth has caused away the firs and pines, stretched rail roads and cement highways over the endless hills, and collected a population of [illegible] persons, who have laid down this golf course among the many beautiful recreation places created by the deforestation of the peninsula.

The restful, clubhouse stands at the verge of the ocean reach, and at high tide the waters of the Pacific [illegible] the club of the beach, the "front yard" of the club is a vast expanse of sand on which the members frolic from beach line to surf in any bathing attire.

Nearby the original nine hole links was built on the shore line sloping sand, with tangled reeds and stiff seawinds for hazards, now stands a large government aviation station, an adjunct of the mighty fortress of Esquimalt across the sound on Vancouver island. To these primitive holes have been added nine others, cut out of the forest and over the hills.

The first hole is one of the old ones over the seaside fen, but the next is a combination of the shore and the forest, as the second shot carries across a creek to a green among the firs. The next fairway is an arcade of trees, with here and there a mighty stump that once was the base of a gigantic tree. Another hole of similar type and then the ascent begins.

It is a short climb of 187 yards at green is apparently 200 feet above the firs: canyon pines, but the sixth hole, 362 yards carries the player to the crest of the links. The fairway is not only a right angled dogleg, but far too, with the steep side of the hill, catching the drive in full career. Out of breath, if one makes shape to reach the hole, the second shot up the hilltop green becomes difficult, but the view afforded from this pinnacle is inspiring.

The climb also has brought the golfer to a tee where he looks down a steep grade 362 yards to the seventh green. A good drive here is a marvel at 300 yards or more. The expert can not do much better, for a ridge [illegible] shots the ball. The second shot should get home if cage is taken due to increase [illegible]

PUBLIC WHARVES

[illegible] a year [illegible] from [illegible] with [illegible] of water at the [illegible] and complains that [illegible] had him [illegible] 30 feet of water he was [illegible] only 24 with the result [illegible] boat was [illegible] bumping in [illegible].

Norwich hopes some day that it can receive larger vessels through the [illegible] and widening of the Thames [illegible] from Allyn's Point. It [illegible] during the time when the tunnel work being completed, it will [illegible] great inconvenience by water [illegible] is no anticipation of new [illegible] facilities for vessels requiring 30 feet of water.

But what would be the experience [illegible] a vessel that might [illegible] deepened [illegible] would be going [illegible] and any [illegible] harbor than the privately owned [illegible]? He would be obliged to [illegible] around and depart. There are [illegible] other than privately owned piers [illegible] there are thousands of feet [illegible] entirely unused and have [illegible] in that condition for many years. [illegible] reasons they have fallen or [illegible] falling into the river through decay and the lack of being kept up.

With the time coming when Norwich can anticipate the coming of vessels with larger cargoes, demanding deeper water at wharves and, as we hope, more wharf space it might not be a bad idea if some consideration were given to the acquisition of a public wharf for something besides rubber boats and invite a greater use of those facilities than might otherwise be the case.

To Providence it is figured that the reception the Pacific captain got will not be an asset to that harbor. The [illegible] regard to public wharfage Norwich is many times worse.

THE ENFORCEMENT PROBLEM

[illegible] from the time that the Volstead law went into effect the difficulties of enforcement have loomed large. At the beginning, before much was known about the way the law was to be enforced there was considerable support for the law, but it was more in [illegible] recognition of the [illegible] with upholding [illegible] Since then it has been [illegible] various ways what problems [illegible] enforcement authorities faced and what could be [illegible] brought about [illegible] as a result of prohibition.

Hearings this week at Washington [illegible] have had an opportunity to [illegible] what is not being done and what [illegible] be done in the way of enforcement under existing conditions and [illegible] would be required in the opinion of dry enforcement leaders in order to insure dry conditions. The wets are getting [illegible] their facts for the purpose of showing the need and advisability of modifying the Volstead [illegible].

Next week the drys will have their [illegible] when it can be expected that they will maintain that the law has never been enforced, though it ought to be, and therefore it is impossible to tell whether prohibition is a good [illegible] for the country or not. They will recite various phases of the situation and point out the tremendous [illegible] that was suddenly thrown upon the country but insist that there should be full enforcement.

When Federal Attorney Buckner of New York, who has been a hard worker in behalf of the law, points out that bootleggers have made billions and drug sets millions under prohibition, that there are not enough judges to handle the cases, that there is corruption and pollution it becomes evident that conditions in New York are far from what they should be under the law. It also indicates the sentiment of the people and the difficulties faced. When he says that it would require $75,000,000 annually and 150 judges to dry that state alone the job of drying the nation looms in its immensity. It all must be faced in connection with the enforcement of the Volstead act as it stands.

CROSSING PROTECTION

What must be regarded as a move in the right direction is the plan made by the Boston & Maine railroad for the purpose of establishing safeguards at railroad crossings. This doesn't mean that reckless drivers are going to be made to stop against their will, but certainly where such signals are established there should be no excuse for accidents in the future.

The Boston & Maine device consists of two strings of red lights arranged across the road and lighted in such a manner as to indicate that someone is waving a red light, while there is a red and white "stop" disc which moves back of the warning sign. Thus whether it is day or night those using the highway are informed that there is danger when trains are approaching and nothing further should be required by those who are at all considerate of their own lives.

While it is not at the crossings which have no gates or signals that the most of the fatalities occur, yet it is of much importance that some device should be provided at those places for the protection of the uninformed and that even those who are familiar with the fact that there is a crossing may know that a train is approaching. Especially should the hidden crossings come in for attention of this character, for even though it behooves every driver to give heed to the "Stop, Look, Listen" signs, it is only right that there should be some indication of the presence of a train.

It will always be found that there will be those who will take chances but chance taking when lights are flashing and the "stop" sign is waving is bound to put the responsibility entirely upon the shoulders of the one who disregards them. The railroad crossing is a danger that cannot be overlooked. Too many are needlessly killed at such points but those doesn't eliminate the necessity of establishing safeguards for those who are eager to abide by them. Such signals are a fine investment for a railroad.

DEPARTING FROM LENIENCY

While it is invariably claimed that we have laws enough for most all purposes, if they were properly enforced, no state legislature ever thinks so and New York is now adding to its laws for the purpose of curbing criminals.

Through experience it has been shown that too many loopholes have been left open to the criminals, too much leniency is extended and too much consideration extended when the need is for greater protection of the law abiding. Thus New York is proceeding to tighten up the situation, to make it possible to resentence if the crime is found to be more serious than at first supposed, to reduce the evil that now permits pleas of insanity when such is questionable, to eliminate unnecessary jury trials, to provide additional grounds for appeals by the people and to overcome the bail evil. Likewise legislation is being sought whereby criminals would be required to serve at least their minimum sentences.

New York is apparently trying to do away with conditions which have been shown to be detrimental to the public and favorable to the criminal. Perhaps it is aiming to get results more nearly in keeping with those which are obtained across the water where much fewer cases of crime are found, where less delay and obstruction to justice prevails and where enforcement is more prompt and more effective.

New York has certainly plenty of reason for taking different action against the criminal class. The inclination has been in the other directions so long that it takes time to check it and start it in different channels, but New York is unquestionably taking steps the effects of which others will watch very closely.

HYDROELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT

When sanction was given to the development of the tidal waterpower development at Passamaquoddy bay it was believed that Maine had turned over a new leaf and taken a different slant at conditions. There were indications that it had departed from its previously held idea of excluding all power development which was not intended for state use, and while there are those who are firmly convinced that such would be the wisest thing to do there are others who cling to the former attitude and insist that it should not be modified.

Maine's idea centers about the belief that there should be no utilization of its streams for hydroelectric plants unless the product of such stations is utilized in that state. It harbors the opinion that such would be the means of increasing the industrial development of the state.

On the other hand it is fully realized by the opponents that the waterpower is daily going to waste in great quantities, that neither industry nor Maine is getting any benefit from it and that until there is some development within the state in the uncertain future that wastage will continue to go on as it has been doing for centuries.

There's no small amount of sentiment in favor of making use of that waterpower and distributing it where there is a demand for it, with the provision that state requirements should have first call. That seems to be a reasonable attitude to take. It means no loss to Maine but it does mean the elimination of a great amount of wastage in cheap power. Maine certainly cannot lose industrially what it hasn't got and what it stands in no way of getting under present conditions.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It is not surprising that amazement reigned supreme on that historic Sunday following the crucifixion. There was something so strange and weird about the time, the place and the circumstances as to fully explain their agitation. Its contrast with the cross is so startling that the followers of Jesus were justified in being "slow to believe" that Jesus had actually risen. Let us visualize the scene as clearly as we can. At the break of day some of the women, the faithful Marys, came with the dawn of the morn with spices and ointment according to the Jewish custom to anoint the body of the Lord. It was the same in spirit and purpose as when today the loving hand and heart puts the wreath upon the mound that marks the resting place of some loved one can imagine their strange emotion when they found the stone rolled away and the sepulchre empty. It is not strange that the excited Mary should exclaim in broken accents, "What does it mean!"

It is quite easy to understand why she should flee from a tomb that seemingly had been robbed. How could there be hearts so ghoulish as to desecrate the grave of her Lord! Soon she meets some of the disciples as they aproach the sacred spot. We hear her exclaim in broken accents: "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid him!" Without a word in response they hasten to see if the facts verify the amazing statement. As Mary returns to the vacant tomb she meets the supposed caretaker and bursts out as follows: "Sir if you have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away." The stranger whom she did not recognize was Jesus. A short conversation ensued, and even then she knew him not. But one word "Mary" from the soul of Jesus was enough.

Does it occur to the reader that out side of the Bible there is no evidence of a resurrection? Nature is associated with [illegible] after death in nature [illegible] more than striking appearances of a resurrection. But a close examination will show that they are appearances only, and in no sense a real resurrection. At times nature comes provokingly near furnishing valid evidence of a real resurrection, but in every instance it turns out to be only an illusion. To all appearances the green grass now springing up is a resurrection of the old life that died last year, but we all know that it is not the old grass reappearing, but entirely new grass. Apart from divine revelation our knowledge of a resurrection would be nil.

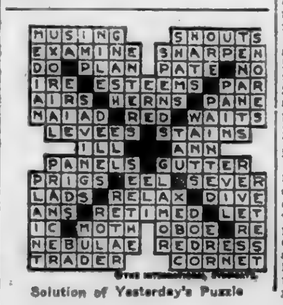
We have nothing to support the Easter celebration from the lives of men. Apart from the Christian belief in the transmigration of souls, nobody believes that the same identical person has passed through this life twice or more times. No individual has, or ever has had, the least evidence of having passed through this life before. Many people claim to have had the feeling when visiting a place for the first time that they had been there before. In this life they know positively that they had not. Now that impression may be accounted for by the law of association. Something or some things had impressed them as being identical with what they had seen before; but similarity was mistaken for identity. There is not the least shadow of evidence that of the billions of people who have inhabited this globe, that any one has been born twice and lived a second life here. Until someone is found conscious of pre-existence on the earth, the matter must remain in the domain of pure speculation. The idea has no basis in actual fact.

Does not dualism furnish an argument in support of immortality? By immortality I mean unending personal existence after death? In philosophy dualism is a view of man as constituted of two original and independent elements, as matter and spirit. They dwell together as in the human body without mingling. They work together in harmony without interblending. They are both necessary for the production of a full-orbed human being. The one is everything which the other is not. Each has its own peculiar attributes. Matter, of course, is the essence and interpretation of the body. One of the striking attributes of the body is its perishability. All human bodies pass away. "For dust thou art and into dust shalt thou return." But the spirit, we [illegible], which is its antithesis, is imperishable. "He that believeth on me shall never die." While dwelling in the body we possess an immortal nature.

The writer believes that the Christian forces of America ought to applaud and give their moral support to the stand taken by a district attorney of New York in withholding from publicity the clever plan of a gang of youngsters of that city by which they successfully pulled off a series of amazingly bold hold-ups. For this sensible stand he has been roundly abused by others who weren't denied this "hot stuff" that brings a big price. They claim that the reading public is entitled to have this thrilling headline material. But the attorney's position is unanswerable from the moral viewpoint. He claims that that plan was so feasible that it might induce other youngsters to copy it. They also were successful in getting great sums of money, which also would be an added inducement. The boys are going to get a stiff sentence, and their plan will be kept a secret.

Is fluctuation really an organic part of the life of man? At least instability seems to mark about everything he touches. This thought was brought to the writer's mind by the ups and downs (recently mostly downs) of the stock market of late. The lay mind is prone to ask this question: When business is pursuing a peaceful course, and prosperity is going along on an even keel, what sinister influence is it that throws a bomb into the stock market that hammers the prices of stocks down to new levels? Isn't it possible to eliminate the contest between "bulls" and "bears" from the domain of honest buying and selling of stocks. It must have a bad influence on the properties these stocks represent. Is there not a moral question involved? A business must be injured when the selling price of its property is forced down by the work of gamblers. Why cannot this wrong be righted?

Too many marriages are for publication only and not as a guaranty of good faith.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

CONNECTICUT'S CARE OF THE FEEBLE MINDED.

The proper care of the feebleminded is one of the most serious problems facing the state of Connecticut. It is estimated that about two per cent of the population of the United States is mentally deficient and therefore that there are aproximately 3,000 individuals in Connecticut who need care, supervision, or a special form of education. Important steps have already been taken in this direction but much remains to be done.

Connecticut was the fifth state to provide for the care and training of its feebleminded. In 1857 Dr. Henry M. Knight took a few private patients into his own home and the following year the state began sending patients to him. The demand for such care grew rapidly until in 1913 the state bought the Connecticut School for Imbeciles at Lakeville, consisting of several three-story wooden buildings on six acres of ground, located between the village and the lake. Although there were 300 children at the school there was still a large waiting list but no room for expansion. In 1915 the legislature voted to move the school to grounds adjoining the Connecticut colony for epileptics at Mansfield Depot and in 1917 the two institutions were combined under Dr Charles T. LaMoure, who had been the superintendent of the Connecticut school for imbeciles since 1914. The institution then became the Mansfield State Training school and hospital for the feebleminded and epileptic.

The institution has continued to grow until at present there are in use four fire-proof dormitories on the girls' side and three on the boys, accomodating in all about 600 children. There are separate kitchens and dining rooms for each side, a school building, a hospital with 60 beds, two nurses' homes, a laundry, power house and storehouse, including three buildings which are just being completed. As soon as the additional water supply is available these buildings will be opened and will increase the capacity by 200. It is hoped that eventually facilities for 1,200 will be provided.

At the present time there is a waiting list of 500, and new applications are being received at the rate of 14 a month. These applications are made either directly to Dr. LaMoure, the superintendent, or to Miss Mabel Mathews, chief of social service, whose office is at the state capitol in Hartford. The application is put on file and the case investigated, and when a vacancy has been found for the patient the person referring the case is notified to have the regular commitment made. It is advisable not to do this until the vacancy occurs.

For the past three years the school has had a social service department which investigates the applications and keeps a list of the most urgent cases desiring admission, so that when a vacancy occurs, the most urgent case can be selected. This department also assists in paroling patients who are ready to leave the training school, by looking into their home conditions before discharge, helping to readjust the patient to the home, helping to find some suitable work, and paying frequent visits to be sure that he or she is getting along well in the community. If conditions are not satisfactory the child is, of course, returned to the school.

What the School Does for its Children

The activities of such a school are varied. Aside from the medical care given by the superintendent and his assistant physicians, the school gives academic and vocational education and experience in social contacts, so that as many as possible can be paroled after training and live comfortably in private homes, keeping in touch with the school through its social service department.

Dr. LaMoure has recently described the training given:

"Our school department has an enrollment of one hundred children with a teaching force of nine instructors and school is conducted daily during the regular school year. The instruction consists in sense training, kindergarten, academic work, sewing, domestic science, dress making, manual training, music, dancing, gymnasium work and singing. Each year the school department presents two plays for the benefit of the whole institution and the children even make their own costumes for these plays. From the school department, boys and girls are placed in the different industrial departments and are taught the different industries, depending upon their ability. Even after leaving the school department, the boys and girls have certain periods at school in the gymnasium, music, dancing and singing classes. A choir of 18 girls sing at our Sunday service.

"During the summer, a ball game is held every Saturday afternoon. Weekly, we have a dance alternating with the movies. Sunday services are held regularly Sunday afternoon except during the summer months. All holidays are carefully observed. Many birthday parties are celebrated. All departments hold their picnics in the grove, at separate times. Many of our boys attend the Stafford fair and the nearby circuses. Our farm and gardens provide healthful work for many boys, as well as girls."

Such training is, of course, most effective among the high grade feebleminded many of whom can be made self-supporting and adaptable to the demands of every day life outside the institution. Many others of this class while not able to get along without constant supervision, are busy and happy, helping with the work of the institution, caring for younger ones, sewing, cooking, farming.

But over two-thirds of the patients at Mansfield are of the idiot or imbecile class; that is, as adults their mental age will be less than seven years. Of these, 166 will never exceed the mental age of two years. They must always have custodial care.

The Value of Special Training

Care and training at the Mansfield Training school are beneficial to the patient, the family and the community. The school can give the expert care which could hardly be expected of parents untrained in this highly specialized work. Many of the children have been given so much consideration in their homes that their native ability has not been discovered. For instance, it is not uncommon to see a child who has always had to be dressed by its mother not only learn under wise instruction to dress itself, but even to assist in caring for the smaller ones. Such an accomplishment is a joy to the child.

In some cases the child has been admitted because of urgent conditions in the home, such as the necessity of the mother's working to support her family. Frequently after training, such children are able to be placed in private homes, with the parents' approval, where they are properly supervised and may become self-supporting.

Still other children have been taken form bad environments which sooner or later would have brought them into conflict with the law. If admitted when they are still young enough to profit by the training, many of these children can later be placed out and succeed well. When admission is delayed until bad habits have been established the children may have to remain at the school for an indefinite period in order not to become a public charge or a menace to the morals of their associates.

On the fast growing waiting list of 500 there are all these types of patients, those who need education and training for self-support, those who are a serious handicap to the welfare of their families, and those who are or soon will be a danger to the community. Until greater facilities are available, these children and young adults cannot receive adequate protection or supervision.

The aim of the Mansfield State Training school and hospital is "to make the children as happy as possible and to train them to be as useful as their minds will permit." That the school is achieving its purpose to a remarkable degree is evident to anyone who visits the school and sees the happy faces of the children, in the school-rooms, the work rooms and the fields.

Other Facilities for Training

Although this article deals principally with the institutional training of the feebleminded and epileptic, there should be mentioned the other facilities which are developing rapidly throughout thestate. Many cities and towns have special classes or schools for the academic and vocational instruction of retarded children. The state department of education cooperating in this work. Such classes can advantageously provide education for the majority of feebleminded children, if there home conditions are satisfactory and the children have no marked tendency toward behavior disorders which would cause them to fall into trouble. Supervision of these children outside of school hours and after leaving school is needed in a complete plan for the solution of the problem of mental deficiency in the state.—Olive T. Rockwell in Connecticut Health Bulletin.

THE ASCENSION

And he led them out as far as to Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them, and it came to pass, while He blessed them, He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. Luke 24:50, 51.

Of all places of scriptural interest this solemn mount of Olives should be most visited by those who love the Lord; for He prayed, and preached, and taught and loved, and wept, and agonized, and triumphed all in connection with this mount of Olives.

There are several attendant circumstances of the ascension. It was visible to the sense of every beholder. His crucifixion was public, His burial was public, His ressurection was public. So with equal publicity in the broad day, from a neighbouring mountain, amid the compass of a thousand witnesses, He ascended upon high.

The place on which it happened is worthy of our notice. We can imagine the feelings of the disciples as they took the familiar road, for they had often been to Bethany together. It was the chosen walk, hallowed by intercourse Divine; and there was a charm at the end of it too, for in that village, darkened by its covert of olives, lived the family that Jesus loved.

For forty days after His resurrection Jesus remained upon earth, not visible constantly to His disciples, but appearing as we have seen, from time to time. Much did they learn in those seasons of rapt communion with their Lord. His words had indeed been fulfilled, "I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice and your joy no man taketh from you," now they were fortified with a knowledge that should read the mystery of life and death, and should enable them to spend the one and comfort the other in glad testimony to the truth.

The day had come when His earthly presence was to be caught away from them that He might be with them in another and even a better sense. He met them at Jerusalem and led them out toward Bethany upon the path they had so often trodden by His side. As they went they eagerly asked Him if He would restore the kingdom to Isreal; but He checked their vain questioning, and bade them wait at Jerusalem until they received the promised Spirit, who should fit them to be witnesses for Him in all Judea and Samaria and the "uttermost part of the earth."

They reached the solitary upland round Bethany, and, lifting up His pierce hands, He blessed them for the last time. While they worshiped Him He was "parted from them," ascending from the earth and hidden in a bright cloud that hovered above them. With straining gaze and eager longing they watched the cloud rise higher and higher till it was lost in the blue vault of heaven; and as they looked they became aware of two angels by their side, who spoke to them in comforting words of the future advent of their Lord. When they returned to the city they were continually in the temple, giving utterance to their joy and thankfulness by praising the God whom Jesus had made known to them. We may have this joy and abiding presence if we will do our part.

For warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He,
And faith has still its Olivet,
And love its Galilee.

May each one of us know more and more the joy of His abiding presence and learn the mystery of His love!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

From the humble position of sweeper in an oil and cake mill, where he earned two dollars a week, G. E. K. Blythe, whose home is in Yorkshire, has risen to be a lecturer in engineering at the foremost technical school in Great Britain. His is a record that should inspire all who are forced with the responsibility of making their way unaided up the ladder leading to success and security. Mr. Blythe studied largely in his spare time, won valuable scholarships, and so was enabled to attend Leeds university. He has brought out several valuable engineering patents, and already is attracting the notice of high engineering authorities in England and in America. "Half the battle is won," he says, "if you make up your mind definitely at the start."

From Small Beginnings

Sir John Tenniel, the Half-Blind Boy, the Great Cartoonist

In modern times the power of the political cartoon is remarkably great. Thomas Nast was all-powerful in awakening public feeling against the Tweed Ring in New York city; and Momer Davenport, with his celebrated cartoon, "He's good enough for me," and his almost brutal pictures of the "Trusts, did much to sway a national election. In England, Sir John Tenniel held for many years a position such as no other cartoonist has ever occupied. It seems that anyone who has the gift of humor may easily become either famous or rich. Sir John Tenniel had the strongest gift of humor, and he became both famous and rich.

When he was a boy in London, John Tenniel thought at one time that fate had been exceedingly unkind to him. He had had to work hard to gain education; he was deeply interested in drawing, and he needed the sight of both eyes. Then, while he was fencing with a friend, he had the misfortune to lose the sight of one. At that moment it seemed as though all his future was blasted. Nevertheless, he kept on with his studies and, as soon as he was able to use the remaining eye, continued with his drawing experiments; and made himself the greatest cartoonist the world has ever known.

The English humorous paper called Punch has always played an important part in British political life. To be the artist for Punch is to hold a position of high honor. When John Tenniel was 30 years old, and had already made a name for himself by winning art prizes, and by making original humorous drawings, he became connected with Punch, and remained on its staff for over 50 years. For that paper he drew nearly three thousand cartoons, reflecting every side of English life. Because of the high standard, the power, and the real humor of his work, he was made a Knight when he was 73. In his work he kept a high dignity, and showed the real artist, in sharp distinction with the crude and revolting work of many American political cartoonists. As a result, Sir John Tenniel is honored as a real artist, and not merely as a cartoonist. In addition to his humorous work, he found time to make many beautiful paintings, and to illustrate many volumes.

The half-blind youth made himself the world's greatest cartoonist.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

NEW VICTORY FOR SANITATION

Should a fire sweep through a children's hospital in Santiago, Chile, and snuff out the lives of 789 little children millions would feel keenest sympathy and presidents and kings would send messages of condolence.

Less spectacular, but far more cheering, is the actual news that 789 lives of children under one year old have been saved in a six months' period in that one city.

And the United States had an important part in this magic boon of modern medicine.

The circumstances emerge into the news because of the announcement of the new sanitary code regulations and the decision of the U. S. Public Health service to permit Dr. J. D. Long, of its staff to remain in Santiago as technical adviser to the Chilian ministry of hygiene.

"It seems only a bit of poetic justice that the United States should minister to the land whose deserts make the world's garden grow, bind the sores and wounds of mankind, and alleviate the pain of intense suffering in hospitals from New York to Singapore—for those are the effects of the nitrates, the iodine and the cocaine that Chile exports," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"Medicine has wrought powerful changes in the geography of the world," the bulletin continues. "Quinine, for example, has been man's chief ally in conquering the tropics. And recent applications of medicinal science have been estimated to have saved more lives among the allied nations since the World war than were lost in that Titantic struggle.

"Now Chile, by the creation of its National Health service, with the assistance of the expert from our country, has embarked upon a program which she believes, at a conservative estimate, will save her nearly 50,000 lives a year.

"Such a program, through the length of her 2,700 miles, from the nitrate beds of Tarapaca to the forests of Tierra del Fuego, and her rich intermediate belts of copper, iron, fruits and the only sizable coal deposits in South America, will have an important bearing upon her future geography and upon the world supply of the raw materials and resources she possesses.

"An official resume of the work performed by the National Health service since its inception last year, just received at the headquarters of the National Geographic society, tells how a fly elimination campaign, thorough refuse removal, and certain other sanitary provisions resulted in cutting down the infant mortality rate during the last six months of 1925 by 45.5 per cent under the deaths of 1923; and showed a falling of 31.4 per cent in the number of deaths in 1925 over those of 1924.

"The elongated republic, with its one-fourth area of islands, has been divided into ten sanitary zones, a corps of health officers has been created, quarantine regulations have been put into effect, physicians licensed and compelled to report communicable diseases, sewage disposal plants installed in small communities, municipal sanitary codes drafted and physical examinations of school children are being gradually provided.

"Infant mortality in Chile has been approximately one-third the total mortality. Of these babies that die under one year of age about 60 per cent die under one month old. Therefore, the report states, a great saving of life, perhaps from 80 to 90 per cent of these deaths, will be prevented by proper hospital maternity provision for mothers.

"Four cities, Santiago, Los Leones, San Antonio and Talca, henceforth are to have their water supplies sterilized with chlorine. Certain cities which with chlorine. Certain cities which mestic purposes, including Valparaiso, are being surveyed for an augmented supply.

"In the water shortage, many towns suffer from a condition which makes for Chile's prosperity. Northern Chile is the one arid region of the world which doesn't want more rain. If the climate changed and heavy rains fell periodically the water would graduallly dissolve the nitrate and wash away the country's unique reservoir of wealth."

STONES MAY REVEAL WHAT ANCIENTS THOUGHT OF DEATH

BERKELEY, Cal., April 9 (AP)—Religious beliefs regarding life beyond the grave, held by Egyptians more than 3,000 years before the birth of Christ, may be revealed in the University of California museum.

Two stones on which inscriptions were carved as the jamb and lintel of the tomb of Sennetum, which was explored by archeologists about the time the civil war ended. Sennetum probably was an officer of the ancient king of Egypt and served as a guardian of the Valley of the Kings, where the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen was invaded by scientists. He may have been the founder of an hereditary line of keepers whose duty it was to guard the tombs from the depredations of grave robbers, a form of outlawry that is as old as mankind itself, says Dr. H. F. Luts, professor of Exyptology. He expects to make known a translation of the inscription soon.

NEW EASTERN CONFERENCE TO RESTRICT BASEBALL ACTIVITY

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—If there is any "over-emphasis" upon college football, the group of Pennsylvania colleges in the newly formed Eastern Collegiate Athletic conference is determined to eliminate it.

Besides adopting a set of six articles placing restrictions on football activities, modelled much along the lines of the "Big Three" program, the conference has taken steps to stamp out "the evil of commercialism."

Gettysburg, Muhlenberg, Franklin & Marshall, Dickinson and Ursinus have accepted this program but Haverford declined to join the conference because it does not adopt rules to eliminate "athletic subsidizing."

These are the articles adopted: (1) There shall be no training tables; (2) Scouting of opponent's games and scouting for future players will be prohibited; (3) There shall be no seasonal coaches; (4) Football practice shall not begin before September 15, (5) The one-year residence rule shall be enforced to prohibit freshmen from playing on varsity teams; (6) No game shall be played before the last Saturday in September.

An Exciting Moment

Now and then a thrill or two
Is good for me and good for you.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter's life is full of thrills. If Peter doesn't have a narrow escape or two each day, he thinks there is something wrong. But the same thing is true of most of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. They have a lot of excitement. Yes, indeed, they have a lot of excitement. But as Peter says, it is a good thing because it keeps their wits sharp.

It happened one day that Peter had gone over to the bank of the Big River. Mr. and Mrs. Quack spent considerable time on the Big River and Peter had just curiosity enough to find out if there were any other ducks over there. So he had taken this opportunity to go over to the bank of the Big River. He looked across the Big River. But nowhere could he see Mr. and Mrs. Quack. Peter was disappointed. But having come so far he decided that he would wait awhile. So he made himself comfortable in a bunch of tall dead grass that grew almost on the edge of the bank. From it he could look up the Big River and down the Big River and across the Big River. He looked until his eyes grew tired and he began to nod. He decided it was time to take a nap, and he took it right there in the middle of that bunch of grass. It was only a short nap. When he awoke the first thing he did was to look up the Big River. He saw two dark specks a little way above the surface of the Big River and they were moving very fast. Nearer they came and nearer. They were Mr. and Mrs. Quack.

He came out of his hiding place and danced up and down on the bank

"My," exclaimed Peter. "My, my, how fast those Quacks can move. I don't believe there is anybody else who can fly quite as fast as they. I guess they don't have to worry much about getting caught."

Just then, Peter noticed another dark speck above and behind Mr. and Mrs. Quack. At first he didn't pay any attention to it. Then he realized that it was moving even faster than Mr. and Mrs. Quack. It was a member of the Hawk family. Peter stared very hard. It was a stranger to him. Suddenly it came to him that the stranger was after Mr. and Mrs. Quack, and that at the rate he was going he would soon catch one of them. With a little shiver of fear it came to him who this stranger was. "It must be Killer the Duckhawk," he exclaimed under his breath. Peter had heard dreadful tales of Killer. He had heard but he hadn't believed that Killer could fly so fast that he could catch a Duck in a straightaway race. Until now, he hadn't believed this, but here before his very eyes the thing was happening. My, how that Hawk was moving! Peter wondered if Mr. and Mrs. Quack knew that they were being chased. If they didn't, Killer the Duckhawk would be sure to catch them. So far as Peter was concerned, it looked as if it were a sure thing anyway.

Peter began to dance with excitement. He came out of his hiding-place and danced up and down on the bank. "Fly, Mr. Quack! Fly, Mrs. Quack!" he cried, just as if they could hear him. It seemed as if they did, for they moved faster than ever. But Killer the Duckhawk is not one to be easily fooled. He knew that he could go faster still, and so he began to quicken the pace a little. Peter shook all over with excitement. Would he catch one of them? Which one would it be? And under his breath all the time Peter was crying just as if they could understand him, "Fly, Mr. Quack! Fly, Mrs. Quack! Fly Fly! Fly!"

OBITUARY

Thomas Francis Shea

With shocking suddenness came the news of the death of Thomas Francis Shea, 32, which occurred at his home, No. 77 Church street, Friday afternoon. Mr. Shea had been ill with the grip for about two weeks but his illness was not considered serious until a day or two before his death. In fact he was up and around the first of the week, but had a sudden relapse, pneumonia developed and his condition continued to grow alarming, the end coming Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with the members of his family gathered about his bedside.

The only son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Shea Thomas Francis Shea was born in this city, December 23, 1893. He was graduated from Broadway grammar school, being valedictorian of his class, and in 1911 was graduated from Norwich Free Academy. He entered Holy Cross college, graduating there in 1915, being salutatorian of his class.

Returning to Norwich after college graduation, he became associated with his father in the undertaking and furniture business conducted under the well known firm name of Shea and Burke.

In New London, February 9, 1918, Mr. Shea was united in marriage with Miss Viola Shea of that city. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Shea had made their home in this city.

Mr. Shea was a prominent member of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus and at his death was serving the council as its grand knight. He was also a member of the Holy Name society and of St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society. He was a member of St Patrick's parish.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Shea, his wife, one daughter, Betty Ann Shea, three years of age and two sisters, Mrs. Edward Kirby, Jr., and Miss Marguerite Shea, all of this city. Mr. Shea was a loving and devoted husband and father, and was beloved by a host of friends. Ever of a cheerful disposition and possessing an engaging personality he made friends easily. His was a character without blemish and beyond reproach. He was kindly and courteous in business and social relations and a true and tried friend to all who knew him. The sympathy of the community will be extended to his grief-stricken family.

During Mr Shea's college career at Holy Cross he made a brilliant record in scholarship, was a frequent contributor to "The Purple", the college publication, and took an active interest in athletics. In school and out he was a type of clean, young manhood, gentle, kind and generous, of the highest ideals, modest as to his own merits, putting the best effort into his work. It was characteristic of him that almost his last public appearance was a little over two weeks ago, when, as grand knight he led the ranks of White Cross council as that organization marched to St. Patrick's church to receive Easter holy communion. He had the esteem of his associates in the council as he had the good will of the thousands of persons who have come to know him since he adopted a business career, for the best in citizenship, religion and family life; the death of such a man is a loss to the entire city.

The meeting is the second of its kind having as its object the development of the Thames river valley and is being held under the auspices of Norwich council, No. 309, U. C. T.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS TO HOLD STATE MEETING HERE SUNDAY

An attendance of about 250 is expected here Sunday afternoon for the state meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Women's auxiliary of the order, which is to begin with a luncheon at the Buckingham Memorial at 1 o'clock. The luncheon menue is to be served by the auxiliary of Richard Hourigan post of this city and the auxiliary of Harley P. Chase post of Westerly under the direction of their respective presidents, Mrs. Annie B. Turner and Mrs. Margaret Greenman.

Following the luncheon the veterans will parade to Hourigan post room at 143 Main street for the business session. In the line of march with the local post, of which Leo L. Jacques is commander, will be State Commander Kelly of Bridgeport, State Senior Vice Commander Blanchard of Bristol, State Junior Vice Commander Dibble of Meriden, Major Bennett of Bridgeport past national senior vice commander, and Major Shanahan, past state commander.

The address of welcome will be given by Mayor Milo R. Waters.

The state meeting of the women's auxiliaries will be held at the Buckingham Memorial after the luncheon. It will be presided over by the state president, Mrs. Percie Johnson of Waterville.

NORWICH SCHOOL PUPILS MAKING BANK DEPOSITS

One of the most effective means of keeping school children of the city and town of Norwich up to a high pitch of effort in systematic saving is that adopted by the Norwich Savings society, Charles R. Butts, president. Friendly and healthful emulation is incited among the different buildings and grades to have each rate in the 100 per cent class. When every pupil in a room has started a bank account by buying savings stamps or beginning his financial career as the possessor of a bank book with his first dollar deposit, that room ranks in the top notch class and is checked up as 100 per cent.

Secretary-treasurer Guy B. Dolbeare and his assistant, Miss Katherine D. Smith have records which show the following standing of the Norwich schools in this respect up to March 1st, 1926:

100 per cent schools:

East Great Plain school—Grades taught by Miss Justine Morrison, Miss Peterson.

Broad street: Rooms of Miss Callahan, Miss O'Connell, Miss Beebe, Miss Curtis, Miss McCormick, Miss Browning, Miss Matassa.

Hobart Ave: Grades of Miss Mary Kampf, Miss M. W. Clune, Miss Ruth Clark, Miss Elinor E. Stevens, Miss Marion Bailey.

Schools nearing the 100 per cent mark are: West Thames street, Bahem street, Boswell avenue, Bishop school.

Showing the growth of the savings habit the following table has been prepared:

Sept. 1925, 58 per cent of enrollment of town schools participating; Oct. 1925, 66 per cent; Nov. 1925, 72 per cent; Dec. 1925, 75 per cent; Jan. 1926, 76 per cent; Feb. 1926, 78 per cent.

There are 37 100 per cent banner rooms.

Almost all the banner rooms earn the gold star each month after the banner has been obtained. The gold star shows that all the pupils in that room have bought stamps during the month.

The pupils in the parochial schools of Norwich are in the savings system also, their teachers, the Sisters lending valuable aid in the effort to teach thrift to their classes. However, the records of per centage in these schools has not been made up yet.

FIVE DIVORCES GRANTED WITHOUT CONTEST MADE

Divorces to four petitioning wives and one husband were granted by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London on Friday. All the cases were uncontested.

Almeda E. Wilcox of New London was given a divorce from Lowell J. Wilcox on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. She was also awarded the custody of two children and a change of name. The couple were married on March 31, 1917.

Clara E. B Murphy of this city was granted a divorce from Albert Francis Murphy, formerly of Norwich, now of unknown address, on the grounds of desertion. They were married Nov. 19, 1917 and desertion was alleged since July 8, 1917. The plaintiff was also given the custody of two minor children, Isobel, five and Robert, three.

On grounds of desertion, alleged one week after marriage in New London, Marguerite Beraman LaClair of this city, was granted a divorce from Elmer G. LaClair, now of parts unknown. She was also granted a change of name to Marguerite Bergman. They were married Aug. 13, 1923.

On the grounds of cruelty, Bernice Newcomb Gregory of New London was given a divorce from Cornelius Gregory, whom she married Nov. 13, 1923. She was also granted permission to change her name to Bernice Newcomb.

John D Anderson of Hamburg was granted a divorce from Helene Balliet Anderson on the grounds of adultery. The alleged offense was testified to as having taken place May 29, 1925, in the plaintiff's home while he was fishing.

BAKERY STORE BLAZE CAUSES $1,000 DAMAGE

The bakery store conducted by Abraham Meyer in the Murphy block No. 152 West Main street, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 shortly after 7 o'clock Friday morning, when fire of unknown origin broke out. Saul Safenowitz's tailor shop, next door, escaped damage.

About 7 o'clock Mr. Meyer sent a boy into the store to get some paper stored there. The boy discovered a fire on the first landing on the stairway leading into the basement where the paper was kept. He told Mr. Meyer of the fire and Mr. Meyer sent him to Engine No. 5, a few doors above the bakery, at the same time running to box 14 which he pulled in.

The firemen found a flash fire in progress and the flames swept the store which had just been repainted and varnished throughout. Two lines of two and a half inch hose, one line of inch and a quarter hose and a chemical line were used on the blaze which was quickly extinguished. The stock in the store was badly damaged by fire and water.

ASSIGNED FOR TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

Assignments of court cases to be tried at New London in the superior court with Judge C. L. Avery presiding at the April additional session have been made as follows:

Tuesday, April 13—Crocicchia, et al., vs. Henes, Sadie Chapman Corey vs. Alvin P. Corey. James vs. Vogt.

Friday, April 16—Short calendar, bar meeting and assignment of cases.

Tuesday, April 20 (special)—Snappy Knitwear Co., Inc., vs. Insurance Company of North America, Sullivan vs. Kennedy.

W. S. Jeffs Takes Position

William S. Jeffs, who has been organist at the Palace theater, has been appointed demonstrator and solo organist to the Hoffman Enterprises. He will take charge of installation of all organs, which are now being installed, also demonstrating these upon completion. He will commence his duties April 19th by opening the new Garo theater at Willimantic. He will still retain his residence in Norwich, also his connection as organist at the United Congregational church. Mr. Jeffs intends taking a few days' vacation before commencing his new duties.

ONE IN EVERY ELEVEN AUTOMOBILES IN ACCIDENT

One car in every eleven registered in Connecticut last year was involved in an accident, whereas the ratio for the year 1918 was one car in an accident for every forty-two registered, according to the results of an analytical study of 1925 accident reports as compared with those of other years which has been completed at the state motor vehicle department.

In an effort to keep abreast of the increase in motor vehicles and the corresponding increase in the number of hazards which confront all operators on the public highways, the department is keeping a close check on the Connecticut statistics. In this way the responsible authorities are enabled to a degree to put their collective finger on the most pronounced causes.

It has been determined that the proportion of cars to population in Connecticut in 1925 was 16 1-3 as against as in 1910 and that, while there was one car registered in this state for every ninety-nine people in 1910, the ratio had changed in fifteen years to a point where there was last year one car for every six people in the state.

Automobiles are increasing in Connecticut at a faster rate than for the country at large. There were 14 per cent more cars registered here last year than in the previous year as the increase for the country was only 11 per cent. In spite of that fact, accidents in the state increased last year at the rate of only 7.9 per cent as against an increase of 25.5 per cent the previous year.

ARRANGING TO ENTERTAIN CONFERENCE DELEGATES

At a meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, a large committee was appointed to take care of the delegates, who expect to attend the 18th annual Connecticut conference of social work, to be held here April 25th to 28th.

Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of this city is president of the conference, and George S. Palmer of New London is vice president.

It is hoped by the committee that Norwich will be glad to open its homes to such an interesting group of people and accommodations are to be solicited by the committee.

Those on the committee are: Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, Misses Elizabeth Huntington, Constance Learned, Alexandrine Trumbull, Mary Richards, Gertrude Young, Cecil Crowell, Martha Osgood, Jane Bill, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, Mrs. Frank B. Ricketson, Mrs. Richard P. Gregson, Mrs. William N. Zumbro, Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan, Mrs. Harrison Gray, Mrs. Florence E. Carpenter, Mrs. Francis Gilman, Mrs. Elijah Burdsall, Mrs. Gardiner Greene, Mrs. John D. Hall, Mrs. William Clark, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Mrs. Willis Austin, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Webster D. Comp, Mrs. Philip T. Welles, Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell.

Anyone who anticipates entertaining personal friends will oblige the committee by phoning Miss Elizabeth Huntington.

BAPTIST CHURCH WILL OBSERVE LAYMEN'S SUNDAY

Sunday is to be observed as Laymen's day in all the Baptist churches throughout the state. The pastor of the Central church exchanges with the pastor of the First Baptist church in Waterbury, Rev. David P. Gaines.

Sunday is the day for the launching of a state-wide movement of the laymen to secure a larger participation in public worship, especially at the morning service. This effort is to last from Easter to children's day, the second Sunday in June. The First church Waterbury, has challenged the Central Baptist church to a friendly rivalry to see which church can make the best record during this period. Laymen and boys will be counted at each morning worship and the report will be sent to Hartford.

At the noon hour Arthur M Brown of Jewett City will speak to the men's class on the story of creation from the first chapter of Genesis.

The evening is to be given over largely to the laymen "What Can the Church do for Men?" will be dealt with by Deacon Frederick D Yerrason, and "What Can Men Do for the Church?" by Attorney Charles K Stewart. The pastor will speak briefly on "Laymen and the Kingdom."

James L. Case will preside at the morning worship hour and Shepard B. Palmer in the evening.

TOLD BAPTIST WOMEN OF WORK IN JAPAN

Mrs. Spencer C. Kennard, who is home on a furlough from mission work among the student classes in Tokyo, Japan, was the speaker Friday evening before a meeting of the Woman's league of the Central Baptist church, giving an unusually enlightening picture of the tremendous importance of this field of activity. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. David A. Pitt.

The evening meeting of the league followed an afternoon meeting at which White Cross work was done and a supper at 6:30. At the evening business meeting at which Mrs. H. H. Pettis the president, presided, report was made by Mrs. George A. Ashley that the Easter contributions of the women had amounted to $700 towards the pledge of $1,000 which they have made to contribute in 1926 for the golden anniversary fund of the Women's American Baptist home mission society, this sum to be over and above all other missionary contributions.

Announcement was made of the county missionary meeting at the First Baptist church, this city, on May 13, and the state meeting at New London on May 13. Preceding the address by Mrs. Kennard, a solo, My Task, was very acceptably rendered by Mrs William F Bailey with Miss Mildred Cass as accompanist.

Music for Church Services

At the Central Baptist church on Sunday the choir will render the following numbers: Morning, "Fear Not, O Israel," by Stewart and "Victory" by Shelley. In the evening, "Christ is Risen" by Spence, "In the End of the Sabbath" by Tarsett; and "The Lord is Risen" by Lansing will be sung as a solo by Mrs William Crowe, Jr.

DANCE RECITAL GIVEN BY MISS ESTLOW'S PUPILS

A dance recital given by pupils of Miss Sarah Shipman Estlow Friday evening at the Wauregan hotel presented an unusually beautiful programme for the enjoyment of the good sized audience. Several of Miss Estlow's Hartford pupils assisted the Norwich class. The grace of the dancers, the daintiness of their costumes and the skill and spirit with which the dances were given combined to make the recital a real treat for the admiring parents and friends of the little dancers.

The grand march at the close was led by little Ruth Fitzgerald and Mary E. Pullen, who presented Miss Estlow a large bouquet of pink roses. Miss Gertrude M. Platt was accompanist for the entertainment programme and Tumm's orchestra played for the dancing that closed the evening.

The programme was carried out as follows:

Part one—Classical exercise and Pont de Bras, Chalif; Massenet's eulogy, Estlow.

ST. MARY'S LADIES' NIGHT WAS GREAT SUCCESS

An attendance of 500 and a programme of special interest made the ladies' night for St. Mary's parish Friday evening in St. Mary's Memorial hall an unqualified success. An address of welcome was made by the rector, Rev. W. A. Keefe, who acted as chairman, and the speaker of the evening was Miss Teresa Brown of New London, who gave a particularly interesting description of seeing the Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau and also of her visit to the Holy Land. A feature of the programme of unusual merit was the appearance of Miss Mildred Lamb of Middletown in readings and recitations of literary masterpieces.

The musical part of the evening was also greatly enjoyed and was rendered in excellent form, Miss Mary Brennan being at the piano. The numbers were the following:

Opening chorus, song, Then I'll Be Happy, Yiddish Selection, by the Minstrel Girls; the Message, Gertrude Hamil, Catherine Brennan, Teresa Portelance Anna Hasson, Evelyn Caron, Madeline Fitzgerald, May O'Brien and Mary Foley; solo—Sleepy Head, Evelyn Caron; duet with ukelele accompaniment, Drifting and Dreaming, Gertrude Hamil, May O'Brien solo—Night of Love, Mary Foley; duet—Apron Strings, Catherine Brennan, Teresa Portelance; solo—In the Garden of Tomorrow, Dolores Mrs John Marshall; solo—At Dawning Cadman, Mrs. James McGrory.

ANNUAL CONVENTION BY M. U. ODD LADIES HELD

The third annual convention of the L. O. O. L. M. U., was held in Steiners' hall, Main street, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Prov. Grand Lady Mrs. Annie E. Partridge of this city presided over the meeting which was well attended. Officers of the order were present from Rhode Island district as well as Connecticut district and the grand master of the state lodge, Harold Wendell.

During the intermission a dinner was served in the banquet hall by members of Iona Victory lodge. During the afternoon the following officers were installed by I. Prov. G. L. Sarah Crossley of Bridgeport; Prov. Grand Lady Adella Sewart of Baltic; Prov. D. Grand Lady Adella Turner of Waterbury; Prov. C. S. Susannah Whittaker of Bridgeport; Prov. Treasurer, Mildred Brenton of Bridgeport; I. Past Prov. Grand Lady Annie Partridge and Prov Grand Lady Sarah Sewart were each presented a beautiful basket of flowers. The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock and the next annual meeting will be held in Baltic on the first Wednesday of April next year.

STORRS YOUNG MAN WEDS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, April 9—Announcements of the marriage of William H. Wheeler of Storrs, son of Professor and Mrs. Charles A. Wheeler, to Miss Ruth Gertrude Matthews of Marion, South Carolina, have been received here this week. The marriage took place March 31 at the First Methodist church at Marion. S. C. M. Wheeler is a graduate of Yale in the class of 1923, where he was a member of Franklin Hall and Theta Chi. He is also a member of the New York Yale club. By profession he is a civil engineer, and for the present his work will keep him in the south.

Connecticut people present at the wedding included Prof and Mrs. Charles A. Wheeler of Storrs, parents of the groom Mr. Wheeler is professor of mathematics at Connecticut Agricultural college. Professor William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs uncle of the bride; Misses Madelon and Dorothy Wheeler of Storrs sisters of the groom; and Charles Gordy of New Haven.

STATE ORGANIZER TO ADDRESS OPEN MEETING

At the regular meeting of Buckingham council, No. 14, Junior American Mechanics, at the Buckingham Memorial this week, at which Vice Councilor Donald F. Whitney presided announcement was made of the open meeting next Wednesday evening at which the state organizer for the W A P league is to be the speaker.

The bowling match scheduled between Norwich and Noank for Thursday evening was forfeited to Norwich by the Noank team, for a total pinfall of 1382.

COMPROMISE ALLOWED IN CLAIM AGAINST PAPER MILL

Permission for the receiver, Frank W. Browning, of the Uncas Paper Board Co., to compromise on a claim for $8,000 against the Grand Union Folding Box Co., by receiving $6,000 in settlement of the debt to the paper board concern, was granted by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at its short calendar session in New London Friday. Attorney Arthur T Keefe represented the receiver and stated that it seemed the advisable thing to accept the $6,000 rather than pressing the concern, thereby running a risk of precipitating bankruptcy proceedings and securing much less if anything.

Judge Avery also approved of the receiver's statement or orders entered in receivership proceedings from Nov. 1, 1925, to April 1, 1926. Both of the above motions were made in the case of the H. G. Cra'e & Co. Ltd., et al, against the Uncas Paper Board Co. A motion for the court's approval of the receiver's account to April, 1926, was continued one week.

Argument of demurrer and motion to quash was continued in the case of the State of Connecticut against John J. McCook, executor and others, Attorney Arthur M. Brown represents the state.

The following motions went off:

Piecarz against the town of Colchester, argument of demurrer.

Montali against Minnucci and others, motion for non-suit for failure to plead.

Lena Rabinovitch against Max Rabinovitch; disclosure of defense or judgment.

Browning, receiver, against Feinberg, disclosure of defense or judgment.

PARENT-TEACHERS MET AT POQUETANUCK SCHOOL HOUSE

The April meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held Wednesday evening at the Poquetanuck school house with about 20 present. The meeting was opened with music and was in charge of the chairman, Mrs. Appleton Main. The secretary's report was read and a committee, Mrs. Alanson Fuller, Miss Flynn, Mrs. Naomi Gallup and Mrs. Charles Harkness was appointed to take charge of the meeting in May. Final plans for an entertainment were arranged.

S Hussey Reed state supervisor of schools, made a few pertinent remarks, taken as his theme: Those who do the least for a cause are its hardest Critics. Rev. T. H. M. Ockford then sang in his usual pleasing way. The address of the evening was given by Merle Woodmansee of Preston City on the topic, The Schools of Today. The speaker compared the curriculum of the earlier schools with those of modern times in an enlightening manner.

This was followed by assembly singing, after which refreshments were served, bringing the meeting to a close.

STATE OF MAINE CLUB PLANS NEXT MEETING

The next meeting of the State of Maine club of southeastern Connecticut will be held in New London May 13 according to plans formulated at the meeting held in the Wauregan hotel here Thursday evening. Andrew W. Holman and Charles De Grasse both of New London were appointed a committee of two to decide the meeting place. Other committees appointed were Judge A. F. Libby of Norwich, speaker; Mrs. H. W. Hawes of Canterbury, Mrs. Arthur Blaisdell, Montville, Mrs. A. Steffanson of Norwich, Mrs Andrew Holman of New London and H. R. Dean of Norwich entertainment; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert White of Groton, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carville of Poquonoc Bridge, Mrs. Charles De Grasse of New London and Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Varney of Norwich, refreshments; and Mrs. Ralph Smith New London, membership.

The State of Maine club is made up of people either born or who have lived in Maine.

WHIST EVENING HELD BY FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Another one of the popular whists of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post was held Friday evening at the post rooms with 26 tables in play. Those to take the prizes were the following:

Ladies, first, Mrs. Marie Wade 42, second, Mrs. William Farrell 38, third, Mrs. J. LaValle 33; gentlemen, first, Clement Darzig, 42, second, A. W. O'Connell, 40, third, C. Prodell, 39.

Pinochle is also proving popular and the entertainment committee has decided to hold an all pinochle night every week in addition to the all-whist evenings now held. After the whist, dancing was enjoyed until 12:30. Music was furnished by Roach's orchestra. All agreed that this orchestra is ideal for dancing.

Workmen's Compensation

The following workmen's compensation agreement has been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Harry L. Lathrop, Norwich, employer and Harold W. Riley, Boswell avenue, employe, oil burning, Jan. 23, at rate of $21.

LABOR LEADER STIRRING UP STRIFE IN PASSAIC

PASSAIC, N. J., April 9.—(AP)—Determination to stage a parade of 20,000 children of textile strikers through Passaic streets tomorrow or keep the children out of school Monday, was expressed today by Albert Weisbord, organizer, and chairman of the United Front committee of textile workers.

Permission to hold the parade was denied by Passaic police on the ground that lives of children might be endangered. Weisbord at a meeting in Garfield today, read a letter of refusal from Richard O Zober, chief of Passaic police and asserted that not one child must enter school on Monday in the event that the procession was interfered with.

Arrest and punishment of six youthful pickets, accused of stoning and booing police, shared interest today only with Weisbord's announcement of a new attempt to organize Paterson dye house employes and the sentencing of Nancy Sundowsky, the strikers' Joan of Arc to 20 days in jail.

Leading a picket line of several hundred children in the Forstmann Mill section last night the six were taken into custody by Patrolman Thomas Crawhuck. Four of them were released after a night in jail while Louise Rochu, aged 17, and Steve Fugel, aged 16, were kept in cells until tonight.

The youngest of the prisoners was 12 years old, John Wurst. Released with Early today were Charles Tel-

WESTERN ATHLETES FACING EAST, HOPES RUNNING HIGH

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9 (AP)—Western athletes are gathering for a vigorous summer campaign on the eastern front.

Led by the University of Southern California with six of its biggest field and track guns that battered down opposition for the 1925 L. C. A. A. A. championships at Philadelphia, the collegiate invasion will be supported by cohorts of the tennis and golf world, racing crews, swimmers and miscellaneous performers.

Besides the six veterans who helped win the track title for Southern California last year, including Captain Bud Houser, intercollegiate champion discus thrower, there are many new stars one of whom Lee Barnes, vaulted into first place at the 1924 Olympic games while yet in high school.

Stanford is grooming several track stars for the national competition among them Erskine Coverly, a transfer from Arizona university and a 10 second sprinter. California has the usual large field including Phil Barber who stepped the century in 9.9 in practice. Barber, however, must make up scholastic deficiencies if he is to go east.

With a world's record for an objective, a veteran four mile relay team will be entered by Oregon Agricultural college in two, possibly more of the eastern and middle-western relay meets. Trainer M. H. Butler has invitations from Drake, Iowa, April 23-24, the Kansas relays a week earlier and the Penn relays whose date conflicts with Drake. The Oregon men may decide to run in the Layola meet in Chicago as was done last year.

Two of the four runners, Percy Bal... and Royce Clayton were members of the team that broke the Kansas record the last year and the time of 18.07 by 3 seconds with the time of 17.... and a week later made a mark of 17.... 59, equalled only three times in 26 years at Drake. Tedd Butts is the third veteran, prevented from making the trip last year by illness and for the fourth, Butler has seven vets to chose from.

Washington and California match oars April 9 for the right to represent the Pacific Coast in the national intercollegiate regatta and it is possible, also, that the losing crew will compete at Poughkeepsie, especially if the losers put up a good race.

Hawaii, already represented in the national woman's swimming championships by Miss Marlechen Wehselau, will make a second bid for honors through an entry in the international star class yacht races, on Long Island sound. Herbert Dowsett, Honolulu sportsman will represent the most westerly outposts of the United States.

Five Stanford swimmers already have left on a tour of the country to take part in ten meets between the two coasts.

In the tennis division, coast stars are marshalling for a concerted drive. Helen Wills will return from Europe in time to defend her national woman's title and William M. Johnston, second ranking player among the men will swing racquets in various eastern tournaments although he will not cross to Europe this year.

Another star of this section, Miss Helen Jacobs rules the national junior girl's division but whether she will defend her title has not been decided. Her plans will be made known in June.

Two court performers from the west coast will not enter national events this season. They are Cranston Holman eighth ranking player and national junior title holder and Gerald Stratford, national intercollegiate doubles title holder. Instead these sterling young players will tour the far east touching at Japan, the Philippines and Hawaii.

ADVOCATES OF SUNDAY BALL WIN A POINT IN MASS.

BOSTON, April 9.—(AP)—Advocates of Sunday sports won a point today when the full bench of the state supreme court dismissed a petition to prevent submission of a Sunday sports referendum to the people. The petition was brought by William F. Andrasch, Methodist Episcopal bishop of New England and others, to restrain Leander W. Cook, secretary of the commonwealth from submitting to the people a legislative act to allow athletic outdoor sports and games on the Lord's day. The law would permit sports to which admission may be charged between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

The full bench also dismissed a petition brought by the same persons to obtain the certification of the attorney general that the initiative measure is in proper form. Judge Fowler in writing the opinion said that the question for the court was not whether the proposed law was wise or unwise, but whether the preliminary requirements had been complied with.

"It is for the attorney general to determine," the opinion said, "and his decision in the absence of bad faith, is final. It cannot be certified by this court which can interpret but cannot overrule the organic law."

The petitioners contended that the proposed law was unconstitutional because it related to religion, to religious practices and religious institutions.

ENELL TO SUE FOR $50,000 —DEFAMATION OF CHARACTER

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Doc Snell, Tacoma, Wash., challenger for the featherweight championship, said tonight through his representative, W. E. Miller, that suit for $50,000 would be filed against Chairman Ed Barry of the Cleveland boxing commission for defamation of character.

The suit will be based on statements credited to Barry, who today refused to sanction a bout between Snell and Eddie Shea at Cleveland, April 21, because, he said, Snell faked a fight with Bud Taylor in Cleveland March 26.

"It is the first time in Snell's career that the slightest tinge of suspicion has ever been directed against him," said Miller. "The boy is not a boxer, but a fighter. He wouldn't know how to fake a fight if he tried. Why such an asinine statement should be made is a mystery to me. The bout was bitterly contested. It is dangerous for Mr. Barry to make such ridiculous statements when he has no foundation of fact and thus ruin the reputation of a boy.

HOFF BREAKS INDOOR POLE VAULT RECORD AGAIN

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Charles Hoff, of Norway broke the world's indoor pole vault record tonight for the seventh time since coming to this country when he cleared the bar at 13 feet, eight and one quarter inches, bettering by three-fourths of an inch his own record in New York recently.

Fails To Sell Bridgeport Club

BRIDGEPORT, April 9.—(AP)—Dan O'Neil, president of the Eastern league, failed in his effort to sell the Bridgeport franchise to local business men here today, he announced tonight. O'Neil expects to interview several other men in hope of selling the club for Tim Sullivan, Springfield, present owner.

AGNES GERAGHTY SETS ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Continuing her feat of setting a new world's mark every night of the meet, Agnes Geraghty of New York tonight swam 220 yards in 3:22 4-5 for a new international women's indoor record at breast stroke. It was her fourth world's record during the National A. A. U. championship swims. The previous record was her own time of 3:24.

Erna Rademacher, brilliant German swimmer who set a new world's mark at his specialty Wednesday night, created a new time for Americans to shoot at when he splashed 400 yards, breast stroke, in 5:36 4-5, an indoor record never before clocked in an American tank. He set the new mark during the course of an exhibition swim to lower the 500 yard breast stroke world's time, in which he failed to do with a time of 6:59 4-5.

Walter Spence of the Brooklyn, New York, Y. M. C. A., raced to a new world's record for the 200 yard breast stroke with a time of 2:29 3-5. He clipped more than two seconds from the indoor title previously held by Robert Skelton of the Illinois A. C. The event was an exhibition.

The 150 yard back stroke championship was retained by Walter Laufer, of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. team, with a time of 1:42 4-5. Paul Wyatt of the Uniontown Pennsylvania "Y", finished second and G. Fissler, swimming unattached, was third.

The national amateur title for the 500 yard free style swim was won by Arne Borg of the Illinois A. C. He made the distance in 3:43 2-5, with Harry Glancy of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A., second and Wallace O'Connor of Stanford university third.

Ethel Lackie, feminine I. A. C. star, failed in an attempt to lower her own record for the 400 yard free style. Her time tonight was 1:02 1-5.

GOOD DAY FOR MAJOR LEAGUE EXHIBITION GAMES

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—The weatherman kept rain on the bench today while the major league ball clubs put in the best day's work so far in the fina, two weeks of spring training.

The New York Giants took their first in several starts from the Washington Senators 4 to 2.

The Pittsburgh Pirates collected 18 singles for a 13-4 victory over the Louisville association club in the Colonels' Home park.

At Evansville, Ind., the Chicago White Sox shut out the local three outfit, 9 to 0.

Cleveland fared nearly as well in Alabama, where the Indians downed the State university team, 11 to 2 in Tuscaloosa.

The Chicago Cubs, inbound from the Pacific coash took a tight tilt from the Blues, 5 to 4.

Johns and Gibson Tigers flingers, held the Nashville Southern association to four hits to give Detroit a 7 to 1 win in the Tennessee city. At Memphis, the St. Louis Browns scored a 6-1 decision over the local club.

The National and American league broke even on two city series in the east, the Philadelphia Nationals winning from the Athletics 6-0 while the Boston American leaguers were winning from the Braves, 6 to 1.

What About It?

Sports Ed:—We noticed in Thursday's Bulletin that the Celtics refused to play the C. F. C. team amateur rules but would only play if professional rules were used. We wish to state that a series had been arranged one game to be played on the "Y" floor, the other at Taftville, but the manager of the C. F. C. team called up and said that they could not play in Taftville on account of not being able to play amateur rules. He must have been aware of this before he even booked a game as the Celtics have been playing to so-called professional rules. The Celtics were willing to go to Norwich and play amateur rules which they have never practiced, so why couldn't the C. F. C. do the same? It looks as if the C. F. C. was trying to have everything its own way and when not successful they quit by giving the excuse that the Celtics do not want to play, which is quite true if the other team does not want to meet us halfway.

Nevertheless we wish to state that we think that the Celtics are just as fast as the C. F. C. team, which we proved by defeating a team which was composed of three of their players. We also wish to state that the Celtics have never refused to play any team if they wished to meet the Celtics halfway, which includes the C. F. C. team.

The series of boat races between California and Washington universities dates from 1903

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS FINISH THEIR SPRING TRAINING AND AWAIT OPENER

NEW YORK, April 9. — (AP) — The long training grind of major league teams, a six weeks' stretch of tryouts, weight-reducing and reorganization requiring an outlay of more than half a million dollars, is at an end.

Many of the clubs already are home from the south. Others return tomorrow and Sunday. Most of them are confident, some unquestionably have been vastly improved, while still others have failed to impress or have suffered setbacks as a result of unfavorable weather and injuries to regulars.

New York's entries are due home tomorrow after one of the most successfully preparatory campaigns in their history—the Giants, fortified by a powerful pitching staff and increased strength supplied in the outfield by Ty Tyson; the Yankees, riding the crest of a terrific wave of hitting for which two infield recruits, Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri, have been partly responsible.

Philadelphia already has welcomed back its teams. Regarded as little stronger than a year ago, the Phillies find some cause for elation over the development of a pitching find in the 19-year-old Baecht. Major interest of the Quaker fans, however, centers in the Athletics, who are considered by critics to have been improved by the addition of the hard-hitting West Point product, Walter French, in the outfield, as well as the return to first base of Joe Hauser.

Disappointment of the Red Sox in a training season interrupted by much rain has been partially offset by successful tryouts of two outfield recruits, Si Rosenthal and Elton Langford, while the Braves have given Hub fandom every reason to believe that their sensational finish of 1925 will carry over into the present season.

Bucky Harris and his Washington Senators expect to repeat—not with "cast-offs", says Bucky, but with "experienced men" aided by two young finds in Bennett, Tate, catcher, and Buddy Myer, infielder.

St. Louis fans are satisfied that their two brilliant batsmen — Rogers Horneby, Cardinal chief, and George Sisler, Brown's pilot—are due for another big swatting carnival. Their pennant appetites already have been whetted by a sensational exhibition winning streak of the Cardinals, who are looking for big things from Threnow at shortstop.

Word comes from the Pirates that Paul Waner, Pacific coast tryout, has given way in the outfield to Carson Bigbee, but the champions have rapidly been rounding to form and Hal Rhyne, infield recruit, will do, says Manager McKechnie.

The Brooklyn Robins have been disappointed by the illness of their new infielder, Butler. Their early hopes also have suffered from many defeats at the hands of the Yankees. But Manager Robinson looks for better things next week, particularly as he expects Butler to add much strength to the infield.

Cincinnati has been heartened by the acquisition of Wally Pipp and the return to form of Pitcher Carl Mays. The Cubs are hopeful that Maurice Shannon has stopped an infield gap. Confidence likewise rules in the headquarters of the Indians, Tigers and White Sox as the call to "play ball" draws near.

PHILLIES BLANK ATHLETICS IN CITY TITLE GAME

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Nationals today won their first game of the city championship series with the Philadelphia Americans, shutting out the Athletics, 6 to 0. Harris and Baumgartner, Athletics pitchers, each had one bad inning in which the Phillies scored all their runs.

Carlson and Dean held the American leaguers safe at all times. The Athletics have won four of the contests, two in the south and two here, another game will be played tomorrow.

Score:

Philadelphia Nationals	3	0	0	3	0	0	0	0	0	—6

GOTTFRIED AND JUNGE LEAD BERLIN BIKE RIDERS

BERLIN, April 9.—(AP)—At the end of the 25th hour of the six day bicycle race tonight, the German team of Gottfried and Junge was leading, with 23 points. Koch and Miethe, another German team, was second, with 3 points. These two teams had covered a distance of 431 miles.

One lap behind the leaders were the French team of Sergeant and Louet, third, with 106 points; Rieger and points, and the Americans, Beckman, and Eaton, fifth, with 36 points.

The dropping out of one German team reduced the filed to 13 pairs.

Washington Crew Takes Title.

LAKE WASHINGTON Wash., April 9.—(AP)—The University of Washington varsity crew won the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate rowing championship on Lake Washington today by defeating the University of California oarsmen over a three mile course.

The shells were 4 1-2 inches apart at the finish. The unofficial time was 16 minutes, 27 seconds.

Cleveland Wins Title.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Cleveland won the championship of the American Basketball League tonight by defeating Brooklyn, 23 to 22. It was Cleveland's third straight victory in the series for the title.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Golf clubs in the United States now number nearly 5,000.

The Amateur Athletic Union's national gymnastic championships will be held in Philadelphia in June.

Francis Ward, the new world's squash tennis champion, has reached the top of the heap after only one year in the game.

Raising its first pennant in 1900, the American league contests on April 13 will inaugurate the junior organization's twenty-seventh season.

Sir Thomas Lipton has made four attempts to lift the American cup, the first as long ago as 1899. His subsequent attempts were made in 1901 1903 and 1920.

The New York Giants have decided to give a trial to Johnny Harding, who has distinguished himself as shortstop on the University of Pittsburg nine, when he leaves college next June.

The showing made by the New York Yankees during the latter part of the exhibition season indicate that their powerful hitting combination will make them a hard team to beat this year.

The Quantico Marines have earned a niche in baseball's hall of fame by scoring no-hit, no-run games against the Bucknell college nine on two successive days—a perfect performance that has had few precedents in baseball annals.

During the period of fifty years ... which various teams have fought for National league pennants those representing eastern cities still identified with the organization have won twenty-seven championships, while western clubs have captured eighteen.

Efforts are being made in Europe to arrange a special international aviation meeting for women pilots only. Women have been taking an active interest in aviation recently, and there are now a considerable number of qualified women pilots, of whom several are Americans. France leads the list with five flying women, and China which is usually supposed to be very up to date, comes second with four. There are also two Japanese women pilots.

Amid ceremonies and decorations which have become a fixed feature of the annual event, the major league baseball season of 1926 will open April 13 on the circuits of the National and American leagues. Encompassed by the blare of bands, the snapping of flags and the weird toss by city or government officials selected to throw out the first ball of the year, the players of sixteen teams will flash away on their six months pursuit of pennants, the winning of which entitles the victors to battle in the world's series, the pinnacle of baseball.

"Y" ATHLETES WIN FROM MAENNERCHOR IN GYM MEET

In one of the most spirited athletic contests held at the local "Y" in a long time, the Y" Seniors defeated their friendly rivals the Taftville Maennerchor in the Y" gym last evening to the score of 39 to 24. The competition was unusually keen throughout the contest with the score standing at 14-14 late toward the end when the Seniors proved their superiority by carrying on the relay races and high jump. The results were as follows:

Running broad jump: Armstrong 1st, Goldsmith, Hardy.
High jump and jump: Seidel 5-6-7, Goldsmith, Handy.
Standing broad jump: Seidel 9.11, H. Krause, Key.
Long relay: Y. M. C. A.—Brown, Parsons, Morgenson, Seidel.
Short relay: Y. M. C. A.—Morgenson, Kelly, Armstrong, Goldsmith.
Basketball throw: Morgenson 3 points, Maennerchor—Hebble Seidel, Mueller, Hoeffer.
Running high jump: Handy, Armstrong, Hargreaves, Lambert, tied for first; stopped jumping at 4.10.

Officials: E. J. Fritz, Howard Ludlow, Austin Covey, A. Armstrong, B Pilling, L. Heibel.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Henry Meller, dean of American actor-managers, died of pneumonia tonight in New York hospital. He had been ill only a few days.

WALTER HAGEN AND JOHNNY FARRELL TO PLAY EXHIBITION HERE MAY 16TH

Two of the country's leading professional golfers, Walter Hagan and Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge pro, will play an exhibition 18-hole foursome over the course at the Norwich Golf club on Sunday afternoon, May 16th it was announced Friday evening by Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, chairman of the committee making the arrangements for the opening of the course. This is the first time in the history of the Norwich club that two golf players of such renown have honored the local club with their presence.

WALTER HAGEN

Walter Hagan is recognized as one of the greatest golfers in the world and wherever golf is played his name stands out very prominently. He has won practically every golf title of note during his time, having captured the American Open Golf title and the British Open title. Jerome D. Travers in his history of 90 years of golf ranks Hagan as second of the world's ten leading professionals and Harry Vardon is placed first in the world ranking. Travers places Hagen at the head of the American professionals with Johnny Farrell in third place.

Johnny Farrell, who is professional at Quaker Ridge, is one of the younger golf professionals and has already years of brilliant golf ahead of him. His playing is improving as can be seen in his play at the National open championship at Worcester last year when he finished one stroke behind Willie MacFarlane who captured the title.

From the brilliant records of these two golfers it can be seen that the Norwich club will have the cream of the golfing world on its course on the 16th of May. It is planned to have Farrell team with a nationally known amateur in a foursome with Hagen playing with another well known amateur. It is thought possible that two college players may play in the match.

The Hagen-Farrell match is only one of the many stellar golf attractions planned for the local club this year. There will be an invitation amateur tournament held in June for which Mrs. Charles D Noyes has given a handsome silver cup. This cup must be won three times to become a permanent possession. This invitation tourney will become an annual event and is anticipated with a little interest.

The Senior Golf Association of Connecticut will hold its tournament at the local course this summer. This is another tournament that will attract the best golfers in the state.

All during the season there will be team matches with various clubs and the local club will be represented by a team in the state team tournament.

Fair Charlotte

Fair Charlotte lived by the mountain side,
A wild and lonely spot.
No dwelling there for three miles round,
Except her father's cot.

And yet on many a winters night
Young swains were gathered there
To see her father kept a social board
And she was very fair

And her father loved to see her dress
As fine as any city belle.
For she was all he could be had.
And he loved his daughter well.

The New Years eve, the sun is down,
With storm her restless eye
Watches from the lonely window
Below
Is one merry sleigh going by?

A message she fain would send away
Invites a merry ride tonight.
The planning air is cold as death,
But her heart is warm and light.

Her sparkling beams her laughing eye
As she sees them sound the bells.
And dashing up the entrance doors
Her cousin's sleigh appears.

Adieu, daughter dear, her mother cried,
Take blanket round you fold,
For it is a dreadful night abroad.
You'll cause your death of cold

But Fair Charlotte cried,
And clapped her hands in sport delight
For I have a cotton shawl
Around my neck about

So pushed and her gloves are on,
She jumps into the sleigh.
And they ride by the mountain
Under the hills and away.

Loud howls the lonely wolf
And the wind doth blow,
And fast and more shone more cold,
Now crosses the frozen snow.

The moon shone silently,
And many cold miles they passed
When Charles with the frozen words,
The silence broke at last.

Such night as this I never saw,
The reins I scarce can hold,
And Charlotte shivering, faintly said,
I am exceeding cold.

He cracked his whip, he urged his steed
And swiftly them before.
And many a other dreary miles
And hours are passed over.

At last said Charles, "The frozen ice
Is gathering on my brow.
But Charlotte said, in feeble voice
I am growing warmer now."

And on through the frosty air they went
And gathering cold starlight,
And now at length the village inn
And ball room are in sight.

Then Charles alighted, held out his hand
To help she stirred not still?
A movement, no power to stir;
No motion and no will!

He took her hands in his—O God!
It was cold and hard as stone
He took the mantle from her face,
And the cold stars on her shone.

Then quickly to the lighted hall
Her voiceless form he bore
But Fair Charlotte was a stiffened corpse
And words spoke never more.

Everybody is

Way down deep within their hearts
Everybody's lonesome.
For within their secret parts
Everybody's lonesome.
Makes no difference how they smile
How they live or what their style:
Once in every little while
Ever body's lonesome.

People that is big affairs
Even they are lonesome.
Maybe like to put on airs,
Just the same they're lonesome
All for whom existence blends
Every good; who gain still ends
Still reach out their hands for friends;
Everybody's lonesome.

Women slick clad, jeweled fine
Yes, they too are lonesome
When their gems the brightest shine
They are just as lonesome.
Some must serve and some command
Still seek with groping hand
Love, and friends who understand.

Everybody's lonesome
Bringing your gift of friendship's small
Will answer someone's call;
Someone who is lonesome
Love and give with might and main,
Give your hands and join the chain,
And your gift will be your're gain.
Sometimes when you're lonesome

Wanted a Minister's Wife

Wanted a piece of perfection,
Washed, properly's mate
Wanted a help for our pastor
Sweet, serene and sedate.
Wanted one wisdom with virtue,
Love to his life
Wanted a minister's wife.

She must know how to darn stockings,
She must know how to make pies
She must trim her own dresses bonnets,
Her inspection by curious eyes
Must in the church and the parish,
Criticised eagly and late.
Put into all the hard places,
Then left by the rest to her fate.

Go to befriend foreign missions,
Bear to the home, work beside,
Help on the singing on Sunday,
And teach the children to guide
All of these duties are waiting
Any position for life
Where upon earth can we find her?
Wanted a minister's wife.

The Polish Boy

Whence come those shrieks? So wild and shrill
That cut like blades of steel, the air
Causing the freezing blood to chill,
With the sharp cadence of despair.

Again they come! as if a heart
Were cleft in twain by one quick blow,
And every pearl had voice apart
To utter its peculiar woe.

Whence come they? From yon temple, where
An altar raised for private prayer.
Now forms the warrior's marble bed
Who Warsaw's gallant army led.

A dim funeral taper, throws a holy lustre
Cast burnish, with its rays of light
The mass of curls that gather bright,
Above the haughty brow, and eye
Of a young boy that's kneeling by.
Back, ruffians back, nor dare to tread
Too near the body of my dead
Nor touch the living boy.

I stand between you and your lawless band
Take me, and bind these arms and hands
With Russia's heaviest iron bands
And drag me to Siberia wild
To perish if would save my child

Peace, woman peace, the leader cried
Tearing the babe boy from her side
And in the Russian grasp he bore
His victim to the temple door.

One moment, shrieked the mother, one
Will land or gold redeem my son
Take patronage, take name, take all
But leave him free from Russian thrall

Take vassal, and her white arms and hands
She stripped of rings and diamond bands
And long from braids of long black hair
The gems, that gleamed like starlight there
Her cross of blazing rubies last
Down at the Russian's feet she cast,

He stopped to seize the glittering stone
Upspringing from the marble floor
The mother with a cry of joy
Snatched to her leaping heart the boy
But no! the Russian's iron grasp
Again undid the mother's clasp.
Forward she fell with one long cry
Of more than mortal agony.

But the brave child is roused at length
He stands a giant in his strength
Of his young spirit fierce and bold.
Proudly he towers, his flashing eye
So blue and yet so bright
Seems kindled from the eternal skies
So brilliant is its light.
He drew aside his broidered vest
And there like slumbering serpents rest
The jeweled haft of poignard bright
Glittered a moment on the sight
His flashing eye and crimson cheek
Foretells the thought before he speaks

With a full voice of proud command
He turns upon the wondering band
Ha! start ye back, fool, coward, knave
Think ye, my noble fathers slave
Would drink the life blood of a slave?
This blade would quiver in my breast
Ashamed of such ignoble rest.
No! thus I rend the tyrant's chain
And fling him back a boy's disdain.

Up, mother, I'm free, I'm free
The choice was death or slavery
Up, mother, look on the son
His freedom is forever won.

And now he waits one holy kiss
To bear his father home, in bliss
One last embrace, one blessing one
To prove, thou knowest, approvist thy son

Up, mother up, can'st thou not feel
My warm blood o'er thy heart congeal
Speak, Mother speak, lift up thy head
What! silent still, then art thou dead?
Great God! I thank thee
Mother! I rejoice with thee and thus to die
One long, deep breath and his pale head
Lay on his mother's bosom—dead.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

CRETIA: Letter sent as requested.

JACK'S WIFE: Thank you. Greetings in return.

L. T. H.: Many thanks. Matter has been referred to proper department.

LADY LOU: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

DELIAH DEAL GAINING SLOWLY

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I am getting so I can use my right hand and arm a little and so am going to try and see if I can write a little to you all. I am so I sit up a little every day and see all who can find time and inclination to call. I get very lonesome and homesick when a day goes by and no one comes in. One Sunday no one called and when the door came I called his attention to a little china dog some one sent to my husband a year or two ago that had painted across the front Nobody Loves Me I said I haven't said that today but have said several times today nobody comes to our town Sundays.

Thank you all for sending me such kind letters, Jack's Wife, Interested Reader and others. Also for the nice letters sent through the Social Corner page. How I enjoy them as my friends so kindly read them to me. My eyes are very bad and I can not see to read or even look at pictures much My left hand, arm, leg and fobt are very nearly helpless. The doctor says it is nervous paralysis, but he says if I will have patience and wait it will get well It will have to be slow and take a long time.

My dear sister who has been with me since I collapsed the middle of February has got to be home May first As I look through my blue glasses most of the time I don't know what I can do. How I wish I knew of some place where semi invalids could get boarded and care I cannot care for myself but cannot hear of such a place.

Loretta: Received your letter. Wished it had been a call from you.

Twice Twenty: How I wish it was time for your blackberries and I could buy a few.

Hope! How I would like to have a visit, or even a call, from you. Also all the other sisters.

I want to thank you all for your sympatay and loving messages sent through the Corner page With love and best wishes.

DELIAH DEAL.

SURPRISED AND GRATEFUL

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I wish to thank Club No 5 for the beautiful hyacinth given me. I was certainly some surprised when Auntie Bee, brought it.

Patty: That cake was all right.

Aunty No. 1: I had a lovely time at your home and enjoyed the meeting very much. It has been some time since I attended a meeting but will try to be at the next one.

APPROVES ARMITAGE'S SUGGESTION

Dear Social Corner Friends: I was interested on picking up my Saturday's paper as my eyes caught a glimpse of Armitage's suggestion about giving some thing to the Old Ladies home. I think it a grand idea and how nice it would be for each member to give a small amount and get a nice bed spread or two in yellow and white our Corner colors and give to them from all our Social Corner members.

Peter Prose: I think I know who is who. Do you live in T—N? Hope to meet you some day.

L. T. H.: How are you? Suppose very busy getting ready to do your spring work. Hope you can raise some more of those lovely beans like you gave Violet so she can give me some this summer, (ha! ha!) as I heard her say she got some last summer up there. I am going to call Violet over the phone some time soon.

Think the poem the face on the floor is a sad one, but how true. If only one could see ahead and avoid such sad endings.

Crimson Rambler: How are you? Suppose you went to Easter Sunday church services and wore your new Easter outfit. Kinder cool and breezy out though for this time of year.

"Hope to hear from more of the sisters in Social Corner page about the gifts for the Old Ladies home. I'll close with best wishes to all the Corner friends.

JUST I.

UNUSUAL RECIPES

Dear Cornerites: Here are a few unusual recipes:

Orange Pudding: 1 cup sugar, 1 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 3-4 cup orange marmalade.

Melt the sugar, butter and orange marmalade in a sauce pan on the back of the stove. Cool slightly and add flour (sifting three times) and now the eggs beaten separtely. Dissolve the soda in a tablespoon of water and beat in with the rest of the ingredients. Steam 2 hours and serve with any rich sauce.

Sifting flour three times gives the pudding a wonderfully light texture. If you do not use orange marmalade use one which has a bitter tang. Personally we like this as a cake. It is so rich and has such a wonderful flavor. This is the sauce I make: The white of one egg beaten stiff, then add yolk and beat that with 4 tablespoons confectioner's sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cheese Pie: One cup grated cheese 3 tablespoons chili sauce, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 1-2 teaspoons grated green pepper, 4 olives chopped fine. Salt to taste.

Mix cheese, seasonings, milk and well beaten egg. Pour the mixture into tart shells made of pastry shaped in muffin tins or use a large pie crust. I like the cross bars of pastry across the top and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) until custard is set. This pie is delicious served hot or cold.

Parsnip Pie: 8 parsnips, 1-3 pound salt pork, 2 potatoes, 1 tablespoon butter.

Boil parsnips with pork in water enough to cover until parsnips are tender. Then cut pork into thin slices and line a deep dish with it. Put in a layer of sliced potatoes that have been parboiled in salted water. Sprinkle with a few bits of butter and seasoning, then a layer of sliced parsnips and repeat until the dish is full. Cover with the water in which the pork and parsnips were boiled Cover the whole with a rich baking powder biscuit and bake until done.

Eggless Cake (requested): 1 cup sugar, sifted 4 times, 1-3 cup of fresh butter or lard, 4 cups flour sifted 4 times, 2 cups butter milk, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon all spice, 1 teaspoon of nutmeg, the spices all sifted with flour, 1 pound raisins, seeded and cut, 1 teaspoon baking powder dissolved in 1 tablespoon boiling water. Flavor with orange and vanilla blended.

Spice Cake: 1 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, sifted three times, 3 cups of flour sifted five times, 1 scant cup molasses, 1 cup buttermilk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs beaten together, 1 roundling teaspoon cinnamon, 1 scant teaspoon of nutmeg.

Mix all together and bake in square pan.

SISTER AMY'S BIRTHDAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: On Sister Amy's birthday 11 members or Social Corner club number 1 including myself met at the home of our good friend Sis Hopkins and had a most enjoyable time.

We were royally entertained with music, dancing and wonderful dinner, also a wonderful birthday cake I did not take the cake but did take my first prize for guessing Sister Amy's correct age.

I have just returned from a pleasant visit to my old home town, Greenwich Conn.

I wonder if many of the sisters have ever visited there.

I only wish I could describe in writing the beauties of this town, but that is an impossibility; it would have to be seen to be appreciated, for as many as 15 or 20 years ago it was commonly called the Newport of Connecticut. But today with its many hundreds of palatial residences, and estates of wealthy people, it greatly exceeds Newport, R. I.

On Easter Sunday morning a number of my relatives and I attended the service at Christ Episcopal church in that town. It was well worth one's while to travel many miles to attend such a service.

It was a wonderful sight to see the long lines of automobiles as far as one could look on both sides of beautiful Putnam avenue where the church is situated and two traffic officers on duty to attend to the parking of them.

Would appreciate having one of the Social Corner pins if I'm not too late in asking for it.

Best wishes to all from

CONAWAH.

GREETINGS FROM L. T. H.

Editor, Sisters and Brothers of Social Corner: Hello all. Am pleased to see so many new members, also to hear from the old writers who have been silent so long.

Joan: Many thanks for nice birthday letter. I would like the verses you spoke of. I am so pleased with the others you sent. You beat me, I haven't got anything planted yet but will soon as seeds come.

Violet: Tried your soup. Lacked cheese so put in a can of string beans It was nice; try it. Am sorry there are so many sick ones there. Hope the little ones are out of danger now The grip is worse than ever this spring with small children I think. Got home all right, and made the soup.

Armitage: Think your plan for the Social Corner room in the new Sheltering Arms Would be fine. I would like to crochet a rug for a room.

Peter Prose: Thank you for telling me how to substitute for brown sugar in the skillet pie. Since I asked you about it I find the great A & P keep it, so sent by a friend and got some. It is lovely.

Oh! Oh!: Where are those poems you spoke of. Thought I was going to get some of them to read, and you were going to write a letter to the Social Corner. Hope you did not get scared that day and cannot write any more, ha! ha! Sorry you have been on sick list. Hope you are well now.

J. E. L.: Many thanks for lovely birthday cards from you and sister-in-law. I enjoyed all the cards and letters so much. Am glad Joan came to see you. Were I near enough you would see me. Never mind summer will come some time. Then must we wish for some of this cool air. Haven't heard a peep frog yet, but dug angle worms two weeks ago and got onion bed ready to plant and soon as they come. It is so muddy and roads are so rough.

Too Late: I would like to come to your first dinner and meet old and new acquaintances. It has been a long time since I went to a Corner gathering, but do enjoy reading about them in the Corner page.

Votami: The fudge cake is fine but I used cocoa as I did not have the chocolate.

Guess Who: I think the clam pie must be delicious. Just wait until the mud gets settled and our fish man can come along. I will make one. I do love all kinds of fish, clams and oysters. Used to live where I could have all I wanted fresh right out of the salt water and it was hard to get used to these stale fish we have to take or go without.

Honoray: I am going to try your fudge, when the little ones get well. They do all love fudge, so I try different ways of making it and I have not had my sweet tooth pulled yet' so help me it up.

What a cold Easter day, it seems more like February than it does April. Best wishes to all the sick and shut ins.

FLOWERS RECEIVED BY REMEMBER ME

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As you all know I have been very sick and am now so have not been able to write but want to send word today that I've received the beautiful pot of daffodils from Club No. 2 and this afternoon the florist brought a handsome begonia from Club No. 5. I shall enjoy them very much, and wish to thank you all.

I am some better than I was and would like to have any of the sisters call and see me.

REMEMBER ME.

GLYCERINE

Dear Editor and Sisters: May I suggest the following for kitchen curtains: White voile trimmed in apple green and white gingham. Have an ordinary sash curtain, with runner for the rod trimmed with 2 inch border of check Gingham at the inner side and bottom of curtains. For side drapes going from top of the window to sill, get your length of gingham in halves and turn in a small hem. Sew the top of the window have a valance of the gingham nine inches deep. If you don't care for the green substitute any color you wish.

Miss Y. Ointment, (requested): 3 tablespoons of marrow, 1-3 teaspoon oxide of zinc. Place marrow on stove, let simmer and strain. When almost cold beat in the oxide of zinc, put in jar, keep where it is cool.

English Fruit Cake or Pudding: (requested) 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, sifted three times, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup unsweetened apple sauce, or 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon 1-4 teaspoon of cloves, 2 cups flour sifted 2 times, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon salt. Cream butter, add sugar, raisins, then apple sauce or sour milk and flour, mixed with soda, salt and spices. Beat well and bake in bread tins 1 1-2 hours in a slow oven.

I really think glycerine is not an appreciated substance. It is really a wonderful help and useful to the housekeeper if one would only try it.

For laundry purposes it is invaluable for blankets, flannels and, indeed all matrials for which softened water is imperative. Use one tablespoon of glycerine to a bucketful (large) in which large and cumbrous things as blankets would be washed. Glycerine is exceedingly useful applied to boots, when these have been impaired and hardened by damp wet or mud it prevents cracks and infinitely signs of wear.

One teaspoon or glycerine to every pound of flour when making bread or cake is a great improvement. Both doughs will be "shorter" and the article when baked will keep fresh much longer.

A tablespoon of glycerine to every pound of fruit used in making jams etc., will do away altogether with the early crystalization which is the bane of the tariffy housewife.

DEALING WITH BAD TEMPER

Dear Sisters: The children's bad temper does not rank as a vice, its effect ultimately may be as harmful and makes more unhappiness in a home than almost any other fault. Parents therefore who have their children's well being at heart will do well to check it before it becomes totally ungovernable.

It should be wrestled with early and overcome if possible. As punishment for an outburst of temper a holiday or promised treat should be canceled, or the child should be sent to bed. The young naturally crave from praise and love so perhaps this most effectual and most way to deal with this fault is to inculcate in the child the dread of going through life unpopular and disliked on account of a trait which is quite possible to alter for the better, if he really wishes to do so.

But before taking measures to cure a child's temper, parents should endeavor to probe the matter to the root, and so ascertain the cause of the irritation It is so usual for children to be happy and light hearted that peevishness is more often than not the outcome of some physical infirmity and if this is the case, radical treatment of a child's body will be more just than punishment. Then, again violent temper is sometimes hereditary and when this is so the unfortunate possessor of this legacy should be dealt with firmly but with great circumspection Corporal punishment would be very unwise for this offense It will be hard of course, to cure a bad temper without the cooperation of the one responsible and parents must do this. I am going to consider this deadly sin. When a child shows a disposition to amend, a few words of encouragement should be given and sometimes a little reward.

DROP DOUGHNUTS

Dear Editor and Everybody: I want some of the sisters to try my drop doughnuts though I am sure some of them have before now but for those that haven't here's the recipe.

Drop Doughnuts: Beat together 2 eggs, add one pint milk, one tablespoon of melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt. Mix in flour enough to allow spoon to stand up right in the mixture. Beat all until light, drop from a tablespoon that has been dipped in the hot fat and have your fat boiling hot and allow them to brown quickly. They are very nice and much easier to make than the rolled out doughnuts, and when company comes, while they are removing their grans you can have a panful made fresh.

Best wishes to all.

PETER PROSE.

SUGGESTIONS FOR CLUB 6'S NEXT MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I feel I can no longer keep silent but must contribute a mite to the Corner I so much enjoy. As "out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh". I must mention the organization of Club No. 6, the Shore Line club. What a delightful time we had and we certainly owe much to those who made it possible for us to meet. I was very glad to make the acquaintance (?) of E. L. M. and very glad indeed to see so many interested. Poor Rebecca! what a shame to give her such a surprise! I have not seen her since, but expect to find her gray. In our W. C. T. U. we have a thank offering box and when we are especially thankful for anything we drop in a penny, when I received a card from B. Natural telling of her fortunate escape from pneumonia I immediately dropped in two.

I hope all will go to the next meeting prepared to contribute something to the social hour. Let each one take a pad and pencil, and when the good things are passed around they may jot them down for future reference. We should be able to get some new recipes for different things, and household helps in general. Please don't forget to bring along any funny story or anecdote to mix in. This must be not only a social club, but one of sunshine as well. Here's hoping all may be present when the roll is called, and I will answer to the name of

DOROTHY BRADFORD.

HELPS FROM FOXGLOVE

Dear Editor and Sisters: Seems to me I promised to send in Mavis' new address I think it is 138 Capen street Hartford. Is this is not right will Mavis please correct it?

I did enjoy the anniversary meeting March 10. Mr. Foxglove came home the following Monday from Florida where he had been for his health. He stayed home ten days and now is in the Hartford hospital. I know he would be pleased as well as surprised to get cards from some of the sisters as he has heard Whirlwind and me say so much about our lovely times with you. Mr. W. H. Francis Ward 5, Hartford hospital. He will be there about three weeks longer.

I am so sorry Whirlwind and I cannot attend the Social Corner meeting April 14th but that is the day for the grand lodge session of the N. E. O. P. and we both go

I am going to Hartford every other day so I get pretty tired. I am so sorry for all the sick and bereaved ones.

Twin Pedro: Thanks for letter and seeds. Will try and answer soon.

Balsam Fir: Son thanks you for his birthday card. Have I answered your last letter? I think so but am not sure.

Joan: Did you get my missent letter O. K.?

Jennie: How did pictures come out? Sorry I can't go to Social Corner this month but will try next month As Whirlwind if we travel under 20 miles per hour now.

The Same One: We hope to get to your place this summer if you have the Social Corner sisters.

Maple Leaf: Have not forgotten the slow time we had at your house last year; also at Helpers.

Am sending a few useful household hints. I am always glad to learn new and helpful things from the rest of you so will pass on a few whether new or not.

To make crust flaky add 1-3 teaspoonful vinegar to the cold water you use in making pie crust. See if you don't have flaky crust as a result.

You can freshen vegetables that have wilted by letting them stand an hour in water to which has been added the juice of a lemon.

A good way to sprinkle your clothes is to dip a whiskbroom in lukewarm water—it dampens more easily and quickly than by hand.

Drive away moths by sprinkling a little borax under your carpets, or apply gasoline with a sponge or brush to your carpets.

A brush is better than a cloth to remove dust from window sashes, baseboards and corners. You can have assorted sizes

To cream butter and sugar use a perforated spoon instead of a fork. You will find the results much more satisfactory

Old pieces of velvet or velveteen should be saved and used in polishing furniture.

To remove ink from silk, wool or cotton goods saturate the spot with spirits of turpentine. Let remain for sometime and rub with the hands until the stain is removed.

Clean your oil mop with hot water ammonia and a little washing powder. You'll find this much less difficult than the ordinary soap and water method.

Dip slices of mush into whites of eggs before frying and they will be crisp and brown—just as you like them.

The sting from a bad burn will often be alleviated by the application of kerosene.

Wash your plants occasionally in soapsuds to kill insects and keep others away.

Before cutting freshly baked bread dip the knife in boiling water You will not tear the loaf or leave uneven jagged edges.

Here is a salad recipe I got over the radio and its very pretty to serve with sandwiches for an afternoon luncheon.

Clean as many large sweet green peppers as you expect guests, boil same number of eggs hard, place egg in center of each pepper by placing toothpicks through sides of pepper with egg. Pour any pink or red jelly into pepper and let set—Cut in slices and place on bed of lettuce and cover with mayonnaise dressing. This is very pretty for it gives a layer of green, red, white and yellow

Glad to see so many new members joining our ranks. Also another club formed. Keep up the good work and lets go through the entire year with a prayer in our heart and a song in our lips—Hurrah for the Social Corner.

With best wishes.

FOXGLOVE. (May 10)

HINTS FOR FLOWER BEDS

Dear Corner folks: I want all who could not attend the meeting in Putnam of Club No. 4, under the direction of the Pomfret and Putnam sisters to know what a good time we had. All there seemed to be banished for the time being and every one out for a good time. The dinner was of the best as it always is. Feeling obliged to leave at 1:30 had to miss the entertainment and ice cream, also a chance of winning the cake, which I believe was carried off by Esmeralda.

Deliah Deal: Hope you are feeling better every day and in every way. And here is the recipe for salad dressing which you asked me to send in again

Salad Dressing that requires no Cooking: One can condensed milk, one cup vinegar, one tablespoon mustard one teaspoon salt, two eggs Beat all together thoroughly and it will keep indefinitely. Used for any kind of salads.

Had the pleasure of a nice call from Auntie Bee and Valentine. Hope the next one will be longer, sisters. Thanks to Auntie Bee for nice card

Honoray: Zany and I have not missed a meal this winter so the "ill winds that blow" have not hit us very hard. Do you suppose that Just Pete has decided to arrive [illegible] away?

Votami: Surprised to know that you saw Zany at the Putnam meeting for I did not, so perhaps you will see "Pete" also.

We expect warmer weather some fine day so am sending in some hints for the flower beds which may interest some of the Corner readers. There are many more readers than writers so these are for the readers. Golden wave calliopsis and candytuft, or the calliopsis alone bordered with alyssum.

White asters and crimson phlox used the same.

Double sweet alyssum for the border and a mixture of plants for the rest.

Double white geranium surrounded with rosy pink oxalis. Oxalis when planted in a mass make a very showy bed and are sure to succeed needing little care after being planted in the fall you will find a number of bulbs where one was planted.

If the bed is a sunny one salpoglossis bordered with portulaca. Lobelias are hardy and make nice edging for beds

The old fashioned garden pink is a fine border plant. Also the little gem ping makes a splendid edging.

Statice armenia, or thrift, will grow in almost and soil, and the plants form a very ornamental edging being compact and almost as rounded as though clipped.

Summer flowering oxalis planted three inches apart will produce an unbroken row of pretty foliage and flowers, making an attractive border the whole season.

If you love delicate white flowers plant seeds of buckwheat, which is also fine for winter blooming.

I have a poinsettia with two blossoms on it now. Best of wishes for all and especially the sick and shut ins Thanks for Easter cards sent me.

TWICE TWENTY (Club 4)

GREETINGS FROM TROTTIE

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Months have elapsed since taking my pen in hand to address you dear ones My long stay at the hospital and so long regaining my strength has taken the pep out of me. But I wish to thank Theoda for the card she sent me during my stay at the hospital. I had many friends sending me cards and flowers. I am trying to get out but the winds keep up so strong I find I cannot endure them. It took me a long time to get acclimated after coming from the hospital where a blanket must be around you when you begin to sit up.

Huldy is not at all well herself. If any of the sisters would like to send a card to her at 74 Chestnut street, Willimantic, Conn. it would be nice to remember her. I know it often happens it is not known when a sister is not well unless mentioned to the sisters or the Corner.

It seems I have lost track of so many of the sisters.

Jennie: How are you? I find your face coming before me. But a long time since our talk of your mother whom I so well knew as attending school at time I did.

Sorry to hear of accident to Roxana Wince but hope she will soon come out right

All will be glad our winter and snow is nearly gone. The birds are singing and I hear them before I have arisen, as the trees are near my windows, and bac kof the house are woods of pine and other kinds of trees. But fear I may be making my letter too long, so many thoughts come in my mind. My only trip passed away last December the 11th, in Connecticut. It was sudden and a great shock to me and as I had not got my strength was not able to go there. It was more than I could bear. So that's come to all sooner or later, and in our God can we find joy [illegible] the only source at such times. May all the sisters I might say keep in health—then I thought of all the large number of sisters in the Corner and to think all which I escape sickness is almost impossible. Many in our small town have gone with pneumonia. It behooves us to be careful about caring for ourselves and the taking sudden chills at this time of sudden changes in our climate.

Sympathy for all who are ailing.

TROTTIE.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am sending a few miscellaneous clippings which I thought might be helpful.

If tarred paper is put over mice holes the mice will not gnaw through

One may make a fair imitation of maple syrup by boiling together two cups brown sugar and one cup of water for five minutes and flavoring with vanilla.

When potatoes get old and are unsatisfactory when cooked, a slice of lemon added to the water in which they are boiled will prevent them from discoloring.

It is said that a teaspoon of ground ginger added to the fat in which doughnuts are fried will keep them from absorbing too much fat

A few drops of oil of lavender sprinkled on the shelves of the book case will prevent the books from molding in damp weather. If leather bindings have become moldy wipe them off with a slightly oiled cloth.

A corn popper may be made to fill various offices in the kitchen, to crisp cereals toast bread boil eggs wash small fruits, sift dirt for plants and so on.

When cutting pieces for quilts make your pattern of table oil cloth, having the rough side on the goods. It will not slip and you can cut more accurately.

Vaseline with a bit of lanolin added makes a good dressing for tan leather leather shoes and when well rubbed in, gives a fine shine

For tired, tender and sore feet get two ounces of alcohol and one ounce of oil of sassafras, mix well and rub all over the feet twice a day, and in a few days you will be surprised at the result This is a no good for corns, callouses and bunions.

I wish best wishes for the Corner and love and sympathy for all in trouble. I remain yours for the Corner.

MAYFLOWER.

GREETINGS FROM JOAN

Dear Social Corner Friends: I'm pleased to see so many letters Sometime when I have time am going to send in a letter on How to Avoid Sleepless Nights and think Practical Polly and Ma of Greene Babes would like to read it.

Cretia: It was kind of you to tell us about the sister that has passed on and her real name. I am trying to keep a list

R. N. C. T.: Wish I had the words of the song you asked for, the one I have is No One to Love, None to Caress. I've heard the one you spoke of many years ago.

Balsam Fir: Guess its no use that is dilatory this time.

Marigold: I was with you in thought and would like to have been there in person but did not feel equal to the task

Foxglove: That letter took quite a ride; it got here just the same. Hope all are well. Hope sometime I can attend the Shore Line club.

Best wishes to all.

JOAN.

Has Become a Household Word

MUST HUSTLE TO KEEP UP WITH NO. 6

Dear Corner Sisters: Here I come again for another little chat. I want to thank Mrs. M. for the trouble she took to write off the poetry Toe Face on the Floor, for me. I received it the first of the week and was very much surprised to receive it so soon. Also thank Esmeralda for sending it in to the Corner

I wish to thank all the sisters who sent me cards at Easter, also thank True Blue for pretty gift I can also [illegible] who sees this if it were [illegible] and cold I rather thought Mrs. of Greene Gables was housekeeping she was keeping so quiet. She should receive a prize for being the first one through two years in success so. My nothing like owning all through early.

Black Eyed Susie: Expect you will be the next one to report.

The Groom: Thank you for nice letter. I want to write you a personal one in answer to that. I only wish I may be able to accept your kind invitation.

To the members of Club No. 2, I say get a hustle on or else we will be left in the fog by Club No. 6. I am told they are a buzzy of the wires. I thought when they got started they would flourish. What a goodly number turned out for the forming of the Shore Line. I think some of the new names I see in The Bulletin belong to No. 6. What a large family we are getting to be now with all the [illegible] and all arriving to do the best they can.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

SHORE LINE MEETS APRIL 20

Dear Social Corner Sisters: On account of sickness we have decided to hold the second meeting of the Shore Line club on April 20 at the Grange hall in North Stonington, instead of at Rebecca's home, and all Social Corner members and any friends who care to [illegible] are cordially invited to attend. The picnic plan as is usual, will be carried out each one bringing their own dishes, etc. There is plenty of room to park.

To those who do not know and [illegible] on the [illegible] at No. 1 Stonington post office and go up the hill, turn to left and keep on until you see the hall and yellow ribbon We are expecting something pretty fine from Dorothy Bradford.

Hoping to see you all Tuesday, April 20.

PICKS NAME OF ANOTHER

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: Having attended the meeting of the Social Corner at Tattine's home in Stonington and enjoyed it so much I would like to join the Social Corner, and become a member of Club No. 6. Would like to take for my pen name

JANET.

(Having selected a pen name that belongs to another please make another choice and it will be recorded.—S. C. Editor).

A NEW CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor of Social Corner: If you have room for another member I would be very glad to join. I will take the name of

HEN HOUSES PRESERVE PROSPERITY IN TEXAS

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 8.—The hen house has replaced the oil derrick in the older fields of west Texas and it is proving a pillar to support the structure of boom-time prosperity at something like its actual peak.

A recent survey shows that there [illegible] not one of the six famous oil [illegible] west Texas that is not [illegible] ter cut than before the first gushers was brought in.

Hedger, Hardtmeir, Breckenridge, Lee-Lind, Desdemona, Electra—all names to conjure with a few years since—have failed to [illegible] reverses suffered by [illegible] general [illegible] and [illegible] taken the expected hangover out of their spree. The [illegible] while here has been the [illegible] new and lasting prosperity.

Accessories of good motor and road terminal fever are well known. Their ghost towns dot the far west.

Oil fever is less baneful for two reasons One is that the owners of the soil realizes from its lease almost as much as does the operator. Another is that petroleum [illegible] usually attacks land already valuable for agriculture Taking advantage of both the west Texan has entrenched himself in the affluence the boom brought

One of the most spectacular developments took place at Ranger. Here the population jumped in a 12-month from 761 to 14,000, and is now around 10,000. Ranger was founded nearly 60 years ago as a state ran or ranch so the saddle leather cannot be attributed to anything but oil. It was in the heyday of its boom in January 1919 but today has a $2,000,000 annual payroll, eight churches and many industrial establishments The reason it did not decline with the end of the boom will be [illegible]

Last and most [illegible] Graham's growth, having climbed to a [illegible] space from 500 to 6000 population. In appearance it probably is the most of a city as any place its size in Texas. Here, too are poultry ranches in numbers as well as at Desdemona, Cisco—which did not quite achieve fame as an oil center—Rising Star, Goodland and [illegible] Here [illegible] Here [illegible] White Leghorn [illegible] through "Black gold" Breckenridge [illegible] poultry raiser's paradise and is credited having an excellent local market

Some four and one [illegible] years ago H. Bush came to Eastland county the slogan of which now is Egg Basket of Texas, as agricultural agent. He found hundreds of farms abandoned because of the oil boom and agriculture on the wane. He made a survey of the territory, laid out a program and started in to preach poultry. But interest was small.

Finally, taking a big rooster under his arm, Bush walked the streets to get a crowd together. Then he expounded [illegible] A small [illegible] was made, and through the efforts of R. Q. Lee, of Cisco, now president of the West Texas chamber of Commerce, who went to Petaluma, Calif., to study the business the interest grew. Since then [illegible] several other west Texas counties have sent representatives to Petaluma.

Several of [illegible] eventually organized the Bunkhead Poultry Producers [illegible] named for the Bankhead highway which [illegible] the county. The [illegible] incubation was made [illegible] with the purchase of a [illegible] incubator. The [illegible] now [illegible] a new [illegible] eggs [illegible] week [illegible] [illegible] 150,000 annually. [illegible] White [illegible] county is [illegible] laying hens and an increase of at least 50 per cent in the present number is to be effected this year.

Dozens of community plants are springing up, [illegible] more farmers are running from 200 to 1,000 hens in their flocks as side lines to agriculture. A big business is done in day-old chicks Association eggs, especially in hot weather, command a big premium, on account of the high standard of its product.

The notable thing in this connection is the evenness with which these same towns have gone in for paying. Some of the best hard-surfaced roads in the state are to be found in Eastland Stephens and other oil counties of west Texas.

DEARTH IN BLACKSMITHS ADDS ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR ARMY

WASHINGTON, April [illegible] — Motorization of America has almost swept away the horse blacksmith and his helper and the change has brought an added problem to the army, which needs a reserve of such [illegible] to care for the 50,000 or more mounts and teams which would be needed in a full strength mobilization

In peace times the army uses about 17,000 horses and [illegible] While a month after a war mobilization had been ordered that number would increase to more than 200,000 in active service and requiring constant attention. Yet, repeated surveys disclose that [illegible] as blacksmiths apprentices and [illegible] general horseshoers of the [illegible] of 45 years or more who [illegible] the trade before the era [illegible] horseless carriage had arrived.

The army experience [illegible] that while the [illegible] of automobiles has reduced the use of draft horses it has served to increase the demand for riding animals, as horse lovers now are able to get quickly out of the cities by motor to enjoy country riding and hunting. There also has been an upgrade in the [illegible] animals in cities and congested areas where wagons are held to take up less space by [illegible] than motor trucks.

The draft animal population of the country is placed at [illegible] 5,000,000 and half of that number [illegible] animals From this [illegible] experts argue that there is a wide range for horseshoers

A survey in New York state showed but two horseshoeing apprentices a year.

Police, after an investigation of the death of the Rev. A. H. Nikolin, pastor of the orthodox church in Wilkesbarre Pa., his wife and son, announced that they were convinced the clergyman had shot and killed Mrs. Nikolin and the boy and then ended his own life in a period of insanity.

WESTERLY

UTILITIES COM. INSPECTS RAILROAD STATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 9. — Chief Engineer E. Irving Rudd of Glenbrook, Charles C. Elwell and others of the Connecticut Public Utilities commission, with Division Superintendent R. N. Smith, Trainmaster William J. Smith and assistants of the New Haven railroad, made up the inspection party on board the Central New England, No. 300, combination and observation car which visited Westerly Friday noon. The parlor car was attached to the New Haven road engine Naugatuck, and proceeded east as far as the siding at the cutting shops of the Joseph Coduri company, off Oak street. This annual inspection of the commission began April 5th and will continue through April 15th. Friday morning, the special train left Putnam at 7:30 a. m., where the inspection for the day had begun, and continued for 45 miles to Groton, thence to Westerly, 17 miles. From the Pawcatuck river bridge, the boundary line between the state of Rhode Island and Connecticut, the inspection work continued for 36 miles toward New Haven, and continued to New Haven where the party remained Friday night. Station agents along the line endeavored to have their stations in the best possible condition, especial attention being given to the condition of offices. Warning has been also given by R. M. Smith, superintendent, to agents and operators that Wednesday, June 16th a special train with General Superintendent Shepard and party will be operated from New London to Saybrook, thence to Kingston, R. I. This party will inspect pole lines, wire crossings, telephones and telegraph office equipment.

RESCUED BY LADDER IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. April 9—Members of the families of Henry S. James and Frank Trimbach, residing at 73 Beach street, Westerly, Friday morning about 5 o'clock, were aroused by crackling flames and suffocating smoke. The men of the family escaped none too soon down the stairway, while the women had to be taken out a second story window on a ladder. The Westerly fire department responded with Chief Egger to a three-alarm call from Box No. 46, Beach and Clark streets, to find smoke pouring from the house in clouds and the cellar and second floor stairways a mass of flames. Water was poured in from two hydrant streams and when the fire was extinguished several thousand dollars of damage, partly covered by insurance, had been brought, holes burned in the south roof, and the contents wrecked.

Mrs. Lou S. Trimbach, wife of Frank Trimbach and daughter of Henry S. James, owner of the house, roused her husband, shortly before 5 o'clock when she heard the cracking of the fire. Mr. Trimbach rushed downstairs and opening the cellar stairway, after he had seized a pail of water was badly burned on his left hand and had his hair and eyebrows singed by the burst of flame which struck outward. He was attended later by Dr. John W. Helfrich. He slammed the door and rushed to the fire alarm box, when the rest of the household had been aroused. Mr. James also came down the stairway just in the nick of time. On his way to the alarm box Mr. Trimbach was seen by Samuel Bliven, a neighbor, who rushed barefoot to the house to help Mr. James raise a ladder to the front of the house to a second story window out of which Miss Ethel James, another daughter of Mr. James, was leaning. She was enabled to descend to the ground clad only in her night clothes. Earl Trimbach, a crippled son was brought out by his father. It was with more difficulty that Mrs. H. Emma James, Mrs. James' wife, was brought down the ladder, for she was nervous and suffocating smoke filled the house. All found refuge in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bliven.

The fire, it is supposed, started from an asbestos covering of a cellar pipe. The flames jumped from the cellar stairway to a partition and came out on the second floor flight.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., T. Edward Peabody, worshipful master, of Pawcatuck, received an official visitation and inspection Thursday evening in the Masonic rooms on High street. Right Worshipful Deputy Harry L. Morton of Wooster lodge, No. 59, F. and A. M., of Colchester, district deputy of the Eight Masonic district of Connecticut, was the inspecting officer, the work being the first or entered apprentice degree by the home officers. Among those present were the most worshipful grand master of Masons of Connecticut, Arthur Nathan Nash of Pawcatuck and Past Grand Master Thomas McKenzie of Westerly, both past masters of Pawcatuck lodge. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening's session, and the district deputy returned to his home in Colchester.

At the session of third district court Friday morning no cases were tried. Judge Oliver H. Williams read the following Criminal docket:

State, Frank H. Brown, chief of police town of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Harry H. Ulman. Continued two weeks.

State, Thomas B. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, complainant, vs. Angelo Turano. Continued two weeks.

State, Amos L. Kenyon, director of public aid of the town of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. Richard Waters. Continued two weeks.

State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police, town of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. Georgietta Jordan. Continued two weeks.

State, William L. Kay, complainant, vs. Albert Jordan. Continued two weeks.

Civil docket:

Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci. Continued two weeks.

Richard J. Lord, vs. Teffts Motor Mart. Continued one week.

Attorney Roche asked Judge Williams what had become of a forfeiture case of liquors seized by Rhode Island state police, March 30th, from Phillip Lena Brundage of Carolina, R. I. Judge Williams said that such a case was not entered and therefore not before the court.

Attorney Roche remarked that "it was high time that liquors seized by state officers of Rhode Island were returned, or a case presented in court against his client."

Court adjourned. Soon after adjournment, a sergeant of Rhode Island state police and a trooper put in an appearance outside the court house and claimed that they had come down from the state barracks for the purpose, but court had adjourned.

It was reported that another defendant from Carolina was in court represented by attorney, who at the time his place was raided in Carolina insisted that a search warrant be shown to him before the state troopers proceeded. The search at the Brundage place, said to have been made without a warrant, also, netted one quart bottle of whiskey, reported found in the kitchen. At the time the search included the garage and a thorough going over of the house.

Non-Com. changes were announced Friday by Captain John F. Datson, commander, of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.) stationed at the state armory, Westerly. Promotions as listed in a special order from regimental headquarters in Providence, include the following:

To be sergeants—Corp. Edward Smith, (vice Card, reduced); Pvt. Clarence F Maxwell (vice Maxwell, discharged).

To be corporals—Pvt. Henry Kingsley, (vice Sherman, discharged); Pvt. John Sullivan, (vice Spencer, discharged); Pvt. Elmer Cushman, (vice C. Dionne, discharged); Pvt. Louis Blanchard, (vice Schackner, discharged).

Arrangements are being made for a parade of local military and patriotic organizations prior to the concert to be given on May 1, by the 243rd Coast Artillery band.

In an effort to secure some clew as to the whereabouts or possible disposition of office equipment taken from two offices on Granite street, in Westerly several weeks ago, C. H. Abbott, representing Hedman Manufacturing company of Chicago, Ill., makers of the F. & E. check writer, and George Ahern of Providence, representing the Underwood Typewriter company, have been in town consulting Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown in relation to the theft of machines from the office of the Smith Granite company and the Granite Street Garage a week ago last Tuesday.

A special meeting of the qualified voters of the town of Stonington has been called for April 14th by Selectman John Fribance of Mystic. Arthur F. Babcock of Pawcatuck and Joseph A. Vargas of Stonington borough as a result of a meeting held the first of the week when a petition was received by them from voters in Pawcatuck. The petition, signed by Henry P. Walton and 23 others, requests that permission be given Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to show moving pictures in the village of Pawcatuck for the purpose of raising funds to erect a memorial in Pawcatuck to those who served in the World war.

AN ACCIDENT REVEALED BOOZE IN BRONX MAN'S CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 9—Samuel Leitner, 25, residing at 1507 Nelson avenue, Bronx, with a business address 1500 Broadway, N. Y., was before Judge William A. Wilcox, in a special session Stonington town court on Friday morning on two complaints. He pleaded guilty to the first and not guilty to a second, but was fined guilty on both a complaint of transporting intoxicating liquors and driving an automobile in Stonington borough whilen under the influence of intoxicating liquors. He was fined $100 on the first and $150 on the second, paying a total of $267.33 for which he tendered a check in payment. His automobile was held at a garage in Stonington where $600 worth of repairs are being made on the Marmon sedan SX3000 Y.

Leitner was proceeding from New York to visit relatives and friends in Providence, who were reported as being ill. Previous to his departure from New York, so the story was told, his father entrusted to him a filled prescription—six quarts of Old Smuggler Whiskey in six one-quart bottles; four quarts of whiskey, one bottle partly filled of "Sandy Macdonald Blended Special Liqueur Scotch Whiskey, ("Sandy Mac") and a bottle of champagne. The partly filled bottle had a drinking glass on top of it, from which it would seem that the prescription had been tested, while en route. In fact, the young man said he had taken some.

His downfall came as the Marmon car, in making the turn, from Cutler street to Elm street crashed against the stone wall at the road side, jamming between it and two lashed telephone poles. The bottle upset and while arrangements were being made for "literage" Patrolman William Ostman of Stonington came along and took the young man into custody.

Mrs. Carl Judkins, was accompanied to Westerly Friday noon by her father, Charles H. Cowan, and sister Mrs. George Allison, both of Stonington borough, whom she has been visiting, and she left by noon express, to return to her home, in Lewiston, Me.

Representative Charles E. Champlin who has been confined to his home Maple Breezes, on the Norwich road for several days by illness, was in Westerly and Pawcatuck Friday.

Misses Muriel and Mildred Miner who until recently lived on Highland Farm, habitat of the reported "Ape Man' in the Taugwaunk district were business visitors Friday morning in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rowe, who have passed the winter at Daytona Beach, Fla., having returned north, are expected to arrive in Westerly today (Saturday) to visit at their summer home, "Shawondasse," near Watch Hill.

James H. Colman who has been attending Palmer street railroad crossing under was taken Thursday afternoon in the ambulance of the Westerly sanitary corps to the Westerly hospital, for six weeks' treatment for an ailment from which he has been a sufferer and to recover after a recent threatened attack of pneumonia.

James Connors, of New London, division foreman of milliners of the New Haven railroad was a Westerly business visitor Friday to inspect the painting work being done on the interior of the Westerly waiting station.

Patrolman George H. Champlin returned to duty Thursday night, after being confined to his home for several days ill with influenza.

John E. Kinderis of Hartford was a business caller in Westerly Friday.

Miss Bertha Hughes was in Providence Friday.

S. Matx of New Haven is a Westerly business caller.

Mrs. William Grant who had been confined to her homeb y illness for ten days, was able to be out Friday.

Miss Mary E. Quinlan, assistant at the office of the town treasurer has been confined to her home by illness.

Miss Helen D. Lewis, who has completed her duties at the office of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons company, will enter the employ of the Westerly Memorial and Public library on Monday as assistant librarian.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr F M Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts inactive bowels, you take one of Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

NOANK

OLD SALT STARTS FISHING BUT CATCHES MEASLES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NOANK, April 9.—Capt. Grover Eldreigh is in the hospital at Vincent Haven, Mass, ill with the measles. Capt. Eldreigh left here on board the Reliance for George's Banks for cod, but put in that port for bait. He is getting along slowly.

George Main is moving his household goods to the Charleton house, on Pearl street.

Raymond Jones has left for Deep River, on a brief visit.

Mrs Peter Lumus is moving to the Knapp house, on Pearl street.

Raymond Sistare has returned from Brooklyn, N. Y.

A large crowd turned out for the opening meeting held by Washington council, No. 7, junior order of American Mechanics at D. of A. hall. The Noank orchestra played. The speakers of the evening were introduced by Councillor Lloyd Brown. State Organizer Parmelee gave an interesting address on what the council stands for. State Officer Marshall and secretary Wellington also spoke. The meeting was held to get more members for the Noank lodge and to make it one of the largest in the state. In the drive for members, Lloyd Brown is captain of his team and John Bentley is captain of the other side. Captain Bentley is a little ahead of Captain Brown in getting members to date. The losing side has to give the winning team a banquet. The contest will end in May. After the meeting several selections were played by the orchestra while refreshments were served.

MYSTIC

At the last meeting of the Boston Ministers association, Rev. Arthur J. Fowler, D. D., well known here, preached the sermon. Dr. Fowler is now pastor of Calvary Baptist church, Lawrence, Mass.

There is local interest in the fact that the annual state meeting of the Woman's Relief corps is to be held in Bridgeport May 6 and 7. The state G. A. R. will meet for its 59th annual session on the same date.

OLD MYSTIC

Rev. Adoniram Judson Chandler, 81, of 34 Thames street, New London, who died at Lawrence and Memorial hospital Tuesday was born in Chester, Vt., March 12, 1845, the son of William and Louisa Ellison Chandler. He was named for the pioneer Baptist missionary to Burma. He enlisted in 1863 and served during the remainder of the Civil war. After his return from the war he resumed his studies in college and attended Newton theological seminary, was ordained to the ministry of the Baptist denomination and held pastorates at Troy and Shaftsbury, Vt., coming to Clinton, Conn. He was called to the oldest Baptist church in the state located here, in September 1885 and remained here for ten years. During his pastorate an important revival was experienced and numerous additions were made to the church. In 1894 necessary changes were made in the interior of the church providing room more suitable to carry on the church work. Nine hundred dollars was raised and when the work was completed all bills were paid. When this work was done some desired to take more room from the auditorium but others deemed it unwise and now the membership bearing the burdens recall more room should have been provided for the conference room, Sunday school classes and social affairs. Mr. Chandler was greatly aided by his wife who was a musician and was of the most agreeable personality. Their youngest son, Lawrence was born while they lived here. After resigning the pastorate here he moved to New London retaining his membership here. He supplied churches for many years after being called upon to come here where he always was warmly greeted by old friends. At the 20th anniversary celebrated August 6th to 9th 1905 Mr. Chandler was present and had a part in the program. Of those taking part at least 13 have passed away. Mr. Chandler was an enthusiastic worker in W. W. Perkins post G. A. R., New London, having served as past commander and its chaplain, holding that office at the time of his death. He attended the annual sessions of the post and was always prominent in the work. His wife died a few years ago. He leaves two sons and two grandchildren and a brother who has lived with him the last few years. Funeral services were held in the Huntington street Baptist church where he was a regular attendant Friday afternoon and were conducted by the pastor Rev. J. A. Elder. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery. Sons of Union Veterans of Jared R. Avery camp acted as bearers. There were beautiful floral emblems from the fraternal orders, relatives and friends.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

EAGLES.

The present pinochle series among the members of the Eagles resulted in John Leirich taking first prize with a score of 7155. This makes a record of winning five out of a possible six past prizes. Timothy Fields won second, 7050 while H Marcus takes third with 6890.

The pinochle committee in charge of the coming tournament between the Foresters and Eagles feels confident that when they journey into the enemy's camp on Shetucket street, namely (Forester's club) Monday evening they are coming out victorious. As every member chosen to defend the Eagles' reputation promises to do his utmost to make it a victory, especially on account of such contestants as Congdon and Clements, who always played on the Eagles team in the past, choosing to play as an opponent in the coming series.

A complete lineup of the Eagles' team will be published in Monday's Bulletin to give the Foresters an idea of the calibre they may expect to beat.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY.

The American Legion auxiliary held the regular meeting Monday night in the Legion rooms, when plans were made for buying the poppies which will be sold for Memorial day and plans for a whist were made.

At Easter period plans were sent to Uncas-on-Thames by the welfare committee.

An invitation has been received from the John Coleman Plume auxiliary in New London for a meeting there next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Brainard building on Main street. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided after the meeting. It is desired that all Norwich members who intend going should let Mrs. W. L. Bugbee know by Monday.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA.

CHARLESTON INVADES RANKS METROPOLITAN VIA SORI

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—The Charleston has invaded the ranks of Metropolitan stars, bringing happiness to its first devotee in the new circle.

Not only that, but it has been there many weeks, despite the fact that Carpenter's ballet, Skyscrapers, was credited generally with having brought jazz within the sphere of the artiste.

The Charleston? Lucrezia Bori repeated in surprise but with a smile, when asked if she had not been taking lessons. "Oh yes, I do the Charleston. Why? Because it is so fascinating. It makes me happy when I get up in the mornings.

"The quick little movements can't help but bring happiness—and laughter. Then, too, the dance is wonderful exercise and helps keep me in good physical condition for my work."

Never before has the soprano danced and she ascribed the Charleston's conquest to fate.

"One afternoon I dropped into see a friend," she explained. "She was going out to take a lesson in the Charleston and I went along. I became interested and though I thought I never could dance, I tried a few steps. Before I knew what was happening I was taking a lesson."

The International Pulp and Paper company of New York has purchased the Hull Electric Railway company and the Hull Electric company from the Canadian Pacific Railways for $4,700,000.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week Norwich Hose company No. 4 elected as its foreman William A. Armstrong and as the first assistant foreman, Charles S. Northrop. The same week John F. Slater, Ebenezer Learned and Charles L. Cogswell were elected society committee of Park Congregational church. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of April, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, April 3, 1876—Mr. George W. Fuller, the celebrated submarine diver and inventor of this city, will have charge of the re-construction of the Air Line bridge at Middletown. Mr. Fuller has extensive contracts in Canada for the summer.

A good deal of excitement was caused Saturday afternoon by the report of the giving way of the dam at Wauregan. It was commonly said that the Occumsville dam would be seriously affected, which of course was nonsense. Thirteen hundred and ninety-eight tramps were furnished with lodging during the past quarter at the police headquarters, being 201 more than put in appearance last year during the same period.

The democrats have nominated Judge Hovey and Mr. H. L. Parker for representatives and concurred in the republican nominations for justices, assessors and board of relief.

Awnings are going up around town and soda fountains may be expected as the next indication of summer.

Yesterday was a perfect spring day.

The members of the Delanoy steam fire engine company number 5, have refitted their house and last evening threw it open to the public. It has been very handsomely furnished and carpeted and is now one of the pleasantest in the city. A large number of people examined it and expressed their approval last evening.

At a meeting of the Preston Congregational church and society, held on the 5th inst., a hearty call was extended to the Rev. James A. Bryan of Westbrook to become their pastor.

Saturday, April 8, 1876—The new lodge room of the St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., in the bank building, is nearly completed and is one of the finest in the state. It is expected that it will be dedicated next Thursday evening.

Tomorrow is a sort of feast day with the Park church. The anniversary of the organization of the Sabbath school is to be observed with appropriate services in the morning. In the evening the anniversary of the institution of public worship under the auspices of the Park society is to be commemorated by special service and a memorial discourse by the pastor.

General Aiken has sold the residence of the late Senator Buckingham on East Main street to Mr. O. P. Avery on private terms.

The Occum company has given the contract for restoring the dam at Occum to Mr. Henry T. Potter, the ass. engineer who constructed the dam at Baltic and at Birmingham. It is expected that if the weather is favorable, that water will be running through the canal in about five weeks.

GADDING NEW LONDON MOTHERS BLAMED FOR LAWLESSNESS OF BOYS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 9.—Several boys were before the juvenile court this forenoon for various offenses, including stealing and breaking and entering. The cases were clearly such as come from lack of parental guidance and oversight. It is said that the mother of one of the boys is a member of several lodges and that she attends several meetings of lodges every week. So the boy and his companions drifted into ways of vice, naturally. It is understood that a movement is afoot that will establish for parents a code of discipline that will bring penalty if they neglect their children to a degree that the latters naturally drift into ways of crime. The probation officer is much concerned about the neglect of record and is inclined to move to bring about a change.

MONTAUK AVENUE REPAIRS GET A START DURING FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 9.—Montauk avenue is being harrowed today in an effort to get rid of the holes in the surface of the road and make the passage of vehicles safe along that much travelled street. There are spots in the road deep enough to bury a dog. Members of the city council realize the danger of driving over the road, but to provide other surface, money must be provided and the council has no funds at its disposal now. It is an established fact that the highways that have been permanently paved have had but mighty few dollars expended upon them for repairs for a dozen or more and the economy of that sort of pavement stares in the face. But what is a fellow to do when he has not the cash. He can borrow, he can also do without till he has means to improve his position. That appears to be the attitude of the members of the city council. The matter were get together and they talk over the situation and it is understood they are agreed as what the thing to do is, but they are stopped by being "poor" in the funds which they have not the wherewith which to proceed. So the road is the same fix that many a man has found himself in. The difference is marked contrast to the conditions that prevailed when Governor P. Tinker was at the head of the State government. Mr. Tinker was credited with being a financier who was the president of one of New London banks. He had raised the tax rate at 16 mills and said he would not allow it to go without his protest. His wishes were respected while he was in the chair and while he was the mayor. Tinker's method of repairing roads was to cart loam upon them and let it would remain. But freshets came and the winds swept the loam and the loam went from the roads and was deposited. The roads of the city did not have the loam and the result that they have now, so, of course, new did not get the wear they should. Road building with the dirt roads would not be accepted now, even in the rural sections.

Today there was one violator of the automobile laws in court and he was there because he left his car on State street between Union and Meridian streets for about three hours Thursday. He said he was engaged with business affairs and forgot that protection is the thief of time. He has before been in court for a similar offense. Today he was given to understand that when he came again he would get "both barrels" of punishment for his indifference in regard to city ordinances. Half a dozen other offenders were taken yesterday, but as their offense was the first one, they were allowed to stay away from court with a warning as to the future.

John Bjornstadt, about 60, was prosecuted for having allowed himself to be deceived as to what he could carry away in the form of intoxicating liquor. John had been away from New London a considerable time and returning was met by old-time acquaintances. He said he "took a few" and got made drunk. A man of 60 years has not money and without friends in particular manifestly was in a serious predicament, so the court considered the situation and turned him loose. It turned him as to offending the law. John is understood to have had a definite cargo, which in the case of the bootleggers is gin.

YOUNG MAN UNDER $2,000 BAIL CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 9—Jerry Northrup, a young man employed at a used car exchange on Water street, was taken into custody this evening and if the charge made against him is substantiated by fact through witnesses in the police court tomorrow morning, the accused is facing a state prison sentence, for he is accused of criminally assaulting Florence Quinn, 17. Northrup was taken into custody by Sergeant Samuel Hick and is being held in bail of $2,000 for his appearance in court. Charles J. Ducy qualified as surety on Northrup's bond.

The girl stated her condition to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky this evening and that official issued a warrant for Northrup's arrest as the girl declared her condition to be due to the acts of Northrup. The warrant specifically quotes Northrup as having beat, wounded, ill-treated, ravish and carnally know the said Florence Quinn between Feb. 1st and Feb. 8th.

An adjourned meeting of the board of compensation was held this afternoon in the city hall and once again ther was much opposition by the attendants, principally property owners on Bank street, because of the plan of the city to widen Bank street, between State and Tilley streets and then assess benefits against the property owners and in not a single instance is it contemplated to assess damages. Twenty-five property owners were either represented in person or by counsel and in each instance a strong remonstrance was expressed against the plan as now exists, which is that the entire cost of the work shall be borne by the property owner. It is probable that the board will make a report of its doings at the regular meeting of the city council, to take place next Monday evening.

Gaspere Frone, of Crescent Beach, has quit claimed to Antonio and Vincenzo DiMaggio, the former's one-third interest in the property, 6-8-10 Alger street.

James Kohler, of the United States Coast Guard, stationed in this city, is a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from serious injuries to his back and which he sustained last night when he fell from a New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad freight train and on which he was stealing a ride, near Jordan Cove, Waterford. Kohler fell from the train about 8 o'clock last night and after the train passed, the victim managed to crawl to a dilapidated shack along side the tracks where he remained until about 6 o'clock this morning. Kohler then crawled to the farm of L. A. Williams nearby and was found sprawled upon the floor when Williams went there. Williams summoned the hospital ambulance and caused the sailor to be removed to the institution for treatment.

Two sailors went to the skating rink on Golden street, this evening and as both had been drinking, they made things interesting for both the proprietor and attendants there. So boisterous were the sailors that they refused to leave the place, even when practically all of the lights were extinguished. The police were summoned and Patrolmen Lawrence Parly and John Clifford responded with the result that both bluejackets are scheduled to appear before Judge S. Victor Prince in the police court tomorrow morning and answer to a charge of breach of the peace.

Albert Z. Brown, 80, died this morning at his home, Quiambaug, Mystic, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife. Mr. Brown was born in Ledyard, but had resided in Quiambaug many years. He operated a large farm until his health started to decline. He was a deacon of the Old Mystic Baptist church.

Miss Eleanor Mercer, daughter of Frederick W. Mercer, of Hillside avenue, is in Washington, the guest of Mrs. George Fort.

Edwin Pearce, of Hotel Mohican: Neilson, Groton; Miss Ada Gavitt, Stonington and William Sweezy, 7 Jay street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Vernand Siegett, of 34 Cottage street; Miss Ruth Copeland, Chaplin, this state; and Mrs. Paul Raldzk, 93 Porter street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

The dwelling on Morse avenue, Groton, occupied by W. T. Messer and family was slightly damaged late yesterday when a fire of unknown origin was discovered in the basement of the place. A quantity of excelsior and other inflammable material became ignited from an unknown cause and was burning fiercely when discovered by an occupant of the house. An alarm was sent in from Box 44, Pioneer Hose company responding. The fire was extinguished with chemicals.

Patrolman Edward Morgan, Groton police department, has resumed his duties having been confined to his home, 175 Broad street, two weeks by illness.

"Shorty" Faccini is building a garage at his residence in Willetts avenue.

Howard street is regarded as the most dangerous crossing in the city for pedestrians. Four streets converge there and trolleys pass the corner every 15 minutes. The traffic officers there are kept alert every minute they are on duty.

Potatoes reached the top notch in price today, retailers paying $7 a bag for them. The advance is accounted for by a man who recently came from Maine in this way: Every farmer in the state had a mortgage or two on his farm and there seemed no possibility of relieving him of the burden; so the farmers decided that they were entitled to relief and sought it by combining to raise the price of potatoes. This they did. They had but few horses and concluded that they were entitled to automobiles. They could get them in only one way and that way was to boost the price of the tubers. They set about doing this and the present high figures for potatoes is the result.

BOZRAH GIRL SUMMONED BACK TO HER STUDIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 9—Judge Sweeney, of Bozrah, communicated with the New London police this evening and requested that an officer be sent to the residence of Mrs. Sadusky, 25 Douglass street, and order the woman to cause her step-daughter, a girl of 12, to return to Bozrah as the girl has been absent from school a week. The girl came to New London for a supposed visit of a day or two, but has remained away from Bozrah and her studies ever since.

AMERICAN WOMEN EFFICIENT, SAYS FIRST WOMAN MINISTER

OSLO, April 9—(AP)—American women represent the "highest class of efficiency, both in professional and home life," believes Madame Alexandra Kollantay and this is one of the reasons she would like to be the first Soviet diplomatic representative to the United States.

As Bolshevik minister here, Madame Kollantay has headed the large Russian delegation that has spent four years negotiating a commercial treaty between Soviet Russia and Norway. She recently was recalled.

"I know so much of the United States and the population from my visits over there—in all about eleven months," she said. "I have traveled from coast to coast and admire the country intensely. It is a great land with a great future. The democratic way of living appeals very much to me."

Madame Kollantay was seated in her office as she talked. Her hair was bobbed in the latest mode and she wore a simple, dark Parisian gown. She is divorced and has no family with her in Norway. Her only son is married and living in England.

Her father was General Domontovitj of the old Russian nobility. He served in the general staff of the army under the Czarist regime, and owned large estates in the Ukraine. Her mother came from England and Madame Kollantay spent much of her youth in Finland.

It was there that she developed sympathy for the Fins and the Finnish socialist party, with which she affiliated in 1898. Later she became a communist, while a student at the university in Zurich, Switzerland.

Upon her return to Russia she took a prominent part in organizing the female industrial workers, but had to leave Russia in 1908 to escape prosecution by the Czar's police.

For nine years she lived abroad, a political refugee, most of the time in Berlin. She also visited Norway and went to the United States in 1915 at the invitation of members of the American socialist arty. She toured the country for nearly 11 months making propaganda speeches against the World war.

When the Russian revolution broke out in 1917 Madame Kollantay returned home and soon became a prominent member in the Bolshevist party.

In 1922, she came to Norway as head of Russia's Commercial delegation and two years later, when Norway recognized the Russian soviet republic, Madame Kollantay was made minister, the first woman minister in history.

Kl. Haakon received her with the same formality accorded to male ministers, and there was nothing about the Russian legation in Oslo which would indicate that it was not presided over by a man.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dance in New London

Next Tuesday evening in Lawrence ball room 15 Bank street, New London, there will be a return engagement of Miner and Doyles' orchestra direct from Roseland, New York. This is their second appearance in New London. Good music and a good time are insured for everyone.

Broadway Theatre

The degree of humor of a comedy-drama can be accurately measured by a laugh registering device.

Such a device was used by William Seiter, director, for registering the laughs obtained by Reginald Denny in his latest picture "Where Was I?" which will be screened at the Broadway theatre starting Sunday.

By means of this machine it was discovered that while most people said "Where Was I?" was equally funny as "I'll Show You the Town" it was in reality slightly funnier.

The machine used was a registering device which totaled numbers each time a lever on it was pushed. Seiter sat in the audience the night the picture was previewed at a Los Angeles theatre, dutifully pushing the lever every time a general laugh swept the audience.

He registered 284 laughs in "Where Was I?" while "I'll Show You the Town" registered 277.

The story with its funny situation starts in a directors' meeting, progresses to a subway train and thence to a taxi in the open road, where many adventures befall the party of three consisting of Denny, Chester Conklin and Lee Moran. The story ends after a general mixup at Denny's apartment in which two girls, police and irate directors take part.

The cast includes, besides those mentioned, Tyrone Power, Pauline Garon, Marian Nixon, Otis Harlan, William H Turner, Tom Lingham, Arthur Lake and James Corrigan.

Several short subjects are also to be seen.

Don't forget the fine vaudeville program today.

Strand Theatre

The Sunday program at this playhouse will consist of a very entertaining double feature show. Lovers of fast action, out-door entertainment will appreciate this fine entertainment.

On Monday, one of the outstanding attractions of the year will be on view. The world's most noted and most married beauty will hold the screen for four days starting Monday in "The Skyrocket." A few criticisms from papers of San Francisco follow:

Bulletin: "The prophecy is that the picture will be an unqualified box-office success. Flappers packed the house yesterday, from the top row to the drums. True, there were escorts, sweethearts, husbands and fathers present but in theatre parlance it was a flapper audience. Gloria Swanson has nothing on Peggy when it comes to swanky garb. Ermine gowns, chinchilla capes, white fox collars on night robes, and what not. It's a sort of fashion show, with the spotlight steady on the one girl.

Daily News: "A new star, and one of exceeding brilliance, has flashed across the screen heavens. The star is Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Peggy Hopkins Joyce is a name that is not new to the columns of the daily press or the stage. Her love affairs and ventures in matrimony have used up much printer's ink. But for the first time in her career her adventures, fictional this time, are recorded in imperishable film.

Interesting adventures these are, too. Adela Rogers St. Johns, who wrote "The Skyrocket" has seen to that, then Marshall Neilan has further abetted Miss Joyce's bid for screen recognition by faultless direction and an uncanny ability to bring out every curve of the star's acting ability while using her exceedingly good looks' and graces to the utmost."

Breed Theater

Oh! What a Nurse! the new Syd Chaplin picture which comes to the Breed theater on Sunday for a run of three days, is said to be one of the funniest pictures ever screened. Critics in other cities have used up all the adjectives they've got in trying to say that this picture will get every laugh you've got. They all agree it is funnier than Charley's Aunt or The Man on the Box, the pictures that titled Syd Chaplin to the top as a screen comedian.

The new picture was written by Robert E. Sherwood, editor of Life, and Bertram Bloch. It concerns the mad adventures of a newspaper reporter, who, forced into the garments of a bootleg queen, runs into an astounding series of misadventures aboard a lugger.

The Pathe news and an educational comedy complete the bill.

Today's bill consists of Lon Chaney in The Black Bird, the last chapter of The Green Archer, the Pathe news and an Al St. John comedy. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Feature Picture at Y. M. C. A.

At the local Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the feature moving picture, "Welcome Home" will be shown, and all persons fourteen years and over are cordially invited. The feature is a very human drama; a true bit of life in which the characters are natural and interesting. The natural incompatability of youth and old age is portrayed clearly. An old man has come to make his home with his young son and daughter-in-law. They are normal, generous, sympathetic young people, but their patience is tried to the breaking point and the old man finally realizes that something is wrong. He has made friends of two old men who are living in an Old Man's Home and they picture their independent life so alluringly that the old man decides to move there. The young people strenuously object, and he consents to stay, but he sees he is only in the way, so he secretly slips off to the Home where he is welcomed by his old friends. You not only see the picture; you feel it; you just know it is life, for what happens has happened in your own family or in that of your neighbors. The picture is so full of humanity that it actually lives the life of all of us.

Hugh Rinder will furnish the music and render vocal solos. A brief talk on "Home" will be given.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The regular monthly supper and meeting of the Brotherhood will be held at the Community house on Monday evening. Supper at 7:30, after which Austin S. Hawes, state forester, will give an address, illustrated by stereopticon and moving pictures.

MARKET WAS DULL

NEW YORK, April 9—(AP)—Trading in today's stock market was dull and colorless, with price movements irregular and generally inconclusive. Total sales fell just short of 900,000 shares, the smallest of any full session since April 28 of last year.

Chief financial interest of the day centered in the further reduction in time money, which was quoted on a flat 4 3-8 per cent. basis as against 4 3-4 to 5 less than a month ago. Increased reserve ratios of the New York Federal Reserve bank and the 12 federal reserve banks combined, also testified to the relative ease of the credit situation. Brokers' loans reported to the federal reserve bank, dropped over $177,000,000 in the week ended March 31, bringing th total $565,673,000 below the high mark of the year established in the week ended February 17.

Lack of interest in the stock market is generally attributed to a rather general disposition to restrict commitments until the course of business becomes more clearly defined.

Bradstreets' characterizes the state of trade as "quieter," stating that "this week, as last, retail trade was disappointing this being attributed mainly to cold stormy weather, bad roads and wet soil, which has likewise held back all farm work."

Dun's sets forth that "declining commodity prices attract attention, yet the movement, in the main, is gradual and causes no disturbance." It explains further that "it is one of the strongest bulwarks of the present situation that supplies in most dealers' hands are relatively light, purchases of these interests having been for a long time closely aligned to actual consumption, and that deliveries of goods under order are being taken readily."

Flurries of selling in the steel shares presumably was in anticipation of another decrease in the March unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation estimated at from 200,000 to 300,000 tons which will be public at noon tomorrow U. S. Steel, common, broke below 120 and then rallied to 121 1-8 for a small fractional gain on the day. Bethlehem and Crucible estabushed new low levels for the year at 39 3-4 and 66, respectively, the last named later rallying to 67 1-4 where it was off 2 1-4 on the day.

A brisk demand for the equipments in the early afternoon helped to check the reactionary movements in other quarters Baldwin was run up over 2 points to 105 1-4 closing near the top General Railway Signal advanced nearly 4 points to 72 3-8 and American Locomotive, Pullman and Chicago Pneumatic Tool closed a point or so higher.

Considerable mystery was associated with the rise of over 7 points in National Biscuit which touched 86 1-4 although speculative gossip was inclined to attribute the buying to expectations of a higher dividend. Union Oil of California whose principal tank farm is being swept by a devastating fire received better support on reports that the loss was covered by insurance, the stock closing 1 5-8 points higher at 42.

A strong undertone also was shown in the local tractions and such issues as Adams Express, American Ice, American Woolen preferred Atlantic Refining and Gold Dust. Savage Arms broke 5 points to 74 but recovered all its loss. Heaviness developed, however, in American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred. Devoe and Reynolds, Magma Copper, National Cloak and Suit preferred and United Drug.

A sharp break of 2 to 3 cents a pound in rubber prices featured the lower commodity markets. Active wheat futures closed 1 to 2 cents a bushel lower, an early rally in sympathy with higher Liverpool prices, failing to hold. Cotton sold off at the opening but rallied later closing unchanged to 11 points higher. Coffee prices dropped 40 to 50 points in sympathy with lower Brazilian prices. Raw sugar futures were unchanged to 3 points net lower.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and held at that figure all day although banks are reported to have called about $20 000 000 in loans in connection with week-end settlements. Prime commercial paper held steady at 4 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 7-8 but French francs broke over 5 points to 3.40 1-2 cents or within a point of the extreme low record established last month. Belgian francs dropped 10 points to around 3.76 cents. Swiss and Dutch rates were both strong. Strength of Japanese exchange which was quoted at 46 3-8 cents per yen was in reflection of the announcement that the Japanese government probably would ship $36,000,000 in gold to this country in the current year.

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday, April 10, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the southern states Thursday night has moved to Newfoundland and the high pressure disturbance has moved southeastward to the lower Mississippi valley.

An area of high pressure extends from the central Rocky mountain region eastward to the lower lakes and the middle Atlantic coast. Unsettled disturbance will probably cause unsettled weather in the north Atlantic states, accompanied by rain and snow in the Mississippi river and rain over the greater part of the remainder of the country within the next 36 hours.

New England will remain fair until Saturday night, except in the extreme northern portion where rain will begin tonight.

FILES SPECIFIC STATEMENT IN SUITS AGAINST FOUR

In the suits brought in the superior court by Angus Park of Hanover against Edwin W. Higgins, Herbert M. Leroy, Charles D. Foster of this city, and James Graham of Lisbon on the claim that they have failed and refused to carry out under an alleged written agreement in connection with restoring the capital and surplus of the Bankers Trust Co., at the time of the embezzlement by George A. Finn, a more specific statement has been filed with the clerk of the superior court by Brown & James, attorneys for Mr. Park.

The statement sets forth:

The names of the parties to the written agreement alleged in paragraph 2 of the complaint were the following: Angus Park, Edwin W. Higgins, William H. Cruickshank, David D. Disco, James J. Donohue, Louis J. Fontaine, Charles D. Foster, James Graham, Herbert M Leroy, Timothy G Murphy, Charles A Saxton, Abner Schwartz and Joseph C. Worth.

The plaintiff does not recollect the form or style of said written agreement nor whether executed under seal.

The plaintiff believes the provisions of said written agreement to have been in substance the following: That parties named in paragraph 1 hereof should proceed to restore the capital and surplus of said Trust company; each of said parties agreed to furnish funds and to bear the expense of such restoration in the same proportion to the whole sum required for such purposes as the number of shares of stock owned by each of said parties in the said Trust company bore to the total number of shares owned by all of the said parties present at said meeting; that the plaintiff should first procure, furnish and pay over to said Trust company the whole sum required for said purpose; that after the plaintiff had so procured, furnished and paid over said sum to said Trust company each of the others of said parties would within a reasonable time pay to the plaintiff, his said proportionate part of said sum.

The plaintiff, as stated in paragraph 3 hereof believes that said agreement did contain the alleged agreement of the defendant to restore his said proportionate part of the capital and surplus of said Trust company.

The plaintiff, as stated in paragraph 3 hereof, believes that said alleged written agreement contained the alleged agreement of the defendant to repay to the plaintiff his said proportionate part or share of said sum advanced by the plaintiff to said Trust company.

BOTTLER IS FINED IN THE CITY COURT

At the Friday morning session of the city court Morris Fox of this city, owner of the Marathon Bottling works, was fined $30 for having 39 registered bottles illegally in his possession. The fine was $1 per bottle. Costs were added by Judge Libby and Fox paid a total of $48.22. Fox was using bottles owned by other concerns in his business and has been in court before on this charge. He claimed that he cannot write and that a man named Lamphere, who cannot read without his glasses, fills the bottles at the soda plant. This he claimed accounted for the fact that bottles not his own were being used in his plant.

Elmer C. Sayles, 34 Smithfield, R. I., was discovered on a charge of evading responsibility. He is the owner of the car which backed down Main street Thursday evening and crashed into the car owned by Joseph P. Lynch, doubling down the doors and doing damage estimated at about $50. The evading liability has been placed by the Voting Prosecuting Attorney Tyler E. Babcock and Attorney General L. Stewart a meeting for Sayles both could not be found in the city.

Frederick Lippincott, 29, of this city, was fined $ and costs for not parking his machine properly. He paid $7.50.

Leftward in the center of the car [illegible] rolled down the grade at Washington square, knocked off on the corner of Main and Water street, coming to a stop farther down the street Thursday evening. He left the car parked while he went into a store to make a purchase and the car rolled down the incline. He was at first charged with having improper brakes and the charge was later changed to improper parking.

SOMERVILLE R. C. CHURCH TO BE REDEDICATED SUNDAY

Right Reverend Bishop Nilan will officiate at the rededication of St. Bernard's church, Somerville, Tolland county Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The edifice has been entirely remodeled and enlarged to accommodate the increasing population of the district and now presents a most attractive place of worship. The original church built by Father Maloney was dedicated by Bishop Tierney, January 16, 1898. At that time Somerville was a mission of St. Bernard's parish. Hazardville and claimed 325 Catholics. The population grew steadily with the result that the mission has become a parish in its own right. The present pastor, Rev. Dennis A. O'Brien, has seen his flock increase to such proportions that he felt the necessity of the changes he inaugurated last June and has pushed to completion.

The man who lets his wife get up of a cold morning and light the fire will never set the world ablaze.

POETRY

Such Awful Weather

The signs of the weather are legion,
From the circle round the moon,
To the Red Sky at Sunrise,
When rain will follow soon,
And the rainbow in the West,
With its thirty days of rain.
With the cobwebs on the lawn,
Fair weather to proclaim.

When the February fog is with us,
Look out for frost in May.
When the ground hog sees his shadow,
Winter will six weeks longer stay,
And if he doesn't see his shadow,
We will have it anyway.
If it thunders in the morning,
It will shower throughout the day

When the distant sounds seem near,
And the swallows are flying low,
It is a pretty sure sign of rain,
As far as weather signs go.
But of one thing please take notice,
If your mind you still retain,
In the dryest seasons of the year,
We seldom have a rain.

The the tree toads, kindly [illegible]
From the branches of the trees,
There's the katy-did a-calling,
Six weeks before a freeze.

But one thing that is certain,
Though your almanac be [illegible]
When the mercury reaches zero,
There's sure to be a frost.

Now if all these signs should at once be seen,
Before one-half was spent,
We would have a flood to [illegible]
That Noah's would look [illegible]

So don't rush out for your high [illegible]
Till at least we have had a [illegible]
For when its dry, its awfully [illegible]
And it may not rain for a week [illegible]

I sought the fields for something [illegible]

Crossing a pasture slope that sunward lay,
I suddenly surprised beneath a tree
A girlish figure who at sight of me
Sprang up all wild with dauntless [illegible] may.
"Stay, pretty one!" I cried, "Who [illegible] thou, pray?"
Mid tears and freaks of pettish misery
And sighing, "I am April," answered they
"I rear the field flowers for my sister May."
Then with an arch laugh otherwise, clear and strong,
Turned blithely up the valley with a [illegible]

While the United States is making efforts to become independent of British controlled rubber, Great Britain is trying to develop tobacco production in her colonies and thus to reduce her dependence on American tobacco. Current figures show that more than 80 per cent. of the British tobacco supply comes from the United States, and since popular tastes favor this type of tobacco, little headway has so far been made in replacing it with colonial brands. The United States holds an outstanding position in the tobacco industry. Its acreage and production are the largest of any nation in the world and in recent years it has provided half of the world's exports.

AT LEAST 25 LIVES LOST IN EXPLOSION ON OIL TANKER

More Than a Score Injured in Terrific Blast on the Gulf of Venezuela, in Harbor at Port Arthur, Tex.—The First Explosion, Which Was Followed by Several Minor Ones, Rocked the City and Alarmed the Residents—A Cargo of About 50,000 Barrels of Gasoline Was Consumed by Fire.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, April 11—(AP)—A terrific explosion aboard the tanker Gulf of Venezuela in the harbor here took a toll of at least 25 lives early today, injured more than a score, eight seriously, and for a time threatened other shipping.

Seven members of the ship's crew of 35 were missing but it was believed some were among the dead. A number of dock workers also were injured.

The first explosion, which was followed by several minor ones, rocked the city and brought hundreds from their beds into the streets before dawn. The tanker, which has a cargo of about 50,000 barrels of gasoline, was lying at the docks of the Gulf Refining Company, its owner, at the time of the explosion.

Twenty-two of the dead have been identified.

The bodies were so badly mangled by the explosion that identification was virtually impossible in many cases. It was thought there was little hope that the lives of the missing would be found, however.

Rescuers were hampered by the fact that the fire which followed the explosion threatened other ships in the harbor. Captain Charles Carter, who was asleep in a room on the dock at the time, said the explosion shook the entire city. He said that debris and bits of wreckage fell on the roof of the room in which he was sleeping.

A lifeboat from the top of the tanker was blown several hundred feet into the air, landing atop a warehouse near-by.

The Gulf of Venezuela was one of the largest of the oil company's tanker fleet, with a capacity of 4,112 tons.

The first explosion is said to have occurred when gasoline in one of the smoke tanks all overflowed and formed a cloud, coming in contact with hot steam pipes, because a faulty valve that was stuck to allow steam to escape.

Several lesser explosions followed. Then the screams of terrified seamen pierced the air as they burst forth from various parts of the ship, their clothing in flames.

They leaped overboard, thus extinguishing the flames that enveloped them, later to be dragged from the water by rescuers who had rushed to the scene with the opening tones of the explosion sounds to city. A call was sent to the Beaumont fire department and the tanker was towed to the middle of the basin to prevent the flames from entering the docks of the Gulf Refining Company's powerhouses.

Burning flame from every portion of the steel plates white-hot and leaping from the tremendous heat of the fire within, the tanker threatened at every moment to drift away from the dock and spread destruction through other shipping in the harbor and to the Great Refining plant ashore. Every piece of fire-fighting apparatus in the city, together with the full crews of the refinery plants, fought the flames and succeeded in confining them to the ship. In the gray of certain dawn the after part of the doomed vessel glowed whitley, so terrific was the heat, and every few minutes an additional tank would burst with a thunderous roar, the flames shooting skyward and casting a weird light over the harbor over which a pall of thick, black smoke hung heavily.

The tanker, which had a capacity of 50,000 barrels of gasoline was about half full when the first explosion occurred without warning.

The homes of the ship's crew are in many parts of the country. The dead were burned beyond identification and the names will be known only after a careful check of the company's records. Officials said that with the possible exception of one or two, they believed the dead were members of the crew. They did not know how many dock workers may have been aboard, however.

The disaster was the result of a minor mishap in the last 24 hours. The others occurred in the Mississippi river last Thursday and Saturday when an undetermined number of men were killed or drowned. A collision of the tanker Gulfpenn with the steamship Cherokee Sun resulted in the tanker's sinking. Thomas W. Wheeler of New Orleans. Two explosions occurred aboard the Standard Oil tanker A. T. Waring, lying in drydock at New Orleans.

The majority of injured were in critical condition.

Ambulances were rushed from the city to the Main Gates hospital where house of the dying and injured. At the dock where seamen, dock workers, pipe fitters and others, struck by the injured to safety. The dead were gathered up where they had been pulled from the water. Into which they had fallen or fallen.

A tanker moored near the ill-fated ship was torn loose by the explosion and was towed to safety by others in the harbor.

Frank Tyler of Port Arthur, was the only one of the dead identified late today. L. E. Mellenbin, a dock worker of Port Arthur was among the injured. He was shipping a valve in one of the feed pipes. It was shut when the explosion blew him over a pipe wall.

Most of the property damage was confined to the tanker and the fire was extinguished in a few hours. The vessel was pumped half full of water and scuttled at the fifth hour, still blazing low. The stern rail was blown completely away by the blast.

Damage to the dock and nearby property was said to be comparatively slight and was confined to the area near the tanker.

HELD FOR KILLING A NASTY-TEMPERED OSTRICH

HOUSTON, April 11—(AP)—William C. Melntyre, 28, is under arrest on the charge of breaking and entering with intent to commit cruelty to animals in connection with the murder of one ostrich early Friday morning. McIntyre has a scratch in his forehead and identified the blood stained handkerchief and overcoat found by the body of the bird as his, although he protested he had not been near the ostrich compound. The ostrich leased among its owners for its nasty disposition. It was one of two purchased January 2nd because of his nasty temper. The officials were dumfounded when they discovered his battered body lying in the ten foot square stall disordered by the battle. The ostrich, the ostrich's natural qualities of the bird led the authorities to look for the slayer, instead by the beak and feet of its victim.

McIntyre said he had been drinking on Thursday afternoon and that his mind was a blank for hours afterward. He remembers dimly he said hearing there a heated low remembered his opponent as Governor.

MAN KILLED IN COLLISION ON LONG ISLAND RAILROAD

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP) — Anthony Baulck, 45, of Jamaica, died today of injuries received when he was struck by the Long Island railroad electric commuter train in a collision in Bellerose, Long Island.

Edward Norwalk, 55, of Richmond Hill, Long Island, who suffered a crushed spine in the accident, was said today to be dying in St. Mary's hospital. Fifty other persons were slightly injured when a work train failed to clear a switch and backed into a local train at the Nostrand avenue station of the railroad.

Walter Thompson, of Jamaica, conductor of the work train, and Bernard Strauss, foreman of the work train, were arrested on charges of felonious assault by order of District Attorney Dodd, who held an inquiry at the scene of the collision.

DECISION TODAY IN CASE OF THE REV. GUY WILLIS HOLMES

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 11.—(AP)—Many hours of investigation of the case of the Rev. Guy Willis Holmes, of New Bedford, who faces charges of conduct unbecoming a minister, have failed to bring a settlement of the controversy. An agreement must be reached, however, before tomorrow noon. The case has been one of the principal topics of discussion for the three days at the New England southern conference of the Methodist church, in session here.

A committee of [illegible] has held five hearings in an effort to reach an agreement as to the guilt or innocence of the pastor of the Pleasant Street Methodist church, of New Bedford, and was in session again tonight.

The conference is scheduled to adjourn shortly after noon tomorrow and the committee must submit some kind of a report on the Holmes case before the end of the session.

GIFT OF $1,000,000 FOR AN ART MUSEUM AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, April 11.—(AP)—One million dollars has been given to Yale university by two anonymous donors for the creation of an art museum, it was announced by the university today.

The new building will stand at the corner of Chapel and High streets, opposite the present Art school structure on High street. It will extend along Chapel street for half a block and will run back along high street for a considerable distance.

Designs for the building have been prepared by Egerton Swartwout, 101 Park avenue, New York city. The museum will be of stone, in a modified Tudor Gothic style, harmonizing with the other Yale buildings in the vicinity.

GEN. PANGAOLS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GREECE

ATHENS, Greece, April 11. — (AP) — Voting in the remaining 28 provinces out of 35 for president took place today. Balloting in the other 12 was carried out last Sunday. General Pangaolis, premier and dictator, was the only candidate. In the first voting of a week ago, when other candidates opposed him, General Pangalos received about 90 per cent. of the votes.

MAPLE SUGAR CROP IS UNCERTAIN THIS YEAR

WAKEFIELD, Mass., April 12—(AP)—The maple sugar crop for New England and Canada is uncertain because of the late spring, the New England crop reporting service said in a bulletin today. Tapping began about March 10, and while not competed, the number of trees will be about the same as last year. Deep snow has hampered early operations.

300 Foot Steeple Collapsed

TOULOUSE, France, April 11—(AP)—A steeple nearly three hundred feet high, dating back to the fifteenth century, collapsed over the church of St. Daloads today, wrecking three neighboring houses and causing the death of three inmates.

The structure was the work of the noted fifteenth century architect, Nicholas Bachelier, and regarded as example of pure Renaissance style.

Election in Haiti Today

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, April— (AP)—The little republic of Haiti, which has been under the wing of the United States since 1915, when American marines took control of the situation after President Sam had been assassinated, will hold its twenty-seven presidential election tomorrow. It will be the third election since the American intervention. Local opinion is agreed that President Louis Borno is virtually certain of re-election.

EDWARD V. BROWNING, 51, WEDS "PEACHES" HEENAN, 15

COLD SPRINGS, N. Y., April 11.—(AP)—Frances Heenan, known as "Peaches" to her friends, and as the 15-year-old Cinderella to the newspaper public, spent the first day of her honeymoon, with her 51-year-old prince charming, Edward V. Browning, secluded today from 16-room house near the Hudson river.

The second Mrs. Browning, who until recently had been confined to her room at her mother's small Washington, D. C., apartment, in New York suffering from acid burns mysteriously received, was today the mistress of a two-acre estate.

The multi-millionaire bachelor, whose previous experience as a Cinderella man [illegible] adoption of Mary Louise Spaulding and Alice when it was found she was 21 and not 16 as was supposed—had caused his wide publicity, has promised her, she said, an estate of [illegible] But until that is built, he [illegible] at Cold Spring [illegible] the mansions from the [illegible] rented for a year.

The bridegroom and bride were married by [illegible] Mrs. Heenan, mother of the bride. Both gave their ages for the marriage as they [illegible] to be 21 years old.

CLERGYMAN IN DEFENSE OF PRESENT DAY YOUTH

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—(AP) — A Baptist clergyman's defense of the younger generation in its relations with each other was issued here by the Rev. Mason L. Stalker of the Linwood Boulevard church. The pamphlet, which was circulated at services today, is a reply to criticisms and charges of petting on the part of the elder people.

"Petting and petting parties that youth is more wicked today than in other generations," was the eighth commandment laid down by the pastor. "What other generations called "spooning" he may call "necking", and about the same proportion of this generation is given to this "indoor sport" as hath indulged in other generations."

"He does not [illegible] automobile what [illegible] has done in the buggy behind [illegible] no more and no less," said Dr. Stalker.

The new theory [illegible] written by the pastor [illegible] the church members [illegible] several weeks ago that Dr. Stalker did not seem to think that the old doctrine applies to the young people of today. The member asked him why he didn't write a new one that did apply.

BOLSHEVISM SECURE FROM OLD REGIME OF RUSSIA

PARIS, April 11.—(AP)—Bolshevism is secure from the power of the old regime of Russia, the leaders of which assembled in Paris in the most monarchistic congress of emigres ever staged. This has ended in failure to agree even on a formula for an offensive against the reds.

The reluctance of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch to attend any of the meetings, internal bickering in the congress itself over the decisions to be reached, and the fact that the monarchists devoted more time to deprecating each other's methods than to preparing a united front against a common enemy appear to have crushed the hope of any organized or efficient attempt to overthrow the Russia soviets from this quarter.

Disappointment [illegible] congress broke up [illegible] when reports [illegible] of the bolsheviki had thrown a bomb into a [illegible] which [illegible] right parties hope seemed inevitable after the left section of the congress, with the aid of the president, Prof. Strouve, voted against the formation of a permanent committee to carry on an active struggle to drive the bolsheviki out of Russia.

FIDDLING CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY A BOSTON MAN

LEWISTON, Me., April 11—(AP)—The squawk and shrill of fiddle tuning which resounded through the armory here for a week has died away and James F. Claffey of Boston is in possession of the world championship cup and [illegible] which were his rewards for fiddling down some hundred contestants who came from far and near.

Claffey, 67-year-old member of the Boston Musicians' union, is a violinist as well as fiddler. It was his reels and jigs that made his victory in this contest, but he has played the violin with the Boston Symphony orchestra. Jean Wiseman, the aged player was journeyed from Barney Barr, Ireland, to scrape his bow against Scots French, Canadians and Yankees, sent his congratulations from his hospital room, glad that an Irishman won even though he lived in Boston.

"HONEYMOON SHIP" ENDS ITS TRIPS TO BERMUDA

NEWYORK, April 11—(AP)—The Furness-Bermuda liner from Hamilton, known as the "Honeymoon ship" in the 28 years it has plied between New York and Bermuda, completed its last trip in that service today. The ship has been sold to the Cosulich line and will be placed in the Mediterranean service under the name of Stella de Italia.

FIRE DESTROYED LARGE THEATRE AT ASBURY PARK

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 11—(AP)—Fire late tonight destroyed the Main street theatre, the largest in this city, and threatened the principal business block of the town. The fire started in the theatre, which was valued at $300,000.

Luther Burbank, 77, Died Early Sunday

...ious Achievements Had Won Him the Title of "Plant Wizard".

SANTA ROSA, Calif., April 11.—(AP)—Luther Burbank, withered by age, died early today amid the flowering fruits and blooms that he created for mankind's benefit.

The noted horticulturist passed on to the great adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith.

Only a few weeks before the end, the great plant wizard had declared that he could not believe in a life after death.

And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink he did not falter in his convictions.

Intimi and worn after years devoted to developing and guiding plant life, the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion and reincarnation, contributed to his last illness.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders after Mr Burbank gave out his statement declaring himself to be an infidel. His home here was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. The stress he was subjected to in defending and explaining his beliefs brought on a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive.

A few minutes before life fled the aged patient lapsed into semi-consciousness.

"Doctor, I am very sick," were his last words. They were uttered to his physician, Dr. Joseph H. Shaw.

Gastro-intestinal complications and violent hiccoughing had weakened Mr. Burbank.

All hope for him was given up last night after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong life.

At the bedside were his wife and his sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson of Hendersons.

No funeral plans for the aged scientist had been made today. They today be announced tomorrow. It is presumed that the Masonic fraternity of which he was a member, may have a part in them. He was recently invested with the thirty-third degree of the Scottish Rite.

It is understood the services will be very simple and semi-private. Talk was Mr. Burbank's wish.

Another request made some months ago, also is expected to be fulfilled. That is that Judge Ben Lindsey of the juvenile court in Denver deliver the [illegible]. It was reported that Judge Lindsey is en route to Santa Rosa from Denver to keep the promise.

In addition to closing the schools Santa Rosa will hold a public memorial tomorrow. All flags were at half-staff today.

It is tentatively agreed that the final resting place of the plant scientist will be in his garden, among the flowers to whom he has given most of the years of his life.

Among the mourners are Mr. Burbank's little dog, Beauty. A few days ago the dog wandered into a sick room to be fondled for the last time. Today it sat on the lawn [illegible].

A cordon of Boy Scouts maintained a guard at the home while townspeople filed reverently past.

Acknowledged the dean of plant breeders and leader in modern creative plant development, the name of Luth Burbank became a household word throughout the civilized world. Virtually his whole life was devoted to scientific plant breeding and many of his more than 100,000 experiments with various forms of vegetation attained such marvelous results that they won him the title of "plant wizard."

Early in life Burbank evinced a great love for growing things, selecting plants rather than animals as his pets. His first notable success was achieved at the age of 22, when he happened to find a seed ball of the Early Rose potato, which rarely bears seed. From this he developed the world-famous Burbank potato that has spread to every portion of the globe and which is said to exert a greater influence upon the food supply of humanity than any other single food plant.

Soon after he made this potato, which brought him neither fame nor money at the time, Burbank moved to California, where he obtained employment on a farm here. He continued at this labor until able to acquire a small farm in the town of Santa Rosa, some 50 miles north of San Francisco. With this small beginning he undertook the series of experiments which long had been uppermost in his mind. Thereafter his every waking moment and [illegible] occupied [illegible] hours a day on the average.

Burbank was born at Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849, son of Samuel W. and Olive (Ross) of English and Scotch ancestry. He was the 13th of 15 children born on his father's 200-acre farm. He attended the Lancaster academy, from which he was an honor graduate.

Next to the potato, the accomplishment which brought first fame to Burbank was the spineless cactus which converted a worthless desert growth into a valuable forage and fruit producing plant. In recognition of this work he received in 1922 a United States grant, congress under special act turning over 7,500 acres of near-irrigable land to be located either in California, Nevada or Arizona.

It has been estimated that Burbank's 100,000 or more experiments with plant life involved the planting, pollenation, observation and propagation or destruction of a billion individual vegetable growths from this vast number, however, only 355 were selected and recommended by him as of value to humanity. Some of these were under his observation for 25 years before being given to the world.

Several fine varieties of spineless blackberry, now grown around the world, were bred from a wild variety that was considered useless in its native state. A certain variety of rhubarb, under Burbank's magic touch, increased its stalks from the size of a lead pencil to that of a baby's wrist, and was made perpetual, instead of bearing for a few weeks only. Canners appealed to him for a perfect pear, one which would mature all of its crop, retain uniformity of size and all ripen at the same time. After three years of work he met the demand.

Flowers, fruits, grains, grasses, vegetables, even orchard and forest trees were improved and given to the world in new usefulness through months and years of patient and frequently discouraging experiments.

Wonderful as many of Burbank's achievements with vegetable, plant and flower life seem to the layman, the methods by which they were accomplished were not to themselves so [illegible] Burbank [illegible] would be [illegible] would [illegible] would [illegible] would

HERMAN F. JOHNSON TOOK HIS LIFE BY HANGING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 11—Herman F. Johnson, 62, who disappeared from the summer home of his son, Frank Johnson in Hampton last Monday afternoon, was found hanging from a tree a half mile from the home, about two o'clock Saturday afternoon. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason of this city was called and pronounced the cause of death suicide by hanging. Although there was no evidence of foul play the manner in which the aged man took his life was termed remarkable by Examiner Mason. Mr. Johnson had used a doubled length of heavy twine used in wrapping bundles about four feet above the ground to the trunk of a tree about six inches in diameter, slipping his head into a noose. It appeared that the man was compelled to keep his legs up in order to end his life. Measurements showing the bending of the supporting tree from the weight of the man hanging from it would touch the ground if the strain of the body upon it had caused it to break during heavy wind some time past. The body was found in a huddled heap beside a bent sapling by a band of men who had organized to assist the state and fellow-workers in the search for the missing man. The broken twine around the body, Arthur Murphy of Hampton reported for the Southside News to Examiner Mason. The rope hanging was some fifty feet from an old cart-path in a woodland about a mile from the summer home of Frank Johnson.

Mr. Johnson, according to information given at the time of his disappearance, had been urged by his son to come to Hampton for a rest after having entered into a real estate deal involving the purchase of property in Larchmont, N. Y., where he resided for several years. He had worried about the deal claiming that it was too heavy an undertaking for a man of his age and it is believed that regret at his action caused the mental breakdown which was manifested when he failed to return at the usual time. It is believed that he had been in Willimantic and was returning to Larchmont, N. Y., but appeared at the home when he found that his son had left the premises, but left word for the family that he had just come to say he felt no alarm. When the missing man failed to return at the usual time it is believed that he had become ill

"BE KIND TO ANIMALS" WEEK

Once again we have reached that week of the year when some consideration is asked in behalf of the animals. We are living in an age when there are fewer beasts of burden and more fewer instances in which the [illegible] kindness to the dumb beasts is brought to attention. But that doesn't [illegible] the obligation doesn't present [illegible] plenty of occasion [illegible] kind to animals and the appeals [illegible] go forth in behalf of all [illegible] seem reasonable. Some are [illegible] give more thought to such a [illegible] than are others, but there's a [illegible] for a common basis. Some may be kinder than others but all should at least be kind. And those who are frank to say that they do not like animals can at least refrain from being abusive.

As in many other cases, those who are unkind to animals are first of all thoughtless. They give slight heed to what they do, to the pain they may be causing or the hardships they are responsible for. They fail to give a sober second thought to the effects of failing to feed animals, to the effects of mistreatment or to the effect upon the animal of the lack of a kind word.

There is no excuse for those who fail to feed their beasts or their pets. Such people ought not to be allowed to have them. Due punishment should be imposed upon those who beat them or fail to provide shelter. The misused animal becomes a liability instead of an asset. An animal is entitled to different treatment than being kicked about.

Be Kind to Animals' week will not serve to eliminate brutality and unkindness but it will help to crystalize opinion to such an end. It is an effort which deserves all possible success and it is time that there was a greater amount of thought devoted to the subject. A decided reform in the mental process of dealing with animals by a certain number is greatly to be desired and through the agitation that accompanies the movement in behalf of animals beneficial results should be gained.

REAPPORTIONMENT

When the census committee of the house decided that it would make no report on the bill for reapportionment [illegible] favoring nor disapproving it was just pigeonholing it, it was supposed that it was all over. The manner in which the committee acted [illegible] killing any measure dealing with the subject before congress. The committee took the responsibility of killing [illegible] as happens in a great many instances.

[illegible] have been called upon again [illegible] to getting the census [illegible] to report out a bill that would increase the size of the [illegible] more would have been done during this session. But [illegible] was made and it disclosed [illegible] that the house itself by a [illegible] majority is in sympathy [illegible] the action of the committee. In [illegible] there is a desire for no [illegible] at this time, which [illegible] the belief that nothing will be done about it on the basis of the census but that it will be permitted to go over until after the next census has been taken.

There is an unusual situation. According to the Constitution congress is required to make this reapportionment following the new census. According to that it should have been done three years or more ago but the failure at that time delayed action and that policy has been followed subsequently. Not a little feeling has prevailed that the census figures of 1920 were so abnormal because conditions had not readjusted themselves following the war that the census figures in the different states did not represent the real conditions when it came time for congress to act and that on such a basis it would be unfair to decrease the representation in congress from certain states and increase them from others.

Under the bill which would keep representation the same, there would be an increase in eight states and a decrease in eleven, but by the house [illegible] there seems to be little probability that anything will not be done until about 1932, or until the next census figures are available.

THE VIRGIN ISLANDERS

Since the Virgin Islands were acquired by this country they have been [illegible] a military governor and the [illegible] not gotten the favorable impression concerning this country and government that [illegible] that they did not like the change and are a bit sorry that the ownership of the islands [illegible].

Before the present congress efforts have been made to obtain legislation that would appease the islanders, give them a voice in their own government and bring about a better feeling. There seems to be reason for counteracting that feeling of neglect which seems to have gripped those who recently became subjects of this country.

Before taking action of this character it has been decided to look into the situation a bit, make inquiry concerning the situation and get a thorough knowledge of the state of affairs in the islands before anything is undertaken in the way of relief. The trouble needs to be properly diagnosed and because of that there will be no legislation at this session of congress.

That however does not mean that the matter is to be dropped or forgotten. It is being temporarily delayed till members of congress can make a study of the islands and the problems existing there. In the end there may be no different legislation than that recently sought and yet the investigators may find that the islands are entitled to much more than they have asked. Whatever the revelation it is not a bad idea that there be first hand and impartial information obtained by representatives of those who are to take action and that is what is being done in the sending of a senate committee to the islands. No one will exactly envy the members of such a commission a trip to the islands during summer weather, but that will not of course be the only argument for an early adjournment of congress.

WAUREGAN CO.'S NEW LAURELS

With no little interest will it be noted that the Wauregan company with mills at Wauregan has received recognition in the shape of a medal for the excellency of design because of the superior grade of chints which it is now manufacturing. This medal was received in competition and shows that when the Wauregan company enters upon a new line of production the quality or design is not sacrificed.

It is always pleasing to see the mills of this end of the state excel in their particular lines, and especially in these days when such serious competition is being experienced from other parts of the country.

The cotton industry of New England has been facing difficult times. Perhaps it cannot be said that it is not as yet out of the woods, and yet it is gratifying to note that when there is a falling off or lull in the demand for the staple products there is a resourcefulness in the management of our mills which makes it possible to go from one product to another and still keep the spindles and looms running. The Wauregan mill is one of many which has shown that it isn't necessary to pack up and go south, and furthermore it isn't necessary for the purchaser to go abroad when it comes to obtaining superior quality and design. Other mills are successfully meeting the demand for rayon products in a manner which gives reassurance to the manufacturing interests of this part of the state and country.

It is an enviable record which the mills of eastern Connecticut have made in their various lines of production, but it is always gratifying to see any one of them add new laurels to their previous successes, as the Wauregan company has.

LUTHER BURBANK

For many years widespread recognition has been given to the successful accomplishments of Luther Burbank in connection with plant life. The fact that he was referred to as the "wizard" indicates the pedestal on which he had been placed as the result of his accomplishments. He was to the horticultural world what Edison is to the electrical world.

Mr. Burbank took a deep interest in the study of plant life and in experimentation therewith. Through close application to the problems he sought to solve he gained notable successes and only by a close reading of his accomplishments will it ever be known just how important and diversified were his contributions.

By nature he was a close student of things agricultural and he became more interested in his work, more ambitious in his undertakings and more successful as years went on. A clear understanding of what was sought, the ways by which it must be obtained and the willingness to take the time to accomplish it guided his hand, and what he has done and what he has learned have been of inestimable value in connection with the present day food supply.

Burbanks do not come with every generation. In his experiments by which he has changed plants and vegetables to be just about the opposite of what they were as to size, product and beauty he has interested the entire world. That he has inspired others is natural but it will be some time before another steps forth to be accorded the distinction he has gained during his life of more than three score and ten. He was a master at his art.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Bank your furnace fire at night with cinders and your fire will keep till morning.

Turpentine is excellent for washing sinks which have become dull and dirty.

When washing windows add a small quantity of bluing to the water. The windows will be greatly improved in appearance.

To clean smoky ceilings wash them with soda water. Grained wood should be washed with cold tea.

Brooms, brushes and mops should be hung on strings or screw eyes fastened to the handles so that the weight will not rest on the straws, bristles or strings.

Ordinary baking powder either dry or dissolved in water, will put out a small fire immediately. It forms a gas, carbon dioxide, which, smothers the flames. A small handful in a cup of water, or by itself, is usually sufficient.

To hard boil eggs, place them in cold water, allow them to reach the boiling point, then simmer for 20 minutes. Place in cold water and when perfectly cold remove the shells and cut into slices.

When cooking a steak smothered in onions, squeeze the juice of a lemon over it before serving and you will find the flavor greatly improved.

A half teaspoon of saltpetre mixed with a half cup of water and poured over a scuttleful of coals will not only induce a brighter fire but make the coal last longer.

To clean silver trimming that has become tarnished, cover the silver with dry magnesia and let it remain for two hours. Rub it in well then brush off with a hand brush. If not bright enough after one application apply again.

KITCHEN WALLS

Most housekeepers dread scrubbing the kitchen walls more than any other cleaning. If a teaspoonful of baking soda is used in every quart of warm water instead or soap the job will be over much sooner. Some women prefer using a sponge instead of a cloth, claiming that it absorbs the dirt and leaves no streaks.

WHEN TUMBLERS STICK

When two tumblers get stuck together separate them by pouring cold water into the inner one and then fairly hot water on the outer one. The heat expands the outer glass and they soon separate.

NEW METHODS

The absorbent paper toweling bought by the roll is used by the modern housewife in her kitchen, replacing the old fashioned roller towel her grandmother fancied. Besides being sanitary it is much neater in appearance than the crumpled roller variety.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Olive oil applied to the finger tips each night will do away with brittle nails.

About half a cup of vinegar in the rinse water when next you wash your hair will make it lovely and soft and give it an attractive sheen.

The too-plump hand would do well to avoid rings altogether unless its owner finds one artfully designed with a view to lengthening the appearance of the fingers. A well-designed oval setting will do this; but the stone must not be too large.

The commonest cause of throat wrinkles is the habit of holding the head down. Since almost every occupation, whether it be studying, office, factory or house work requires one to look downward a good deal of the time, it is no wonder that this type of wrinkle mars the smooth beauty of most necks.

HARD PROBLEM EASILY SOLVED

An easy and effective way to clean the percolator and remove any unsightly brown deposit from the sides is to use salt occasionally instead of coffee, connect the percolator and let come in the usual manner for about 15 minutes. About four heaping tablespoonful of salt and five cupfuls of water is the correct amount for this purpose. You will find that after such a cleansing, all of the brown spots and stray particles of ground coffee will have entirely disappeared from the inside of the percolator and the result is a clean and bright contrivance which looks almost like new.

CLEANS WHITE PAINT

To clean white flat paint squeeze a flannel nearly dry out of warm water and dip in a little whiting. Apply to the paint, and with a little rubbing it will instantly remove grease, smoke or other soil. Wash with warm water and rub dry with a soft cloth. It will not injure the most delicate color.

SAVE TIME IN CANDY MAKING

A delicious emergency candy may be made quickly from peanut butter and powdered sugar. Use one heaping tablespoon of the butter to a cup of sugar, adding a little vanilla or maple flavoring. Add a tiny bit of water or milk to work the mixture to the proper consistency; roll into balls or otherwise shape and let set in a cool place for a few moments and you have a unique and delightful tasting candy. It is also used for a cake filling.

HANDY FOR CLEANING

A clothespin apron is quite convenient on cleaning day. In one large pocket put chamois, whisk broom and small brushes, thus saving many steps. Into it also put all the scraps and litter meant for the scrap basket.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Nightgowns get shorter and shorter. They are wearing them just below the knees at present.

Many of the new summer frocks have tie collars that tie in demure little bows under the chin.

Extremely new and attractive are hats of black straw or taffeta trimmed with touches of pink which at times appears as a facing of the under brim.

A bit of white organdie or crepe de chine brightens practically every dark frock you see, and the white vest sometimes extends from neckline to hemline.

Silk jersey vests which terminate in drawers are being chosen by women who like clinging underwear. Like athletic garments they are made with a double seat. Colors are pink and white.

Bloomers of glove silk in shades to match the stockings are now being sold in the shops. Colors important are mauve, beige, holly de rose and [illegible] They are of [illegible] combinations [illegible] skirts [illegible] pinks [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

STORRS WILL OBSERVE ANNUAL CO-ED WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, April 11.—The annual "Co-ed Week" at Connecticut Agricultural college, when the women students of the institution plan and run an interesting program that includes the management of the college paper and various social functions, begins tomorrow.

High lights of the week's program include the "Co-ed Formal", scheduled for next Friday evening; the Saturday afternoon tea dance; the girl's Glee club concert Saturday night; and the special "Co-ed Issue" of the "Connecticut Campus", undergraduate weekly at State college. For several weeks now, the young women at Storrs have been busy with their plans for the week, and the entire college is showing much interest in the program that has been arranged.

Miss Elizabeth E. Service '26, of Norwich is editor-in-chief of the "Connecticut Campus" for the special co-ed issue. Francis F. Schreiber '27, of Southbury is associate editor. Other appointments are Martha H. Koster '28, of Hartford, managing editor; Ruth L. Monrad '28, of New Haven, news editor; Mary Dorothy Hughes '27, of Thompsonville, Mildred M. Brockett '27 of North Haven, and Celin Graff '29, of Stamford, the news board. Members of the associate news board include Evelyn M. Dragat '28 of Hartford; Beatrice E. COLLEGE PROFESSOR COMES FOR T. F. SHEA FUNERAL

All day Saturday and Sunday the parents and widow of Thomas F. Shea received telegrams, messages and personal calls of condolence, indicating the widespread sorrow caused by news of his death. Among those arriving for his funeral is Rev. John Pyne, S. J., his professor in his senior year at Holy Cross college, now at Fordham university. Father Pyne is the guest of Rev. William A. Keefe, who has been asked by Rev. Father Dinand, president of Holy Cross and detained by a New York lecture engagement, to represent him at the funeral.

A telegram received by D. T. Shea Sunday came from his cousin, Rev Daniel F. O'Reilly, pastor at Keesville, N. Y., stating that he was on his way to Norwich to celebrate the funeral mass; Father O'Reilly will reach New London at 2:30 this (Monday) morning and will be met by members of the Shea family. His brother, Rev P. J. O'Reilly, of Canaan, Conn., is also to attend the funeral.

The flag at the K. of C. home, Broadway has been at half-staff since the death was announced. Sunday afternoon, members of White Cross council and Rev. Daniel Mullin assembly, fourth degree knights, met and took formal action on the death of Grand Knight Shea. Sunday evening the Holy Name society, Patrick F. Coleman, president, visited the home of Mr. Shea, 77 Church street, offering prayers for the repose of his soul.

One of those who had visited Mr Shea during the week was his college room-mate, Attorney Edward L. Kelly, of Bridgeport, executive secretary to Governor John H. Trumbull.

All day Saturday and Sunday, floral emblems arrived from friends in Norwich, New London, Worcester and other cities, including a remembrance from the Norwich Holy Cross Alumni association, of which Mr. Shea was president. Such was his love for his alma mater that he had never missed reunion of his class at Holy Cross.

The young man's death was as edifying as his life had been. During the week he had been given the last sacraments of the church by Rev. John J. Reilly, and at the hour of his death the final consolations of the church were administered by Monsignor M. H. May. The end came peacefully, the patient sinking into eternal sleep.

Many instances of Mr. Shea's business courtesy were being recalled Sunday by those who had come to know him as a young merchant dependable, prompt and energetic.

His efficiency was the subject of commendation, notably when, during the great welcome home reception to Bp. Rev. of traffic regulations at and about St Patrick's church was solved through Mr. Shea's ability, where real generalship was required to manage the disposition of hundreds of local and visiting cars.

GLADYS LORRAINE'S BONDSMAN FINDS HER IN SPRINGFIELD

Gladys Lorraine, 24, who skipped her bond of $2,500 when she was to have appeared in this city in the January term of the criminal superior court, was brought here from Springfield Saturday night and surrendered to the police by her bondsman, Charles H. Brown of Stonington.

Brown's search for the woman, which has taken him to New York and several other places, came to an end in Springfield Saturday when he found her living at an address he had secured and the successful conclusion of his search will be just in time to save his bond, as it is understood State Attorney Arthur M. Brown was to have called the bond today (Monday).

The woman was locked up at police headquarters over Saturday night and was taken to jail Sunday morning.

Brown gave bonds for the woman at the solication of Judge Turano, of Westerly. It is understood, but when the case was called in the superior court, the Larraine woman was missing and all trace of her had been lost. The bond was kept open and the time for calling the bond has been extended several times while Mr. Brown was endeavoring to locate her and get her back into the jurisdiction of the court. The woman was caught in an attempt to steal a valuable fur coat from Carob's Specialty Shop.

OBITUARY

Edward S. Bogue

Following an illness of two weeks with pneumonia Edward S. Bogue, 36, formerly of Uncasville, died Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock at his home, 17 Washington street, New London, where he has been a resident for the past four or five years. He was born in Old Lyme, the son of William S. and Della Flood Bogue. He was married to Ruby Woodward in East Haddam and is survived by his wife and three children, Evelyn, Edward and Howard. He also leaves his parents, Mr and Mrs. William S. Bogue of Uncasville and three sisters, Mrs Alfred Dixon, Mrs. Annie McNicol and Mrs Agnes Dufour, all of Uncasville. He was employed as an expressman at the New London depot.

Mrs. William E. Geary.

After an illness of five days, the life of Elizabeth Geary, wife of Prof. William E. Geary came to a peaceful close at their home 274 Franklin street, Saturday afternoon at 4:40 o'clock.

Mrs. Geary was born in Baltimore, Maryland, about 65 years ago, being the fourth daughter of the late William and Hester Adams, who were among the old pioneer families of Centennial Methodist Episcopal church of that city. She came to Norwich more than 40 years ago in the employ of Mrs. Norman Day formerly of 231 Broadway, now of Boston Mass.

She was united in marriage with Prof Geary 34 years ago. Mrs. Geary was well known and loved in this city and Baltimore, and will be greatly missed by her many friends to whom her death was a great shock. For the past 40 years or more she has been a consistent member of the McKinley avenue M E Zion church, identified with all of its auxiliaries and always took a deep interest in all its financial enterprises. She is survived by her husband, two sisters, several nieces and nephews and other relatives, residing in Baltimore.

PASTOR FROM NORTH GROSVENORDALE LEADS METHODIST LOVE FEAST

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 11.—The services today of the New England southern conference, held in the Methodist church, opened with the love feast at 9 o'clock, when the seating capacity of the auditorium was augmented by using an adjoining and connection room, so that about 1,400 people were accommodated.

The love feast was in charge of Rev. F. C. Baker of North Grosvenordale. This was as usual a very interesting service in which a large number of people took part, representing the various walks of life. Among those who spoke was Rev. L. J. Johnson, an evangelist 60 years ago, known in various parts of New England and one who was the means of the conversion of many of those now in the ministry. There was also a written testimony from Rev. Marcus D. Buell, for 51 years in the ministry and for many years dean of the Boston university school of theology who is spending some months in Florida.

Between the love feast and the later service, the chimes of the church played hymns.

At the service at 10:45, the music was by the vested choir and prayer was offered by Rev. Myron E. Genter, Norwich district superintendent.

Bishop Richardson's sermon was from the text John 12:21,—"Sir, we would see Jesus".

He said in part:

There are three instances in the gospel story where it is recorded that men sought to see Jesus. There is the case where the shepherds came to see Him lying in the manger that first Christmas morning. And later the instance of the wise men from afar who came to see Him. And here we have this instance of our text where proselyte Greeks came to see Him. None of these knew what it was to see Jesus. It is doubtful if we know what it is although there is far less excuse for them than for us. It is impossible however, to see Jesus without we see first, sacrifice, and secondly, service.

Sacrifice is not necessarily service. People often make sacrifices to secure greater values such as people saving money—going without many desirable luxuries—that they may purchase a home. Such sacrifice is not service unless. It is service for one's self. But the sacrifice which Jesus made could not add to His treasures for he had everything at the start. He served others and gave us a vivid illustration when He washed the disciples feet. But to join a foot washing society does not necessarily imply that one has Christ's spirit of service.

His own disciples did not get His message. A mother asked for her two sons, the honor one to sit on the right and the other on the left of His throne when as they supposed He would rule the world as its king. And the other ten were indignant not because the two had failed to get the true vision of Christ's message but because this mother had got her petition in ahead of them. She had asked for her sons the places that every other of the disciples was seeking for himself.

Service is a glorious end in itself for in a picture we have of the Heavenly world we read "they serve Him day and night." But you say—What does a Bishop know about service? My reply is that if bishops are not to serve, better for their spiritual good that the whole episcopal board resign. As for myself I find opportunities for greater service since I was a bishop than before and if I did not so find that I would give up my position.

But you cannot see Jesus (3) without you see salvation. This includes individual salvation but it means also salvation for the whole human family. Some do not like that. These would revise John 3:16 and write it God so loved the Anglo-Saxon peoples etc. Others possibly would enlarge it and substitute "the white race" but Jesus said "the world."

There are at present 8 or 9 millions of people in the world who have not had the opportunity brought to them to see Jesus. If we see Jesus in truth we cannot fail to see every race and nation granted a place in his kingdom.

Jesus, in the Sermon on the Mount, tells us the way to see Him and that is by becoming pure in heart. Sin blurs our visions in the spiritual realm even as our material vision is clouded on a foggy morning when we can only discern a tree or a house because we saw them there when there was no fog. Hawthorne in his story of "The Great Stone Face" suggests the fact that attention and association will cause one to become like another with whom we enjoy close contact. Thus may we see our Christ and become like Him until finally we may see Him as He is.

It was an able sermon and held the attention of the vast audience to the last sentence.

At the service at 3 p. m., the following were ordained as deacons: Geo. S. Brown, Elmer G. Page, Harold W. McIlinay, Kenneth H. Sansaman, J. Raymond Wonder, Alphonso M. Newell, Gordon C. Capen, Herbert M. Frazer and Fred M. Smith, and the following as elders: James V. Claypool, Raymond V. Coniey, Raymond W. Hibbard, Theodore Peterson, Edwin Winters, Frank Chamberlain, Frederick Medino, Geo. E. Mitchell and A. Merritt Dietterich.

This service was very impressive and several elders assisted Bishop Richardson in the ordination ceremonies.

Conference Notes

The trial of Rev. Guy Willis Holmes of New Bedford was in progress until 12 o'clock midnight Saturday and there is no information as to the time needed to bring it to a finish. Its necessity has cast a shadow upon what otherwise has been a very enjoyable session and whether matters can be adjusted so that the conference can be adjourned on Monday is not known by any one the Bulletins representative can discover.

The trial board comprises the following: Rev. H. H. Crawford, Arnold's Mills, R. I.; Rev. J. Edgar Montgomery, Niantic, Conn.; Rev. John W. Annas, East Weymouth, Mass.; Rev John H. Buckley, Brockton, Mass.; Rev. R. A. Colpitts, Fall River, Mass.; Rev. E. E. Story, Providence; Rev. G W. Manning, Bourne, Mass.; Rev. J E. Blake, Plymouth, Mass.; Rev. W H. Bath, East Providence, R. I.; Rev. R. S. Moore, Providence, R. I.; Rev. W. E. Plaxton, Hazerdville, Conn.; Rev. J. E. Duxbury, Manchester; Rev. F. C. Baker, North Grosvenordale. Rev. M. J. Creeger, Taunton; and Rev. J. G. Sallis, Mystic, Conn.

Among the arrivals on Saturday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNeely of Norwich and Mrs. Sarah Tracy of Jewett City.

Rev. Orrin E. Tourtelotte of the North Dakota conference and his wife are attending the conference. Mr Tourtelotte was pastor at Eastford Conn., several years ago. Mrs. Tourtelotte was before her marriage Miss Sadie Squires whose father and two of whose brothers are in the ministry also.

The Salvation Army band of South Manchester consisting of 25 pieces gave a delightful band concert from 6:30 to 7 Saturday evening.

DESCRIBED THEIR VISIT TO THE HOLY LAND

The monthly meeting of the missions department of Park church was held Friday evening at the H. H. Osgood Memorial.

The chairman, Miss Edith Bliss, conducted the devotional exercises. The singing of the hymns was led by Eben Learned, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman at the piano. The minutes of the last meeting, read by the secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, were approved.

The program of the evening was given by Miss Bliss and Miss Alice Cogswell who, as members of the American branch of the Church Touring Guild of England, went to Palestine to visit the shrines of our Christian faith in that ancient land. Their very vivid word pictures of traveling experiences and of impressions of the scenery, towns, natives and customs were supplemented by lantern slides.

Miss Cogswell described the journey from Marseilles to Jerusalem, noting, among other points of interest, the modern Jewish settlements of the Zionists and, in contrast, the patriarchal ... of the Bedouins. She spoke also of the inestimable benefits gained by the country from British rule.

Jerusalem was full of thrilling interest, not only from its historical associations, but also from the varied pageant of Oriental life which passed through its narrow streets and through its narrow streets and from dawn to night. Many were the thoughts aroused by the sight of the Holy Sepulchre, the pools of Bethesda, the temple area, the garden of Gethsemene, the Mount of Olives. Rides were taken to the Dead sea, so desolate, yet beautiful, to the fertile valley of the Jordan, to the little Bethany of the sisters and Lazarus and down the road to Jericho. Bethlehem was also visited; Bethlehem with its church of the Nativity. There standing in its grotto, the believed site of the birthpace of our Lord, a feeling of overwhelming awe thrills one's inmost being said Miss Cogswell.

Miss Bliss led her hearers out through the Damascus gate along the road to Emmans, past Mt. Gerizim to Jacob's well; past the foothills of Samaria to the Plain of Armageddon, the scene of momentous battles through the ages; past Mt. Tabor of the Transfiguration to the pretty town of Nazareth. There the travelers were pleasantly entertained by the monks of the Hospice. From its balcony they gazed on Hermion, Tabor and Carmel, the Plain of Esdraelon and the blue water of the Mediterranean—scenes so familiar to the boy Jesus. There were visits to Cana of Galilee and to the ruins of Capernaum and a ride by motor boat on Lake Tiberias. Then too soon came the embarking at Haifa and the last view of the never-to-be-forgotten Land of the Book.

A pleasing addition to the main topic was a brief talk, with illustrations, on the Isle of Patmos by Miss Cogswell.

After prayer and benediction by After prayer and benediction by Dr. parlors to the members and their friends, a pleasing close to a most interesting evening.

Called To Providence

Bartholomew Smith of Cedar street has been called to Providence by the death of his brother, Francis Edward Smith. Mr. Smith was a former resident of Norwich.

A lawsuit is apt to wear out at the pockets first.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS FROM STATE MET HERE

Two hundred strong, veterans of foreign wars, representing posts throughout the state and members of the ladies' auxiliary of the order, met in Norwich Sunday for a state meeting at which various topics of general interest to the members were discussed. The women met in the Buckingham Memorial and the veterans gathered for their session at the rooms of Hourigan post, No. 594, at No. 142 Main street.

The state meeting opened with a luncheon served at 1 o'clock at Buckingham Memorial. The luncheon was prepared and served under the direction of Mrs. Annie B. Turner, president of the auxiliary of Harley P. Chase post, Pawcatuck.

Leo L. Jacquest, commander of Hourigan post, opened the after-dinner programme with a hearty welcome to the visiting delegations from state posts and auxiliaries. A welcome to the city of Norwich was extended by Mayor Milo R. Waters, a member of Hourigan post. Department Commander John R. Kelly extended a welcome in behalf of the state department and remarks were made by Senior Vice Commander Charles T. Blanchard, Junior Vice Commander William P. Dribble and Quartermaster George S. French. Other guests at the meeting were Past National Junior Vice Commander Major Arthur Bennett of Bridgeport, Orrin M. Price, commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., this city, State Auxiliary President Mrs Percie Johnson of Waterbury, the auxiliary national color bearer, Miss Evelyn Johnson of Waterbury, National Senior Vice President Margaret Oldridge of Providence, National Conductress Anna Dougherty of Boston and the Massachusetts state auxiliary president, Mrs. Bessie Hawkins of Revere.

Following the after dinner programme a group picture was taken by Comrade Horan of Hourigan post in front of the Chelsea bank. The veterans then formed in line with the department and local officers leading and paraded to the rooms of Hourigan post, Main street where the business meeting was held, Dept. Commander Kelly presiding. The meeting opened with the salute to the colors and this was followed by the usual reports of the various officers. Thomas P. Cahill, editor of The Poppy, the veterans official state magazine, gave a talk on the magazine and its value to the members.

The question of the Memorial day poppies was discussed and settled, all posts in the state being requested to sell poppies this year as usual. The various posts voted to send delegations to the annual state convention to be held in Wallingford June 12th and 13th. There was also a discussion of the matter of relief for veterans in hospitals and the adjusted compensation bill came in for attention. all veterans of the World war being urged to send in their applications for adjusted compensation if they have not already done so.

Vice Commander Blanchard, Connecticut chairman of the national home committee, told of the plans for the national home, which is to be located at Eaton Rapids, Mich., and which is to be run somewhat on the style of Mooseheart, the national home of the Moose. Connecticut is planning to provide funds for the construction of a Connecticut cottage at the home.

Attention was called to the national convention to be held at El Paso, Texas in September. One way fare for the delegates and visiting veterans will be in force on the railroads for the convention dates. Other matters of general interest to the veterans were discussed, after which adjournment was taken.

Over 100 delegates were present at the auxiliary meeting held in Buckingham memorial and presided over by the department president, Mrs. Percie Johnson of Waterbury. State officers present, in addition to the department president were Miss Evelyn Johnson, Waterbury, Mrs. Aldrich of Rhode Island, national senior vice president, Mrs. Hankins, state department president of Massachusetts and Mrs. Dellerty, a state department officer of Massachusetts.

The minutes of the previous meeting held in Ansonia in January were read by the state secretary, Miss Evelyn Johnson, Waterbury and considerable important routine business was transacted. Interesting talks on the advancement and for the good of the order were given by National Senior Vice President Margaret Oldridge of Providence, National Conductress Anna Daugherty of Boston and Mrs. Bessie Hankins of Revere, state president of the Massachusetts state department.

Plans were perfected for the state encampment which is to be held in Wallingford, June 12th and 13th. Every auxiliary in the department was urged to send at least one delegate to the national convention to be held at El Paso, Texas in September. In behalf of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, President Annie B. Turner presented a gift to the state president, Mrs. Johnson and a gift to the state secretary, Miss Emily Johnson, both of Waterbury. The meeting adjourned at 5:30 o'clock.

CHENEY SILK TIES FOR THE METHODIST MINISTERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

SOUTH MANCHESTER, April 11.—After supper Thursday evening, Rev Joseph Cooper pastor of the church, entertaining the New England Southern Conference announced that Cheney Bros. silk manufacturers of Manchester had presented every one of the ministers a silk necktie and a neatly bound book telling the story of silk. to be secured by calling at the church office. The announcement was greeted with prolonged applause which was finally quieted by some good brother who started to sing Blest Be the Tie that Binds which carried at once a good volume of voices which united to sing the entire stanza, while others were convulsed with laughter.

The public service in the auditorium at 8 filled an immense audience the attractive feature being the Temperance Address by the famous Clarence True Wilson of Washington, D. C., who is at the head of the board of temperance, etc., of the Methodist Episcopal church. He handled the wets without gloves and received much applause as he made his telling points.

In closing he prophesied that the Volstead act would be amended in time to make the buyer make the first offense a jail sentence. We will enact a law to send back every alien to his own country who breaks our laws. At the present time the wet organizations are inducing foreigners to come to this country promising them that they can soon get rich in the bootlegging business. America when it gets awakened will deport all such. We will take the appointment of enforcement officers out of partisan politics and put it in the civil service class. This address held the vast congregation deeply interested for over an hour and was regarded as an able and timely presentation of this important issue.

TOWN FATHERS' RIDE WITH SURPRISING ENDING

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, April 11—During Thursday, three of the town fathers journeyed by automobile to the north part of the town on business. Coming back the machine got real balky and finally refused to budge. The fathers and grandfathers got out and pushed some, but after navigating in that uncertain way for a spell, one man walked back a mile or so, and telephoned to a garage to be towed in. The garage man arrived, hitched on a good strong chain and started for home. Everybody settled back in a much relieved frame of mind. All of a sudden, near Shea's ice houses, the chain parted company with the rear machine. The driver of the garage machine traveled right along in blissful disregard all unknowing that he had lost his cargo. And he didn't discover it until he arrived at the garage. The town fathers were left sitting in the middle of the road, viewing the disappearing helper with feeling too deep for utterance. Anyway they were not sure whether to laugh or swear. They were good sports however, and told the joke on themselves and the garage man.

Don't dope YOUR Cough

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" to deaden narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may ease your cough temporarily by numbing the throat, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.

The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germ-laden mucous loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery.

PERTUSSIN assists Nature to accomplish these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.

MILL AT WAUREGAN HONORED FOR EXCELLENCE OF CHINTZ DESIGN

(Special to the Bulletin)

BOSTON, April 11—The Wauregan Co., Wauregan, Conn., is one of the few New England cotton mills awarded a medal for artistic merit of design. The award is the joint decision of the Boston chamber of commerce, operating with the Boston Art club, in whose spacious galleries the exhibit is displayed.

The Wauregan Co., has long enjoyed recognition in the shirt manufacturing industry for the excellent quality and designs in its varied lines of shirtings. This reputation, however, has been limited to the circles of shirt manufacturers and the shirting trade because once the fabrics were made into shirts all trace of their identity and source was lost.

The growing demand for home decoration has created a substantial market for chints draperies and the sellers house. Amory, Browne & Co., recognizing that the long experience of the Wauregan Co., in weaving fine shirtings qualified this mill to make a superior grade of chintz, encouraged the local industry to undertake this fabric.

Less than a year ago the first samples were displayed to the great department stores of the country. Buyers who make periodical trips to Europe for the newest and best in draperies exclaimed over the technical perfection of the cloth, which is so finely and closely woven that it takes the minutest detail of printing, and were delighted with the variety of design and beautiful colorings. The mill people were pleased because here was a fabric sold over the counter which could carry the name, Wauregan, through to the consuming public.

The Boston chamber of commerce has been making a careful study for some time of the problems of the New England cotton manufacturing industry, seeking a remedy for the conditions which have compelled New England's mills to operate only part time or in some cases, shut down altogether. In their report, the directors give important place to their belief that "frequently articles of foreign manufacture are given preference over domestic products on the single ground that they are thought to have more artistic merit." Two of their major conclusions are then, that the New England mills should give greater attention to the artistic quality of design and to the need for each mill to so stamp its name upon its goods that a satisfied purchaser when again in need of such merchandise can readily identify and buy the same goods.

To help impress this need upon both manufacturers and the New England public, the chamber with cooperation of the Boston Art club, arranged for a textile exhibit which is unique, in that where textile shows of the past emphasized variety and utility, this show gives exclusive importance to the artistic qualities which place the admitted fabrics in the class of works of art.

This exhibition has been timed to coincide with the annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in Boston and public interest has been so stirred that the Boston Art museum announces a special exhibit at the museum to be displayed at the same time, of ancient and modern examples of textile art.

In awarding the medal to the Wauregan Co., the judge commented upon designs in particular. One, the "Deborah," a small rose and leaf design developed with infinite patience by some unknown textile artist over 125 years ago. This design was in active demand up to 1890 and when the Wauregan Co., decided to manufacture chintz, the rights to it were purchased and it was again put upon the market, where it has met unqualified approval of the leading interior decorators and artists everywhere.

Contrasting with this is the "Jeffersonian" design, a modern idea, less than a year old and based on authentic scenes in the period of Thomas Jefferson. The central theme is Thomas Jefferson's home in Monticello which was recently bought by public subscription and turned over to the government as a museum. This is a particularly interesting motif to the people of our time because Jefferson's period was the most typically colonial. The country had recovered from the ravages of the Revolution and the people were beginning to have some leisure for recreation and the fine arts.

This type of pictorial wall coverings is practically new in draperies, this being only the second or third time the theme has been employed in America, although the idea has been used in Europe for centuries.

Thus taking the lead in finding a fabric of popular demand which can be developed in artistic design and which will carry the mills' name through to the ultimate consumer, the Wauregan Co., is to be commended as pointing the way to any bigger and better known New England mill.

The exhibit is open daily at the galleries of the Boston Art club, corner of Dartmouth and Newbury streets, only a few steps from the Back Bay station of the New Haven railroad, from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m. until Saturday evening, April 17.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS ARE READY TO BEGIN THE RACE FOR PENNANTS

CHICAGO, April 11—(AP)—Most of the major leaguers today were through final rehearsals for the season now which is bulled to open Tuesday, while those who tarried rang down the curtain on their spring warmstorming.

New York's Giants marked the occasion by shutting out the Washington Americans, 5 to 0, making it two straight for the McGrawmen since the Senators got back in the home pack.

Tris Speaker's Indians had similar fortune at Cincinnati, downing the Reds for the second time in the home field, 5 to 1, in a game called in the seventh for rain.

Hopping off for the north and Tuesday's inaugural with Cleveland, the Detroit Tygers stayed in Memphis long enough to hang up another victory over the Southern Circuit club, thistime for a 7 to 0 shutout.

The New York Americans made a clean sweep of their spring series with Brooklyn by a 14-7 count in a heavy slugging contest in the Yankee stadium.

Chicago's White Sox outhit and under-errored the Toledo Mud Hens for a 6-1 decision. W. Young, Thomas and Connally breezed the game in fine fashion, Thomas whiffing eight.

The Cubs, ahead on a series with the Kansas City Blues after a bad start, were rained out and departed for Cincinnati where they open with the Reds.

The Philadelphia Athletics ran over the Baltimore and Orioles there, four of the Athletics and the Boston Braves were rained to with the honors over the Baltimore Eastern leaguers, Rain interfered a third wrangle between the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals.

METROPOLITAN TEAMS EXPECTED TO SHOW WELL

NEW YORK, April 11—(AP)—Exceptional hitting power and great reserve strength for the Yankees, improved pitching and outfielding for the Giants and the strong pitching for the Brooklyn Dodgers seem to summarize the situation as the great New York major league baseball setup for another

The Yankees with a remodeled infield, appear to be in championship class, with three able hitters added to the squad, Gehrig, Lazzeri, and Koenig. These infielders are expected to pound the ball hardily in support of the hurling of Shocker, Jones, Pennock, Hoyt, Shawkey and Beal. Nick Cullop will assume the pinch-hitting role.

At Tyson, a powerful, dependable and capable handler of a baseball may prove the spark to bring back the old Giants fire in their fight for the National flag. Ring, Nehf, Meadows, Fitzsimmons, Scott, Greenfield and Wiener comprise a formidable pitching squad. The infield will be the same as that of 1925 and Manager McGraw feels confident that only injuries can beat him.

Brooklyn expects good pitching from its veterans, Vance, Grimes and Jess Barnes, while McWeeny and Petty should prove capable assistants. Taylor finds only Deberner and Stock of the 1925 squad still in action. The others are veterans, however, with Maranville at short and Marriott at third, Johnny Butler from St. Paul, 20 years old, is slated to succeed Marriott when he returns to the game. The outfield has added the veteran American leaguer, Whitey Witt.

PHILADELPHIA FANS ARE STRONG FOR ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, April 11—(AP)—Baseball fans are set for the 1926 opener here Tuesday when the Philadelphia Nationals start the annual battle with the Boston Braves. The local hope for a pennant winner in the Athletics, will be in Washington the same day engaging the American league champions.

Few expect the Phillies to finish in the money, but there is a general feeling the club is on the way to better things. Based upon its recent showing against the Athletics the team appears stronger defensively than last year. Jack Bentley, Wasland Dean, Ernie Maun and Edward Baecht, youthful semi-pro pitcher, are newcomers slated to stick, and it is believed they will add considerable to the club's attack.

Notable changes in the Athletics, regarded by many as favorite American league entry, will be the return of Joe Hauser to first base after a year's absence, and the stationing of Walt French doubtless will add speed both offensively and defensively. Connie Mackk regards his pitching staff stronger than a year ago through the availability of four hoxmen who were either unfit or not with the club last April. These are Jack Quinn, Joe Pate Stan Baumgartner and Fred Heimach. Much is expected also from the pitching arms of Rommel, Gray, Harriss and Grove.

BOTH BOSTON TEAMS ARE OF UNKNOWN STRENGTH

BOSTON, April 11—(AP)—Two Boston teams, both of untested possibilities, will get away in races of the American and National baseball circuits this week. A fighting team of youngsters that has undergone more radical and rapid changes than any other club in league will represent the Boston Americans, who trailed eighth in last year's race. Another powerful National league team, than that which speeded up at the close of last season to finish fifth, will start this season.

A pair of Detroit team-mates will appear in the Red Sox in field, Hanes at third and Rigney at short. Herrera the Cuban and Emmett McCann, Coast league recruit, are still fighting for the second base job. Al Gaston of Toledo has been called to a catching berth. Reding, Wingfield, Zahniser, Jameson and Ruhnke are included in a sturdy pitching staff. Rosenthal, Shaner of Kansas City, Langford of Des Moines and others are in the race for outfield berths and only Flagstead is sure of his place. In fact, the infield too many yet be greatly shifted. The batting is expected to be satisfactory.

The Braves have a stronger pitching staff and a heavier batting corps than last year, Ed Brown from Brooklyn has been added to a hard hitting outfield. Gautreau is sure of second base and Riconda is said to be a find at third. Manager Bancroft will have understudies at short in Jimmy Johnston from Brooklyn and Taylor of Albany. George Mogridge and Harry Wertz have been added to an already strong pitching staff including Genewich Benton, Smith, Graham, Kamp and Cooney. Gibson and Selner will be behind the bat.

YANKEES SWAMP DODGERS IN FINAL EXHIBITION

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., April 11.—(AP)—The New York Americans won the final game from the Brooklyn Nationals in their spring series by a score of 14 to 7 here today.

This gave the New Yorkers a clean sweep of the 12-game series and also made their string of victories 16 in a row.

Nick Cullop and Tony Lazzeri featured with home runs, while Babe Ruth got three doubles. An eighth inning rally which netted the Yanks seven runs put the game far out of Brooklyn's reach.

Score by innings:

Brooklyn (N)	2	0	1	0	0	0	1	2	1	7
New York (A)	2	1	1	0	0	2	7	1	x	14

Batteries: Hoyt, Thomas and Bengough; McGraw, McSweeny, Stryker, Moss and O'Neil, Deberry.

CHICAGO CUBS WILL BE IN THE RACE

CHICAGO, April 11.—(AP)—Chicago regards the 1926 pennant race with expectations and good wishes for its two big time clubs, the White Sox and Cubs—in that order.

It looks first to the Sox. Eddie Collins starts the battle for the American league championship with the St. Louis Browns here Tuesday with virtually the same outfit of season and wily veterans that finished fifth in 1925.

That smart club which slipped late last year is generally regarded as both able and obligated to finish somewhere near if not at the top this season. It is the concesus that consistency will be the determining factor.

The principal addition is Everett Scott, dropped by Washington, but warmly welcomed at short by the veteran Collins, who will be back at second base. The seasoned Barrett or Harris, extra man last summer, are slated for Hooper's old post in right. Young Thomas from Baltimore completents last season's pitching staff. The youthful team, comparatively speaking, which will represent Chicago among the Nationals is an unknown quality. Predictions have been pessimis: The fans will be glad for small favors, for a finish above the cellar, as last year, and jubilant over any showing beyond that.

Joe McCarthy, former master mind of the Louisville Association club, and now in the majors, has had two months in which to work with the last place club of 1925 and its youthful recruits before Tuesday's opener at Cincinnati. The spring showing indicates a defense, still unsettled in the infield and with the veteran Alexander and Cooper topping the flingers, but little in the way of offense. McCarthy points to the best Pacific Coast record made so far during a Cub team's spring training and says that youth and speed will make the Cubs the surprise of the year in the National race.

SENATORS WILL PRESENT ALMOST THE SAME TEAM

WASHINGTON, April 11. — (AP)—Washington's hopes for the American League pennant this year rest largely upon the same regulars who turned the trick in 1924 and 1925.

Strengthening material has been welded into the organization at several places but the lineup that will face the Philadelphia Athletics in the opening game here Tuesday is the same that played in the last two world series. Manager Bucky Harris rates Goslin as better in all departments than it was last year and he is confident of capturing an intra straight flag.

Unless circumstances alter custom, Walter Johnson will pitch the opener, with Ruel behind the bat. The infield composition of Judge-Harris-Peckinpaugh-Rice will be there, while the outfield will be divided between Goslin, Rice and Joe Harris.

New and old material has been gathered by President Griffith to build up another winning machine. To the pitching veterans, Johnson, Coveleskie, Ruether, Ferguson and Marberry, have been added the experienced Joe Bush, the younger Harry Kelley, Irving Hadley and Bill Morrell, and Curley Ogden who came back from the minors last season. The catching staff remains the same with Ruel supported by Tate and Severeid.

A brilliant substitute for the ageing Peckinpaugh has been found in Buddy Myer, and Harris has Stewart as his understudy at second. McNeely, Tobin and Jeannes are available for utility work in the outfield.

PIRATES WILL BEGIN SEASON WITH MAKESHIFT TEAM

PITTSBURGH, April 11.(AP)—The Champion Pirates open the campaign Tuesday at St. Louis with the first line defense somewhat impaired, but with adept substitutes who will be relied upon to uphold the titleholders' prestige until the regulars regain full strength. Thus fortified they expect to win another flag.

Carey, veteran outfielder, is recovering from influenza and will not appear. Cuyler will be in center, flanked by Barnhart and Bigbee, with Wagner, Pacific Coast recruit, in reserve.

Rhyne, another coast star, may start at second, but Moore, still limping from injuries, is certain to be at the post soon. Traynor, also a casualty, will likely preside at third with Wright at short and Grantham at first. Smith will catch.

The pitchers are reported in excellent condition, compared to last year when their poor showing caused the club to get a bad start. Aldridge will likely pitch the opener.

TIGERS WILL START OFF WITH THEIR FULL STRENGTH

DETROIT, April 11.—(AP)—In better physical condition than at the start of the season last year, the Detroit Tigers will take the field Tuesday for the championship season with much of their chance for success depending on the way Ty Cobb's new infield combination works out.

Wingo, Fothergill and Heilmann, who will probably star in the opening lineup at left, center and right fields, respectively, are tested Detroit veterans. Blue at first base, Tavener at short and Bassler behind the bat, are also players who have been with Detroit in past seasons, but Warner at third and Gehringer at second are the new men depended upon to bolster up an infield considered weak last year. O'Rourke, a veteran, will be at second in the opening game, however.

Definite selection of a pitcher for the opening game has not been made. George Dauss, veteran Tiger hurler, and Earl Whitehill have been prominently mentioned for the starting game of the season.

BELIEVE INDIANS WIL L SHOW MUCH IMPROVEMENT

CLEVELAND, April 11.—(AP)—Although Cleveland will start the season with virtually the same lineup that finished sixth in the 1925 pennant race President E. S. Barnard and Manager Tris Speaker believe the team will show an improvement.

Their belief is based particularly on the showing of the pitchers and the infield. Confidence also was expressed that with Luke Sewell behind the plate daily, the catching will be better.

Uhle and Shure, who got away to a bad start last season are counted upon as the pitching mainstays. Levsen, Karr, Sherry Smith and Miller also will start as regulars.

Speaker had hoped to start Hodapp at third, but a sprained ankle last Monday put him on the bench. Ernest Padgett then was obtained from the Boston Braves as a substitute infielder.

REDS ALL READY TO GO WITH EXCEPTION HARGREAVE

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs, foes of old will meet in the opening National League game at Redland Field here Tuesday before the usual first day crowds. Despite the .2 1 00 lacing that Cleveland gave Pete Donaghue in the exhibition game here yesterday the veteran twirler, as in years past, probably will be on the mound as the Reds opener.

If Hargrave, who has been suffering from appendicitis is unable to catch, Either Wingo or Picinich will complete the Reds battery.

Christensen, Roush and Walker probably will make up the outfield and infield. Wally Pipp will hold down first base, with Bohne at short, Ortiz on second and Dressen at third.

RAIN CALLS HALT ON ST. LOUIS CITY SERIES

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—(AP)—Rain put a damper on the baseball festivities at Sportsman's park today, forcing postponement until tomorrow of the final two game spring series between the Cardinals and the Browns.

Charley Robertson, former White Sox hurler probably will pitch for the Browns tomorrow, Sisler expects to put Milton Gaston in the box to hurl the inaugural league game Tuesday against the White Sox at Chicago.

The manager of the American leaguers, much encouraged over the showing of his warriors during the latter half of the Florida training season and over their defeat of the strong Cardinal team yesterday, intends to send his team against the Sox without any changes in the present lineup.

Bill Sherdel, ace of the Cardinals' pitching staff last season, is expected to try for an even break for the Nationa. leaguers in the contest with the Browns tomorrow, Hornsby is saving Flint Rhem to pitch the opening game against the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates here the next day.

ALL OVER WINS TIJUANA $10,000 CUP FEATURE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—All Over, C. B. Irwin's stable star, proved much the best of a field of five in the running of the $10,000 Tijuana cup event, feature race at two miles, at Tijuana today, defeating Rosedale stable's Sanford by seven lengths. Dr Clark, owned by Earl Linnell, finished 15 lengths behind the winner for third place. The time was 3:29.

The race was worth $11,850 to the winner.

The time for the distance was poor, due possibly to the heavy condition of the track.

All Over paid $8.20 to win in the two dollar mutuels, $3.60 to place, and $2.60 to show. Sanford paid $3.40 to place and $2.60 to show. Dr. Clark paid $3 to show.

FRENCH TEAM WINS PARIS SIX-DAY RACE

PARIS, April 11—(AP)—The French team Wambst-Lacquehaye won the six day bicycle race tonight with 548 points, covering 3,323 kilometres (2,064 miles).

Marcot and Petzois were second and DeWolf and Stockelynck third.

The American team, McNamara and Horan, who met with a mishap almost at the start of the race, trailed along and struggled pluckily. They finished fourth, two laps behind the winner.

ACADEMY STARTS BASEBALL SEASON WITH SMASHING VICTORY OVER ALUMNI

Showing a real batting punch and a strong defense the Academy baseball squad smothered the Alumni team under an 18 to 2 score Saturday afternoon at the Academy campus in the opening game of the season. The Alumni team was unable to do anything with the offerings of Jarvis and Greene, the two Academy pitching stars, only four hits being gleaned off the delivery of these two pitchers, each allowing two singles. Jarvis showed better control while Greene was a trifle wild.

The game looked like a real contest for the first three innings but in the fourth Ellie Segal went wild and his team also contributed plenty of errors which allowed ten runs to score in this frame. In the fifth frame the Academy scored three more runs to which they added three in the seventh and one in the eighth.

The Alumni team started off strong in the first inning getting one run across by a walk, a double by McGowan and a wild pitch by Jarvis. This was the Alumni's only run until the 9th inning when an error and a hit by McGowan brought in the second run.

The Academy team played nice baseball showing a powerful attack led by Cimikowski with four hits. All the team hit well, even the substitutes and second varsity men that were thrown into the game in the late innings. On the defense the team looked exceptionally strong, Yerrington, Burke and Tombari and Marks playing well. In the outfield Sadinsky looked well in left field and Shorty Hamil in right field also played a good fielding game, Shorty contributing a pretty catch in the seventh inning.

MOTORCYCLISTS ENJOYED HARE AND HOUND CHASE

About 15 owners of motorcycles with their friends enjoyed one of the most interesting motorcycle events of the spring season when a hare and hound chase was held Sunday afternoon. The event was a novelty originated by James P. Donovan of the Harley agency and proved such a success that a number of these novel attractions will be held during the riding season.

The hare and hound chase is an exciting affair calling upon ability to ride in places not frequented by motorcycles and at a speed not exceeding the law. The hares are given five minute start of the hounds and all turns taken by the hares are marked by lime thrown in the road. At certain places numbers are hidden under rocks and when the hounds come they must find the numbers and at the end of the chase the hound having the lowest numbers wins. The hound to find the numbers under the rocks takes the lowest number from the envelope and proceeds with the chase.

The hares in yesterday's chase were J. P. Donovan and Chris Allen. The hounds were James Kelly, Leslie Gordon, Charles Oldham, Merritt Hawes, John McCarthy, Jerry Fish, Philip Provencher, DeWitt Parsons, W. R. Toler, E. Toler, Wm Hollard, H. C. Bradley and A. DesChamps. W. R. Toler won first prize and E. Toler won second. The distance covered in the chase was about 31 miles the start being made at 2 o'clock and the last hound reported home at 4.30.

This event is one of the first of the season, there being a number of motorcycle events being planned for the season. On April 20th there will be a meeting of the motorcycle riders of Norwich and vicinity to organize a motorcycle club. The meeting will be held at Mr. Donovan's store.

Bethlehem Beats Millers

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP)—Bethlehem Steel defeated the Ben Millers of St. Louis, 7 to 2, today in the final of the American cup tie soccer played at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, before a crowd of 18,000.

Before one of the largest crowds soccer has known in this country the Missourians went to pieces when Archie Stark, Bethlehem center, scored after 10 minutes of play. Stark featured throughout the remainder of the game, adding another score just before half time which was followed by one by Goldie.

At the opening of the second half the Ben Millers pressed momentarily and Nash counted from scrimmage in front of the Bethlehem goal. Robb, Bethlehem inside left, retaliated immediately and then Nash scored again. Goldie, Stark and Japp also scored for the Pennsylvanians in this period.

SMALLER ENTRY LIST FOR BOSTON MARATHON THIS YEAR

BOSTON, April 11—(AP)—The 30th Boston Athletic association marathon, America's original distance contest, is only a week away and the entries number only half of the 131 who got away with the gun last year. The management expects the usual crop of tardy registrations between now and April 19th, Patriots' day, but it seems certain that a small field will plod the 26-odd miles from Hopkinton to the Boston clubhouse.

Not only will the contestants be fewer, but some of the bright stars of former years have not entered this spring. The experts have ferreted out two reasons. It is granted that the possession of the National A. A. U. championship award by the Baltimore-Laurel run carries a greater reward for victory but the month between the two events should have permitted the runners to enter both. Others think the four-time winner, Clarence H. DeMar, who has entered again, has frightened off some contenders, although he lost last year to Chuck Mellor of Chicago.

NOSE BROKEN WHEN HIT BY THROWN BALL

HARTFORD, April 11—(AP)—Baseball claimed its first casualty of the season at Colt park this afternoon when Arthur Hooper, of 144 Central avenue, East Hartford, running to second base on a two-bagger he had hit, was struck on the nose by the ball on its return from the outfield.

Hooper's nose was broken but he made the sack regardless. Policeman J. J. Simpson called the police ambulance and Hooper was taken to headquarters for treatment by Police Surgeon John D. Greenberg.

HARTFORD CLUB DOWNS RED SOX IN EXHIBITION

HARTFORD, April 11.—(AP)—Hartford opened its home exhibition season here this afternoon, defeating a make-shift Boston Red Sox team, 6 to 4.

The Red Sox were unable to do much with two of Hartford's three pitchers, Lem Owen and Johnny Miller holding the Bostonians to two hits in six innings. The Sox hit Fred Spates for six safeties. Russell and Keifer, Boston pitchers, were touched up pretty freely.

WALKER IS CHOSEN HEAD OF HOCKEY LEAGUE

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP)—Herbert Walker, Yale hockey star, today was elected president of the Intercollegiate Hockey association of America at its spring meeting, attended by representatives of Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton, Williams, Hamilton and Cornell universities. Andrew Rankin of Dartmouth was named secretary and treasurer.

"GETTING TO BE A HUSKY BOY"

To Those Who Judge Quality by Price

The quality of Ford cars cannot be judged by the prices at which they are sold—because Ford prices are made possible by conditions that are absolutely unique in the automotive industry.

From mine to market the Ford car is the work of a single organization. The Company owns and operates the mines and forests that furnish the raw materials for its products. This material is carried over Ford transportation routes, fabricated in Ford mills, manufactured in Ford plants—and the finished product is sold to the public through the Ford dealer organization. Thus there is but a single manufacturing profit on the car.

The following statement, previously made in an advertising message, is repeated here because of its great significance to the motoring public:

"If any other manufacturer endeavored to produce a car similar to the Ford, according to the high standards of quality in material and workmanship used by the Ford Motor Company and with the same tried and proved design, it would be impossible to offer it at any thing like Ford prices. And it is well to note that even with less costly design they have not been able to meet Ford prices."

If you contemplate the purchase of a motor car, go to the salesroom of the nearest Authorized Ford Dealer and get acquainted with the greatest automobile value of all time.

Live On

Live on, my friend, live on;
Faint not beneath your gloom;
The darkness you bemoan
Reveals the upper bloom
Of stars, that gleam with hope
Of some new horoscope.

Think not you've toiled in vain;
Fear not what seems defeat;
Be resolute, and gain
What morning summits greet
Your dew-besprinkled eyes,
Fresh turning to the skies.

Life's good is in its loss;
You have what you have spent;
You stand upon the dross
Of castles fondly dreamt,
And catch the vision, free,
Of better things to be.

A love divine and wise,
Enfolds you all your ways;
God's angel lowly flies
Before your bitter days.
And guids each sad surprise
With gleams of Paradise.

Live on, my friend, live on;
Behold about you still
Glad honors to be won.—
New beauties which can thrill
And crown with constant bliss
A life that ne'er shall cease.
—Melville Arthur Shafer.

April Is a Dreamer

April is a dreamer?
In the glint of meadow streams
She has woven rainbow colors in a labyrinth of dreams;

She has curled them into petals
She has spread them fleecy white
Where the cherry boughs are trembling with the mocking-bird's delight.

She has sifted them from raindrops
Till the fingers of a mist
Are groping in the darkness for the essence of their fruit.

Oh, April is a dreamer.
And I'm a dreamer too—
Just waiting here with April till my dreams come true.

The losses of the wheat crop due to the Hessian fly will probably be much smaller than usual this year, according to a report issued by the United States bureau of entomology of a survey of the wheat growing states, which says this insect is at a very low period of its abundance throughout the country. Illinois and Kansas alone show serious infestation, which is attributed to too early sowing and auspicious weather conditions at the time of the insects' emergence in the fall. Dissemination of information about the life history of the Hessian fly by state and county authorities and co-operation of the farmers in deferring planting until the fly-free date in late September, as well as unfavorable weather conditions, are cited as causes for its decreasing prevalence.

STATE FIREMEN'S ASS'N COMING TO NEW LONDON DURING AUGUST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 12—The firemen of this city are to have an old-time parade here on the 18th of August, while the State Firemen's association is holding its annual convention here. Chief Rose is authority for the statement that the parade will be held as its name implies and that the citizens will have opportunity to observe the sort of equipment the city has for subduing flames when they appear in the property of the taxpayers. It is believed that New London has equipment that is as complete as any small city in a state can boast of. That apparatus is modern to the last degree. It is abundant too for the purpose it was acquired for. New London has not been in fire fighters on parade in 25 years so it is time the citizens realized what they have in a fire department. The parade will occur on the second day of the firemen's meet in the afternoon. It will be realized that the companies are not as large as they were in the older days, but they are efficient and their apparatus is such that the large number of men is not required that was necessary when the only means of fighting fires was the use of apparatus that was operated by human strength. Committees are arranging for the state event.

Victor Prince, judge of the police court of this city smarted under an exposition Saturday when a constable acting, supposed to be insistent upon enforcing the liquor laws attempted to throw dust of deception into the eyes of the court. The sailor was Owen King stationed on a ship that is docked at the coast guard academy. King and a companion, Perry Short, were charged with intoxication in the court with a breach of the peace. They admitted the former offense in that they said they had drank a few whiskeys, that they felt the effect of the liquor, but that they were not drunk. The men went to a skating rink and there created a disturbance when they would not be allowed to use the rollers at a time when the dance was being closed for the night. George M. Dougall was of counsel for the pair and "skates" Short appeared. The sailors were discharged and they left to attend to things clearness. The officers are generally of the opinion that to take care of King and Short were arrested. In court King assumed an attitude which very apparent as Judge Prince was very ahead of him. He was wearing the uniform of the United States navy and the fact was insulted by the action. Judge Prince called the attention of the sailor and that a man who was in the coast guard and there to enforce the law became drunk in a public place and created a disturbance was a disgrace to the uniform he wore. He then fined King $2u on each of the counts. That closed the incident. King just as if the speaking was a matter. King

Frank Bracci of Noank was fined for failure to endorse his auto operator's license. A breach of the peace charge against Thomas Connors, husband of Mrs. Connors, instituted by his wife, was settled as all cases in the family now.

The funeral of Miss Irene C. Dougherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dougherty, of Clark Lane Waterford, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Marys Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O. Callahan, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley deacon, and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger sub-deacon. The bearers were Henry Leiper, Casey Leiper, John Quinn, Thomas Foraci, Vincent Hood and Cornelius Shine, all of Waterford. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the operator's license of Thomas Murphy, United States Coast Guard state pier, suspended.

Master Robert Horton, of Hotel Mohican; Mrs. Anna Chapelinsky, Oakdale; Master William Murray, 34 Garfield avenue; Mrs. Robert Anderson, 61 Golden street, Master Robert Anderson, 61 Golden street; Mrs. Richard Polinsky, 137 Montauk avenue and Mrs. Haddad Assad, and infant daughter, Woodbridge street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Joseph and Eni DeBona have sold a house and lot on Williams street to Henry Tetu.

Frank and Sarah Muscarella have sold to Antonio Rispoli a house and lot, 80 Shaw street.

Henry R. Tisdale has sold a building lot on Georgiana street to Charles H. Monroe.

Clarence Wilcox, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard Academy, was arrested early this morning when he was found boisterously intoxicated on North Bank street, the blue-jacket being rounded up by Patrolmen David Nagle, Edward Riordan, Walter O'Neill and Elwood Dailey. He was later released upon furnishing a surety on his bond for his court appearance Monday morning.

Thomas Scott, a stranger in this city, went to the Union station this forenoon and soon found himself in trouble. Scott was drunk and he started to obtain money by which he could procure more liquor by soliciting funds from passengers awaiting the arrival of trains. Scott was detected in his acts by Sergeant Martin Kane, of the force of New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad special agents and was taken into custody. He will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning.

An automobile owned and driven by C. Graham Chapin, 54 Garfield avenue in passing through Lower Boulevard shortly after noon today struck and killed Adeline Parmelee, about 13 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Parmelee, 25 Neptune avenue. The girl, however, escaped injuries beyond minor bruises.

Ernest Nibbe, 571 Pequot avenue complained to the police this afternoon that two motorcyclists were operating their machines on that avenue at an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour. Motorcycle Officer Annemans was summoned to locate the cyclists and this he did finding Morton Tiffany 5 Barrows court and Anthony Albino Station E, Waterford, on Pequot avenue. The cyclists were not arrested as Nibbe did not desire to appear as a witness against them, but Tiffany and Albino were cautioned as to their speeding.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Ethel M Murphy of Garfield avenue, daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth E. Murphy, to Lieut. Raymond J. Mauermann United States Coast Guard. Miss Murphy is a teacher at the Harbor school. Lieut. Mauermann is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mauermann, Buffalo, N. Y., and at present is of the personnal of the United States Coast Guard destroyer McCall, state pier.

Mrs. Catharine May, Prest street, is visiting relatives in Derby.

Arthur Dixon of Providence, spent the week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Judson T. Cousins, Harris building apartments, State street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Cook, of Boston, spent Saturday and today as guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Cook, Jr., Fairs Harbour place.

George F. Kelly, 21, a plumber, residing at 46 West Colt street, was arrested early this morning by Patrolman Lawrence Pardy charged with intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting an officer. Thomas M. Kelly qualified on his bond of $100 for appearance in the police court Monday morning Kelly was in the vicinity of Bank and Tilley streets shortly after last midnight, created a disturbance and would not go home either for Patrolman Pardy or Kelly's acquaintances. Kelly started to make trouble for the officer Patrolman David Nagle and Edward Riordan were dispatched to the location of the disturbance and Kelly was quickly landed in a cell where he remained until such time as he had sobered up.

Arthur Stamand, 2 Front street, was arrested this evening by Patrolman John Sullivan and Clarence Martin charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, upon complaint of Mrs Stamand. He is being held until Monday morning.

Stamand, according to his wife, appeared at their home shortly after 6 o'clock and he had been drinking. Finally Stamand became displeased over an imaginary incident and started to smash the furniture in the place.

Charles Brisbane, a chief petty officer stationed at the United States Coast Guard Academy, complained to Sergeant Samuel Hick late this afternoon that the former had visited the home of John Quinn, 690 Bank street, and while in the place Brisbane's overcoat, a regulation garment issued by the government and valued at $40 was stolen. Brisbane declared that at the time of the alleged theft, a man known as "Big Louis," Mike Kelly and Annie Kennedy were in the place. Sergeant Hick visited the house, but could not obtain any clue that would result in the recovery of the overcoat. The place according to the officer, is filthy and unfit for habitation, although Quinn's wife is a cripple and is unable to leave her bed and is forced to endure the filthiness of the house. So filthy was the place that John Arnold, one of the inspectors connected with the health department, was notified that he might personally inspect the premises. Quinn has long conducted a booze place at the house, having been arrested numerous times for violation of the liquor law. At present he is serving a term in jail for the dispensing of liquor at the house.

The fire department was kept busy late this afternoon and early this evening, five alarms being received at fire headquarters, but in neither instance was any damage of consequence incurred Shortly after 4 o'clock a lively grass fire was discovered on Niles Hill road. Chief Charles Rose and Pequot Hose company responded and had the burning grass to be subdued with chemicals. A half hour later a tract of grass off Willetts avenue threatened to reach nearby residences Ockford Hose company responded and had little difficulty subduing the fire. Shortly before 7 o'clock an alarm was received at fire headquarters for a blaze in the residence 89 Howard street, occupied by Gilbert Loomis Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company and the Allen Hook and Ladder company responded. The fire was located in a chimney and required but a small quantity of chemicals to extinguish it.

A short time afterwards a still alarm was received for a grass fire in the rear of the Mitchell property, Ocean avenue. The Pequot Hose company and Deputy Chief Shipman responded, the blaze being quickly subdued.

MONTVILLE MAN FINED— SOLD HOME-MADE BOOZE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 11—Moses Cadlotte, of Montville, was arrested early Saturday morning by State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson, Groton barracks, charged with violation of the liquor law. The accused was brought to the New London police station and held a prisoner until Saturday forenoon when at 10 o'clock he was taken before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church at Montville and upon pleading guilty was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $10.14. He could not pay, so Cadlotte was taken to the New London county jail to work out the fine and costs. Chadlotte was arrested following his having sold a small quantity of home-made liquor.

GOT MARRIAGE LICENSE— PROBABLE END OF SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 11—The case of Jerry Northrop, 579 Bank street, automobile salesman, charged with assault upon Florence Quinn, 17, was continued in the police court Saturday morning, until Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The accused furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance. It is believed that the case will be concluded at Mondays session for immediately after Saturday's session of court. Northrup and the girl, who had earlier obtained a marriage license, went to the office of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, where they were married.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Where Was I?" the Universal-Jewel starring Reginald Denny, which is now playing at the Broadway theatre was heralded as the funniest thing Denny has ever done.

It is!

As a rule press agent advance notices bubble over with the exuberance of optimism. Everything is fine, perfect, beautiful, epoch-making. So when the reviewer attends the opening performance, he is liable, however good the picture may be, to be disappointed when it does not live up to the claims made for it.

However, "Where Was I?" has no weak points. The audience thoroughly enjoyed the picture and that is what counts. A reviewer would be silly to call a picture poor when the crowds literally storm the box office. Denny's latest picture lives up to the advance notices.

It produces laughter, long hearty shouts of unrestrained joy. Old ladies laugh and tears come. Young ladies laugh and their powder comes off. Young men laugh and their glossy hair becomes disarranged. Flappers squeal with joy and babies shriek, forgetting it is time for the milk bottle.

It is a real picture full of comic incidents with a purpose of entertainment which is fully met in the showing. Denny gives the greatest performance of his career while the other members of the cast contribute the utmost of their respective abilities.

An all star cast supports Denny in this unusually funny production.

Short subjects include a new comedy and news weekly.

Opposition to the present prohibition law was expressed by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, aged pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian church, New York, famed a generation ago as a crusader against vice.

WESTERLY

B. A. PEABODY, JR., GETS $20 FOR HAVING KEEN EAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, April 11—An award of $20 has been made to Benjamin A. Peabody, Jr., of 8 Lincoln avenue, Pawcatuck by officials of the New Haven railroad together with an official conveyance of thanks for services rendered by him to the railroad company, Saturday evening, March 27th. His alert ear detected an unusual bumping noise as the west bound Gilt Edge express for New York passed over the end of a broken rail, and information telephoned by him to the Westerly station Mr. Peabody was on West Broad street and heard the unusual noise just after the express had passed over the West Broad street overhead bridge and was proceeding along the narrow 30 foot embankment on which the two main line tracks of the New Haven railroad are located. After procuring a flashlight at a nearby store Peabody rushed up the embankment and found an inside rail broken through the second bolt hole, about eleven inches from the end. Two narrow fishplates were all that held the rail in place and when examination was made later by railroad men it was stated that one or two more trains might have passed over safely, but their passage would have spread the rails and a serious derailment would have sent cars toppling to Mechanic St., below. A day later Mr. Peabody was visited in his garage by New Haven Trainmaster William J. Smith of New London, to personally thank the young man for his services to the railroad.

NEW FIRE ALARM BOXES HAVE USEFUL FEATURES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 11—The alarm boxes, which are to be placed on new circuits about town, are about twice the size of the boxes already in use. A new feature in this enlarged box makes it possible for several boxes to be pulled in quick succession and the alarm accumulated and retained a sufficient length of time to permit the ringing of four rounds of the alarm on the box of the first call, followed by four rounds of the other boxes in the order of their being sent in, each one being undisturbed or interfered with by the other. In testing or winding a box there is a safety attachment on the door, which prevents its being closed until the cut out plug is removed, so that the further danger of a box being out of commission is done away with.

The Westerly Fire Department responded Saturday, shortly before noon to a telephone call for assistance for a grass and brush fire on Quarry Hill The Ahrens-Fox Pumper with Fire Chief George E. Egger, Engineer Georke McKensie and force of fire men went to the lot of Susan Vose, just east of the old Vose baseball field, where a blaze was working its way toward the Eleanor C. Wolcott house. Mrs. Vose's daughter, Mrs. Mabel Chapman, had started a fire to clean up some rubbish and fearing that it would get away from her telephoned to the Union street fire station for assistance. The firemen made short work of the blaze.

A fleet of motorcycles arrived in Westerly and Pawcatuck from Providence about ten o'clock Saturday night, there being ten or a dozen machines in the group. The riders were en route to Cedar Grove, near Paterson, N. J., to participate in the biennial hill-climbing contest, the second occurring in the fall. Speedometers showed that the motorcycles attained a maximum speed of between sixty and sixty six miles on the route over Nooso Neck Hill into Westerly. The riders stopped in Pawcatuck for refreshments.

The concert given by Defiance, O., College Glee club at the Broad Street Christian church Saturday evening was greatly enjoyed. The club traveled in a motor bus coming to Westerly from Standfordville, N. Y., where a concert was given Friday evening. Sunday afternoon the club left for Providence en route to New Bedford

Under direction of Blossom Jean Wilcox the Glee club presented an excellent program in three parts, one of which consisted of a comic operetta, "Cleopatra," a burlesque on college life.

The college singers were entertained Sunday in the homes of private families and attended services at the Broad street church.

An invitation has been extended by Grand Chaplain Byron U. Hatfield of West Mystic pastor of the First Baptist church of Westerly to the Masonic bodies to attend divine services at the First Baptist church Sunday evening, June 20th, just previous to St. John's day, June 24th. Pawcatuck lodge, No. 80, F. and A. M., T. Edward Peabody of Pawcatuck, have accepted the invitation and it is expected that Franklin lodge No. 20, F. and A. M., Clarence A. Vars, worshipful master of Westerly, will accept also.

In the engineer's room of the fire station on Union street has been placed the new slate switch board, to be located there in the extension of the Westerly fire alarm system, which is to have added twenty new fire alarm boxes of the most complete and up-to-date type, making fifty-four boxes in the system. There are two slate boards, one known as an arrestor board which functions during severe thunder storms and is guaranteed to leave unharmed the new six-circuit board, just twice the size of the one in the engineer's room for the past seventeen years. The general makeup of the board is similar to the one already in use but the fittings are of the approved and up-to-date type, which permits the board to be tested out in a most complete manner. New type batteries are to be installed for the operation of the new board.

At a special session of the Westerly probate court Thursday, Probate Judge, Edward M Burke, presiding, in the estate of Mary Josephine Curtin, a petition for adoption and change of name was granted Nancy Perry.

Recorded at the office of the Westerly town clerk are the following transfers:

April 8. Mary H. Foss of Windham to her husband, Frank H. Foss, lots Nos. 37, 13, 49, 20, 7, 8, 59 and 60 at Shelter Harbor, near Haversham.

April 8. Peter A. DeRocco to Antonio Morrone and Thomas A. Costagna, a certain parcel of land on east side of Canal street, 36 feet frontage and 90 foot depth, adjoining Toscano building property.

Miss Filomena Sposato of Westerly and Santo Fusaro of New York were married Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., who also celebrated the nuptial mass. Miss Annie Mazzarella was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Rose Ferra and Felice Quadrantello. Louis Marchese was best man. The ring-bearer was Patsy Manfred, and Miss Mary Pellegrino was flower girl. Following the ceremony at the church a breakfast was served at the bride's home on Pond street. A reception was held there in the afternoon, and guests were present from New York and Bradford. After a short visit with the groom's parents in New York Mr. and Mrs. Fusaro will make their home for the present with the bride's parents.

At the Church of the Ascension, Wakefield, Saturday morning, Miss Mary Hilton of Calorira was united in marriage with Russel Hoxie of Shannock. The recemony was performed by Rev. I. G. Crawford, pastor of the church. Both are well known in Westerly, having attended Westerly High school. The bride is now a teacher at the Bradford school The bridesmaid was Miss Grace Hilton, sister of the bride, and Robert Adamson of Mystic was best man.

At a tea given Friday afternoon by the Home Circle in the vestry of the Congregational church, Mrs. Ernest E. Morrill, wife of the retiring pastor, was presented a pair of beatuiful silver-cadle sticks.

Mrs. Ida May Sharp, 67, wife of Samuel Sharp, died Friday at her home, 21 Palmer street Pawcatuck. Besides her husband she leaves two sons, Ernest Sharp of New Haven and William Sharp of Westerly; a sister, Mrs. Sarah Brown of Providence; two brothers, John Leonard of Wellesley, Mass., and Theodore Leonard of Springfield, Mass., and two grandchildren, Catherine May Sharp and William Drummond Sharp both of New Haven.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jessie MacLean, wife of John Ferguson, were held at 3.30 Friday, 32 Highland avenue, Rev. E. E. Morrill, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church, officiated. The bearers were James Fiddes, Alexander Aitken, Duncan Smith, James Stewart, Alexander Murray and Duncan McKellar. Burial was in River Bend cemetery.

The funeral of Absalom Francis was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his sister Mrs. Abraham P. Datson, 20 Park avenue. Rev L. A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptish church was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in River Bend cemetey, where the committal service was also conducted by Rev. Mr. Walker. The bearers were Abraham P. Datson, John Datson, John Girven, Ernest Tharp, William St. Onge and Thomas Whitnead.

After being a teacher of Commercial subjects in the Westerly High school for seven years, Miss Lena J. Russell completed her duties Friday and will teach at West Haven, Mass. Miss Mooney of Waltham, Mass., who has been a teacher in a Lowell commercial school is the successor of Miss Russell. Miss Russell before leaving Friday was presented a number of gifts.

Paul N. Hillard of Albany, N. Y., was the week end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hillard.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Chester who has been passing the winter months at Dayton, Fla., and Irvine O. Chester, both of Westerly, are expected to return to their homes Monday, April 19th.

Michael Donohue of Pawcatuck was a visitor Sunday with his son in Providence and planned to pass a week in Walpole, Mass., as the guest of relatives.

Henry D. Smith, Norwich station agent of the New Haven road and his family were Westerly visitors Sunday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Orpheum Theatre, Danielson

"Old Lady 31" will be presented by the Killingly Woman's club at the Orpheum theatre, Wednesday, April 14th, at 8 p. m. This delightful comedy is under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Treat Mills as coach, Mrs. Alfred L. Reed, general chairman. The cast includes such well known talent as Frederick Laulewick as "Old Lady 31," Burdick Hopkins, Leo Bodo, Kimball Hargraves, Mrs. Florence Hargraves, Mrs. Myra Frink, Mrs. Chas. Alexander, Mrs Oswald Street, Mrs. Denham Amacs, Mayette Paine, Ruth Spaulding, Mrs. Dugas Clarke, Louise Danielson, Elizabeth Woodworth. Many beautiful old fashioned costumes have been loaned by members of the club and friends in Boston, Norwich and Brooklyn and will be worn in the tea party scene. A large audience will appreciate the time and effort put into this production.

The Killingly Woman's club is establishing a scholarship fund and the proceeds of this play will be added to the amount already growing. Such a fund will mean an open door of opportunity to many girls, graduates of our high school who may avail themselves of its use in years to come.

The exchange of tickets for reserve seats must be made on or after April 13 at the box office. No extra charge will be made for a seat anywhere in the house excepting 5 rows in the orchestra. Members of the club have tickets for sale.

Local Ford Dealer Signs Big Contract

That the improved Ford cars at the new low prices are meeting with ever-increasing popularity in Norwich is evidenced by the size of the contract for 1296 signed between the Ford Motor company and The Irving E. Bogue Co., local Ford dealers.

This contract is larger than any local contract signed for any other automobile. Notwithstanding the fact that the contract represents a sizeable increase over the sales that were made within the past year it is not expected to cover the big demand for improved Fords in this vicinity for 1926.

In speaking of the improved Ford, Mr. Bogue said, "Body refinements and chassis improvements are the most pronounced in years. Outstanding features of the improvements in both open and enclosed types are lower, all-steel bodies on a lowered chassis, complete new design in most body types, a change from black to color in closed cars, larger, lower fenders, newly designed seats and larger, more powerful brakes.

Many new conveniences are also incorporated in the improved cars. In the runabout, touring car, coupe, and tudor, the gasoline tank is under the cowl and filled through an ingeniously located filled cap completely hidden from sigh by a cover similar in appearance to a cowl ventilator. One-piece windshield and narrowed pillars in the tudor and coupe offer the driver greatly increased visibility and improved ventilation.

Four doors are now provided on the touring car and two on the runabout permitting the driver to take his place from the left side of the car. Curtains held secure by rods, open with the doors.

Most important in the mechanical changes are the improved brakes. The transmission brake drum and bands have been considerably increased in size which gives the foot brake softer and more positive action as well as longer life.

The rear wheel brake drums are larger and the brake of self energizing type.

Cord tires are now standard equipment on all Ford cars.

The man who wounds with a word is usually too cowardly to strike a blow.

ANNQUNCEMENTS

"A Couple of Million"

"A Couple of Million," which is to be played at Broadway theatre tonight by the Columbian Players, under the auspices of White Cross council, K. of C., and Mercier assembly, C. L. of C., is a play which is sure to make its appeal to any American audience.

It is comedy in four acts filled with fun and humor but carrying a good story as well with plenty of opportunity to portray the different phases of American life with two million dollars involved as well.

The production promises to be one of the best amateur shows ever presented to a Norwich audience. The play was given in Plainfield by the same cast on Friday evening and met with hearty approval and applause.

Many of the members of the two societies as well as interested friends are acting as patrons for the local performance this evening.

Those still desiring tickets may obtain them during the day at Mara's Drug store, Madden's Cigar store and at Quinn and Desmond's and these tickets will be exchanged at the theatre box office.

Breed Theater

Oh! What a comedy!

Syd Chaplin proved in Charley's Aunt and The Man on the Box that he knew how to get the laughs. But he gets as many in Oh! What a Nurse! as in the two other pictures together.

Here is a laugh show that affords as much entertainment as one can stand without grevious physical discomfort. It sets out right at the start to create laughter, and it keeps it up at a breathless, gurgling pace.

Chaplin appears as a newspaper reporter, who dives from a ferryboat to rescue a girl, and gets picked up by a rum running tug, and who is forced into the costume of a bootleg queen in order to divert suspicion from the real culprit. Like any good newspaper man, the reporter, with an assignment to cover does not pause even to change his clothes when he has a job to be attended to. The result is that, in the bootleg queen's outfit, he runs into a maze of trouble, and, to get himself out of it, seizes a nurse's costume. From then on, his adventures are indescribably comical.

Oh! What A Nurse! will be shown again today and tomorrow at the Breed theater and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and an educational.

Strand Theatre

You also will go into raptures as the below quoted critics do, when you see Peggy Hopkins Joyce in "The Skyrocket" which opens at the Strand theatre today. Here is what they said when reviewed at the Colony theatre, New York, recently:

Times: "The Syrocket' is fair diversion, the interest in which is heightened by the scenes in Hollywood."

Mirror: "Miss Joyce makes an auspicious screen bow. She photographs beautifully and stands out as a well-defined personality. Indeed, Peggy Hopkins Joyce is the magnet that should pack Mr. Moss' Colony this week."

Herald-Tribune: "You won't be disappointed in Peggy Hopkins Joyce nor in her first picture 'The Skyrocket.' Both are what one would expect, at least that is our 'reaction.' Miss Joyce wears stunning costumes and looks very pretty in many of the scenes."

American: "Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Those three words are enough to fill the Colony theatre during the showing of her first picture at least. Curiosity will bring the men, come to wonder and to look. Curiosity will also bring the women, some to wonder and to study. There is much to wonder at in the fame of Peggy Hopkins Joyce. And 'The Skyrocket' gives one plenty of opportunity to study her. For Associated Exhibitors have placed her in almost every scene of a typical box-office picture. People wanting to discover what there is about Peggy Hopkins Joyce will doubtless flock to see it. The picture is already probably sounding a jingle of golden pennies in box-office ears."

Graphic: "Peggy's gorgeous gowns, glittering gems and famous beauty are all there as advertised. Also there's something more. There's a very good box-office story well directed, plenty of heart appeal, a peep behind the scenes of a motion picture studio, and a good supporting cast in addition to the glorious Peggy herself. Miss Joyce considering that this is her initial appearance on the screen, acquits herself creditably. Of course, she has the advantage of having been a stage favorite, so that one may reasonably expect her to be more or less at home before the camera. We'd say she is rather more than less."

JEWETT CITY

SIX GRANDSONS BEARERS FOR LEWIS A. THORNTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 11—The funeral of Lewis A. Thornton was held Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church which was filled with relatives and friends. Members of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75 F. & A. NOANK

OLD STEAMER CHELSEA MAY BE FERRY BOAT
(Special to The Bulletin)

NOANK, April 11—Freight boat Chelsea, which in former years ran between Norwich and New York and which has been laid up at the dock at the local shipyard for several months, it is stated receive some alterations. Just what will be done is not definitely stated but it is rumored that it will be changed into a ferry boat. Lewis Lamb has returned to Passaic, N. J., after a visit to his home on Clark street. Friday morning while Mrs. Duncan McDonald was raking after her mail, she found two snakes of different sizes. She killed both of them but the others got away. This is something unusual for this time of the year right in the village.

Friday evening the Noank Baptist church gave a reception to Rev. and Mrs. Pearson Weiss. A number of the church and congregation were invited. Special music was provided. The following program was carried out: Rev. E. E. Gates of Hartford, former pastor presiding, scripture reading, Rev. H. Hutchins of Poquonoc, prayer, Rev. George R. Atkins of Groton; welcome to the church, Deacon Roswell Sawyer; welcome to the Sunday school, William J. Spicer; greeting for pastor, Rev. C. E. Scales; welcome to the church from Mrs. H. William Hull; counsel to pastor, Dr. H. M. Thompson, Stonington and Rev. H. Hutchins; response to pastor, Rev. George R. Atkins and Rev. Byron C. Hartford of West Mystic; remarks for the pastor Rev. Francis Weiss; announcements for reception and refreshments.

Rev. Ecclestone of North Stonington is visiting local friends.

Jake Mason of Hadlyme is spending a few days with relatives here.

Mrs. Easter Carroll of Elm street recently celebrated her 85th birthday at her home. She received post cards and a telegram of congratulation from relatives in New York. She had many callers during the day. No party was held on account of her being ill.

Miss Elaine Merritt of Boston has been the guest of Miss Gertrude Brown for a week.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, April 10—(AP)—A marked softening of money rates was the chief characteristic of this week's financial markets. Stock prices moved within rather narrow and irregular limits, but the undertone was firm, and the volume of trading was the smallest in about a year. Bond prices were quick to reflect the easing of the credit situation, moving up briskly despite the competition afforded by new offerings of about $13,000,000 most of which were promptly sold.

Several interesting movements took place in the foreign exchanges. The Canadian dollar sold at a premium for the first time this year, and Japanese yen strengthened materially on the announcement of gold export to this country. Sterling exchange held firm but French and Belgian francs dropped to around their extreme low levels, and then made partial recovery. Dutch and Swiss currencies were strong but the so-called "silver exchanges were heavy. Indian rupees sold to a new low level for the year.

Outside the financial markets, one of the principal developments of the week was the sharp reaction in rubber prices on the pressure of supplies from the Far East in both the London and New York market. Wheat futures advanced about 6 cents a bushel with buying influenced by the decrease in domestic stocks and the government winter wheat condition report, as of April 1, which, although the largest since 1921, was somewhat smaller than expected. Cotton moved within narrow and irregular limits, today's closing quotations showing moderate declines on the week.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Hand of God

Up from this unshaped marble block
Rough hewn, chaotic, like the primal deep,
A mighty hand is thrust,
With strength of mountains robed in lasting snows,
And chiseled like white lilies in the dawn,
The palm and sculptured fingers hold a mass
Of rugged stone to symbolize the earth
That from its harshness molds twain human forms,
In beauty of vague outline and creative grace—
The Eve and Adam of the ageless human tale
With all its throbbing ceaseless tide of love and pain.
Renewed in every impact of swift life on life.
That never from that Hand Divine may pass
But by its awful power is held eternally . . . .
Yet not by fatalistic strength and marble calm.
Wherein the passionate mortal strife at last is vain.
The Hand of God is shown.
The sculptor's own deep hearted sympathy.
Owed one more chisel stroke to this high theme,
To delve a nail wound in the mystic flesh
That folds all joy and sorrow in its tender grasp.
And draws from human agony the bitterness and sting
By solace of the suffering divine.
The Hand of God is pierced.

—Elliot White.

Home

"O home it is a sacred place,
Or was in olden days
Before the people learned to chase
To moving picture plays;
To tango dances and such things;
To skating on the floor,
And now the youthful laughter rings
Within the home no more.

You will recall, old men and dames,
The homes of long ago,
And you'll recall the fireside games
The children used to know.
Their mother's kids would come along
With your own kids to play,
And merry as a bridal song
The evening passed away.

An evening spent away from home
In olden days was rare.
The children hadn't learned to roam
For pleasure everywhere;
But now your home is but a spot
Where children sleep and eat.
It serves that purpose very well.
Their home is on the street.

Their home is where the lights are brightest
Where rag-time is your fleas
Or means the middle of the night
Their friends are—Lord we know's?
The windows of your home are dark
And silence has its say
You call it home, I'd give the mark.
'Tis but a sty or stall.

Walt MASON.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Most of the writers who send letters to be published on the Wide Awake page and to compete for prize books are pretty good boys and girls. They are kind to animals and take great pride in their pets. However one boy wrote to Uncle Jed sometime ago to bring how he shot a rabbit with a shot gun he possesses. Of course lots of people do hunting and hunting is all right as a form of sport.

But this young writer said he went hunting last fall and seeing a rabbit "let go at it." The shot only wounded the rabbit in the leg and he carried it all the way home and after enabling the suffering bunny to some of his youthful friends "killed it and threw it away." The boy added a postscript to his letter and said he hoped he "would win a book." He didn't win a book and his letter wasn't printed on the Wide Awake page.

He probably meant no harm and added himself in shooting a rabbit. No doubt he was just thoughtless of his treatment of the rabbit. Prize books are not awarded just because a boy or girl sends in a neatly penned letter. Of course neat penmanship counts quite a little in awarding the books. However the time and contents of the letter are also considered.

For instance sometime ago a Wide Awake wrote a letter telling of how she had saved a whole family of birds when their nest fell from a tree. The Wide Awake repaired the nest in the tree and put the young birds back in the nest. She won a book not because her penmanship happened to be very good but because of the kindly deed she performed. Boys and girls should cultivate kindness towards persons, animals and all living creatures.

WINNERS OF PRIZE BOOKS

2. Yvonne B. Morrisette, Jewett City—The Auto Boys.

3. Cora R. Manning, North Franklin

Norwich, Monday, April 12, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the Saint Lawrence valley Saturday night has advanced to New Foundland with greatly increased intensity, St. Johns reporting a barometer reading of 29.18 inches. The northwestern area of high pressure has spread rapidly eastward and southward in the area of the disturbance and it is now central over northern Michigan, Alpena 30.06 inches. The southern disturbance has made very little progress eastward and it is now central over Alabama and Mississippi.

Except for showers Monday in portions of the southeastern states in connection with the southern disturbances which will there advance slowly eastward toward Bermuda, fair weather is indicated for Monday and Tuesday over the eastern half of the country.

The weather will remain cool in north and middle sections Monday; the temperature will rise however during Tuesday east of the Mississippi river.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh easterly to northeast, fair weather.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh to strong northeast, fair weather over land and overcast weather, possibly showers, over south portion. Monday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Fair Monday and Tuesday, slowly rising temperature in north portion Monday; somewhat warmer Tuesday.

WOMEN IN VANGUARD IN THE BATTLE FOR RETENTION OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

Hundreds of Women Uttered Protests Before the Senate Liquor Hearing Committee Against Modification of the Volstead Act—Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, Mass., Declared the Women Represented the Home, the School and the Church—Mrs. Peabody Displayed Feminine Finality When She Made It Clear That She Regarded Cross-Questioning as Useless—Additional Statements Are to Be Presented by the Wets Today.

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—An avalanche of protests against liberalization of the Volstead act today engulfed the senate liquor hearing committee.

It was rolled up by some three score of women, most of them officials of church, school and women's organizations, who are here for the meeting of the woman's national law enforcement conference.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass., chairman of the conference, struck the keynote in her opening statement. "We represent here today not only organizations of women," she said, "but, as a whole, we represent the home, the school, the church, and we stand firmly for no amendment of the Eighteenth amendment.

"We stand for no modification of the Volstead act, but rather a strengthening. We stand for strict law enforcement, with the removal of all men who do not strictly enforce the law."

Her statement was reinforced by the oral or written testimony of the witnesses she introduced and who at times passed before the committee in such rapid succession that even the official stenographer had difficulty in keeping abreast of the proceedings.

Wet senators from New York and Maryland came in for attack from some of the women. Mrs. Peabody urged that there be a "strengthening" of the Volstead act in the two states which are without state enforcement laws, while Mrs. A. Haynes Lippincott of New Jersey, who presented a bulky petition from her home state against modification, declared that Senator Edge, a leader of the senate wets, had ridden back to the senate the last election "on the coat-tails of President Coolidge."

The women interrupted the wets in the presentation of their case. This was referred to twice by witnesses, Mrs. Peabody expressing her appreciation of the courtesy of the wet leaders in permitting the women to appear today and Mrs. Elizabeth Tilson, of Cambridge, Mass., national legislative chairman of the congress of parents and teachers, declaring there had been some important "silences" during last week's presentation of the wet side of the controversy.

Hundred strong, the women descended upon the capitol early and held a prayer session on the main steps before marching upon the committee chamber on the senate office building annex.

The committee room was fairly well filled when the women arrived and Senator Harreld, republican, Oklahoma, who presided for a time, directed that seats be made for them. The witnesses sat in the room, crowding up to the committee table gradually as the hearing progressed.

Some of the women wanted to speak from their places in the room because of the crush, but the committee insisted that they come forward through the crowd to the witness seat. They took the oath en masse in order to conserve time, as they were under only two hours.

There were few demonstrations, caution resulting in applause early in the proceedings quelling the exuberance.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, of Wollaston, Mass., chairman of the New England division of the woman's national committee for law enforcement.

"I think the committee can get along quite well without the applause," said Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, after the crowd had expressed approval of Mrs. Gurney's statement that she would rather have liquor sold in "speakeasies" than in open saloons where the government could cope with them.

"Yes, I think manifestation of approval or disapproval ought to be prohibited," said Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the then acting chairman.

Senator Reed, the one avowed wet of the committee, took the lead in cross-questioning some of the witnesses, principally Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Gurney and Mrs. Lippincott. After the hearing closed, Mrs. Peabody gave a statement to the press in which she stated that it be made clear "that much of our time was taken up with useless cross-questioning."

Before the women opened the case for the drys and while they were filing into the room Senator Harreld admitted to the record statements by two wet members of the house, Representatives Sullivan, democrat, Massachusetts, and MacGregor, republican, New York, who advanced a number of reasons why the Volstead act should be amended.

Like those of a number of women witnesses, the statements were not read, but simply spread upon the official report of the proceedings. Additional statements for the wet side will be made tomorrow as the wets continue with the presentation of their case, which began exactly a week ago.

After they are through the drys will have 22 more hours in which to reply, only two hours having been taken up for the opening of the dry case today.

PRESBYTERY UNANIMOUS FOR PROHIBITION LAW

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—The New York Presbytery, at its annual meeting today, adopted a resolution affirming that the Presbyterian church stands by the letter and the spirit of the prohibition law.' The resolution was adopted by the 95 members with but one dissentient vote.

The resolution, as adopted, follows: "In view of the historic position of the (Presbyterian) church, the Presbytery hereby urges pastors and sessions to proclaim to their congregations that the Presbyterian church stands by the letter and the spirit of the prohibition law, and urges its observance upon every member as a plain duty of Christian citizenship.

"The Presbytery recommends to pastors and sessions that the teaching of temperance as a personal duty and as a social obligation be restored to its proper place in instruction in the church on Sunday, and recommends that in doing this that the benefits of the practice of total abstinence be presented. The Presbytery hereby puts itself on record as approving use of every fair and honorable means combatting the restoration of legalized liquor traffic.'

The Presbytery appointed a committee headed by the Rev. D. G. Wylie to go to Washington Friday and present the resolution before the senate committee conducting hearings on prohibition.

DIFFERENT ATTITUDES OF BIGAMIST'S WIVES

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—When Chester Reid, confessed bigamist, who flouted the trust of his employers by stealing $19,000 was arraigned for sentence today his wives entered opposing pleas.

And it was the wife who had been deserted and impoverished by Reid who pleaded for clemency, while the second wife, upon whom he said he had lavished virtually all of the stolen money, recommended severe punishment, sentence of three and one half to five years in prison.

Reid was arrested April 1 charged with systematically defrauding the banking and brokerage firms of Potter and company. He confessed and said that he had been driven to embezzlement by blackmailers in Montclair, N. J., where he lived. He said they threatened to tell his wife of a $25,000 breach of promise verdict against him unless he bought them off.

Officials subsequently discovered that there were two Mrs. Chester Reids, each ignorant of the existence of the other. His first marriage was about six years ago but he became separated from his wife after he was forced to resign a position with another banking firm when he became involved with a young woman who obtained a $25,000 damage judgment against him.

He then began paying attentions to Miss Amie Goss and married her last year, leaving his first wife to support herself and their daughter by teaching in the public school of Montclair. Reid said that Miss Goss had known he was married and that he had spent almost all the money he had stolen on her.

In her plea today the second wife urged that Reid be "punished properly" lest he prey upon others as he had upon her. The first wife asked that he be freed on the ground that it was fault of his downfall might be forgiven though she had wrecked her memory in vain to recall how she might have stemmed him on his downward path.

ENLIGHTENING TALK ON OUR SOCIAL STANDARDS

BOSTON, April 12—(AP)—Flappers, psychology, marriage, divorce, and civilization were subjects touched upon in an optimistic address today by Dr. James Q. Dealey, head of the department of sociology of Brown university, discussing "Social standards in family relations," before the New England conference of the Child Welfare League of America, Dr. Dealey remarked:

"I sometimes get the idea as I read these modern novels of all kinds that all men are born reprobates and that all women are crazy to be seduced. That's not so. These novels simply reflect what's in the mind of the writers, not what's in the mind of the people generally. There is vice, degradation and misery, but things are so much better than they used to be, and the world is so young that everybody ought to be highly optimistic."

College boys are "tempted" and "worried to death by the flapper type and all other kinds of types" around the campus, Dr. Dealey asserted. It was generally assumed that men are the tempters, but in reality the women are tempters just as much or more.

Asserting that it was duty of the church to gather young men and young women together in relations that will lead to marriage, he said.

"We're developing a whole mass of celibate men in our cities who never see celibate women."

He criticized the segregation of girls in women's colleges and the system that bars men students from the society of girls of their kind.

VIRTUALLY AN ARMISTICE ALONG THE RIFF FRONT

PARIS, April 13.—(AP)—What is virtually an armistice along the Riff front, according to the latest news from Morocco, gives strength to the hope of peace as the delegates representing France, Spain and the tribesmen are moving toward Oudjda to open negotiations.

General Simon left Paris tonight and will be on the ground about the middle of the week. Other delegates, who are leaving tomorrow, will arrive toward the end of the week.

The Riff delegates are expected to be somewhat behind the representatives of the protecting powers, as they lack rapid means of transportation. However, the hope is expressed in official circles that contact with Abd-El-Krim's delegates and the Caids of the Riff tribes may be realized very soon.

Prosecution Rests in William Courtmartial

General Butler Gave Direct Testimony Supporting Charge of Drunkenness.

MARINE BASE, San Diego, Cal., April 12—(AP)—Working gradually up to a climax through the hesitant testimony of three preliminary witnesses, the prosecution in the court martial of Colonel Alexander S. Williams, on a charge of drunkenness rested its case with a bang late today after calling to the witness stand Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, the colonel's accuser, and letting him "Tell it to the marines."

The general told in no uncertain terms why he ordered Colonel Williams' arrest for alleged intoxication in the public rooms of a Coronado hotel on the night of March six last, shortly after a dinner at Colonel Williams' home in his, General Butler's honor.

"I tried to see just as little as I could and get away with it." Philadelphia's former director of public safety explained after describing the service of cocktails at the colonel's home and the colonel's behaviour at the hotel later.

"But I could not ignore what I saw at the hotel. Colonel William was incoherent. He was loquacious. He sidled. His eyes were bloodshot, they had a queer, vacant stare. He was drunk."

Describing the dinner in his honor at Colonel Williams' home, the general said cocktails were offered him as soon as he entered, and that the colonel disregarded his refusal to drink and urged him to "have one."

"They're very mild: better have one," he quoted Colonel Williams as saying.

To extricate himself from an embarrassing position, General Butler ate dinner at a table separate from the colonel's cocktail drinking guests; but still "cocktails were offered to me several times during the meal."

As the dinner progressed, the general testified, "I got the impression Williams was becoming intoxicated.

"He spoke to me at great length on the civilizing effect of the radio in the American home; talked loquaciously about a curious, antique pistol he had.

"All this gave me the impression he was getting 'full.'

"So I went out and sat on the porch."

But while he later continued the witness said the other guests emerged from the house debating the general's call and one announcement that "we all are going over to the hotel to dance."

General Butler said he saw Colonel Williams dancer out of the house and across the lawn at this point, but he said he avoided the incident, hoping and believing the colonel would be put to bed by one of his friends and would not show up at the hotel.

Later when the general arrived at the fashionable hotel Del Coronado, the colonel was there.

"He was standing in a room off the hotel hall room when I noticed him," General Butler related. "He was standing in a poised position, about to fall. His face was slightly flushed.

"I looked away with a feeling that he was intoxicated, and when he left the hotel I got the impression he was being carried out."

Under cross examination General Butler was asked if Colonel Williams might not have been ill rather than drunk.

"Yes, he might have been ill; he probably was. They usually get that way when they're drunk."

But defense counsel did not let it go at that.

"Did you call a physician to determine whether Colonel Williams was sick or intoxicated?"

"No, I didn't," replied the witness. "A doctor might have helped the intoxication some, but he could not have cured the situation Colonel Williams created."

"But, why did you not call a board of inquiry to determine whether the colonel actually was intoxicated before moving to court martial him?"

"Because," retorted General Butler with asperity, "in the ordinary procedure of the Marine corps we do not call boards of inquiry to investigate the condition of people we know are drunk."

The general, who earned a reputation as an arch-enemy of liquor before he was deposed as Philadelphia's police chief last December, admitted he was nervous and suffering from an infected tooth on the night of the Coronado party. He denied, however, that the tooth ache had irritated him into incapacity for duty, thus answering the defense suggestion that Colonel Williams might have escaped court martial had General Butler's teeth not been bothering him.

TO INVESTIGATE POTATO PRICES IN MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON, April 12.—(AP)—Complaints received from consumers in various parts of the state led the state commission on the necessaries of life today to begin an investigation of potato prices in Massachusetts.

The chief grievance was the retail price of potatoes, which has been hovering about $1 a peck.

The scope of the investigation will include the visible supply of potatoes, as well as the spread in price from producer to retailer.

MUSSOLINI VISITS ANCIENT ROMAN CITY OF SABRATHA

TRIPOLI, April 12.—(AP)—Standing today amid the ruins of the ancient Roman city of Sabratha, on the shores of the Mediterranean 50 miles west of Tripoli, Premier Mussolini gazed toward the east and wrote in the visitors' book: "To Rome of the past and the future." Except for a visit to the archaeological excavations at Sabratha much of the day was devoted by Mussolini in proclaiming a message from King Victor Emmanuel and accepting allegiance in his name from the Berber and Arab shieks and local chiefs.

REV. DR. STOKES MENTIONED FOR CO-ADJUTOR BISHOP

NEW HAVEN, April 12—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, secretary of Yale university from 1899 to 1921, is among those mentioned by members of the Episcopal clergy as being considered for the office of co-adjutor bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Connecticut. The annual diocesan convention is to be held in Hartford, May 20. Several others also have been mentioned for the office. Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, a year ago asked that a co-adjutor be named.

Steck Wins in Iowa Senatorial Contest

Senate Voted 45 to 41 to Unseat Brookhart, an Insurgent Republican.

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republican insurgent of Iowa, was unseated in the senate today in favor of Daniel F. Steck, democrat, by a margin of four votes.

The vote, 45 to 41, came after a week of debate, which terminated in fiery arguments during the last two hours of discussion when the committee, which conducted the recount of ballots, cast in the 1924 election, was assailed and defended.

Until the very hour of the roll call the result was in doubt but 16 republicans joined with 29 democrats in voting to unseat Brookhart, overwhelming the 9 democrats, 31 republicans and the one farmer-laor senator who supported him.

Immediately after the result was announced Steck was escorted to the rostrum by Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, and sworn in by Vice President Dawes. Brookhart was not present, having been absent from the chamber during the entire week of the argument.

The unseating of Senator Brookhart injects a new issue into Iowa politics as he is expected to run against Senator Cummins in the approaching primary. He plans to formally announce his candidacy tomorrow. For this reason Senator Cummins declined to vote on the contest.

An hour before the debate ended, the galleries began to fill and members of the house and clerks crowded onto the senate floor. Nearly all of the senators were present during the closing debate and the chamber was filled with tensity as senators in last minute appeals sought to swing doubtful sentiors to their side.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, ended the discussion by declaring there was no evidence to warrant throwing aside Senator Brookhart's certificate of election, while Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, drew fire when he accused the senate elections committee with failing to do its duty in conducting the recount.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, who drew up the committee's majority report, favoring the seating of Steck, replied that no senator could investigate the case and not decide that Steck was elected. He was supported by Senator George, democrat, Georgia, another member of the committee.

Although Mr. Steck filed his contest immediately after the 1924 election, the investigating committee did not submit its report to the senate until a few weeks ago a majority holding that on a recount of disputed ballots the democrat had received a plurality in a close race.

Brookhart, who supported the La-Follette-Wheeler presidential ticket in 1924, has been serving as a senator throughout the present session.

The roll call follows:

To unseat Brookhart.

Republicans: Butler, Dale, Deneen, Ernst, Gillett, Goff, Greene, Hazzard, Keyes, McLean, Philipp, Robinson, Indiana; Shortt, Warren, Watson and Weller—10.

Democrats: Bayard, Bratton, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Copeland, Edwards, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Robinson, Arkansas; Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Trammell, Tyson—29.—Total 45.

Against unseating Brookhart:

Republicans: Bingham, Borah, Cameron, Capper, Curtis, Edge, Fernald, Frazier, Gooding, Hale, Howell, Johnson, Jones of Washington; LaFollette, Lenroot, McMaster, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Oddie, Pepper, Pine, Reed of Pennsylvania; Smoot, Stanfield, Williams and Wills—21.

Democrats: Ashurst, Blease, Ed Ferris, Ransdell, Reed of Missouri, Stephens, Walsh and Wheeler—9.

Farmer-Labor: Shipstead—1.

Total 41.

Steck was immediately sworn in, being escorted to the rostrum by Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa.

Brookhart was not present.

Pairs were announced as follows: McKinley for with Fess against; Means for with Schall against; DuPont for with Shortridge against; Underwood for with Wadsworth against.

Senators Brookhart and Cummins, republican, Iowa, did not vote nor were they present in the chamber.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Senator Brookhart of Iowa lost his fight for a senate seat.

Direct diplomatic negotiations in the Tacna-Arica dispute continued at the state department.

Massachusetts lost its ownership claim to Lake Ontario lands in the supreme court.

Delegates from women's organizations insisted at senate hearing that prohibition be strengthened.

Advertising and newspaper organizations were discussed by the Pan-American congress of journalists.

Petitions that emergency coal rates be made permanent were denied by the interstate commerce commission.

The house passed the $85,000,000 naval aviation bill, and Bingham-Parker measure to encourage commercial aviation.

Farm relief legislation hearings were closed by the senate agriculture committee as preliminary to reporting a bill.

HOUSE PASSED TWO BILLS TO PROMOTE AVIATION

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—Two bills designed to promote aviation development, both as a weapon of defense and a vehicle of commerce were passed today by the house.

One measure provides for $85,000,000 five year building program for the naval air service while the other would create an additional assistant secretary in the commerce department to foster commercial air activities by the establishment of airways and air ports.

The naval program was passed by a vote of 297 to 39 and now goes to the senate. The other bill, known as the Bingham-Parker bill, was approved 255 to 93. It already had received senate approval and goes to conference between the two houses for adjustment of minor differences.

The bills embody a number of recommendations of both the president's air board and the house aircraft committee of the last congress.

RIOT ACT READ TO STRIKE PICKETS AT GARFIELD, N. J.

When the 2,000 Textile Pickets Failed to Disperse Deputy Sheriffs and County Policemen, Armed With Riot Guns and Clubs, Drove Them Away—With the Riot Act in Effect Any Group of Strikers May Now Be Arrested on Charges of Inciting to Riot.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 12—(AP)—Deputy sheriffs and county policemen armed with riot guns and clubs dispersed 2,000 textile strike pickets from in front of the Forstmann and Huffman mill in Garfield later today.

A few minutes before George P. Nimmo, sheriff of Bergen county had read the riot act, which so long as it is in force will permit the arrest of any group of strikers on charges of inciting a riot, Albert Weisbord, organizer of the strike was held in $30,000 bail earlier in the day on three such charges.

Several persons were injured when the police charged the strikers and six were arrested. With the riot act in force they will be subject to a heavy fine or imprisonment up to five years. The act at the present is effective only in Bergen county, however, most of the strike district is in Passaic county.

Weisbord after his arraignment declared at the Passaic county jail that the charges were false.

"This is the same old thing that is experienced in every textile strike," he said when speaking of his arrest. "I presume they expected shooting so they decided to put me away."

He declared there had been no warrant read to him at the time of his arrest and complained at being held in jail two days without arraignment. He said he would organize Paterson silk workers when released.

Weisbord expressed satisfaction when told that probably 1,000 children had remained out of school today. He expressed belief their failure to attend was due to danger on the streets.

Children being out of school caused police additional trouble several windows were broken by stones in public school No. 8, and a close watch was kept on all school buildings. Weisbord threatened a school strike Saturday when police prevented a children's parade.

Today's activities in the strike district started early with the arrest of Jake Rubenstein, lieutenant of Weisbord, at the Forstmann and Huffman mill in Garfield. Several others of more than 1,000 persons gathered there were taken to police headquarters when they attempted to picket the plant.

Crowds gathered about the Passaic city hall early in anticipation of the arraignment of Weisbord, and Chief of Police Zober threatened to turn the fire hose on them if they refused to keep back. Chief Zober ordered two staff men of a New York tabloid out of town because of an arraigned Detective John Tottonsack, one of the complainants, testified that there was no warrant for the organizer's arrest at the time he was taken to police headquarters Saturday. He also said Weisbord had not been informed as to the charges upon which he was held until 20 minutes before his arraignment. The united front committee of the strikers in a statement said the $30,000 bail needed for their leader's release would be raised.

HAVANA JOURNALIST SPEAKS OF HONESTY IN ADVERTISING

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—The Pan-American congress of journalists today held a discussion of newspapers and advertising, ranging from the values of the color streets to a vote that subscribers have no fair cause to complain when they "adjust" small errors in dealing by mail. The decisions ended also sharp criticism of the use in advertisements of the trade terms "10 cents a day" and "easy terms."

While the business session was on the way, the newspapermen and ladies were guests of John D. Merrill, president of the American Cuban Railroad, and later in the day they were received at the White house by President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Tonight the visitors attended a banquet tendered by the Chamber of Commerce for International Peace.

Declaring honesty in advertising, Dr. Ramiro Guerra, of the District de la Habana, of Havana, told the congress that it is a "necessity, absolute of elementary principle that the degree of credit of the products be founded in direct proportion to the knowledge of confidence inspired by the publication. He declared certain advertisements are "clearly immoral and should be excluded from newspapers. Lasting from the smaller countries, he cited the case of articles and drugs known to be worthless or dangerous, are constantly advertised in newspapers of readers in search of better health—the same female beauty in such a way that it would be decent and of feminine dignity, making the best of form of manufacturing into a hackneyed phrase and "stuff" serving no purpose except to sell goods."

CASE RESULTED FROM THE GILPATRIC TANGLE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 12—(AP)—One of the several suits which grew out of the maladjustings of Harold C. Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, and which have been pending in the courts, was settled before being called for trial in the United States district court today.

The papers in the action indicated that Gilpatric accepted $10,000 from Ransom H. Bradley with which to buy Dallas Point Stock Land bonds from Blair & Co. Bradley said he never received the bonds and the brokers said they never received the money. The defendant in the action was George M. Coffin, receiver of the bank. Blair & Co., claimed delivery of $20,000 worth of bonds shortly before the Putnam bank was wrecked.

All parties in the action came to an agreement, the terms of which were not made known as the court, having no other cases to har, did not sit.

ENGLISH WOMEN TO WEAR 30 OUNCES OF CLOTHING

LONDON, April 12.—(AP)—A maximum of 30 ounces of clothing is what English women will be permitted to wear this summer, if they follow the edicts of fashion experts who are now showing styles at the annual fashion exhibition.

The 30 ounces will be apportioned as follows: Seven ounces for a frock; six ounces for under-clothing; one ounce for stockings and 16 or less ounces for shoes.

Short skirts still hold the style and it is predicted that rolled stockings with bare knees will be the vogue.

MOTION TO DISMISS THE JOHN T. KING INDICTMENT

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—On behalf of John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut who was recently indicted by the federal grand jury, for allegedly falsifying his income tax return for the year of 1921, William E. Lahey today filed a motion to dismiss in the United States district court.

The motion will be argued on April 19.

DEER ARE DRINKING FROM MAPLE SAP BUCKETS

OTISVILLE, N. Y., April 12—(AP)—Deer have been preying on the sap buckets in the maple woods around Cooks Falls, it was discovered today. A farmer reported he had seen one large buck, which not only drank from a bucket on a maple, but knocked the bucket down so a young doe could reach it.

EMERGENCY COAL RATES WILL EXPIRE APRIL 30

WASHINGTON, April 12—(AP)—Emergency coal rates the interstate commerce commission ordered effective during the anthracite suspension primarily for relief in New England will automatically cease April 30 unless the railroads volunteer to continue them.

The commission today refused to make the rates permanent and reopened the whole proceedings to determine whether the rates are preductive, to certain other coal regions not having lower rates. At the same time it was announced the action is not to be construed as preventing railroads from voluntarily continuing the rates beyond April 30.

The emergency rates apply chiefly on smokeless West Virginia coal which moves through the Potomac yards to Middle Atlantic and New England ports.

Pennsylvania mines and railroad men of the Pocahontas area are opposing the rates which the New England governors' fuel committee and others have sought to make permanent.

No date has been set for the hearings which will go into the "reasonableness and preferential character" of rates on bituminous and semi-bituminous coal and coke from mines in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and eastern Kentucky, as well as on semi-anthracite from mines in Virginia to points in Middle Atlantic and New England states.

The hearings also will consider as a sole issue proceedings involving rates on anthracite from Pennsylvania to Carthage, N. Y.

MOVEMENTS OF BROWNING AND HIS 15-YEAR OLD BRIDE

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—The romance of Edward W. Browning and his 15-year old "Cinderella" bride today turned into uncertain manner, for no one knew just being that he came to New York and Mrs. Frances Browning left in an automobile with her mother, traveling in an opposite direction.

"We're going to be gone five or six days—perhaps forever," said Mrs. Browning's mother.

Browning had thrown off his former joviality with reporters and refused to answer questions. This attitude was first perceptible a few days ago, when, before the wedding Saturday, he said the affair was a "closed chapter."

The house at Cold Spring, which he had surrounded with four pugilists as guards, today was deserted, and the talked-of honeymoon to Europe was still uncertain.

Official interest in the love affair of the 51 year old real estate man and his child bride had not abated however, and the Children's society's agent, Vincent T. Pisarra, said the society would pursue the case at a hearing in children's court Thursday.

This case was started prior to the marriage and involved the proper guardianship of the girl. Mr. Pisarra said that in the opinion of the society the marriage merely meant a change in guardianship from the girl's parents to Browning.

Mrs. Adele Lowen Browning, divorced wife of Browning, today also took occasion to make a statement.

"I wish him and Frances every happiness and I hope she will get all she can. But I know very well it can't last long."

RUBBING ALCOHOL DRINK MAKES DRIVER LOSE CAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 13—Joseph Farra of South Willington, alleged to have been drinking rubbing alcohol was found guilty in police court Monday morning, on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $107.15. Farra was a little short of money, so he sold his car, an Essex coach, realizing $125 on the sale. He used most of the money to pay his fine. Farra was arrested on Main street Saturday night by Officer Roderick Lariviere who had seen the man drive his car in what he termed a drunken manner as Farra came up Main street and pulled up to the curb in front of the Wilson Drug company store. Farra and a young woman friend, Miss Peard of Temple street, got out of the machine and had just purchased a pint of the rubbing alcohol when Farra was arrested. According to the officer there was every evidence that Farra was intoxicated. He stated that the girl had told him Farra had just finished drinking up a pint of the external remedy and that he had been mixing it with water to cut the 91 per cent alcoholic content.

Eddie Adbozek, a taxi-man testified that he had noticed Farra having trouble with the gears of his car, as he came up Main street. Further testimony was to the effect that the machine scraped against the curbstone when making a stop. Officer Lariviere was cross-examined by Attorney Arthur F. Kelley.

Farra said that he came to Miss Peard's home about three o'clock in the afternoon. At six o'clock he went to a restaurant and returned again at seven o'clock when with Miss Peard and her father, Albert Peard he motored to the home of the girl's cousin, Miss Katherine Coveiski of Schoolhouse Lane. They returned to Temple street about 8:30 o'clock and then Farra and the girl came to the drug store to buy the alcohol which they claimed was to be used by Miss Peard's brother. Both said that the brother used the stuff as a beverage, because, according to Miss Peard, nothing better could be bought now.

Farra said that he had no trouble with his car. As he stopped on Main street he met two fellows who were slight acquaintances of his. Although he did not know them by name they asked him to have a drink. He accompanied them to Railroad street near the railroad station, and had two drinks. The girl went into the store and bought the alcohol. Miss Peard corroborated Farra's testimony. She could tell by the smell and the nature of his invitation by the two strange men that he had had a drink or two but she was sure that he was not intoxicated and that he had taken no drinks in her presence that day.

Albert Peard, father of the girl speaks but little English, but he responded to questions to prove that Farra had taken no drinks previous to leaving the two men. The effort of the defense was to prove that if Farra had been drinking he had not done so previous to or while driving his automobile.

Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher stated that the state claimed a conviction. Judge Foss then imposed the fine.

OVER $300 IN FINES COMES FROM GAMBLING CASES TRIED

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 13—Of nine cases tried in police court Monday morning, which aggregated over $300 in fines, six were for gambling with dice. The men were Dazil Dvak, Joseph Kurdin, Mike Salenski, Wilford Farnsworth, George Kennison and Adelard Dupathy who were arrested by Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean early Saturday afternoon while a crap game was in progress near the Monarch store on West Main street. All pleaded guilty but Dupathy and Farnsworth who said that they had played the game in the day but were not playing in the game when the round was made. They said that they were not gambling at that time. A pair of dice and fifty cents for were displayed. Kurdin, Dvak, Dupathy, Farnsworth and Salenski, the latter a boy, were given a rebuke by the court for having young men and boys into the gambling haunt. Among the boys charged on watching the game was one 18 years old another 14 and two years of age. Dvak was fined $15 and costs, amounting to $20.15 and the other two were fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.15 each. The assessments were paid.

Alfred Chalifoux, at whose apartment at 6 West Park street officers found a quantity of alcohol, a pint of moonshine, coloring matter, a funnel and a bottle and half a dozen empty bottles, pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor laws in police court Monday morning. He was fined $100 and costs, amounting to $107.15 which he paid. Chalifoux said that he had a job to go to and was not interested in the raid which was conducted the night of Friday, March 26. Prosecutor P. Grady stated that in fact McLean and Lieutenant Edward Leahy with Officer Investigator William E. Jaklin orchestra of Hartford which is to broadcast from Station WTIC, Hartford, next Friday evening. Mrs. Merrifield will be heard in a mandola solo.

Latex, the milky-white liquid that flows from the bark of a rubber tree, is the source of all rubber. The United States Rubber Company ships latex from its rubber plantations in the Far East to its tire factories. Special machinery treats tire cords in a latex bath and lays them side by side, producing Web Cord. See below.

A—Latex-treated Web Cord. Note how each cord lies smooth and parallel and absence of cross tie-threads.

B—The old-style cord structure with cross tie-threads and uneven position of cords. Compare with Web Cord.

Here are the Answers to your Questions about Latex-treated Web Cord

Q—What is Latex-treated Web Cord?

A—Web Cord is the special cord structure developed by this Company for Royal Cords and other United States Tires.

Q—How does Latex-treated Web Cord differ from the cord structure used in other makes of tires?

A—Each individual cord from which Web Cord is made is latex-treated by immersing the cords in a latex bath. The cords are then laid side by side and when the liquid dries they become webbed together by pure, natural rubber.

Q—Don't other manufacturers treat their cords?

A—Some do, but not in latex.

Q—What is the object of treating cords with latex?

A—All tire cords must be impregnated with rubber. Using latex impregnates the cords with rubber, without using chemicals.

Q—Why don't other manufacturers use the Latex Process?

A—The Latex Process was developed, patented and is owned by the United States Rubber Company.

Q—What are the advantages of Latex-treated Web Cord?

A—Greater flexibility, strength and longer life in cord fabric. The Latex Process surrounds and protects each cord with rubber and webs it to its neighboring cords with a flexible rubber coating. This does away with the necessity for cross tie-threads.

DANIELSON

BOROUGH MEETING VOTES FOR AUXILIARY FIRE SIREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 13.—Attorney Harry E. Back was elected warden of the borough of Danielson at the annual meeting Monday. Practically all the other officers on the ticket are the same as now holding office and in each case were re-elected. Only 59 votes were cast and of these three were thrown out as blank.

Warden Walter Anderson was moderator and presided at the business meeting at 7:30. There was a small attendance. Borough Clerk Frank E. Preston read the warning. On motion of Frederick A. Jacobs, the annual report of various borough officers were accepted as printed.

It was voted on motion of Mr. Jacobs that an appropriation of $2,600 be made to meet the costs of installing an auxiliary fire alarm siren on the Central fire station. Mr. Jacobs' resolution stated that the borough recognized with sincere appreciation the splendid public service rendered by the Paco manufacturing company in blowing the present fire alarm. Yet there is a realization of the very great danger of loss of life and property through the possible failure of the alarm blowing machine to work properly. Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department also explained the need of the auxiliary siren and the meeting voted the appropriation without any opposition. Another appropriation of $2,000 on motion of Attorney Bach was for the purpose of installing a new heating system in the public library. Mr. Bach explained that no more of this appropriation than was absolutely necessary would be expended and that the directors of the library believe that the installation can be made for much less than that figure. Mr. Bach said that out of an unexpended balance of $200 to $300 money could be taken for painting the interior of the library. On motion of Attorney E. L. Darbie a committee composed of Walter Anderson, John A. Gilbert and F. L. Bitgood was appointed on borough charter revision, they to report to the adjourned annual borough meeting in August. Mr. Darbie made a further motion authorizing the borough to sell a lot near North street acquired through foreclosure proceedings.

The meeting also voted to pay the warden $50 a year and each burgess $25 a year for their services. This was on motion of F. L. Bitgood. The meeting adjourned until the evening of August 2 at which time the tax rate for the current fiscal year will be fixed.

CORONER STILL WAITING RESULTS OF ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 13.—Coroner Arthur G. Bill was awaiting Monday developments as to the welfare of patients injured Sunday in the Lussier-Dillon automobile crash on the Brooklyn road before fixing a date for the inquest. Coroner Bill has made informal inquiry at the hospital of some of the injured as to the circumstances surrounding the accident. In view of the possibility that Alpherie Lussier, driver of one of the cars, may die, it is not evident at this time that an inquest establishing all the facts pertaining to the affair, in so far as that may be possible, would be followed by action. Mr. Lussier is very severely injured and on Monday his recovery remained in doubt. Mrs. James A. Dillon also was reported as on the danger list Monday, her condition even more critical than that of Mr. Lussier.

Unauthorized parking near Danielson passenger station of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company must cease. To that end a railroad police officer came here Monday and will be on duty for a few days, checking up the situation.

A no parking sign of good size has been in position on the south side of the station for a long time. This has been ignored by numbers of car owners. Meanwhile the New England Transportation company, the auxiliary of the New Haven road that operates a motor coach line between Providence and Willimantic via Danielson, and the Connecticut company, operating motor coaches on the north and south route through Danielson and having parking arrangements at the station have been handicapped in finding parking places at the station for their big machines because so many people have been in the habit of leaving their cars there without authority. The parking space in question is the property of the railroad company. Some of it has been leased for several years past for tax stands. At one time the railroad company took action to stop parking in the area, putting up the no parking sign and enforced the arrangement, which has slowly broken down. A new effort will not be made to re-establish it.

Interest continued to be well maintained in the American legion carnival, which come to a close in the state armory Monday evening after continuing for four nights. The net proceeds of the affair are to be added to the legion's Community house fund.

All patriotic organizations are to be invited to participate in the parade and exercises being planned for Memorial day. The exercises are to be held Memorial afternoon in the Orpheum theater. E. C. Babcock is General chairman and Miss Lillian L. Bailey secretary of the committee of arrangements.

The county oratorical trials in which students of various high schools and academies of Windham county are to participate here next Friday afternoon are to be held in the Parish house to the Westfield Congregational church. The assembly hall of the high school is not to be used because of the noises arising from construction work now underway for the high school additions.

The wrecked car that was being driven by Alpherie Lussier, Sunday, when the serious accident occurred on the Brooklyn road was taken to Willimantic. It has broken wheels on the right side, the top is gone and it is otherwise damaged. The Dillon car, wrecked in the same crash, is at a Danielson garage.

As has been the rule for years, only a very small percentage of the voters of the borough participated in the annual election Monday afternoon. This is largely due to the fact that there is no real contest connected with the borough election, which is free from partisan politics and proceeds with but one ticket in the field.

A minimum temperature of 26 degrees was recorded in Danielson early Monday morning.

J. C. Witter and N. A. Witter were at Glastonbury Monday, conducting an auction sale.

Of local interest is the action for divorce brought by Margaret L. Youngblood vs. John W. Youngblood.

Killingly high school's baseball team will open its season April 28, playing Plainfield high school.

Mrs. William Schuster and children of New York are at the Schuster farm on South street to remain through the summer season. Mr. Schuster is remaining in New York to attend to his business interests, coming here for periodic visits.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Willey of Utica, N. Y., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Fred Kenworthy. Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Curtis, Miss Helen Curtis and Lieut. Ralph Hanson of New London, also were recently entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Kenworthy.

A Well Child conference will be held at the town hall building this (Tuesday) afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. These conferences are held here each month under the auspices of the state department of health. A great amount of valuable information relative to the care of children is available through these conferences.

Harry McDermott of Woonsocket was a: his home here over the week end.

James C. Hanson returned to his home in Springfield Monday after spending a few days with friends in town.

Even as far away as Hartford, parties of trout fishermen are coming here for the opening of the state-leased Snake Meadow brook next Thursday morning.

More pay for members of the fire department is one of the things that likely will be before the members of the electorate in Danielson at some borough meeting in the not distant future.

C. A. Hamilton, recovering after a serious illness and operation, was greeted by many friends on his appearance down town Monday.

Some dealers here are now supplied with hard coal of various sizes, and the coal strike shortage seems far in the past.

An amount not to exceed $2,500, will be expended by borough officials in enlarging the sewer bed area on the borough farm. The work probably will be done before fall.

James R. Walsh will be in Westerly today (Tuesday) to attend the burial of his sister, who died in New York a number of weeks ago.

Repair work is being done on state highways. Holes worn in road surfaces during the winter season are being filled in.

Miss Elizabeth Dunn has taken a position in the commercial department of the S. N. E. Telephone company at New London.

John Nolan of the Berthiaume pharmacy is spending a week's vacation at his home in Norwich.

During a vacation period Miss Mary Geer of School street, will visit her sister, Miss Beatrice Geer of Norwich.

Misses Katherine D. Aylward and Alice Monohan will be in New London today on a business trip.

Arthur C. Peloquin of Holyoke has been a visitor with friends in Danielson.

PUTNAM

DEATH OF ELSA LUSSIER, INJURED IN ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13—Elsa Lussier, nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alferie Lussier of Pawtucket, R. I., who was one of the injured in the automobile collision on the Danielson-Brooklyn road Sunday, died at Day Kimball hospital shortly after midnight. She never fully regained consciousness.

Her father is still on the danger list. If he recovers he has many weeks of weary hospital life before him. His thigh is broken, his pelvis broken, his neck badly sprained and he lies in one position in a plaster cast that envelopes his entire body.

Mrs. Dillon, wife of James A. Dillon, also remains in a critical condition. Her jaw is broken, she is badly cut about the face and head. For several hours it was feared that her skull was fractured. Hospital physicians are more hopeful as to the outcome of her injuries than they were yesterday.

CAMP WOODSTOCK DATES ANNOUNCED FOR SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13—The following dates have been announced by Frank B. Condon, Tolland County Y. M. C. A. secretary for the coming season for Camp Woodstock, the tri-county Y. M. C. A. camp at Black Pond:

Leaders' Training Camp—June 25 to June 30.

Boys' camp—First period, June 30 to July 14.

Boys' camp—Second period, July 14 to July 28.

Boys' camp—Third period, July 28 to August 4.

The camp is located in Woodstock, on Black Pond, a beautiful springfed site. The camp site is one of unusual charm and includes 40 acres of farm land, woodland, and an especially beautiful grove of virgin pine trees by the shore of the lake. The campers sleep in weather-tight tent houses or tents. There is a farm house that provides facilities for a limited number of guests, and serves as camp headquarters. In addition a large dining hall, boats, cooking quarters, dock and an infirmary are provided.

The purpose of the camp is to provide a wholesome vacation in the great out-of-doors with a program of activities making for a well balanced Christian manhood.

Frank Condon of Rockville, Elmer Thienes of Hartford and Edwin Hill of Putnam are directors of the camp. All these men have had years of experience in managing boys' camps and are secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. They will be assisted by a physical director, 20 men known as Tent Leaders and a swimming instructor.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Thereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore.

Miss Mary Child of Hartford has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Child.

You never saw a whiter wash in all your life

—yet you don't even need a washboard

JUST imagine clothes getting white and clean without rubbing them threadbare on a washboard.

No wonder millions of women have given up old-fashioned washday methods.

No wonder new thousands are turning every week to Rinso.

This amazing granulated soap actually soaks out the dirt so that scrubbing isn't necessary. It ends hard rubbing against a board—the one great cause of clothes wearing out.

Even in the hardest water Rinso whips at once into rich, lasting suds that loosen the ground-in dirt and ease out the stains. The most soiled spots need only a soft rub between the fingers to make them snowy.

Safe for your best linens

Use Rinso instead of bar soap. It's all you need. Just soak all the wash in Rinso suds — rinse — and your work is done!

The clothes are whiter than you could rub them—whiter, even, than boiling could make them. And your hands are white, too—not red and swollen.

No laundry soap is easier on hands or clothes than Rinso. It contains nothing to injure white clothes or fast colors, because it's free from acids, harsh chemicals, bleaches. You could soak your finest white table cloth in Rinso for days without harm.

Best for washing machines

Rinso is recommended by 23 leading washing machine makers. It gets clothes whiter, brighter than ever, in much less time.

Whether you use a washing machine or not, be sure to try Rinso this week. It will save your hands—save your clothes—save you! Get Rinso from your grocer. Follow simple directions on package.

NEEDED BY ALL

Philadelphia is making arrangements for the entertainment of a great many visitors this summer because of the sesquicentennial. It is making elaborate plans and without a doubt the visitors will be quite as numerous as it anticipates. For that reason the Public Ledger of that city points out "If we are to have a 'spotless' town this summer for the inspection of the city's sequi guests, the cleansing process must not be confined to the main highways. Our visitors will be scattered far and wide, in the small streets as well as the large. No superficial method will suffice to confer the impression of a well-swept, well groomed city."

Not every city is to hold a bi-centennial sesqui centennial or even a centennial celebration this year and yet that same advice which is offered for the benefit of Philadelphia may well be taken home by other cities.

Even though there is to be no special celebration in other cities, it is certain that each one will have a large number of visitors. Some will come for a long stay and some for a short one. Some will see only the main thoroughfares and some will see the side streets, so that all in all it can be anticipated that there will be visitors who will be taking note of the community's appearance and expressing themselves as to whether they have been favorably or unfavorably impressed.

If there is any civic pride in a community the desire must be for the making of a favorable impression. That is the thing do to even though the visitors are simply passing through by automobile. A clean, well kept, attractive city will have its good effects. It may leave an impression that will be lasting. On the other hand the city with bad streets, untidy and unattractive property, with slackness and lack of interest to be noted at frequent intervals produces some extremely bad advertising for itself.

The Philadelphia idea of a clean up is an excellent one. There are not many communities but what should be deeply interested in doing the very same thing at this season of the year.

SPEEDING JUSTICE

Occasionally there are cases where those who commit crime are quickly brought to the bar of justice, and such disposition of cases unquestionably makes the best possible impression upon the importance of respecting the law.

Last month a gang of young men entered a restaurant at Jamaica, L. I., and killed the proprietor. They sped away but five were caught and last week the leader of the gang, a youth of 18 was tried and convicted of first degree murder. He is of the cold blooded type. The testimony showed he admitted killing the man and he showed no evidence of unusual concern when he heard the verdict that carries death as the penalty.

There may be the feeling that this young man and his gang didn't go into the restaurant to kill the proprietor, but it is apparent that they went armed and when it got to the point where it was necessary to use the weapon to accomplish their purpose they did not hesitate. They knew full well that they were engaged in an violation, but there was displayed utter contempt for the law. It was a case of taking pride in their wildness. They were emulating the example which has been set by numerous desperadoes and it is entirely possible that in this case that action was taken under the belief that nothing more than a slap on the wrist would be experienced. If in fact that was received.

The New York court has sensed the necessity of dealing out justice in such cases instead of dabbling with leniency and by so doing inviting more cases of the kind. Crime has developed to the point in the big city where those who are vested with the authority of enforcing the laws must do something more than play with such desperadoes. Human life is no more than a straw to those who are out looking for loot and an easy living, but there cannot fail to be anything but good effect from speeding up justice.

HELPING MEAT SUPPLY

Occasionally attention is called to the fact that we are increasing the consumption of meat without adequate provision being made for the increase in the supply. In other words we are doing quite the same in regard to this matter as we are concerning our timber resources. We are making huge inroads today without a thought of tomorrow.

What is going to be the effect of this upon the market which the people of Alaska are endeavoring to establish for reindeer meat? Reindeer steaks are not available as a general thing and few people know whether they like them or not. Venison, moose and bear steaks are occasionally passed around by those who go into the north in search of big game but reindeer is for the most part restricted to the stories told about Santa Claus. And yet Alaska is developing an industry of no small proportion in regard to such a meat supply.

Alaska has a large area which is particularly fitted for the raising of reindeer. The experiment of increasing the herds in that territory has been under way for a considerable time and they multiply rather rapidly and in the northwest, in Canada and in Alaska reindeer meat is extensively used. A little over a quarter of a century ago reindeer were brought from Siberia to Alaska and there are now more than a half million of them there. The experiment is in every way a success and the people of Alaska not only have their herds but are taught by the government to care for them and are encouraged by a gift herd of 50 in the expectation that they will continue in that business.

With the reindeer industry being pushed it becomes evident that there must be some outlet. Alaska cannot absorb it all and the natural market is this country to which reindeer meat can be offered in increasing amounts for the purpose of providing an adequate meat supply. There seems to be no question but what Alaska can raise many times what it is doing if the meat eaters of the states indicate their desire for reindeer.

BROOKHART UNSEATED

Decidedly close was the vote in the senate on the Brookhart-Steck contested election case. In voting to seat Steck, a democrat, the senate has sustained the overwhelming committee report and has unquestionably seated as junior senator from Iowa the man desired by the plurality of voters at the last election.

Up to this time Brookhart has been holding the seat, but he had been read out of the republican party and was relied upon by the insurgents in putting through such propositions as they favored. He was an open opponent of the administration. He took that attitude following his nomination as a republican and it was because of it that the republicans of Iowa turned against him and voted for his democratic opponent. Ordinarily in Iowa a democratic candidate has no chance and he would not have had a look in but for the resentment of the republicans. The vote displayed the disgust with Brookhart in his own state.

The vote of the senate completes the rebuke which was intended by the voters of Iowa. And yet in anticipation of the fact that he would be unseated Brookhart has been threatening to run against Senator Cummins when his term expires. That he will do so is entirely possible, but if it was the will of the people of Iowa that he should be kept from the senate, even though a democrat got his seat, and drop a valuable, veteran senator for a troublemaker and one who admits that he is a republican only when he can get favors from that party.

The senate has acted in a non partisan manner in dealing with this case and its action is believed sound and sane. No one is responsible for it but Brookhart himself.

ALIEN VETERANS

Regardless of what may be thought of the many amendments which have been proposed for the immigration act there cannot fail to be approval of the action of the senate immigration committee in favor of that which would admit regardless of the quota all those honorably discharged veterans of the World war who served in the American forces but who are now living abroad.

Many of those who served under our flag in the war have since gone abroad. They are not citizens of this country and yet it was quite the same service that they rendered as if they had been citizens. Many in fact enlisted who were not obliged to. Under the existing laws they are aliens and are subject to the quota requirements if they attempt to enter this country.

As a mark of appreciation of the services they rendered it is by no means too much for this country to tell them that they can come in when they desire, other conditions being satisfactory, without regard for the quota. This doesn't mean that the country is going to be flooded and it doesn't mean that their entrance is going to involve the admission of a great many others. It is estimated that there are about 5,000 aliens who would thus be assured the right to come here whenever they desire.

The committee cannot see that it is real justice to keep them out of the country for which they fought. They are certainly entitled to that consideration and there is just as good reason for believing that they will become as good citizens as they were soldiers, or even better.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—It is interesting to note, now the end of the session is showing faintly on the congressional horizon, what a strong part the Connecticut delegation has played in the passage of important measures, especially as concerns the committees of which they are members.

The New England delegation in both senate and house has been the strongest sectional delegation congress has put to the front this year. It is practically a solid republican delegation, only a sprinkling of democrats having crept into the fold.

Among them are men of national prominence politically. Take for instance, Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee, Butler is chairman of patents, holds high rank on foreign relations and naval affairs. The president pro tempore of the senate is Moses of New Hampshire, who is chairman of post offices and post roads, is on foreign relations and rules. Over in the house it is Tilson of Connecticut who holds the highest place of power in that branch of congress, being republican floor leader, which puts him second only to the speaker of the house.

Other senators and members of the house hold high committee positions. With McLean chairman of banking and currency and Bingham well up on military affairs.

Connecticut men in the house hold commanding positions. Merritt is on interstate and foreign commerce, one of the most important committees in congress; Fenn is chairman of the census; Freeman ranking member on rivers and harbors, and Glynn on the major committee on military affairs, so important a committee that its members are not permitted assignment to any other. Freeman's committee is likewise a major committee and Fenn is on banking and currency as well as census. Tilson, in his position as floor leader is not assigned to any committee, outranking them all, but is an advisory with the steering committee on the house which maps out the legislative program. The speaker and the floor leader being the most powerful members, or perhaps we had better call them advisors of that committee. In fact they do the greater part of program steering and are rarely opposed in their views. All of which goes to make up an extraordinary showing for the Connecticut delegation.

Among the big matters that have come before house committees this session in which the Connecticut men have figured largely are the Cape Cod canal bill, introduced by Freeman, ranking member of the committee before which such matters are placed, and the improvements of the Thames river near Norwich, which got $350,000 for improvements. This is one of the most important measures for Connecticut that has been before congress for many years. Mr. Merritt is especially interested in aviation measures and brought out from the interstate and foreign commerce committee, a bill which has won approval from aviation scientists.

Calling attention to the distinguished floor leadership of New England's majority leader, Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, F. W. Wile, of the press gallery recently wrote, "Keep an eye on John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, republican floor leader of the house. Cal calls him Colonel. He is the liason officer between the lower branch of congress and the white house. No man on capitol hill has the ear of the president more confidentially or often. Col. Tilson's intimacy with Mr. Coolidge dates from the 1924 convention. The Connecticut representative was chairman of the speakers bureau at republican national headquarters. By common consent the spellbinding strategy of the campaign was one of the factors of victory, and Tilson was its prophet. He is only a yankee by adoption. Tennessee is his native heath. Representative Tilson is no governor's staff colonel. He was a lieutenant in the 2nd United States volunteer infantry during the war with Spain; served for the succeeding 16 years in the Connecticut national guard and wound up as its colonel on the Mexican border in November 1916. Col. Tilson (Yale '9..) is serving his eighth term in the house."

And while we are speaking of Tilson, that tribute paid him by the house on his birthday last week, was an ovation rally without equal. Not only did Speaker Longworth pay him one of the most eloquent tributes ever heard, for his ability, integrity and efficiency as a floor leader, but Garret, democratic floor leader was scarcely outdone by Longworth in his eloquent tribute to the fairness and tact of Tilson as leader. The fact is Tilson is a credit to New England and is unquestionably the most popular as well as efficient leader the house has ever known.

The United States bank does something besides play at festive or official occasions. Now the Pan American journalists are here to the number of 400 and representing all the South American nations, the United States bands located in Washington are practicing not less than 20 national anthems so to "play the right tune" for the distinguished visitors, and also are learning 360 other anthems closely associated with South American music.

Sometimes confusion in the gallery and on the floor causes mixups in answering roll calls. Two happened in one day recently, but were quickly corrected. Inadvertently the clerk of the house called the name of the late Congressman Thayer of Massachusetts, and another member, thinking it was his name that had been called answered voting "No" on the matter under consideration. Almost at the same moment over in the senate, Senator Sheppard, of Texas, who felt very keenly over the matter up for a vote, heard what he thought was his name called by the clerk and shouted a vigorous "No" only to find he had voted at the call of "Shipstead", whose views were directly opposite to those expressed by Sheppard. The mixup brought a laugh from senators and the gallaries, who saw the humor of the situation before Sheppard had realized his error.

The galleries are so crowded with visitors during the Easter tourist season, that one day this week the vice president was forced to admonish them to silence a half dozen times in quick succession. The crowd is never disorderly, but anxiety to know what is going on and who is talking, etc., cause a buzz and hum that drowns the words spoken by senators.

As there has been no further false alarm in the treasury vaults, officials are inclined to believe their first guess was correct, when they attributed the alarm sounding on April 1st, without apparent cause. "It's an April fool joke," said the guards, after the posse of armed guards had made a thorough search for supposed bandits and found no intruders in or near the vaults. At that moment there were upwards of four billion dollars in the vaults, in gold and in silver.

FEMININE TOUCH

"Ummmm," said the neat wife who had dropped into her husband's office for the first time in a long while. She was surveying the dreadful scene. "My!" she murmured to herself, looking at the helter-skelter piles of papers, letters and magazines. "OOOeee!" she sniffed in horror as she gingerly drew a finger through the dust on most everything. The light of battle came into her eyes, and figuratively, she rolled up her sleeves, but her husband looked at her just in time.

"Now, Genevieve!" he warned in cold, hard tones, "sit right down as you are and make no further efforts! Compose your mind and recite a poem or something, because that is the extreme limit of your physical efforts at uplift inside this room so long as there is breath in my body! It may look like the interior of a mover's van turned upside down, but I like it. I know where to find anything I want because it is right in plain sight some where instead of being put away.

"To my notion a place looks lonesome with nothing in sight but a single rose in a vase, a fresh copy of Mencken's magazine and an ash tray from Italy or some effect like that. You wonder where everything has gone, because you know it has gone somewhere. No house ever existed without rubbers that nobody ever wears, back number magazines that you may want some day, clothes to give away or be made over, the box of collars your husband has discarded but which you are dead sure the silly thing will wear again in a year or so, old curtain poles, golf clubs, umbrellas, collections of shells, postage stamps, saws, hammers, tacks, shoe blacking and whatnot, none of which would precisely decorate a living room but all of which must exist and you women spend your lives devising places for these necessary and vital articles.

"It is a regular household game—wife hides the shoe brush, husband runs about hunting for it; tag, you're it, if you find it and heaven help you if you fail to put it back exactly where you found it.

"'Look at this place!' all wives wail, 'here I have slaved and slaved putting things away and making the place look livable and ten minutes after you start rampaging about it looks as though a family of Digger Indians had camped here!'

"And as for dust, I have no doubt that Eve went around with a bunch of grass dusting off the apples and pears and snakes and alligators in the Garden of Eden and making Adam sneeze and hunt up a fresh tree to lounge under. A layer of dust to a woman is anathema, horror, woe, shame. Instead of being a mere scientific phenomenon like an eclipse or a cyclone, something to attract one's attention perhaps but nothing to get excited over.

"A woman will enter a room that looks perfectly all right to a man and instantly will know that there is a wad of paper under the davenport and dust under the radiators and that two pictures are hanging crookedly. They are scared to pieces for fear Mrs. Jones will drop in and go away to report them wretched housekeepers because there was dust on one angle of the table and an inch of floor beneath the piano pedals which had not felt the purifying swish of the floor mop duster. 'Her child's coat is across the davenport,' this Mrs. Jones delightedly will relate to Mrs Smith; 'there was a magazine on the floor and I am sure I saw cigar ashes in one place on the rug!' 'Dreadful!' chortles Mrs. Smith and your goose is cooked.

"I'm sorry for you poor women, I really am! You'll never know the joy of a place like this, where nothing is put away, where dust collects forever, where moths would reign supreme only they choke to death in the atmosphere instead and where, when I want anything, all I have to do is reach out and paw around through things till I locate it. I don't have to poke about in dark closets and lose time. All the janitors are trained to know that any one touching a thing in here is likely to be shot at dawn. It's my cave, I love it and you just leave it alone!"

"All right, dearie," agreed the neat wife sweetly, having learned the easiest way to manage the queer creatures. "It shall be just as you say—only I am just going to pick up all these magazines and put them away and sort of dust around. Just a little."—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Eli Whitney, the Handy Man's Son, the Great Inventor

The cotton industry is one of the greatest industries in the United States and one of the greatest in the world. The expansion of that industry owed much to the genius of Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin, which he perfected about 125 years ago.

Eli Whitney came honestly by his inventive supposedly, for his father, although supposedly a farmer, was in reality what may be called a handy man. The father was that useful sort or person that is now so rare, a man who can do anything and everything, and do it well. He could make wagon wheels, chairs, and do all sorts of cabinet work. Therefore he taught his little son Eli how to use tools, and he loved to watch the boy whittle out toys. As the lad grew older the father was more delighted. Eli Whitney was a wanderful workman. At 12 he made a violin. On another occasion the boy took his father's watch to pieces and put it together again so that it ran as well as before. Soon he was doing all sorts of work, making pins, knives, nails and anything that anyone wanted.

Eli Whitney was a thinker as well as a mechanic. He wanted to go to college and so he did at 23, graduating at 27, from no less a school than Yale. He secured a position as teacher in a southern state and set out. On the way, on a boat going to Savannah, he made the acquaintance of Mrs. Nathaniel Greene, a widow, and went with her to her plantation On Mrs. Greene's plantation he saw raw cotton for the first time, and the need for a cotton gin. On the recommendation of his hostess he set to work and made the first crude cotton gin. With a partner he manufactured the new invention and made great sums of money but he fell into countless legal struggles over his patent and experienced such annoyance that he took up the making of guns for the army. Even in his last sickness, at the age of 60, he invented surgical instruments for use on himself. To the infentive skill of the handy man's son the United States owes much of its supremacy in the growing and selling of cotton. On the other hand the invention of the cotton gin in 1794 made slavery in the south worth while financially and thus extended slave power.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator William B. McKinley, who is contesting for renomination on the republican ticket in today's primaries in Illinois is now completing his first term in the upper house of congress. His experience as a national lawmaker, however, embraces much more than his six-year senatorial term since he had had a long career in the house of representatives before he was elevated to the senate. Senator McKinley is a native of Illinois and was educated at the state university at Urbana. Choosing banking as a career, he settled in the city of Champaign, where he has since made his home. His firm specialized in the building and operation of public utility plants and in time came into control of many such plants throughout Illinois and in the neighboring states. In the senate Mr. McKinley has been a supporter of the world court proposal and his candidacy for renomination is therefore regarded as a popular test of that issue.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Burning Candle of Life at Both Ends.

Mr. Editor: The Bulletin of April 9 contained a letter from Marinda C. Robinson of Washington, D. C., in which she spoke of a question which, as she states, is a very serious one. I agree with her entirely on everything she says, and will add a little to it by saying that it is a question which at the present time should be uppermost in the mind of every man and woman in the country.

When we realize the tremendous role which the youth of today will be called upon to play in the future enterprises of this nation, the gigantic burden which must inevitably fall upon them, the responsibility which they must assume when they pass from their present age of disillusion into the unmasked age of reality, we can readily see the need of an intelligent reorganization of present living conditions.

Here arises the question of who shall conduct this reorganization. Shall it be the men and women of the present generation, or shall the youth of today be allowed to correct its own error?

I claim that it is the duty of every man and woman to promote his or her own health, strength and mental energy, and to instruct their children in the proper way of developing their physical and mental powers.

Some there are who say: "Oh! well, they are too young to think properly. When they are older they will be able to think more clearly." But they should bear in mind that unless they are checked in their erroneous conception of pleasure they will utterly exhaust their physical power and energy.

And common sense will tell you that wherever physical energy is lacking, mental energy is not forthcoming. Therefore they will never achieve the ability to think clearly.

It is astounding to see so many of our young men and women burning the candle of life at both ends. Go through our factories and workshops and you will find 99 out of every 100 of our young men with a dull, drowsy look in their eyes as if they were a couple of years behind time in their sleep. Their skin is yellow with the nicotine poison of cigarettes. They go along day after day, year in and year out, without ever giving a thought to their future.

In far off countries where knowledge of modern sanitation and hygiene is remote, such conditions are excusable. But here in America, here in the wonderful United States of ours, where science has crashed down the doors of ignorance and allowed the light of knowledge and intelligence to flood the farthermost corners of the land, it as crime!

The youth of today in America is rushing and tearing through life with each and every individual trying to outdo the other in daring and search of excitement.

But we cannot go on this way forever. Some day we are going to pay the price.

As an illustration of this let me cite the case of Wilhelm the II, former emperor of Germany.

When he was at the height of his power and influence in Europe Lionel Strongfoot was coming into prominence as the world's strongest and best built man. The emperor of Germany requested Mr. Strongfoot to give an exhibition of his power at the royal palace. The emperor marvelled at the power of this man's muscles but he said, "This man is considered the world's strongest man, but all he can do is master his dumb-bells and athletic paraphenalia while I with nothing but my brain command ore the world's greatest empires." He went on allowing his brain to become drunk with lust for more power and today Wilhelm of the withered arm and shattered mental power stands alone, exiled, a man despised by the entire universe, while Lionel Strongfoot, who could only master his dumb-bells stands alone in his profession, recognized as one of the world's greatest physical directors and authorities on health and strength, a man respected by the entire world, because he has reached the peak of his ambition, the acme of success. I sincerely hope that the movement on foot in Washington will make rapid progress and spread to all parts of the country.

J. EDWARD BENOIT.

Taftville, April 11, 1926.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on any aching corn, callus or "hardskin" on bottom of feet. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Little Talks on Thrift

THRIFT

Much is being said at present about the prevalence of crime, and most serious thought is being given both to its causes and its possible solution.

Lawlessness is due to a combination of causes and for this reason there must be a combination of curative developments before any pronounced change for the better takes place.

It cannot be denied that lack of thrift in many cases has led directly to acts of violence. It has been noted that many of those who have resorted to forgery and theft as a means of securing quick and easy funds were first led from the paths of right living through habits of extravagance.

Instead of cultivating sensible practices and living sane and moral lives, these persons allowed themselves step by step, to get into ways that required more money than they were earning, that dissipated their ambitions and rotted their moral fibre.

There is nothing more stabilizing than consistent thrift. Those who practice it not only have the advantage that comes with the conservation of their material resources, their health and their energies, but they have also the advantage of sane judgment and normal viewpoints upon the problems and responsibilities of life.

In our efforts to stem the tide of crimes, which, in many places, has reached such a condition that special committees of investigation have been appointed, a great amount of constructive good could be accomplished through the encouragement of thrift.

There is an inter-relationship between sound economics and sound morals. Moral betterment must depend always on thrift as an essential of its progress.—American Society for Thrift.

CHILD TRAINING

FRANKNESS AND TRUTH

Mary E. Stover

A neighbor had volunteered to stay with little Ruth and Elwood while their mother went shopping. "Do they know that you are going?" this woman asked when she appeared in the kitchen doorway with a knitting bag over one arm.

"No, I haven't told them yet, but there'll be time enough before I star for my car."

"Don't say a word to them! They're playing all right now, and you can slip out this back way without their suspecting a thing. They may not miss you for an hour."

The mother hesitated, but only for words with which to make a tactful reply. She decided that candor was best. "I couldn't slip away from the children so. It would be too great a strain on their faith in me. They have a right to suppose that they will find me at home or else know when and where I went just as it is my right to expect the same of them. If I should slip away in secret, they might feel themselves justified in following the same course."

The accomodating neighbor is childless; but her troubled eyes have watched big and little children, even to those of six-foot, slinking away to places and companionship of which their parents would not approve.

"I don't know how often deceitful children are the result of deceitful parents, but I guess your way is best, though it must bring on a lot of teasing and fussing every time you leave home," she sighed.

"No, it doesn't. From babyhood both the children have been accustomed to my bidding them good-bye for a little while. They know that I will never leave them uncared for nor stay away an unreasonable time. Come let me introduce you as their temporary auntie; then listen to our farewells."

The good-hearted neighbor followed outdoors with some misgivings, but she found that these children took their mother's going sensibly. After watching to wave their gay "bankies" as she turned the corner, they contentedly went back to their play

The neighbor recalled thoughtfully the scenes in which her young nephews and nieces always indulged when they found their parents gone. "This must be another proof that honesty's the best policy with children—especially when you begin with it from the first. was her comfortable decision as she sat knitting in peace.

It is the best policy to be honest and frank with children. Deceit may seem more profitable for a while, but it brings a penalty in suspicious children who naturally fall into deceitful ways themselves. Indeed, whoever is troubled by deceitful traits in a child should scan her own ways and speech with care. Deceitfulness and candor both seem to be highly contagious to children It is for us to choose which they shall "catch" from us.

Doesn't just deaden pain—gets at the cause

RHEUMATISM AND NEURITIS GIVEN AMAZING RELIEF

Everyone who has suffered with rheumatism or neuritis knows what real pain is.

And when they get relief from pain they want to give the benefit of their experience to other sufferers.

Here is a letter from a man in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who tried numerous remedies without relief, and then got genuine help from a simple home treatment.

"I had neuritis in my arm and shoulder, and the treatments I took did me no good. A friend told me to try Sloan's Liniment, and in less than ten applications my affliction was gone."

What is the magic of this amazingly effective remedy? Sloan's sends an increased supply of healing, germ-destroying blood right to the spot that hurts. That's what conquers the pain. No need to rub. Sloan's does the whole job. Just pat it on. Quickly and surely, it kills pain, reduces swelling and inflammation, drives out stiffness and pain. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

Stories That Recall Others

Too Strong

Mary was six and attending school for a few months when she took her little sister Dorothy to visit. The latter utterly disgraced her sister for when she was asked how much two and two were she said 16.

In telling it to her mother, who said, "Well, honey, she's only a baby and don't know any better," Mary replied, "But she didn't need to say so many."

A Shooting at Sunrise

Harry was recently married and while doing business with a concern which handles white enameled stoves and ranges was congratulated by the heads of the business and told to pick out any stove he cared to and accept it as a wedding gift. Imagine his wife's delight when he came home and told her about it, but said "Of course I told them there was a stove in the apartment."

"To think they let some things live, but shot Lincoln," she said.

Flavor

is everything in breakfast oats

WHEN you find a person, especially a child, who "doesn't like oats," chances are they haven't tried the right kind.

Get Quaker Oats. Once you taste "Quaker" flavor, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years milling experience. No other oats approximates it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. Thus those who eat Quaker Oats find laxatives seldom needed. Combines protein, carbohydrates, vitamines and "bulk" in excellent proportions.

Costs the same as ordinary brands. You alone lose when you accept a substitute.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. Your grocer has it; also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

SHOWED WHAT STATE IS DOING IN FORESTRY

An instructive address by Austin F. Hawes, state forester, which was supplemented by remarks by Congressman Bronson, made a feature of much interest Monday night for the monthly meeting and supper of the United Church Brotherhood which was held at 6.30 at the Community house on Church street. An excellent menu was served by the Haviland class.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, president of the class, presided at a brief business meeting which followed the supper. Joseph A. French spoke of the test opening of the Norwich broadcasting station this (Tuesday) evening.

The address by State Forester Hawes was illustrated by a fine series of stereopticon views and motion pictures. In introducing the subject Mr. Hawes said that the element of time was one thing that operated to discourage private enterprise from the raising of trees and this seemed to be better conducted by state or national governments. This state has more than doubled its state owned forest area since the first of last July, following the policy that it is better to secure this land while it can be obtained cheap. The money for reforestation will be secured later. He spoke of the plan for the acquirement of the peoples forest, in which each donor of $8 is credited with buying one acre. In this way about 1,200 acres had been secured. A New Haven organization has sponsored the preservation of Mt. Carmel, in Watertown $20,000 has been collected in subscriptions for the Flat Rock tract, and a movement has been started to interest the American Legion in state forests. There are innumerable opportunities in the state he said for the acquirement of state and town forests.

BEGINS REPAIRS TO CITY MACADAM STREETS

Having received a portable tar kettle, which melts the tar with an oil burner and sprays it onto the street under pressure through a hose, Street Commissioner John C. TWO ADDRESSES BY NEUROPSYCHIATRIC EXPERT

Dr. Lloyd Thompson who is "in charge of the New Haven neuropsychiatric clinic conducted by the Connecticut society for mental hygiene, gave two interesting talks here Friday afternoon, speaking at Slater hall annex for the Norwich neuropsychiatric clinic upon the topic, "The Emotional Life of the Child," and at the United Workers' house for the social workers' round table, when his subject was "Parents of Problem Children."

He first pointed out that all children are problems and quoted from various authorities to show that it is generally felt that the cause is with the parents rather than the children.

He recently has made a study of 50 problem children who have passed through the New Haven Neuropsychiatric Clinic or been seen by him privately. In analysing the cause of the children's difficulties he found that the chief factor was over-solicitousness on the part of the parents. Neglect was not a factor. There were 21 children in the group of 50 who showed definite delinquent tendencies, that is, lied, stole, ran away, etc. In 12 of these cases either the mother or the father was suffering from a definite nervous disorder. In 6 cases there was marked over-anxiety on the part of the parents. In 7 cases either the father or mother was of the domineering type—over strict. There were 18 children who belonged to hypochrondrical group of problem, that is, children who complain of sickness to stomach, headache, are unable to sleep, etc. In 17 of these cases it was found that one or the other of the parents was a nervous invalid. As to cause of nervousness in the mother, Dr. Thompson stated that frequently with the first and only child the mother is fearful lest she may not do the right things in bringing up the child and so becomes over-solicitous which is more harmful to the child than moderate neglect.

He also told of some studies made by Dr. Myrtelle M. Canavan of Boston. In the first study of 148 families in which parents were considered to be normal there were 581 children. Only 12 of these children were "nervous" and only 8 were found to have conduct disorders. In the second study Dr. Canavan analyzed 136 families in which either the father or mother had been diagnosed dementia praecox, one of the most serious forms of mental disease, but even so, the total number of problem children in this group is comparatively slight in that only 48 children out of 463 were problems. The conclusion drawn is that heredity does not play a particularly important part but rather that "nervous" parents expect and so make nervous children and are also responsible for the development of various conduct disorders. Dr. Thompson illustrated his points with a number of case stories. In practically every case one of the parents was in need of treatment by a nerve specialist or psychiatrist. He stated that if things cannot be changed in the home, the child's environment should be changed, and pointed out the great need for more places where problem children might be sent for a period of training where they would be understood, such as the Children's community center, New Haven and New England Home for Little Wanderers in Boston.

Dr. Thompson recommended two books for parents, teachers and others interested in children—namely, Professor Overstreet's "Influencing Human Behavior" which is published by the People's Institute, New York city, and "Concerning Parents," published by the New Republic, New York city.

Upon the subject of The Emotional Life of the Child, he spoke in detail of the three fundamental emotions, fear, anger and love. He showed how adults unwittingly suggest harmful fears to children, the infant having only two fundamental fears, loud noises and lack of support. All other fears are caused by association or suggestion. As to anger, the child must, of course, be trained not to do certain things but it is not enough merely to stop him. His normal activity must be guided into safe channels. Parents must keep a step ahead, leading the child on to new interests which will replace those of which he has been deprived. Then, he will not suffer from a sense of being thwarted.

As to the love emotion, Dr. Thompson advised the parents should not absorb their children's affection, but allow them to form normal attachments outside the family circle. Outside interests are of the utmost importance, both to the parents and the children.

INCREASED APPROPRIATION FAVORED FOR NORWICH TREES

At a recent meeting of the committee on trees of the Norwich chamber of commerce of which Arthur L. Peare is chairman, there were present Mayor Waters, Street Commissioner Donovan and Henry Gilbert, tree expert, of Danielson.

There was a discussion of the condition of the city trees and the possibility of the adoption by the city of a tree ordinance. Consideration was given to the way in which other cities deal with this matter and it was brought out that the expenditures last year amounted to $2,500 for the cutting, trimming, spraying of trees and the cutting of grass. The importance of dealing with the trees at the proper time and with the proper equipment was emphasized.

As the result of the meeting it was decided to ask the city for an appropriation of $4,000 for the coming year to take care of the diseased trees, spray the trees and in fact do what is required for the preservation of the city trees and such other work as heretofore been done under that appropriation

In the past the city has paid $50 for the cutting down of a tree, and it was stated at the meeting that frequently old and beautiful trees have been removed at an expense greater than would have been necessary to have preserved them and permitted them to have graced the city streets for 50 to 100 years longer without being a menace.

Mr. Gilbert, as a tree expert, has done considerable work in spraying trees in this city.

FIRST TEST TO BE MADE TONIGHT OF NORWICH BROADCASTING STATION

Norwich broadcasting station, WCBR will commence to go on the air at 7.45 p. m. this (Tuesday) evening, with the following interesting programme: His Honor, Mayor Waters, will officially open the station at 7.45, followed by an excellent musical concert to be rendered by Thumm's orchestra of Norwich. The concert will include a saxophone solo by Fred Freeman, a trumpet solo by Ray Woods, who will, in addition, please the listeners with a vocal solo.

Locally, the best results will be obtained on a 209.7 meter wave. It is suegested that all local listeners disconnect their antenna as none will be required. Should the reception become unsatisfactory, a ten foot insulated wire, attached in place of the antenna, and thrown on the floor, will produce good results.

The operation of the local station, W. C. B. R. is under the personal direction of Charles H. Messter, who is a regularly licensed operator. The station is 100 watt, with 2-50 watt oscillators, 2-50 watt modulators, and has a 50 watt speech amplifier. Mr. Messter personally owns the equipment, operates it, and serves as the announcer.

The broadcasting equipment is located on the top floor of the Thayer building, and the studio is in the Hanover-Curland company's store. This local broadcasting test is made possible through the co-operation of the Norwich Gas and Electric department, the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., the Wauregan Hotel management, the agent of the Thayer building, John A. Cunningham, and the Hanover-Curland Co. The result of this experiment will be awaited with interest by those who believe that a permanent station should be maintained in Norwich.

For some months past a committee of the chamber of commerce has given study and investigation to the question of a local station. On January 28th this committee held a conference with W. G. Cowles, vice president in charge of broadcasting for the Travelers Insurance Co., of Hartford, for the purpose of getting information concerning the cost of installation and actual maintenance of equipment and studio. The present test will prove the strength of the local sentiment for a permanent station. Mr. Messter was engaged for one week by the Hislop Co., of New London. His engagement was extended to three weeks and he has a return engagement awaiting him in our neighboring city. Bridgeport and Waterbury are also seeking his services.

For the present, at least, there will be no local speeches made from Norwich, W. C. B. R., but an effort will be made to provide good musical programmes each day. These programmes will be announced daily. Those who may wish to take programmes can do so by communicating with W C B R, Chamber of Commerce; or by phone or telegraph to the Hanover-Curland Co.

There is no permanent broadcasting station in eastern Connecticut. There is no doubt as to the advertising value, to the community, of such a station. The question to be decided by this test is whether or not there is any real sentiment in Norwich for the installation and maintenance of a permanent broadcasting unit. All communications concerning this experiment and they are invited, should be sent to the chamber of commerce; all telephones and telegrams will be received by the Hanover-Curland Co.

The chamber of commerce committee which has this project in charge consists of E. A. Rich, J. A. French, Harold Robbins, Jean Kieffer and C. W Taggart.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS GIVE THEATRICAL PERFORMANCE

A near capacity house heartily applauded the players who appeared in a four act comedy, A Couple of Million, at the Broadway theatre Monday evening, under the auspices of Mercier Assembly No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus and White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus. The production was most favorably received by the delighted audience, the players furnishing two hours and three quarters of rare entertainment, interspersed with comedy in plenty.

An all local talent cast staged the comedy and the success attained by their efforts made it one of the finest productions ever given in amateur circles in this city. In fact, A Couple of Million ranked high with professional road companies seen on the stage today. The players showed the effect of careful and painstaking coaching and all entered heartily into the spirit of the play seeming to enjoy acting as much as the audience enjoyed the play itself.

The story was a delightful one, portraying the successful efforts of Bemis Bennington to fulfill the requirements of his uncle's will in order to inherit a fortune of $2,000,000. The requirements were that he should live for one year in a town of less than 5,000 population, earn $5,000 by his own efforts during the year and marry within six months from the time the will was read. The role of Bemis Bennington was carried by Clarence J. Brewer in professional style. Mr Brewer demonstrated exceptional ability as a typical young American heir who refused to give up the fight inspite of overwhelming odds and disappointments. Needless to say he earned the $5,000, the $2,000,000 fortune and won a charming bride in the bargain. Fay Fairbanks, a beautiful southern girl.

The role of Miss Fairbanks was splendidly carried by Miss Marie A Desmond. Of course there was as usual a grasping, crafty fortune hunter in the person of one Prof. Noah Jabb, who tried by means fair and foul to prevent Bemis from fulfilling the terms of the will so that the money would come into his hands. Henry F. Powers appeared to advantage in the role of this sleek, oily tongued rascal.

The role of Fay's widowed aunt, Mrs Clarice Courtenay was well taken by Mrs. James J. Dutton. Fay's aunt was looking for a husband and settled her heart on Bemis but it was not to be so, as developments turned out. However, she did secure a husband in the person of the Hon. Jeremy Wise, a New York lawyer. Joseph R. Portelance, Jr., appearing in the latter role. Mr. Portelance was a splendid selection for the part of the suggestful and portly New York barrister.

Daniel O'Brien as James Patrick Burns, otherwise known as Stubby and Miss Mary E. Hamill in the role of Genevieve McGully, a "fresh" model stenographer, furnished a good part of the comedy in the play. The office scene in the opening act was especially funny and brought down the house as Stubby, the office boy and Genevieve engaged in verbal tilts in real, big city slang style.

Miss Mary F. Weller, took the role of Sammie Bell Porter, a southern village belle who fell in love with Stubby, a bashful lover. Stubby was afraid of nothing but "girls" but he finally overcame his bashfulness. Miss Weller carried the role of the southern village girl in a very commendable manner.

Jeremiah E. Sweeney made an ideal village sheriff, appearing as Beverly Loman, the sheriff and William P. Ward was a happy selection for Squire Piper, a checker enthusiast. Miss Anna M. Carroll brought down the house in her role of Pink, the colored girl servant in the Courtenay household.

The cast was as follows:

Hon Jeremy Wise, a New York lawyer
Joseph R. Portelance, Jr.
James Patrick Burns, otherwise known as "Stubby" Daniel O'Brien
Genevieve McGully, a "fresh skirt"
Miss Mary E. Hamill
Prof. Noah Jabb, of Opaloopa, Ala.
Henry F. Powers
Bemis Bennington, some "boy"
Clarence J. Brewer
Mrs. Clarice Courtenay, a rich widow
Mrs. James J. Dutton
Fay Fairbanks, Mrs. Courtenay's niece
Miss Marie A. Desmond
Squire Piper, likes to play checkers
William P. Ward
Beverly Loman, the sheriff
Jeremiah E. Sweeney
Pink, a tip hunter
Miss Marie A. Desmond
Sammie Bell Porter, one of Opaloopa's fairest
Miss Mary F. Weller
(Hill Billies)—Frank Powers, Russell Aldrich, William Dynon, James Fitzpatrick.

HORSE IS BURNED IN CRESCENT BEACH BARN

Damages estimated at between $2,500 and $3,000 was wrought by fire of unknown origin shortly after 1 o'clock Monday morning when a barn at Crescent Beach, Niantic, owned by the St. Vincent de Paul society of Hartford, burned to the ground, causing the death of one horse. A small amount of insurance is understood to be carried on the barn.

The fire was discovered by neighbors. A call was sent to Niantic and the department of that city sent two pieces of apparatus to the scene. The pumper and chemical were at the barn in a short time, but the structure was practically destroyed. The firemen did efficient service in saving further loss by turning their attention to nearby structures.

A horse belonging to Fred Burnap of Crescent Beach was burned and a small quantity of hay and some farm implements were lost in the flames.

FUNERALS

Thomas F. Shea

Monday morning at 9:00, the funeral of Thomas Francis Shea was held from his home, 77 Church street. Attending were relatives and friends from Hartford, Windsor Locks, Canterbury, Jewett City, Meriden, Versailles, Providence, Brooklyn and Hempstead, L. I., Watertown, N. Y., New Haven, New York city, Philadelphia, New London and Plainfield.

At 10 o'clock, in St. Patrick's church, solemn requiem mass was sung by Mr. Shea's cousin, Rev. Daniel J. O'Reilly, from Keeseville, N. Y. At the church, a delegation of forty members of White Cross council, K. of C. stood in open ranks, through which the casket was borne by six classmates of Mr. Shea at Holy Cross, these were Edward L. Kelly, Bridgeport, secretary to Gov. John H. Trumbull, William A. Heaphy, Lee, Mass., Edmond L. Garvey, Springfield, James B. Murphy, Chicopee Falls, William Shea, Worcester, and Thomas F. Fitzsimmons, New Haven.

The pews on either side of the center aisle were reserved for the mourners, the Knights of Columbus, members of Rev. Daniel Mullin, assembly, Fourth Degree, delegations from St. Mary's T. A. & B. society, Holy Name society, Ladies of Columbus and other organizations. Prominent members of the Knights of Columbus attending included J. J. Collins, state advocate, J. D. Hanney, district deputy, M. J. Sullivan, and P. F. Day past district deputies.

A delegation from the Holy Cross Undergraduate club, Norwich, comprised Edward J. Sullivan, Eugene O Sullivan, Edmund Fanning, James T. Sullivan and John J. Bannan.

Among the clergymen who came to Norwich for the funeral was Rev. Aloysius O'Laughlin, Philadelphia, the noted missionary preacher of the Order of the Holy Ghost.

At the Church, the ushers were John P. Corcoran and John R. Tarrant. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine played as the processional a funeral march by Gaul.

Assisting Rev. Father D. J. O'Reilly in the mass was his brother, Rev. P. J. O'Reilly, of Canaan, Conn., deacon, cousin of Mr. Shea, Rev. John X Pyne, S. J., of Fordham university, Mr. Shea's professor at Holy Cross, who was subdeacon Rt. Rev. Monsignor M. H. May was in the sanctuary occupying his throne and Rev. John Walsh, Bridgeport and Rev. Thomas Dillon Lenox, Mass, were acolytes, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, was master of ceremonies and Rev. John J. Reilly, thurifer.

Other priests in the sanctuary included Rev. William A. Keefe, Norwich, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, Taftville, Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault, Occum, Rev. John C. Manahan, Wauregan, Rev. John J. McCabe, Rev. John Lanahy, Jewett City, Rev. James A. O'Meara, Montville, Rev. Edward Mortissey, Plainfield Rev. Nicholas O'Laughlin Philadelphia, and Rev. Raymond Kennedy, Hartford.

Assisting at the mass were four members of Troop 5, Boy Scouts, of which Mr. Shea was troop committee chairman: James J. Casey, Patrick Faulkner, Henry Matthews and John Enright.

Rev. Thomas Dillon, of Lenox and Rev. Raymond Kennedy, of Hartford were college classmates of Mr. Shea.

The regular Gregorian mass was sung by a male chorus of 16 voices, with Roderick F. Sullivan carrying the solo portions. De Profundis was sung by Frank R. Murdy. The recessional was instrumental, Mr. LaFontaine employing the chimes most impressively, as he did also in one of the interludes, when he played softly "Abide With Me."

Rev Father D. J. O'Reilly gave the final absolution, concluding which Rev. John J. Reilly read the epistle of the mass, the gospel and the prayers.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Monsignor May read the committal service. Rev. Father Bellerose led in chanting Benedictus, the priests responding being Fathers Daniel J. and Patrick J. O'Reilly, Pyne, Keefe, McCabe, Matthieu, Kennedy, Dillon, Walsh, Lanahy, Galvin and Reilly.

While a great number of the choice floral forms was taken to the cemetery, the parents and widow of Mr. Shea arranged to have others of the baskets and emblems sent to the church and the convent chapel.

In charge of the funeral arrangements was Frank J. Smith, of New Haven, president of the Connecticut Funeral Directors' association. Others from that organization attending were Isaac E. Booth, secretary, Hugh A. Keenan, past president and Herman Sidell, all of New Haven; M. A. Clancy, Branford, Louis A. Kennedy, Danielson, Eugene Hickey, Willimantic, Thomas Neilan, New London, A. F. Lenihan, New Haven and Bernard F. Burke, Waterbury.

Indicating their friendly sympathy, all the local undertakers assisted in the arrangements. The same effort to aid and comfort the sorrowing family was shown by friends and acquaintances far and near.

Through the thoughtfulness of Chief George Linton, Officer Henry Davis was placed in charge of traffic through Church street, while the funeral cortege was forming.

Throughout Monday, telegrams and messages continued to reach the bereaved relatives; among those received during the afternoon was an expression of condolence from William J. Mulligan, state deputy, K. of C. of Thompsonville, also from a former Norwich resident, Timothy J. Falvey, president of the Massachusetts Bonding company, Boston.

Mrs. Edward McNerny

At 8.15 o'clock Monday morning the funeral of Mrs. Edward McNerny was held from her late home, No. 247 North Main street with a large attendance of relatives and friends. At 9 o'clock a requiem mass was held in St. Mary's Memorial church, Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian celebrant, Mrs. William Murphy presided at the organ. At the offertory Edward T. Connelly sang Pie Jesu. Face to Face as the waiting hymn and Lead, Kindly Light as the recessional hymn. The bearers were Ernest, Edward, Frank and James McNerny, Joseph Mucken and Joseph Scott and burial took place in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Father Cohoian read a committal service at the grave. There was a profusion of beautiful floral forms. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Imogene A. Cash

The funeral of Miss Imogene A. Cash was held Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the parlors of Undertakers Church and Allen, Main street. During the funeral service the Otis library, of which Miss Cash had been librarian for years, was closed. Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, conducted the funeral service. Friends acted as bearers and burial took place in Yantic cemetery, Rev. Mr. Brown reading the committal service. There were many beautiful floral forms.

P. August Peterson

The funeral of P. August Peterson was held from his home, No. 448 Boswell avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. H. L. Johnson of Bristol, former pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, this city, conducted the service. The bearers were Ernest Peterson, Charles Johnson, George Johnson and Fred Johnson and burial took place in Yantic cemetery. Rev. Mr. Johnson conducted the committal service at the grave. There were many beautiful floral tributes of esteem. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Not a Laxative

"The continued use of laxatives and cathartics only aggravates constipation," says a prominent medical authority.

Nujol is an internal lubricant, not a laxative, so cannot gripe. Take Nujol regularly and you will prevent the absorption into the blood of poisons from the constipated bowel.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS GET AWAY ON PENNANT CHASE THIS AFTERNOON

(By The Associated Press.)

Armed for battles such as they seldom have had before, baseball's major league hosts gathered tonight on the ramparts, ready to enter the opening frays tomorrow and fight it out on the base-lines all summer.

Close to a quarter of a million interested bystanders are expected to see these warring forces of the sixteen National and American League clubs come to the grips in arenas which likely will witness an unusually spectacular contest for individual honors in the midst of close and exciting struggles for team supremacy.

The eve of the 1926 campaign finds the war correspondents agreed that it will be a fight to the finish on both fronts but they differ widely when it comes to predicting the battalions that will hold the flags of victory aloft after the smoke of battle clears.

However strongly the World's Champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Washington Senators, American League title-holders, may have been entrenched last fall, observers now see a decided menace to the positions of both in the strength of rival forces.

So far as the National League is concerned, these critics believe that it will take all of Pittsburgh's confidence, resourcefulness and attacking power to stand off the challenge of the New York Giants, led by that seasoned campaigner, John McGraw, or the sensational drive of the St. Louis Cardinal shock troops, inspired by their mighty chieftain, Rogers Hornsby. These three are picked to fight it out for major league honors but the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves both figure as front-line factors with outside chances of upsetting the advance "dope."

In the American League sector, the Senators, seeking their third straight pennant, face even greater odds with no less than five clubs conceded to have prospects of carrying off the main prize. Connie Mack's Athletics loom as the most formidable contenders to most observers but Yankee hopes, dismal a month ago, have rebounded under the impetus of an astonishing batting spree, while partisans of the White Sox, St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers figure these entries also in the thick of the fight.

The champion in both leagues will be put to severe tests from the start for the Pirates, handicapped somewhat by training injuries, invade the stronghold of the Cardinals at St. Louis for opening day, while Washington defends the attack of the Athletics at the National Capital.

In sizing up the rival contenders on the basis of a concensus among baseball writers these features stand out in the make-up of the rival clans:

American League.

Washington—Standing pat on veterans, with two additions in Joe Bush and Johnny Tobin; Buddy Myer primed to replace Roger Peckinpaugh at shortstop.

Athletics—All-around strength, seasoned by experience as 1925 runners-up; Joe Hauser back at first base and Walter French replacing Bing Miller in outfield.

Yankees—Terrific hitting array, including new keystone combination in Lazzeri and Koenig; Ruth's comeback an important team factor; veteran pitching strength.

Browns—Hard-hitting outfield, crops of young pitching stars and brilliant leadership by George Sisler.

White Sox—Well-balanced club with strong pitching staff and Veteran Everett Scott as rescue man at shortstop.

Tigers — Reconstructed infield, including new keystone combination in Gehringer and Tavener; powerful attack but uncertain pitching staff.

Indians—1925 line-up substantially intact with chief hopes based on the pitching come-backs by Uhle and Shaute.

Red Sox—Experiments in nearly every department with capable hurlers in Ehmke, Ruffing and Wingfield.

National League.

Pirates—World's championship line-up intact and confident; more reserve strength, including Rhyne, infielder, and Warner, outfielder, ex-Coast League stars.

Giants—Bolstered by addition of Tyson to outfield and Ring to hurling corps which McGraw regards as best in many years; Jackson's and Groh's "trick" knees uncertain factors but good reserves available.

Reds—Quartet of veteran pitching stars in Mays, Donohue, Rixey and Luque, with Wally Pipp, plugging first base gap and Christensen added to outfield.

Cardinals—Heavy artillery, headed by Manager Rogers Hornsby and Jim Bottomley; formidable pitching corps; team on up-grade.

Braves — Brilliant young pitching staff; aggressive attack led by Manager Dave Bancroft but batting punch problematical.

Brooklyn—Pitching aces in Vance, Jess Barnes and Grimes, heavy sluggers led by Fournier and Wheat but handicapped by lack of speed and infield weaknesses.

Cubs—Last place outfit of 1925 shaken up by new manager, Joe McCarthy, with Veteran Alexander, the ace of pitching staff.

Phillies — Pitching uncertain but powerful on attack with infield strengthened by Bentley at first and improvement of Huber at third.

Umpires.

Umpire assignments for the opening games in the National League, announced today by President John A. Heydler, follow:

At New York—Klem and Hart.

At Philadelphia — Rigler, McCormick and McLaughlin.

At St. Louis—O'Day, Riordan and Pfirman.

At Cincinnati—Quigley, Moran and Sweeney.

President Ban Johnson of the American league tonight assigned umpires for the opening games tomorrow as follows:

Rowland, Hilderbrand and Moriarty, Chicago; Owens, Ormsby and Evans, Detroit; Geisel, Connolly and Nallin, Washington; McGowan and Dineen at Boston.

President Johnson, because of a foot infection, will be unable to attend the opening.

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—Hans Steinke, German heavyweight wrestler recently issued a challenge to Stanislaus Zbyszko, Polish star, to [illegible] 40 seconds, with a half and body hold.

BRIDGEPORT CLUB SOLD TO BRIDGEPORT SYNDICATE

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., April 12.—(AP)—Sales of the Bridgeport baseball club of the eastern league to a syndicate of Bridgeport men headed by D S Hill and Dever Warner was ratified this afternoon by the league directors at their last meeting before the opening the season Wednesday, April 21.

One of the terms of the sale was that the Bridgeport backers of the club secure as manager Frank Stapleton, first sacker with the Waterbury team, first is a Bridgeport player. No difficulty in securing his release is expected. Stapleton started last season as manager of the Pittsfield Hillies after four years as first baseman with that club, and was traded in mid-season to Waterbury.

The directors announced May 20 as "cutting down day," when all squads may have no more than 16 players.

President Dan O'Neil submitted a list of umpires which was approved. The names of the officials will not be announced until next week, probably Tuesday, when President O'Neil will meet with them and give opening day assignments.

PHIL BUNNELL IS CHOSEN CAPTAIN OF YALE SWIMMERS

NEW HAVEN, April 12.—(AP)—Phillip W. Bunnell, already elected to captain the Yale football team next fall, was chosen tonight as captain of the Yale swimming team next year. Bunnell, whose home is in Scranton, Pa., has been a prominent figure in Yale athletics for three years.

Bunnell was the regular quarterback on the Yale football team last year and for the greater part of the season before. In his freshman year besides being field general of his class football team, he was captain of the swimming team.

Last year he was a member of the relay swimming team which set new worlds records for the 200, 250 and 100-yard distances. Later these records were broken by other teams but were regained by a Yale combination of which Bunnell was a member this year.

Bunnell prepared for Yale at the Mercersburg academy where he was prominent in football and swimming.

David L. Graham, of Philadelphia was elected captain of the water polo team and Samuel R. Damon, of Honolulu, assistant manager of both teams.

PRES. COOLIDGE GIVEN AN ENGRAVED PASS TO GAMES

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—An engraved season pass, in an initialed Morocco folder, to the American league baseball games here was given President Coolidge today by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club. A similar pass has been mailed to Mrs. Coolidge from Ban Johnson, president of the league.

Griffith told the president that Washington was going to win the pennant again this year, and Mr. Coolidge said he was looking forward to attending some games.

He will not attend the opening game with Philadelphia tomorrow because of the recent death of his father. Vice-President Dawes has agreed to toss out the first ball.

FIRPO TO QUIT BUSINESS FOR THE RING AGAIN

BUENOS AIRES, April 10.—(AP)—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, announced today he has decided to liquidate immediately all his interests in an automobile agency here and to devote his entire time again to a career in the ring.

The Argentine heavyweight attributed his poor showing in his recent bout with Erminio Spalla, whom he defeated on points in a disappointing exhibition, to overweight and lack of training. He asserted he is now training hard and expects to scale down to 215 pounds within 60 days, after which he plans to sail to the United States first going to England.

KEARNS TO START CAMPAIGNING WITH DORVAL

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP)—Jack Kearns, with Napoleon Dorval in tow, left today for New York where Dorval will begin training in a month for an eastern campaign which Kearns hopes will wind up with a match with Harry Wills.

Kearns believes his newest heavyweight protege, who stands six feet one inch, is the best prospect he has ever seen, not excepting Jack Dempsey.

Dorval, a Pennsylvania product, was forced to lay off a year due to a pair of poor hands, one of which was broken.

ATHLETICS WILL START WITH CRIPPLED TEAM

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics left tonight for Washington, where they open the American league baseball season tomorrow with two regular players on the injured list.

Bill Lamar, leftfielder, has a badly mashed finger on his throwing hand, and may not get into the opening game. He tried to dodge a foul tip during batting practice today, but it struck him on the hand.

Joe Hauser, slated to play first, caught a severe cold which settled in his neck. When he boarded the train for Washington he was unable to turn his head.

NATION'S LAWNMAKERS WILL SEE SENATOR'S START SEASON

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—United States Senators will take time out tomorrow to see the "Senators" inaugurate the American league baseball season in Washington.

An agreement to recess at 2 p. m. was reached late today in order that Vice President Dawes, the Senate's presiding officer, might throw out the first ball in the contest between the American league champions and the 1925 runners-up—the Philadelphia Athletics. The senate will meet one hour earlier than usual and quit three hours before the customary adjournment hour.

FIRPO APPEARS IN MOVIE ROLE OF COWBOY

BUENOS AIRES, April 12.—(AP)—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight pugilist, saw himself on the silver screen tonight in a motion picture which had its premier in the Buenos Aires theatre, entitled "The Return of the Wild Bull."

The scenario was written by a North American and the scenes are laid in the Argentine pampas and in Buenos Aires, with Firpo in the leading role of "gaucher," or cowboy.

YALE APPOINTS OFFICIALS FOR FIRST TWO RACES

NEW HAVEN, April 12.—(AP)—The Yale Athletic association, through R. N. Jessop, manager of the crew, announced today the selection of officials for the first two races on Yale's 1926 rowing schedule.

Robert Herrick, of Harvard, will referee the triangular regatta between Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania on the Housatonic river on May 8.

Maxwell Stevenson, of Columbia, will be the referee at the race between the varsity 150-pound crews of Yale and M. I. T. at Derby, on May 1. This race will be over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths while the triangular regatta will be over the two mile course.

BERMUDA PLANNING GREETINGS FOR NEW LONDON YACHTS

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 12.—(AP)—Announcement from New London, Conn., that already 21 entries has been received for the New London Bermuda yacht races to be held in June has aroused interest in yachting circles in Bermuda and plans for the usual entertainment at this end of the race are being discussed.

Interest in yacht racing in Bermuda has been revived during the past few months, as is shown by a petition recently presented to the house of assembly asking that two one-design yachts be admitted to Bermuda free of duty. It was pointed out in the petition that yacht racing interest had declined and that the importance of these yachts is an effort to restore it.

EASTERN LEAGUERS BEAT YALE IN EXHIBITION

NEW HAVEN, April 12—(AP)—The New Haven Eastern league team defeated Yale 7 to 5 here this afternoon. Sammy Scott, who pitched the final three innings for Yale, retired the professionals without a safe hit. Krausen played brilliantly at shortstop for the Eastern league club.

Score by innings:

New Haven	0	2	2	0	0	1	0	0	7	6	3
Yale	1	0	1	0	2	0	0	1	0	5	5

Woodward, Smith, Lerian and Berger; Shoop, Holabird, Scott, Barclay and Foote.

SQUAD OF 57 CANDIDATES FOR YALE FOOTBALL

NEW HAVEN, April 12—(AP)—Fifty-seven candidates reported today for spring practice for the Yale football team. Coach T. A. D. Jones ordered a light drill consisting chiefly of kicking and dummy practice. The men reporting included many members of last year's varsity, among them Captain-elect Phil W. Bunnell, of Scranton, Pa. Several members from last fall's freshman eleven also were present.

The spring practice will continue for several weeks but will consist mainly of light work. Scrimmage will be left off the program until fall.

MICHELSON ENTERS FOR BOSTON MARATHON CLASSIC

BOSTON, April 12—(AP)—The entry of Albert Michelson of the Cygnet A. C., Portchester, N. Y., was received today for the 30th renewal of the Boston Athletic association marathon, April 19. Michelson, who is national 15 mile champion, finished fourth in the 26 mile grind from Hopkinton to Boston last year.

New entries received today brought the total list to 83 with the event still a week away.

WEATHER MAN SAYS CHILL WEATHER TODAY

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—Snappy weather, more suited to football than baseball, is expected to prevail, or the opening major league games tomorrow, despite general predictions of clear skies and rising temperatures.

Thermometers in the eight cities where getaway contests occur registered an average of approximately 32 degrees early today. The edge may be taken off the cold snap by the time the teams line up but fur coats will be more popular than shirt sleeves.

FRENCH TEAM LEADS BERLIN BIKE RIDERS

BERLIN, April 12.—(AP)—The French team of Sergent and Louet was still in the lead at the end of the 9th hour of the six-day bicycle race. This team has covered 1,554 miles and has 24 points.

The German team of Mock-Miethe is second, 36 points. Beccman and Eattn, the American riders, one lap behind, have 155 points, and are in third place.

Marrullo Kayoes Stone

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—(AP)—Tony Marrullo of New Orleans, knocked out Ad Stone, Philadelphia, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight here tonight. They are light heavyweights.

Marrullo dropped Stone for the count of two in the first round, and during that session landed har and often, and was almost out when the bell sounded. A left to the jaw and a heavy right to the body sent Stone down for a count of seven in the second, and a moment later dropped him again with a right to the jaw. A towel fluttered into the ring as Stone was being counted out.

SUSIE DROPS POLITICS TO TAKE UP THE GREAT NATIONAL GAME

Susie has withdrawn from politics and is now to take up baseball as her pastime for the spring months. Her first game was the Academy-Alumni slaughter which she and the boy friend attended. Her description of the game follows:

Dear Ed:

Now that spring has come my interest is offa politics and has lit on baseball. There ain't nothing in politics compared to baseball and the only things what you find in both of 'em is stealin', base stealin' and some other kind of stealin' in politics. A nother thing what disgusted me with politics is the women who holler a lot 'bout what aughta be done and what not and how's they is gonna vote for me but I ain't gotta single vote from the women yet. So's I'm gonna quit and ain't gonna play no more and the po' is declared closed. The winner was Yip Lee who beat out Abie in the last week cause a lotta folks what voted for Abie writ in and said cancel their votes and givem to Yip 'cause they thought Abie was lookin' for business and not for the good of the city. So's that's that.

Yep from now on I'se gonna spend my Saturday afternoon's round the ball games 'cause that's one sport what I knows somethin' 'bout. 'Course I don't know nothin' 'bout the insides of baseball but I like to watch them fellers hit the ball an' run. Me and the boy friend took in that Academy-Aluminum game last Saturday and I gotta great kick outa it. Them kids what's gettin' a edication and playin' baseball has got some classy outfit when it comes to the grand old game. In that game Saturday them kids made those old has-beens look like a second hand calendar they was so outta date. Can you imagine buncha kids what ain't hardly old enought to be out after dark beatin' a gang of fellers what's been to college or what would like to go by a score of 18 to 2. Gosh ain't it awful.

Them Aluminum fellers had that good lookin' Stanley feller playin with 'em but he ain't no bargain no matter if he did getta lotta free advertisin' last year when he was at college. All he did was nothin' to cheer bout and that Greene feller what plays for the Academys ain't so green as his name 'cause he most caught Stanley slumberin' on first base.

Then there was that Whitney kid what's a perfessor up at the school he wasn't so bad bein' some of them fellers on that tin ware team. Gosh he did hit the ball a couple times instead of strikin' out like Mr. Stanley. After seein' them fellers play I think I'll get up a girls team and challenge them.

Them Academys is the berries all right, and if they don't clean up all the other school teams in the east it ain't no more of a profet than the feller they call the Cloud Digger. Course you know them fellers pretty well but that Jarvis boy is my man. I wonder if he can dance like he plays ball 'cause I'm a pretty good dancer myself. 'Course you don't need to say nothin' to him 'bout it but maybe you could fix so's I'd get a introduction some time.

They's lotta other nice fellers on that team too. Johnny Greene, for instance, and that cute little Hamil feller. Gosh I like to see that kid play and believe me although he ain't no bigger than a pint of cider he's gotta lotta baseball sense that ain't notable in some bigger fellers. You can tell the world that them Academys is real ball players and they ain't no dumbbells. I been goin' to a lotta ball games since me let me out alone and I ain't seen no faster school kids than them and believe me if the Norwich folks don't go to see 'em play them folks aughta be told about it.

Then there's a nother thing what I missed up at that game and that was the cheerin'. At all the other games what I been to at other schools there is always a lotta cheerin' and it sounds good. There aughta be enough school spirit and enough students to make a lotta noise at them games. The boy friend use to play on one of them teams and he says it helps the fellers what is playin' to know that the school is back of 'em. Look at the cheerin' what you hear at them college games ain't it grand? Seems to me that seein' how's the high school students is tryin' to copy the colleges in dressin' an' everything they oughta copy them in cheerin' at the ball games. Them Academys is well worth cheerin' for and I don't mean maybe.

Oh, by the way, the boy friend told me a good one about a feller by the name of Maxey what lives up top Fancy Corner, Taftville. Seems the feller bought a flivver coupe and didn't have no garage to keep it in so he gets a coupla piano boxes and builds hisself a coop to keep the coupe in. He measures the coupe so's the coop will fit it and he starts buildin'. He works like everything and bime by its done. Then he gets in his coupe to drive it into the garage and when he gets in it he finds he can't get outa the coupe 'cause the door to the coupe won't open, the walls of the garage being so close to the car. The only way he can use the garage is to back the car in and then crawl out through the windshield.

Speakin' of automobiles there's a nother one what I wanta tell you. You know that Risley fella what works in Madden's. Well he goes up to Colchester once in a while and he was tellin' a feller that he could go up in half a hour 'cause there weren't no sharp curves but it took him longer comin' back cause there was two sharp ones. Gosh, ain't that funny. seein' how's he goes on the same road comin' and goin'. Guess somebody must be spoofin' Charlie and bendin' that road all up after he gets to Colchester.

Well Ed, old dear, I gotta lav offa this letter now 'cause I got dishes to wash. Yours, as ever,

SUSIE

Muskalonge Wins at Bowie

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—Mrs. J. Rowan's Muskalonge won the fifth race, outstanding event on the Bowie card today, from MacBeth and Sun Rajah, covering the 6 1-2 furlongs in 1.21 4-5. Eyelash, General Cadoran and Catesby ran outside the money. A crowd of fair size attended despite the overcoat weather.

Miller to Lead Yale Matmen

NEW HAVEN, April 13.—(AP)—Burr C. Miller, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., a sophomore, was elected tonight to captain the Yale wrestling team next year. Miller, who had never been defeated on the mat, won the intercollegiate championship in the 158-pound class this year.

AGGIES OPEN SEASON AGAINST BROWN ON 21ST

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, April 11—With the opening baseball game of the season less than two weeks away, and the squad still working indoors, Connecticut aggie baseball is handicapped by the lack of outdoor practice. Brown will be met by the Aggies at Providence in the first contest of the year, and at the present time the situation is anything but promising for the Storrs nine.

Already handicapped by the graduation and withdrawal from college of the mainstays of the 1925 nine, Coach Dole now finds his work held up by lack of good playing surface. The squad has been working daily in Hawley armory, but out door work has been out of the question.

Last year at the time, the squad had played ten practice games on Gardner Dow field, and to date the team has yet to have a practice game. Saturday, with the coming of better weather, the freshmen were put to work in an effort to put the diamond in shape, and the team will probably have an outdoor workout Monday. Coach Dole would make no statement as to how his team would probably line up, as the lack of outside practice has made it impossible for him to get an accurate line on his men.

Of last year's nine, conceded to be the best Aggie ball club in years, only four men are available at the present time. They are Nanfeldt, relief pitcher; Gilbert, an outfielder and catcher; Makofski, who can play first base or the outfield, as well as take his turn in the box; and Schofield, who plays either second base or shortstop. There are no other candidates of varsity experience.

One lineup used by Dole in practice yesterday was Nanfeldt pitch; Gilbert catch; Kennedy first base; Yardsley second base; Allard third base; Schofield short stop; Makofski, Eddy and Ajello, outfielders.

Still another was Brooks pitch, Watson catch; Cummings first base, Horne second base; Kuhl third base; Johnson short stop; Daly, Hill and Williams outfield. Dole made many shifts from time to time, and not for several days yet will it be possible to get an inkling of what the probable starting lineup against Brown will be.

BOXING WAR ON BETWEEN RIVAL NEW YORK PROMOTERS

NEW YORK, April 13—(AP)—Rumblings of impending war among rival metropolitan boxing promoters seeking regular outdoor attractions were audible today when Tex Rickard notified the state athletic commission he was unable to sign Jack Delaney for a championship match with Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight king, at the Yankee Stadium, June 10, because of the "activities of other promoters."

Rickard, already holding Berlenbach's contract, appealed for aid in signing the challenger but the commission refuses the promoter's request and announced a "hands off" policy in what promises to be a keen battle for important matches here this summer.

Rickard said this was the first time in his long connection with boxing that he had found trouble bringing the challenger to terms after signing the champion.

Humbert J. Fugazy, with Ebbets field at his command, and Jimmy DeForest, with the Polo grounds, both have entered the field in quest of the match. Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager, has said he will accept the highest offer. This fan Reilly has cast his fortunes with Fugazy, who has matched Delaney for a bout with Ad Stone at Ebbets field, May 21.

Chic Suggs, New Bedford, Mass., negro, attempted to flle a challenge for a title match with Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., world's featherweight champion, but the board refused to accept it. Sugg's manager was notified that Kaplan has until June 18 before being forced into a match with his outstanding challenger.

Red Mason, of Pittsburgh, manager of Harry Greb, former world's middleweight champion, notified the board that he is ill in health and unable to answer a summons to give the commission his side of the controversy with Greb, involving the business relations between them.

Greb, last week, appealed to the commission to sever his relations with Mason, charging his manager with deception in signing him to a two-year renewal of his contract. Chairman Farley said Mason would be given a reasonable period in which to present his arguments.

Johnny Drew, Worcester, Mass., boxer was given 30 days to recover from illness which made it necessary for him to cancel an engagement here tonight.

KANSAS MUST DEFEND TITLE OR MEET TERRIS

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, N. Y., world's lightweight champion, must fight in defense of his title before June 7 or accept a challenge filed by Sid Terris New York lightweight, the state athletic commission ruled today in tabling the challenge until the champion's six months time limit expires.

Kansas won the title crown from Jimmy Goodrich, a fellow townsman, in a 15-round match at Buffalo, December 7, and under the boxing rules must defend it every six months. The commission refused to accept the challenge today, but intimated it would be given first consideration at the proper time.

Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., wrestler suspended recently when he refused to accept terms for a title match with Joe Stecher, claimant of the heavyweight title, was refused reinstatement until contracts for the match actually are signed. Paul Bowser, of Boston, manager of Malcewicz, applied for reinstatement, but was informed that he would be ineligible in this state until he had complied with the ruling of the board. While Stecher is not under suspension, the commission pointed out that it would refuse to permit him to wrestle in this state until he meets Malcewicz.

John O'Brien, manager of Ed Keeley, Bridgeport, Conn., heavyweight under suspension here at the request of the Connecticut board, applied for reinstatement but was informed he must make his peace with the Connecticut officials before the bars could be lowered in this state.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

One of the largest golf clubs in America is the Olympia Fields of Chicago, which has 1500 members on its roster.

The annual tournament for the amateur championship of the Canadian Golf Association will be held at Toronto the week of June 28.

Washington University, at St. Louis, is the latest of the prominent colleges to drop baseball from its list of major sports because of lack of interest in the game.

As a half a dozen or more cities in Kansas now boast public golf links it is proposed to organize a State association for the purpose of conducting an annual tournament to decide the public links championship.

A peculiar thing about soccer football in England, where the sport is as popular as baseball in America, is that no club seems ever able to win the first division championship in two successive seasons.

Chicago fight critics believe that in Shuffle Callahan the Windy City has one of the most promising youngsters now fighting in the lightweight division. Callahan certainly has been making an excellent showing in his recent bouts.

Miss Collett Silent On European Trip

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Miss Glenna Collett, National Women's Golf Champion, is practicing on Pinehurst links, and it has developed that her poor showing in Florida this season has been caused by cutting her putts, which is an old fault of the Providence girl. Miss Collett is still in doubt regarding her proposed European trip during the coming summer. She says that no matter what her decision may be no announcements will be made until the last moment.

WESTERLY

GUESTS IN UNIFORM IN WEDDING CONGREGATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 13—At the Immaculate Conception church in Westerly at 9.30 o'clock Monday morning Miss Georgianna Claire Hartley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B Hartley of Union street, Westerly and Joseph Francis Klemish, son of the late Stanislaus and Mrs. Veronica Klemish of 80 Meeting street, Anthony, R. I., were married. Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., solemnized the marriage and celebrated the nuptial mass which followed. The bride entered the church walking with her father and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man. During the ceremony Martin H. Spellman sang "O Lord Most Holy," by Cesar Franck and "O Sacred Heart," by Rev. J. F. Smith. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and representatives of the coast guard service, of which the bride's brother, Thomas is a member, the uniforms adding a touch of color to the assemblage. The wedding march and interludes were played by the organist, Mrs. Frank G. Ahern.

Miss Emelia Klemish, sister of the groom was bridesmaid and William J. Hartley, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Thomas L. Hartley and Manuel Macklin.

The bride wore white satin. Her bridal veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of blue georgette, beaded in rhinestones. She wore hat to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls and the bride's gift to the groom was a platinum watch chain. The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a string of La Tosca rosary beads. To his best man the groom presented a platinum watch chain, and to his ushers gold cuff links.

Following the ceremony at the church a breakfast was served to a large party of relatives and friends at the home of the bride's parents on Union street. Guests were present from New York and Boston, Worcester, Philadelphia and Providence. The bride received many gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Klemish left this afternoon by automobile for a trip through New England and upon their return will reside at 104 High street, and will be at home after May 15.

EX-SOLDIER'S WIDOW FOUND DEAD IN LONELY HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 13—Mrs. Ellen Cato, 76, was found dead yesterday afternoon at her home on the Woodville-Carolina road. She was the widow of Joseph Cato and had been living alone since the death of her husband on Jan. 29 1919. He was an English soldier, having served in the British army before coming to America. It was nearly 2 years ago that they settled on the little farm where both died.

The nearest neighbor, Mrs. William Brockway, was nearly a half mile distant. Sunday afternoon Mrs. Brockway called with milk and reading matter, but found the door locked and could get no response. She called assistance and an entrance was gained through a window.

A Dodge sedan with four occupants skidded in Westerly Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock when leaving the cement road and making the sharp turn at high speed toward Pleasant street when the state maintenance road ends. The bar bearing a Massachusetts plate turned over on its side, smashing the side windows and windfield and crashing in the top. The occupants, with the exception of the driver, who received a lame shoulder, escaped serious injury. A wrecking automobile righted the car and it proceeded about 5 a. m. to New York.

Workmen Monday removed brick from the north side of the main state armory building on Dixon street. It will be necessary to take down the battlements and brick to the capstones above the window before the rebuilding can be undertaken, where the wall is sound and tight.

Many Westerly Shriners, members of Palestine Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. of Providence, Henry F. Baldwin, illustrious potentate, attended the spring ceremonial and Past Potentates' Night, Monday evening at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet. The session began with a business meeting at 5 p. m. Dinner was served from 5:30 to 7, a concert being given by Palestine Temple band from 6 to 7, many of the retired members of the band playing with former bandmaster, Ill. George C. Bell, leader. The affair was also a testimonial to Ill. Clarence M. Dunbar, imperial Chief Rabban of the imperial council, the 52nd annual session of which will be held this year in Philadelphia, June 1, 2 and 3, with side trips to Atlantic City.

At 7:30 o'clock came the grand entrance, of past potentates in costume, escorted by the present officers. This was followed by a reception to the past potentates and imperial Chief Rabban Dunbar of Providence. This was followed by drill work by the Arab patrol, with A. Bailey, captain and Loyal leader, Joseph A. Peterson, commander. At 8:30 o'clock the First Section work was exemplified by the past potentates, with Joseph P. Burlingame as Illustrious potentate.

District Deputy James W McCormick, of Westerly, past grand knight of Narragansett council, No. 21, Knights of Columbus was toastmaster at the 41st anniversary banquet held Sunday afternoon in Mechanics hall on Broad street, when a turkey dinner was served to about 150 knights and their guests.

Following introductory remarks by Russell A. Lenihan, grand knight of Narragansett council, the speakers were: Francis B. Condon, member of the state legislature from Central Falls; Dr. Frank J. McCabe, state deputy of Rhode Island, of Providence, William C. Fox, mayor of New London; John W. Sweeney and Daniel H Morrisey of Warren.

Tenor songs were given by Martin H. Spellman, of Westerly, accompanied by Edward J. Butler.

In an address on "Catholic Place Names in American History," Mr. Condon spoke at some length on the achievements of Catholic pioneers of history who founded settlements in the early periods of American growth. He outlined the extent of the movement which led to the establishment of cities and sections bearing Catholic names.

Dr. McCabe followed with an outline of "The Origin and Development of the Order of Knights of Columbus," from its interstate to international growth. Tribute was paid to the early leaders of the order, who made possible the granting of the first charter to the Connecticut organization in May, 1[illegible]. "The order now has 75,000 members with 2,500 councils," Dr. McCabe said.

Mayor Fox of New London expressed the wish that organizations such as the Knights of Columbus would "exercise new political thought for the welfare of society," and pointed out that one of the most disastrous effects of present-day politics is a lack of attention to and concentrated effort regarding national problems.

In the concluding address of the entertainment, Mr. Morrissey on "The Great Liberator," spoke of the spirit and accomplishments of the noted Irish pioneer, Daniel O'Connell.

Members of the committee arranging the observance were: Marcus H. Driscoll, chairman; James H. Jessop, Joseph Delaney, James F. Gallagher, T. Maxwell Sullivan, Dr. P. McMahon, James McCormick, Eugene P. O'Neill and Andrew Pleau.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

WEIGHED ONLY 98 POUNDS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. Hirssimaa, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Wealth? It's a transient thing that brings its own cares.

Happiness? It's an elusive thing which we keep by giving-away.

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week, especially during the latter part of the week, considerable progress was made on local building projects. Several houses that had reached the plastering stage were brought well along as the plasterers started work on many of them. Other buildings were brought along at a good speed as the mild weather during the past few days has given the carpenters a chance to do a large amount of exterior work.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton six building permits were granted and several applications for new buildings were received. The permits were for garages and alterations to present frame buildings. The total valuation on the work outlined in the permits is approximately $3,-...

The permits issued are as follows:

To George Sadinsky to build addition to the garage owned by Mrs. Lena Silverman, on Spring street. The garage will be 8x10 feet and of frame construction.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, presided a morning worship at the First Congregational church, Sunday. There was no sermon; the hour was given up to Mrs. Briggs, who gave an intensely interesting address on The Contribution of Congregationalism to the Nation. The basis of her talk was the Washington church program. It was to be brought out the greater success in building a new church edifice for the parish of the First Congregational church, Washington, D. C. The present church is [illegible] and [illegible] its worshipers [illegible] are turned away each Sunday [illegible] inadequate seating capacity.

After a few introductory remarks by Rev. Mr. Bailey who strongly advocated the purpose which Mrs. Briggs was to explain. Mrs. Briggs outlined the project for widen the church has already contracted a million dollar site, and $[illegible] [illegible] National council of Congregational churches has made a request that Congregational churches and individuals co-operate. The apportionment for the Norwich Town church is $30. For this pledge cards were distributed. Individuals may take three years if necessary, to cover their contribution, or may make payment in lump sum if so desired.

The present First Church of Washington, which stands in the down town section, was poorly built in 1857, it has long been worn out. In January 1924, government engineers reported to be in dangerous condition; the cost of repairs ordered would be prohibitive and could they be made, then still would be an antiquated, inadequate building.

The overflowing congregations are due to the many hundreds of students coming for an education, who have flocked to Washington for positions in the government, as well as tourists and many others who have long been residents of Washington.

Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich and sons, Lewis and Mark Aldrich, for the past five years residents of Norwich Town, where Rev. Mr. Aldrich was pastor of the Methodist church, have moved recently to a location on West Main street. Rev. Mr. Aldrich has been attending the conference in South Manchester, at which it is expected he will be retired from active work in the ministry.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich has faithfully served for the past 36 years, having begun his ministerial career in the Methodist conference in 1890, at Bow, New Hampshire. From there he served at South Columbia and Landaff, N. H., also the following churches in Maine; Swan's Island, South West Harbor and Clinton. Coming to the New England Southern conference, Rev. Mr. Aldrich has filled pastorates as follows: Westport Point, Mass., in 1907; North Dighton church, Taunton, Mass. 1908-1910; Uncasville, Conn., 1911-1913; Attawaugan, 1914-1916; Jewett City, 1917-1920; Norwich Town, 1921-1926. Rev. Mr. Aldrich would have complet-

NEW ISSUE:

$360,000

The Garde Building

New London, Connecticut.

First Mortgage 6½% Coupon Bonds

Dated September 15, 1925. Maturing serially 1927 to 1935.

The Colonial Bond and Mortgage Company, Trustee.

Coupon bonds in denominations of $500 and $1,000. Principal and semi-annual interest payable at office of The Colonial Bond and Mortgage Company, New Haven, Conn. Interest coupons due March 15th and September 15th may be deposited with your bank for collection. Registerable as to principal. During first five years outstanding bonds are subject to redemption at 105; during last five years at 102, on any interest date at 30 days' notice. Tax exempt in Connecticut.

SECURITY: These bonds are the direct obligation of the owners of the property, The 325 State Street Corporation, Arthur S. Friend, President, and are secured by a first closed mortgage on land and building at 325 State St., New London, Conn., owned in fee simple together with all equipment. Mr. Friend is also President of The 70 College Street Corporation, owners of The Roger Sherman Building, New Haven, Connecticut.

PROPERTY: The land on which the Garde Building is located comprises over 18,000 square feet, located on the north side of State Street and extending back to Church Street, thus giving two street frontages to the property. This property is in the heart of the City of New London on the main business and shopping thoroughfare.

On this site is being erected a four-story, fire-proof commercial building and theatre, fronting on State Street. The ground floor will contain four stores; the upper three floors will be divided into 66 offices of varying sizes. At the rear of the commercial building there is being constructed a theater containing 1,500 seats and fully equipped for any standard performance. The owners plan to conduct this as a first-class motion picture theater.

VALUATION: The land was purchased by the owners for $130,000. The building will cost $478,000 and the theater equipment $45,000 additional. The total cost of the property securing this $360,000 issue of First Mortgage Coupon Bonds is $613,000. The loan, therefore, is only 56% of the cost value of the property, including the equipment.

INCOME: The net income from the Commercial Building and the theater, available for interest and amortization, is estimated at over $70,000 per annum. Since the maximum interest charge on these bonds is only $23,400, the income is well over three times the greatest annual interest requirement.

Women Tell

Others how this new hygienic pad discards easily as tissue — no laundry

BECAUSE one woman so advises others, and because doctors so urge, most women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new and better way.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

✓ Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

✓ Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

POETRY

The Traumerei

Once upon a summer night,
On a terrace by the sea,
Balmy was the air, and bright—
Oft the scene returns to me:
Hearts were light, and lips were gay,
No one thought of tear or sigh;—
Then the band began to play,
Soft and low, the Traumerei;

Never sweeter strain was heard
Singing to the human soul,
Needing not a single word
To attain its hidden goal.
Strong men oft, who list the strain
Wink to keep their lashes dry;
Old love on its refrain
Floats back in the Traumerei.

There's a fragrance in each note
Sweeter than the scent of musk
Rather like that from the throat
Of a lily in the dusk.
Though all felt a fellowship—
Sorrow-pierced in days gone by—
No one knew it from a lip,
Listening to the Traumerei.

On that balmy summer night,
On that terrace by the sea,
As the echoes winged their flight,
Gay no heart could longer be.
Firmer hand-clasp—that was all—
Heart in heart sought not to spy
As we parted, each a thrall
To the haunting Traumerei.

O, the power of Music! Who,
Spell no wondrous, can explain,
Softening the ills we rue,
Soothing, too, the pang of pain?
Though I know nor day, nor year,
Yet, when comes the hour to die,
Would my passing soul might hear,
Soft and low, the Traumerei.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston True Script.

Departure

Adieu, kind life, though thou hast often been
Lavish of quip, and scant of courtesy,
Beneath thy roughness I have found in thee
A host who doth my parting favor win.
Friend, teacher, sage, and something half-jaquin
Thine every mood hath held some good for me,—
Nor ever friendlier seemed thy company
Than on this night when I must quit thine inn.
I love thee, Life, in spite of thy rude ways;
Dear is thy pleasant house, so long my home,
I thank thee for the friends, the [illegible] Landlord, of all other Tsars
Pour me a stirrup cup, for our parting nears,
I ever liked thy wine, though salt with tears.
—May Riley Smith.

Cool and sweet as mountain air

HAVE you ever stood in the pine-fringed hills and tasted the wonderful mountain air? Then you know something of that cool, sweet taste of Prince Albert in a jimmy-pipe. There's promise in it . . . the feeling that everything's going to be all right from now on.

Prince Albert is more than a promise. It's a fulfilment! Just tuck a load of this wonderful tobacco into the bowl of your jimmy-pipe and light up. Pull that cool, comforting smoke deep down into your system and see the sun come out!

Every perfect puff tells you that here is the most genuinely friendly tobacco that ever tumbled into a briar. Friendly? Yes . . . friendly to your tongue and to your general disposition. P. A. can't bite and it can't parch, because the Prince Albert process won't let it!

Get yourself a tidy red tin of P. A. this very day. Throw back the hinged lid and revel in the fragrance of real tobacco. Then pack a load into your jimmy-pipe and light up. Get that taste that only Prince Albert can give you!

P. A. is sold everywhere in 5¢ and 10¢ tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Peter Hears a Rumor

Rumor one should never trust
Unless he feels he really must.
—Peter Rabbit.

There are times when one feels that he must trust in rumor. But those times are not often. You know rumor is simply a story which has been repeated and repeated without any one knowing the actual truth. Usually there is some truth in a rumor, but usually it is difficult to know what is true and what isn't. So it is wise not to put too much faith in rumors.

It happened one day that Bob White stopped at the dear Old Briar Patch for a bit of gossip. Bob often calls on Peter. "Have you heard the rumor?" asked Bob.

Promptly Peter pricked up his long ears. "What rumor?" he demanded.

Bob White chuckled. "You haven't heard it then or you wouldn't ask," said he. "They say there is a newcomer to the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. In fact, there are two newcomers, if what I hear is to be believed."

Peter sat up a little straighter, if that were possible. "You don't say!" he exclaimed. "Who are they?"

Bob White shook his head. "I don't know," he confessed. "I am told they are a couple of feathered folk, but who they are, or where they have come from, or why they are here, I haven't the least idea. I've been keeping an eye open for them several days, but haven't seen them yet."

"Do you suppose they have come up from the Sunny South?" inquired Peter.

Again Bob shook his head. "I don't know," said he.

"Have you heard what they look like?" Peter inquired.

This time Bob White nodded. "Yes," said he. "I've heard, but I don't believe what I've heard. You see, I don't believe there is any such looking person. I've never heard any of the birds who go south for the winter tell of any such looking person down there as one of these is said to be. They do say he is so puffed up over his own looks that he will have nothing to do with anybody else. But, as I said before, I do not believe all I hear. I must see these strangers for myself."

Peter nodded that funny little head of his. "Quite right, Bob White. Quite right," said he. "There is nothing like seeing for oneself. Where did you hear that these strangers were seen, and who did you hear had seen them?"

Blacky the Crow is said to have seen them," replied Bob White. "I got it from Carol the Meadow Lark, and he was told by Little Friend the Song Sparrow, and he had it from Sammy Jay, who said that Blacky the Crow told him. The story is that Blacky saw these strangers on the edge of the Old Orchard nearest to the Green Forest. Now you know as much as I know."

"Thanks," said Peter. "Thanks very much, Bob White. I believe I'll run over to the Old Orchard."

Bob chuckled. "I've just come from there," said he. "The strangers may have been there, but they are not there now."

Peter looked disappointed. "Then," said he, "I think I'll run over to the Old Pasture."

Bob White chuckled again. "You'll be wasting your time," said he. "I've been over there, too, and not a trace of the strangers could I find. There's Blacky the Crow now. I wish he'd come over here. We might be able to get at the truth in regard to this rumor."

Caught in Carder at Mill

William Weeder of 167 Franklin street, a carder employed at the Saxton Woolen mill at Norwich Town, had his hand and arm caught and crushed in a carding machine while at work Saturday morning about 10:30. He was taken to the Backus hospital in the ambulance. It is not believed he will lose either the hand or the arm.

MANY SUNDAY VISITORS TO COLLEGE AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, April 12—Sunday visitors interested in the work of Connecticut Agricultural college are increasing rapidly with the coming of warmer weather, and each week now sees more persons driving to Storrs to inspect the many interesting phases of agricultural work carried on by the state college.

Hartford people and others from points beyond who care to drive to Storrs will find a good state highway the entire distance, which is slightly under 30 miles. The best route to follow is through Manchester, Bolton Notch, North Coventry, South Coventry Depot, and then turning north to the Mansfield Training school and east to the college following the new state road. There is a state road running direct from Willimantic to the college for a distance of nine miles for visitors from the eastern section of the state.

BURGLARS GOT INTO NORWICH MAN'S COTTAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 12—Harry Land, Norwich, owner of a cottage at 167 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, came to New London Sunday afternoon and eventually visited the shore resort. When Mr. Land went to his cottage he discovered that crooks had been there for one of the windows showed evidence of having been forced. Mr. Land reported his discovery to Patrolman Henry Sylvia, but the former could not state whether any of the furnishings had been removed from the place.

DOCTORS AMAZED AT NEW TREATMENT FOR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Favorable Result in 92 Per Cent of Cases Treated

At a recent discourse on high blood pressure a group of prominent physicians were amazed at results obtained by a wonderful new treatment called Tenso.

In 92% of the cases the average reduction was found to be at least 40%. Dizziness, nose-bleed, hot flashes, moodiness—all the typical symptoms—were reduced quickly to a minimum.

Tenso is not a new discovery. It is the private formula of a specialist used and perfected over a period of many years. Restores elasticity to hardened arteries. Tenso contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. Safe to take.

Sufferers from high blood pressure should try a two weeks' treatment. Money back if it does not bring satisfactory results.

Tenso can be bought at the following druggists: G. G. Engler, Lee & Osgood Co., G. M. Rathbone, Chas. C. Treat.

New members welcomed to the Central Baptist church Sunday were: Dorothy V. and Ruth K. Blatherwick, R. D. 6; Allyn L. Brown, Jr., 262 Broadway; Doris O. and Ruth F. Brown, 48 Washington street, and Sarah M. Harrison, Backus hospital nurses' home.

The SAVAGE WASHER & DRYER

Not another in the world like it

The Savage Washer & Dryer is the only electric washer in the world in which you can maintain just the proper amount, purity and temperature of the water in the tank.

It is the only one that fills and empties through its own hose (regular equipment).

It is the only one that washes, blues, rinses and dries an entire load (7 double sheets) in 18 minutes—or less.

It is the only one that rinses and dries in one simple operation—without wringing or breaking buttons.

It is the only one with the wonderful innovation "Spin-Rinse, Spin-Dry" which keeps your hands out of the water, makes pails and "set" tubs unnecessary.

Without any obligation have us give you the FREE HOME TEST of the famous "Savage" Washer innovation—

The Savage empties by means of its own cleaner pump—at the touch of a toe!

The Savage fills direct from the faucet through its own hose

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

State elections plus the excitement in Boston due to the arrest of a fugitive slave gave Norwich people plenty to talk about in 1851, for politics and national questions were bitterly argued in those days.

A number of items taken from the files of the Norwich Courier of 75 years ago are reprinted in part as follows:

Tuesday, April 8, 1851—Results of the elections received up to press time indicates that there is no choice of governor by the people, but that the whigs have elected 12 senators and 83 representatives, not including Fairfield county. Locos have elected 66 representatives, the respective gains being 15 whig and 11 loco. New London county has elected 11 whigs and 11 locos with five no choice yesterday thus making the result depend on the second day elections.

It is stated that L. L. Hill of Westport, N. Y., has discovered a process for procuring colored daguerreotype pictures and that he has been offered $20,000 for a half interest in the same. The process has been named the Hillotype and those who have seen the pictures say that they are cleverly colored.

Boston is again in a state of great excitement for another citizen has been seized by slave hunters under the Fugitive Slave law. The colored man is now on the third floor of the court house but thousands of Massachusetts people are pouring into Boston to prevent his being taken out of the state. Wendell Phillips speaking in front of the court house urges the people to prevent the man being taken from the state, urging them to rip up railroad tracks, cripple engines and do everything in their power to prevent the citizen of Massachusetts from being carried back into slavery. Speaking from Faneuil hall he urges the people—law or no law, constitution or no constitution, chains or no chains not to allow the fugitive slave law to be enforced.

Thursday, April 10, 1851—Connecticut is safe for the whigs have a majority in both houses and the election of Foster and other nominees is assured. The senate will be whig by about four majority and the house by three majority. New London county on the second day election of representatives elected three locos and two whigs, making 13 whigs and 14 locos the choice of the county.

Simms, the slave held in Massachusetts belongs to a wealthy Georgia planter, who had him arrested simply to try out the Massachusetts law. The planter will spend more than the slave is worth to test out the law and to see whether or not Massachusetts is bound by the constitution or if she has seceded from the union.

California is still without a senator after 144 ballotings, but it is believed that Col. Fremont, democrat, will be the ultimate choice.

William A. Comstock, Cortland Mosier and Robert Comstock have advertised for bids for the construction of a wharf in Montville, near the dwelling house of William A. Comstock, to extend from the shore to the channel of the river 260 feet, with an ell 50 by 60 feet to be 160 feet long on the head of the wharf.

Saturday, April 12, 1851—It will take a smart man to figure the house of representatives for both sides are now claiming a majority, although figures seem to indicate that it is about even 112 whigs and 111 locos. There is a possibility that Mr. Foster and his ticket will be elected however as Seymour has made enemies of the free soilers and they will probably swing their votes for the whig candidates.

Mr. Bliss has been elected sheriff in this county by a majority of 252 votes over Haughton. This is a handsome and well earned testimonial of the respect which Mr. Bliss enjoys in this county, both as a man and as a public official.

James Lane, A. M., principal has announced that the next session of the Norwich Grammar school will commence on Wednesday, April 16th, and will continue for 14 weeks. It is expected there will be a large enrolment for this term.

A new way to get to congress has been discovered. In a western state a man volunteered to fiddle for a dance and his playing started the rumor that he was "fit for congress." This was taken up by friends and he was nominated, elected, and now sits in congress.

LAYMEN'S SUNDAY AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Morning and evening services at the Central Baptist church Sunday carried out the plan of Laymen's Sunday and at the morning service the attendance of men and boys was 145. This compared with an attendance of 146 men and boys at First church, Waterbury, with which the Norwich church is engaged in an attendance contest from now until the first of June. The result of the first Sunday gives the Waterbury church a slight lead.

James L. Case presided at the morning service at the Central church, the scripture reading was led by Harold S. Burt and prayer was offered by C. Edward Smith. The sermon was by Rev. David P. Gaines of Waterbury, who exchanged with the pastor. He spoke upon Jesus and His Laymen.

At the evening service Shepard B. Palmer was in charge, prayer was offered by Emery H. Davis, and two addresses were made by laymen. Deacon Frederick L. Vergason speaking upon What can the church do for men? and Attorney Charles L. Stewart speaking upon What can men do for the church? The pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, summed up the subject and took the opportunity to thank the young people for the way they had carried out the Easter pageant.

Some of the Easter music was repeated by the choir, two anthems, Christ is Risen (Spence) and In the End of the Sabbath (Taggett) by the quartette and the soprano solo, The Lord is Risen (Lansing) by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr.

RAILROAD GIVES TITLE OF BRIDGE TO STATE

Confirming the offer made to the state of Connecticut in 1916, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company Saturday filed for recording at the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran, of New London, a quit claim deed, conveying to the state all right, title and interest in the Thames river highway bridge, formerly used by the railroad as a part of its transportation equipment.

The deed, received at the city clerk's office Saturday, and executed by President E. J. Pearson of the railroad company at New York city on March 23 conveyed to the state title to the structure and to the approaches including two parcels of land on the New London side and one in Groton.

TWENTY-ONE TROUT CAUGHT BY THREE FISHERMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, April 11—The first report of a good trout catch came in Saturday. Twenty-one trout were caught by Mr. Winchester of Hartford, George Pierce of Pendleton Hill and Henry Wallace of Lisbon. A trout supper was served at midnight at the Hartford Gun club. Mr. Wallace shot at the club, Sunday.

The Missionary society of Newent Congregational church met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ransom Read. The meeting opened with songs preceding scripture reading from Ephesians, 5. Prayer by Rev. Wm. J Reynolds. The secretary's report was read by Mrs. R. T. Read. A letter from Miss Gertrude S. Avery of Ahmednagar, India, was read by Mrs. R T Read. Miss Beatrice Reid read a letter from Rev. and Mrs. Emmons E White of Aruppukottai, South India.

A most interesting story was told by Miss Lucy Baldwin and Miss Louise Hadley of "The Eternal Hunger," a book written by Professor Steiner, who came from Austria.

Pachaug Community club members came over to the Congregational church vestry Friday evening and gave an entertainment. A good many Jewett City people have assisted at the Community club programs, and the club returned the favor when asked to do so. The result was that nearly $25 was added to the Christian Endeavor Tower committees credit. A series of musical tableaux was presented with which the audience were extremely pleased, as well as the readings given by Frank Mc[illegible]. Old songs, all very [illegible], were sung by Mrs. George [illegible] Miss Sadie Thompson, Byron Keene and Harold [illegible] Mrs. E Ir[illegible] Hiscox accompanying them. The tableaux were shown as each song [illegible] Dan Robinson and Walter [illegible] manipulating the curtain. [illegible] Sweet and Low [illegible] represented by Mrs. Benjamin [illegible], Sweet Days, by Robert [illegible] and The Lord Edmond, Roland [illegible] and Ruth Morgan; The Last Rose of Summer by Mrs. Eino Kar[illegible], Old Black Joe by Eino Karjalo; Just a Song at Twilight, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Montgomery. Ruth Morgan, Robert and John Edmunds and Roland Goldstein; Sweet Alice Ben Bolt, Francis Montgomery; Seeing [illegible] Home by Mrs. Goldstein and [illegible] Frank, Mother Machree by [illegible] McCormack; Perfect Day, by [illegible] and Mrs. William Edmonds; Over [illegible] by Frank Morgan; Long, Long [illegible], Francis Montgomery and Frank [illegible]; The Star Spangled Banner [illegible] Stetson. These tableaux were [illegible] by Clarence Montgomery. Mr. Mc[illegible] selections were How [illegible] Played the Piano, Apples, The [illegible] Club, The Jersey Cow and [illegible] Orthodox Team. Home-made [illegible] was sold by Isabel and Christ[illegible] Marshall and Bessie Thompson. The tickets were received by Charles [illegible]. The committee was Miss [illegible] A. Brown, the Misses Marshall, Bessie Thompson and Mrs. Hiscox.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Field entertained [illegible] Friday evening. [illegible] went to Mrs. Frank Durfey, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Donald and L. G. Buckingham. There were [illegible] and games made—one by Frank Durfey and Mrs. Earl Hiscox, the sister of Mrs. Durfey and Irving Gorman. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Jewett City Rifle club sponsored its first dance in Roux hall Friday evening. It was very well attended, a good sum being received which will go toward erecting a new building. An old time fiddlers' orchestra from North Stonington played for the square dances, and Driscoll's orchestra for the modern dances. Harry Wallace had charge of the arrangements, assisted by other members of the club. The reception committee was Austin Harris, Theodore [illegible], William Marshall and P. V. [illegible].

NOANK

Noank Fire Co. held its second night of the fair Saturday, with the ball packed. The Stonington band in the line of all the out of town companies was led by Neil Morrison and Charles [illegible], who sported old firemen's hats of 1880. The March was from the fire rooms with over 100 firemen and members of the auxiliary in line. The streets were crowded to see the parade.

The march was down Church street, up Richard avenue to Elm street to Main street, then to the hall where the marchers disbanded. The band played several popular selections and then dancing was enjoyed. At 11 o'clock corn chowder was served the visiting firemen. Three Stonington companies, the Ladies auxiliary, Colchester and Noank[illegible] of New London, had some of Steward Edgar Ashly's fine clam chowder.

At Wauregan Hall on Saturday afternoon the Diamond Nine won from the Mystic Giants, 8 to 2. Clark was the star hitter for Noank getting 3 hits. Moore for the Giants getting four. Hoffman, the new pitcher for Noank pitched well, got 12 strike-outs and allowed 6 hits. This is his first year as pitcher. Murray for Mystic found one going rough he was hit heavy. Noank got 12 hits and only struck out two men. Battery for Noank: Hoffman and Butson. For Mystic Murry and Moore. Umpire, Maxwell.

Joseph A. Culver motored to Bristol, R. I., and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pendleton and family.

There was no service at Bethel M. E. church Sunday, April 11th as the pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter was attending conference.

Connecticut College

The freshman class at Connecticut college proved that though young in experience they are far from amateurs regarding acting. The freshmen won the inter class competition in the contest for the Lewis cup awarded to the winners. Their play, a farce entitled Postal Orders, was well-presented by an excellent cast. No little of the credit due is owing Miss Phyllis Heintz, the coach.

The parts of the three spinsters in charge of the office were admirably portrayed by Mary Service of Sharon Pa., Barbara Hunt of Worcester, and Lillian Ottenheimer of Willimantic, aiding greatly in carrying off the prize. The frantic young man was well acted by Elizabeth Sniers of New London, and the indignant fiance was carried off by Muriel Whitehead of Newark.

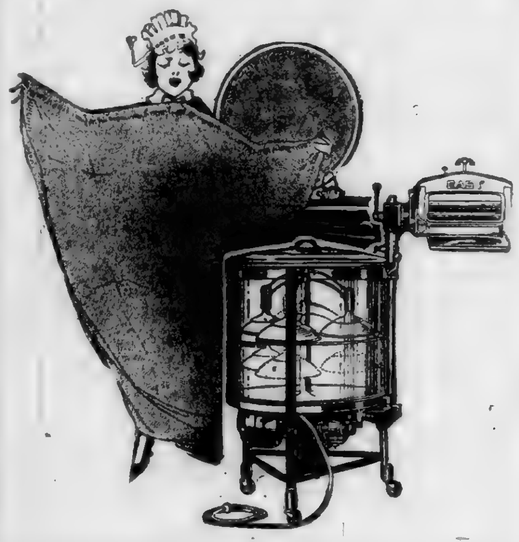
The senior play was the Harvard prize play A Game of Chess. Miss Madelyn Sloan of Montclair, N. J. portrayed the part of the king very well. Helen Hood took the part of the bullish Arlene Huskins of Scotland the part of Boris. Lorraine Ferris of Greenwich, that of Constantine.

The setting to both plays were a great aid in adding to their realism.

A few minutes after the plays were over Miss Katherine Kling, president of the dramatic club presented the cup to Miss Phyllis Heintz in behalf of the freshman class. The decision was made after the judges had considered the choice of play, the coaching, the acting, costuming, staging and lighting.

WASH DAY IS NO LONGER LOOKED FORWARD TO WITH DREAD BY THE WOMAN WHO DOES HER WASHING WITH AN

Easy Washing Machine



The old washboard, which has been the cause of so many backaches and perspiring brows, is now rusting in the cellar, while the beautiful Copper Tank "EASY", with its three, saucer-shaped Vacuum Cups, forces and sucks the warm, sudsy water back and forth through the meshes of the fabric sixty times a minute without the least friction, insuring longer life to the material than any other method. The attached wringer which may be operated by simply turning a lever without interfering with the washing process, flushes the water from the garment, allowing no sediment to cling to the material.

Let us prove this to you by giving you a demonstration (do your week's wash) free of charge.

GUARD OF MARINES HONOR ESCORT, WHEN NEW LONDON SERGEANT WEDS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—Sergeant Jack Horsley, United States Marine Corps, stationed at the Submarine Base, and Miss Theresa Kaika, of this city, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Joseph Ranftley, the rector. Corporal George F. Livingston was best man and Miss Alice Tuneski attended the bride. The best man's attendants were Corporal Rudolph Kohs and Private Stanley Arsenault. The bridesmaids attendants were Misses Stella Hrinitsky and Rose Kaika, cousins of the bride. A guard of marines, eight in number and in full dress uniform acted as honor escort and when the bridal couple left the church, they passed between the drawn sabres of the guard.

NORWICH DRIVER FINED— TOOK UP TOO MUCH ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—John Bachman of Fox Hill, Norwich, was fined $10 in the police court today for violation of the rules of the road in the operation of his Ford automobile. John was a bit "thick" else he might have fared better with the court. He was accused by Dr. Frank W. Hewes of Groton, Charles H. Lung, Cecil Hall and Thomas H. Fox, all declaring that Bachman crowded the Hewes car from the highway, as the autos were passing over the Thames river bridge Friday. The Hewes car was sideswiped and damaged. It was claimed that the Bachman car was zigzagging along the road when the Hewes auto came along. The operator of the latter sounding the horn as notice that it was approaching. All the witnesses testified to that effect. Bachman declared that he was forced to the left of the highway by other cars, but that as soon as they passed he got back into the tracks. He said he did not know that his car hit the Hewes machine and he did not want to get away without his identity being known. Hall was driving a car and he speeded after the Bachman car to ascertain the registration number. He was successful and state police from Groton barracks ordered Bachman to appear in court this morning. Bachman could not explain to the satisfaction of the court, so the fine was imposed as stated.

More than the usual number of autos appeared when the docket was called, this morning, indicating that Monday was not as dry as it might have been. James W. Scott set up the old defense that he was on the way to Bishops Hall. He said he came from Moosup and was seized with an attack of rheumatism, so he took a "few." Railroad Officer Kane testified that Scott had been about the station all day and that he was not only drunk, but was begging. He was fined $20, which penalty took him to jail. He was the only one of the six that made that choice.

Clarence Wilcox, a sailor from the naval station, admitted that he was drunk, but explained that he took on a bit too much. The court believed the story told the truth, but as the sailor was then overdue at the pier he was not fined, but was turned over to the coast guard authorities.

Jim Agnew and George McCulley were on a spree together. A child was sent to the latter and the pair started in to celebrate the event. They succeeded, for they were found to have hired a taxi and started out so they could travel rapidly. They left the taxi near the police station after telling the driver that they would see him again. He dissented and made complaint. Arrests followed. It is understood that an arrangements to settle with the taxi driver was made so that he was satisfied. Then the offenders were allowed to go that they might raise the money.

George Stannard started on a spree and was called down by his wife. He went home and was abusive, so that was the end of George's outing. He was arrested. Being the father of three children whom he must support he was not disciplined with a fine, but was given a chance to do what he declared he could do—brace up and return to work.

George Kelly, 22, was drunk and admitted the fact. He was given suspended judgment, after Judge Prince told him he was a youth and was headed in the wrong direction.

John Shronecko of Oakdale, just got drunk, he said. He was allowed to go back to the country.

Charles Braintree, chief petty officer, stationed at the United States coast guard academy, lodged complaint with the police early Sunday morning that while he was at the house of John Quinn, 690 Bank street, earlier in the day he had been robbed of his regulation uniform, valued at $40. Sergeant Samuel Hick last night arrested the frequenters of the place who were in the house at the time the theft occurred and charged them with the theft of the overcoat. Those arrested were Louis Stota, known as "Big Louis," Mike Collins and Annie Hennedy. The accused, however, escaped prosecution in the police court this forenoon, for a youth informed Brisbane of the identity of the man who had the chief petty officer's overcoat; Brisbane going to the home of the man found the coat. Brisbane administered a beating to the thief and taking possession of his coat, withdrew the charge against the trio under arrest.

The case of assault against Jerry Northrup, 579 Bank street, automobile salesman, was nolled in police court this forenoon, when it was revealed by acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandereky that the accused had married Florence Quinn, the girl he is alleged to have assaulted last month.

Sophie A. Crandall has sold to St. Joseph's church corporation, a parcel of land between Orchard and Squire streets adjoining other land of the purchasers.

James Kahler, United States Coast Guard academy; Curtis Miner, Niantic; Mrs. Melvin Shaw, Fishers Island; George Kimon, of the crew of the tug Westmoreland; Sebastian Friese, Waterford, and Miss Mabel Willett, Westerly, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospitals, were discharged Sunday and today.

Edward S. Bogue, 37, died late Saturday at his residence, 17 Washington street, after a brief illness. Mr. Bogue, who was employed by the American Railway express company, is survived by his wife and three children, Evelyn, Edward and Howard Bogue.

Maria Hills, 83, died Sunday at the residence of her grandson, Perley Moriarty, 26 Harrison street. Mrs. Hills had been ill a long time with infirmities attending her advanced years.

Bank Watchman Willis Jones, who has been confined to his residence on Ocean avenue several weeks because of illness, has recovered his health and is again on duty.

An attempt was made Saturday or Sunday night to burglarize the upholstering and furniture repairing establishment of C. H. Williams, 16 Truman street, but so far as could be determined nothing of value was taken from the place. The break was discovered this forenoon when Williams opened the place for business and the police were notified. Officers who investigated the break determined that entrance was gained by means of opening a sliding door in the rear and which connects another business establishment. The police are inclined to believe that the break is the work of youths.

In the Groton town court this forenoon, Judge Cornelius C. Costello had three cases, all for violation of the automobile law, to claim his attention. A. C. Davis, a sailor attached to the submarine base, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without possessing an operator's license. He was fined $2 and costs and paid. Davis was ordered into court Sunday by State Police Officer Frank Kulawsky, Groton barracks.

James Hewitt, of Mystic, was presented on a charge of reckless driving, but as the testimony introduced was not considered sufficient, the accused was discharged. Hewitt and Frank Arizanek, of Stonington, were driving their cars through Noank last Monday night, when the machines met near the intersection of Brook and Elm streets and where a stone wall on one side of the highway and elevated tracks of the Groton & Stonington Traction company on the other, the front wheel of Hewitt's car sideswiped Arizanek's car in an attempt to pass. The latter accused Hewitt of reckless driving and that accusation resulted in Hewitt being ordered into court this forenoon.

James LeMontague, Chicago avenue, who pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having a license was fined $2 and costs, which sum the father of the accused paid. The accused was arrested Friday night by State Police Officer George Sisson, Groton barracks. The accused had been enjoying a night ride when arrested and his car figured in a slight collision on Poquonoc road. The elder LaMontague declared that his son's sight had become somewhat impaired, but if an experienced drive, sat on the seat with the youth the latter would drive efficiently. However, last Friday night this condition did not exist and when the machine figured in an accident, the youth was arrested.

James F. Baldwin, of Newton, Mass., was in Waterford town court, late this afternoon, charged with violation of the automobile law, the specific charge being reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and Judge Frederick Dimmock imposed a fine of $10 and costs. Baldwin was arrested Sunday by Constables Peabody and Brigham, when the officers detected Baldwin speeding as they claimed, at a rate of 55 miles an hour.

Harry Land, of Norwich, complained to the police Sunday that his cottage, 169 Bentley avenue, Ocean beach, had been broken into within two weeks. Today Patrolman Dennis Murphy investigated the complaint and from residents at the beach he was informed that Mr. Land's son had been seen several times of late at the cottage, where parties were conducted.

CITY COUNCIL EXPEDITES MUNICIPAL BUSINESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 12.—The city council got down to business promptly at 8 o'clock this evening and at 9 had dispatched all its business and had adjourned. There was not a minute lost and there was so little of discussion that all the matters that were offered were disposed of in the hour the council was in session.

A vote was passed buying a seven-passenger automobile for use of the fire chief at a cost of $1850. There was no voice in opposition.

The council voted to enter into a contract with the New Haven Light company for the purchase of cold patch at a cost of $1.250 after Councilor Streeter had objected on the ground that other bidders did not have the opportunity to bid that the gas light company had. All the bids submitted were rejected and then a proposition to buy from a sample submitted by the New Haven company and which was not asked for was accepted. Manager Holt explained that the bids of the other companies for this particular kind of paten would not change the figures at which the purchase was authorized.

James Fowler was awarded a contract to do moving, raking and other work at a building on Church street which the city has purchased.

It was voted to sell a pump owned by the sewer and water department and to take in exchange a drill press from A. Bellefleur & Co.

The New Haven Railroad company gave notice of a change in the time of operation of its trains to conform to the daylight-saving law passed by congress.

Joseph Mono asked for the removal of three trees from Division street to permit of alterations to be made in a building at the corner of Bank and Division streets. The petition was referred to the city manager with power.

CLAIM OF MISS BECKWITH REGISTERED BY COUNCIL

NEW LONDON, April 13.—On recommendation of the city manager who had investigated the claim of Miss Lena Beckwith for a refund of money for an overcharge for sewer assessment some years ago, the council rejected the claim. The city manager reported that there was no error and no overcharge for the assessment.

There is a prospect now that the city will make a start to collect taxes owed several years. White & Alexander, the city auditors, reported to the council this evening that there are $612,781.99 in such taxes and stated that a given amount of such taxes were not collectible. They recommended that the taxes that were regarded as worthless should be written off and that the balance should be collected. The council met with Mr. Alexander after the meeting to consider the matter and to decide upon a course of procedure.

The matter of refunding water bonds issued in 1903 came before the city council this evening and a vote was passed authorizing the issuance of bonds to refund. Councilor Streeter was the only objector. He stated that he proposed to vote against the proposal and did so vote. The bonds to be issued are to the amount of $200,000.

Sewer work on Summer street was ordered in the first reading an ordinance this evening. The work will cost $505 and that expense will be assessed against the property benefitted.

COUNCILOR MAY'S PLAN FOR BANK STREET TRAFFIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 12.—Councilor May made suggestions to the city council this evening by which, he said, traffic on Bank street can be relieved during the summer. He added that there was no prospect that the contemplated improvements will be started before summer, so he asked that his suggestions be referred to the committee on public safety for consideration. He would make Bank street a one-way street either south or north to Pearl street and limit parking to one side of the street. He suggested that the trolley be operated both ways on Bank street as at present. He said that nine routes would be available for autoists to reach the southern section of the city from State street. The matter went to the public safety committee as suggested.

Permission was asked for the erection of a few dwellings and garages and this was granted.

Howard Swanson, of 257 Broad street; Daniel Papa, 13 Elizabeth street; Mrs. Otis Linkletter, 290 Huntington street; Eugene Sullivan, 119 Howard street, and Mrs. George Sisson and infant son, 139 Crystal avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

James R. May has purchased from Edward L. Comstock, conservator of the estate of Annie McLaughlin, a house and lot on Walbach street. The sale was ordered by the probate court recently.

Patrick Hanley, a stranger hereabouts, was sentenced to jail from the police court about two weeks ago, on a charge of intoxication. Hanley finished his jail term today and when he obtained his liberty he started to get drunk again. He was successful in his desire and as a result his liberty was somewhat curtailed, for this evening he was taken into custody by Patrolman Clarence Martin when the officer found Hanley helplessly intoxicated at the corner of Atlantic and Potter streets.

Harold B. Parmelee, 124 Orchard street, Norwich, was in New London this afternoon. He operated his car to a point on State street where he parked the machine for a period much longer than is allowed by city ordinance with the result that Patrolman William Riordan observed the violation and placed a tag on the car, which carried with it a summons for Parmelee to appear in the police court tomorrow morning. Parmelee will escape that ordeal however, for he visited the police station and was released from a court appearance after he was given a warning as to heeding the city's traffic ordinances in the future.

Plans for an open educational meeting to be held April 23 were discussed at the meeting of the executive board of the New London League of Women Voters held during the week in room 320, Plant building. Mrs. Edward P Eggleston, chairman of the educational committee, will preside and arrange the program. It was decided to give a $5 gold piece in connection with the Better Homes Week campaign, to the person who submits the best balanced menu at the least possible cost for a family of three adults and two children. In attendance were: Miss Edna L. Tyler, chairman; Mrs. Clarence A. Carry, Miss Madeline Hirsch, Mrs. James E. Barlow, Mrs Edward P. Eggleston, Mrs. Donald G. Mitchell, Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, Mrs. O. E. Clark and Mrs. Clifton H. Topping.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Greatest of Female Impersonators is the title which the critics of the silent drama have conferred upon Syd Chaplin, star of Warner Bros. production of Oh What a Nurse! directed by Charles "Chuck" Reisner.

In the latter part of 1924 he took the country by storm in the picturization of the good old stage farce, Charley's Aunt, by his impersonation of an elderly female of eccentric—very eccentric habits, from Brazil, "where the nuts come from, you know."

Recently at Warner Bros.' production of The Man in the Box, directed by Charles "Chuck" Reisner, Mr. Chaplin impersonated a housemaid with even greater success. After rolls, it is said that he said to his barber, "Be careful not to clip my hair too close, Jim, they might take me for a girl masquerading in men's clothes." The popularity of this characterization has won him the distinction of being the cleverest female impersonator in the theatrical world today.

"Oh, No, Oh! What a Nurse!" he plays the part of a young newspaper reporter who has been pressed into service as Dolly Whimple to answer letters from the lovelorn during that estimable lady's vacation. Before he escapes from this situation he is forced to impersonate her and later a nurse. Patsy Ruth Miller, Gayne Whitman, Edith Yorke, David Torrence, Mathew Betz, Raymond Wells, Ed Kennedy and Henry Barrows form the supporting cast.

The picture will be shown the last times today and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a Mack Sennett comedy.

Capitol Theatre, Willimantic.

Unusual attractions appear in this week's programme at the Capitol theatre, in Willimantic. Tuesday and Wednesday there will be a double feature programme, "Steel Preferred," a superb Metropolitan picture, is an intensely thrilling story of steel mill life in Pittsburgh and many novel mill shots are seen in the production. Vera Reynolds and William Boyd have the leading roles. Charlie Murray and Ben Turkin, the celebrated screen comedians are in the supporting cast. That announcement alone should draw a crowd. But there is more to follow. Also on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings will be Buster Keaton's new Metro-Goldwyn comedy, "Seven Chances," which is undoubtedly the best yet of his releases. The seven chances have to do with his attempts to find a girl to marry him in order to get $7,000,000 legacy. Don't take any chances missing "Seven Chances."

Five big acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville will be the drawing card Thursday and Friday. The Keith stuff is always good and what you will see this week is no exception to the rule. In connection with the vaudeville there will be a picture programme, "Limited Mail," with Monty Blue. The "Black Bird" with Lon Chaney, the man who gripped at the very heart of millions who saw him in "The Phantom of the Opera," and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." He has a strong supporting case and like others of his productions offers more than a passing attraction.

Annual Meeting of Y. M. C. A.

The annual meeting of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association will be held on Wednesday evening of this week at 8 o'clock, when the various officers and directors will be elected.

President James C. Macpherson will render his annual report which will doubtless be interesting.

HAGENLACHER'S GAME WILL BE HARD TO BEAT, SAYS REFEREE

NEW YORK, April 13 (AP)—Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, has reached the peak of the professional 18.2 balkline billiard realm with a careful, methodical game which will not be readily surpassed by American sports of brilliance, in the estimation of the veteran referee, Charles Peterson, of St. Louis.

A placid disposition not easily ruffled by unexpected "breaks" at crucial periods of his matches adds to the smoothness of his play an essential factor for retention of the championship, said Peterson, who has officiated in 200 matches without dispute, including the last title contest in which Jake Schaefer was dethroned by the German star.

"Schaefer and Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, unquestionably are the most brilliant and spectacular players in the game," is Peterson's opinion. "But both are temperamental, and their remarkable long runs may be suddenly counteracted by slumps under unfavorable conditions.

"Schaefer and Hagenlacher were both tested in their championship match at Philadelphia, and it was Hagenlacher who best survived the conditions. In the first five hundred point block, the German displayed the nearest approach to perfect billiards I have ever seen. He never committed a mistake—every carom was made off the two balls for position that I do no believe could have been improved upon.

"In the second block he was temporarily thrown out of stride by making a foul, but he recovered sufficiently to save his big advantage. Schaefer was bothered, however, by the balls which he claimed were "bumpy" and this mental condition of doubt took the edge from his game.

"Under ideal conditions, Schaefer is the world's greatest billiard player at 18.2 balkline. Horemans, in one of his winning moods ranks a close second But with less favorable conditions Hagenlacher, is not likely to be troubled."

Willie Hoppe, in the estimation of Peterson, was the greatest champion of them all for overcoming adverse conditions. He referred to a match which Hoppe played in Dallas, Texas, on a table which apparently had a flaw in one corner.

A man and a strange umbrella often go without saying.

How both customers got the stove

WHEN two out-of-town customers called at the furniture store of The H.M.Bullard Co., in New Haven, looking for a gray enamel Glenwood range, the floor sample was marked, "sold", and both ladies wanted the same stove immediately. With the opportunity to make two sales confronting him if he could meet the requirements, the salesman turned to toll telephone service to solve his problem.

Calls were made to several of the Glenwood agencies in neighboring cities, and finally to the factory at Taunton, Mass. Within fifteen minutes he was able to assure both customers of immediate delivery. Two sales were made that had at first appeared impossible, and two customers went away satisfied with their purchases and pleased with the service which had been given them.

"This", says Mr. H. M. Bullard, President of the Company, "is but one of the many instances which have proved toll telephone service an able factor in the continued success of our store."

How many retailers,—and jobbers and wholesalers, for that matter—have had to pass up profitable sales because the desired item was not in stock? The cost of a toll call isn't much when it is compared with the profit it may help to make and the good will it may gain or hold.

Like Mr. Bullard, hundreds of keen business men right here in Connecticut look upon toll telephone service as indispensable to the efficient administration of their affairs. Many times a day, in innumerable ways, it proves its value beyond question.

Is toll telephone service doing for you all that it can? Our Commercial Service Department will be glad to assist you in obtaining increased efficiency from your equipment, without charge, upon request.

LEGAL NOTICES

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER OF NOTICE
L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation vs. Nathan Manchik

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss., April 7th, 1926.

Upon the complaint of the said L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation claiming for the reasons therein set forth, a foreclosure and the possession of certain mortgaged premises, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of March, 1926; and it appearing to and being found by this Court that Nathan Manchik, the said defendant is absent from this State and gone to parts unknown, and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by orders of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Conn., once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 24th day of April, 1926.

By order of Court.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Renewal of selling pressure against the motor shares, several of which collapsed to new low levels for the year, featured the sharp decline in today's stock market. Both the rail and industrial averages lost ground, 30 issues failing to new low levels for the year. Trading, which was extremely dull last week, showed a substantial increase in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,637,700 shares.

The calling of about $25,600,000 in bank loans resulting in a marked stiffening of money rates, probably accelerated the selling movement. In view of the large increase in excess reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement, this action puzzled many brokers until it was explained that most of the calling was done by banks with Havana connections, presumably to provide or replace currency sent to assist Cuban institutions, which have suffered from heavy withdrawals during the past few days.

Apart from the rise in money rates, there was nothing in the day's new to account for the heavy selling of stocks. Commission houses reported however, that many investors and speculators have become uneasy over reports that business in general was slowing up, and that bear traders undoubtedly took full advantage of this feeling by hammering stocks of companies in industries which probably will feel the first efects of any general business depression.

Reports that the Mexican and United States government had practically reached an agreement in their controversy over the Mexican land laws apparently were disregarded.

Heavy liquidation of the motors presumably was in anticipation of a sharp falling off in business in the second quarter of the year. Hudson was the hardest hit, breaking 7 1-2 points to a new low record at 63 3-4 and then rallying to 65. It sold as high as 123 1-4 earlier in the year. Jordan broke 5 1-2 points to a new low at 31 3-4 and then rallied 3 points. General Motors, which is expected to earn its full year's dividend in the first quarter sagged 2 3-4 points to 116 and then rallied slightly. Chrysler, Dodge Brothers A, Fisher Body, Mack Trucks, Nash, Pierce Arrow common and preferred, Stewart Warner and White Motors all sold 2 to 5 points below Saturday's closing quotations.

Steel shares lost ground despite the fact that the March unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel corporation, made public after the close on Saturday, showed a smaller reduction in orders than had been generally expected. U S Steel common was hammered down 2 points to 119 1-8, or within a fraction of the year's low and Bethlehem and Sloss-Sheffield established new 1926 minimum prices.

Acute weakness was developed in such stocks as American Agricultural Chemical preferred, California Packing, Coca Cola, Commercial Solvents B, Foundation company, General Electric, Mid-land Steel Products preferred, Postum Cereal, Remington Typewriter, U S Cast Iron Pipe, United Drug and Woolworth, all off 4 to nearly 10 points.

Some of the high priced rails also recorded substantial recessions. Atlantic Coast Line broke over 12 points to 153 1-4 and then rallied to 155. Delaware and Hudson broke about 6 points to 155 1-8, and Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna, Kansas City Southern, Louisville and Nashville, "Soo", "Katy" common, Northern Pacific, "Nickel Plate" common, Norfolk and Western, South Railway, St. Louis Southwestern and Union Pacific all showed net declines of a point or more.

Commodity prices were mixed. Active wheat futures displayed another cent a bushel in sympathy with an earlier decline in Liverpool. Cotton closed 6 points higher to 5 points lower. Raw sugar advanced 1-16 of a cent a pound and the quarter showed slight improvement. Coffee closed unchanged to 20 points higher.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and advanced successively to 4 1-2, 5 and 5 1-2, closing at the top. Time money rates also hardened, being quoted at 4 3-8 to 4 1-2, depending upon maturity, instead of on a flat 4 3-8 per cent basis. Prime Commercial Paper was unchanged at 4 1-4 per cent.

Irregularity developed in the foreign exchange market with most of the principal European rates losing ground. Demand sterling was quoted 1-8 of a cent lower around $4.85 1-32 and French francs yielded slightly to around 3.43 cents. Belgian francs dropped below 3.50 cents, or 8 1-2 points below last week's closing quotation. Norwegian krone rallied over 20 points to 21.70 cents and Spanish pesetas jumped 8 points to 14.23 cents. Polish zlotys collapsed 95 points to 11.39 cents.

A class in English for the French Canadian residents of the village is being conducted two nights each week at the Naturalization club. The purpose is to prepare the students to take out their citizenship papers. Joseph Legare is the instructor.

George Savard of formerly of North street has purchased a farm in Lebanon and has gone there to reside.

REPARATION ALLOWED TO RICHMOND RADIATOR CO.

The Richmond Radiator Co., of this city will receive reparation for unreasonable charges paid on certain shipments of core sand from Provincetown, Mass., over the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, according to a statement by the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

The Norwich company, in a complaint filed with the commission some months ago, asked that the carriers be required to refund charges collected on core sand, fire sand and sea sand in carloads, minimum weight 80,000 pounds, from Provincetown, Mass., to Norwich, Mass., in excess of the charges applicable to the carload rate of 65 cents per 100 pounds in effect on such shipments on December 1, 1925, from Provincetown, Mass., to Norwich, Mass., plus a reasonable charge for the service performed and interest from the date of payment of the charges.

The commission finds that the charges collected on the shipments described in the complaint were unreasonable to the extent that they exceeded the charges which would have accrued on the basis of the rate of 65 cents per 100 pounds in connection with the rates in effect on such shipments on December 1, 1925, and that reparation should be awarded to the complainant on the basis of the charges which would have accrued on the basis of the rate of 65 cents per 100 pounds in connection with the rates in effect on such shipments on December 1, 1925, with interest.

BURGLARS PRY WINDOW AT APPAREL SHOP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—An attempt was made yesterday morning by burglars to enter the apparel shop of Mrs. Robert B. Chappell, on Bank street, Montauk avenue. The shop is situated in the rear of the building and the attempt to pry the door was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning when Nathaniel Saltz, Lawton was leaving his next resident. He discovered a rear window of the establishment open and communicated the information to the police. Patrolman John Sullivan and Elmer Osterman were assigned to the case and found that the window in the rear and in the shelter of the new Columbia theater had been forced and a small iron bar had been removed. Mrs. Chappell was summoned but found that none of the stock had been removed. The previous attempt to burglarize the store occurred last Good Friday night.

CAUGHT HERE WITH AUTOMOBILE STOLEN IN MASSACHUSETTS TOWN

Within an hour after Norwich police headquarters had been notified Monday afternoon to look for an automobile alleged to have been stolen from Mansfield, Mass., on Sunday, the car was located here and George Barrows, 18, who was driving it was locked up. A 16 year old girl from Norwood, Mass., who was with him, was also detained.

Chief George Linton got the message from the Mansfield police that a Ford sedan, registration 379,983 Mass., the property of Roy Sharp of Mansfield has been stolen from there by George Barrows, who was believed to have a brother in this city, where it was supposed he might be headed for. The officers on the beats about the city were given a description of the car with its registration number and about 4 o'clock Officer Michael Carroll, on traffic duty at the Wauregan corner, spotted the car after it had passed him and was proceeding westerly through Main street. The policeman commandeered another machine and pursued the Massachusetts car, catching up to it below the city line in Thamesville, where he placed the man under arrest and brought the machine and its occupants to police headquarters.

The young girl claimed that they left her home in Norwood Monday morning.

Word of the capture of Barrows was telephoned to Mansfield and about 9 o'clock Monday night William Plattner, town manager, arrived here with the owner of the car and two other men in an automobile. After Barrows and the young girl were questioned separately before Sergeant John H. Casey in the chief's room at police headquarters, the Massachusetts officials took the pair and the automobile back to Mansfield.

It was said by one of the officials that another couple had been with Barrows and the young girl when they started on their ride. It was not known what had become of that couple.

THREE JUDGMENTS GIVEN AGAINST PAWCATUCK COMPANY

Judgment was entered in a number of motions at the motion list in the court of common pleas here Monday before Judge Charles B. Waller.

The Fisk Tire Co., with principal offices in Hartford, was awarded judgment by stipulation in the amount of $500.00 against C. D. Hall, Inc., of Pawcatuck. Over, Bradly & Ormiston was given judgment by stipulation in the amount of $499.50 against the same company, while judgment by stipulation in the amount of $491.47 was entered in favor of the Wetmore & Savage Co. against the Hall Co. In the three cases the claims exceeded the judgments but settlement was effected.

In the case of Nicholas Zahacefski of Salem against Sam Friedman, a former constable of Colchester, Judge Waller took the papers after a short trial. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant assaulted him in November, 1925, and claimed $200 damages.

The Mystic Oil Co., was given judgment for $847.17 against Almon B. Meister of Noank in a foreclosure action. The next Monday in May was set as the limitation of time for redemption. In a similar action last December the judgment was awarded and an execution made out to collect but Meister failed to pay.

Babson Bros. of Chicago were given judgment in the amount of $75 against Mary L. Carter of Norwich. The amount was alleged to be due on a furnace which she purchased from the plaintiff.

The Alster & Golding Co. was given judgment in the amount of $735.5 against Joseph Hastelt of Norwich.

In the case of George H. Bradford against William M. Clifford of Norwich the Bankers Trust Co. was allowed to be made party defendant to the foreclosure action.

Substitution of a bond was allowed in the case of Vincenzo Lavianno of Norwich against Louis Plotsky of Preston, in which the plaintiff sues for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. The bond was substituted for $1,125 in money, which had been put up.

An agreed debt, dating back to 1923, was settled when judgment in the amount of $61 was entered for John Porter of Griswold against J. Byron Sheffield, also of the same place.

It was alleged that on March 2, 1923 George C. Sheldon gave Elijah Potter a note for $100 which he endorsed to a bank in N. Lebanon. On Dec. 1, 1924 Potter was assessed $61.50 principal, interest and costs. Potter claimed that Sheldon gave to Potter I. Sheldon for $100 and received the promise in order of $61 which Potter agreed to pay. The decision was in favor of the plaintiff.

SEEKS INJUNCTION TO PROTECT FOURTH FAIRWAY

Because of the planned overflowing of the fourth fairway of the Norwich Golf and Country club, temporary injunction proceedings against Joseph Hall & Son, Inc., operators of a woolen mill at Trading Cove, is sought by the Norwich Golf and Land Co. and the Norwich Golf club in a suit that has been brought in the superior court against the woolen manufacturers. Damages of $5,000 are asked.

Edwin C. L. Avery before whom the application petition was presented has ordered the Hall company to appear before him in New London on April 19 at 11 a. m. to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued.

It is alleged in the complaint that by the use of flashboard on the dam at Trading Cove the woolen firm has caused the water to set back so as to overflow the northerly bank of the brook and the land and fairway and other parts of the land of the golf club, where it is claimed the defendant company has not and never has had any flowage rights.

Because of such overflowing of the golf club land, the plaintiffs allege that they cannot use the fourth fairway and the whole of the golf course is being depreciated in value. Brown and James are attorneys for the plaintiffs, the suit being returnable in May.

SIX KILLINGS AT HERRIN, VIOLENT DISORDER IN CHICAGO MARKED PRIMARIES

Guardsmen Are Being Mobilized to Suppress a Continuation of Factional Trouble at Herrin—Troops Are Guarding the Homes of Two Alleged Klan Clergymen—In Chicago Shootings, Sluggings and Ballot Box Thefts Featured the Primary—Several Election Officials and Watchers Were Kidnapped by Bands of Gangsters as They Were Preparing to Count the Ballots.

HERRIN, Ills., April 13—(AP)—Six men are dead as a result of a renewal of Herrin's factional trouble late today in connection with the hotly contested primary election here.

The dead: Harlan Ford, brother of former Chief of Police John Ford, Mack Sizemore and brother, Ben Sizemore, both constables, Deputy Sheriffs Treadway and Briggs; Noble Weaver, deputy sheriff.

The wounded: John Smith, Klan leader, shot in neck; condition not serious.

Company K, Illinois National Guard, stationed at Cairo, Ill., was expected to arrive here tonight, reports from that city being received telling that the guardsmen were being mobilized in preparation for the trip to the riot scene. Along with this word came announcement that Lieutenant Colonel Davis would ask Adjutant General Davis for enough troops to place the city under martial law until the disorders subside.

Since the trouble started early this afternoon troops have been guarding the homes of two alleged Klan clergymen, the John Smith garage where the trouble started and the Masonic temple where the killings took place So far, however, no arrests are reported.

In the first firing one man said to have been unarmed, was seen to fall in front of the hotel. He was taken away by friends and his name has not been made known.

Chief of Police Griffith said shortly before the trouble that he did not expect to ask for troops, but when Lieutenant Colonel Davis arrived from Carondale, he immediately got in touch with various citizens and it is understood had a formal request from State Senator Sneed, one of the United Mine Workers officials, for troops.

The troops arrived about four o'clock and shortly afterward the third shooting started, about five blocks from the scene of the first and second disorders.

It was reported that more than 500 shots were poured into the garage in which Smith barricaded himself by the enraged crowd outside and they dispersed only after being told that Smith had fled through a rear door.

With the arrival tonight of Company K, Illinois National Guard, Cairo, to augment a force of twenty militiamen from Carbondale the situation, while tense, was believed to be under control and authorities express-ed the belief that no further trouble would be forthcoming.

While some attributed today's flare-up to the hotly contested municipal election, it was most generally believed to be merely a renewal of the old factional feud.

VIOLENCE FEATURED PRIMARY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 13—(AP)—Shootings, sluggings, ballot box thefts and terrorizing of election precinct workers by Chicago gangsters featured today's primary here.

Disorder in one West Side ward became so pronounced late in the day that hundreds of extra police were despatched there after nearly a score of reports of violence were received from nearly every polling place in the ward within two hours before the polls closed.

One man was shot and seriously injured by a policeman who tried to stop a factional fight and was set upon by both sides in the controversy.

One of the boldest ballot box thefts occurred in the twenty fourth ward, scene of disturbances throughout the day, when twelve armed men in three automobiles entered a polling place, forced all the occupants into another room and scooped up all the ballots in sight and fled. Later election officials said most of the ballots were blanks. Almost simultaneously seven armed gangsters raided another precinct in the same ward and took all the ballot boxes.

In another outbreak earlier in the day, a policeman was severely beaten while trying to quell a disorder in another polling place. A balmy spring day aided in bringing out what election officials considered as a heavy vote for an off year primary, although it was believed that not more than half of Cook county's nearly 1,200,000 registered voters had gone to the polls.

Late in the day, several election officials and watchers in various precincts had been reported kidnapped and spirited away by bands of gangsters as they were preparing to count the ballots.

One election clerk tonight telephoned Milwaukee saying that he had been kidnapped, taken there and released.

Joseph Burke, a candidate for judge of the municipal court, landed in jail tonight to hear the returns when he refused to leave a polling place and was ordered arrested by election officials.

LONDON, April 13—(AP)—Captain Esteves, missing leader of the Spanish aviators, has been found 200 miles to the east of Amman, an exchange Telegraph despatch from Bagdad reports.

Welcome for "Doug" and Mary

GENOA, Italy, April 13—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, American motion picture stars, who are marking a long trip abroad, were given an enthusiastic welcome today when they landed from the steamer Conte Biancamano, on which they sailed from New York, April 3. The couple, with the Italian national flag colors in their button holes, were applauded by large crowds, which gathered so quickly at one point that their automobile was unable to proceed and police were needed to free them from the crush of their admirers. Miss Pickford threw kisses to a large group of girls, who presented her and her husband with flowers. A group of orphans was among those who greeted the motion picture stars.

HARD SLEDDING FOR PASSAIC LABOR LEADERS

PASSAIC, N. J., April 13—(AP)—Arthur Garfield Hayes, of the American Civil Liberties union, New York, was threatened with a disorderly person charge for utterances in defense of textile strikers in justice of the peace Hargreave's court in Garfield late today. Short before the hearing took place Sheriff Charles W. Morgan announced that he would soon put the riot act into force in Passaic county.

Hayes appeared before the court in defense of Robert Wolfe, a member of a party which attempted to hold a meeting in Garfield today; Robert W. Dunn of the American Civil Liberties union and others. John Dos Passos, novelist and poet, Frieda Krichwey, of the nation, Agnes de Lima and others appeared in Garfield with Hayes, but were denied the right to speak.

Before leaving the court room without being able to have reduced the bail under which Wolf and Dunn were held, Hayes declared it "impossible for strikers to get justice in magistrate's courts of New Jersey."

"American constitutional rights mean nothing here," he said. "The prosecutions here today are perfectly outrageous, preposterous and a travesty on all that bears the name of American justice. One of the first principles of justice is that excessive bail should not be demanded."

Justice of the Peace Hargreaves then stopped Hayes with his threat of disorderly conduct, if he did not speak in a different manner. Later he said that if Hayes had replied he would have "held him in not less than $10,000 bail and perhaps without bail."

Dunn was held in $10,000 bail and Wolf in $5,000. Esther Lowell, a New York newspaper woman who was arrested in Garfield last night, shortly after the riot act was read, was released on $1,500 bail. Albert Weisbord organizer of the strike, was still a prisoner tonight in the Passaic county jail in default of $30,000 bail and Jack Rubenstein and Jack Miller, his principal lieutenants, were held in $10,000 bail each today on charges of inciting a riot.

OPPOSITION TO $36,000,000 RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

WASHINGTON, April 13—(AP)—While opposition again was coming to the surface today against the $36,000,000 omnibus rivers and harbors bill, the war department transmitted to the house a recommendation that $7,322,400 be expended for water power development surveys on rivers and streams in all sections of the country.

Three proposals in the omnibus measure were attacked before the republican steering committee of the house by a group of members from mid-western states, who contended they were of too great magnitude to be considered with what they regarded as emergency projects.

Under fire were the proposed all-American canal survey, and Illinois river development and Cape Cod canal purchase and development.

The estimates of the survey include streams draining to the Atlantic north of Cape Cod, St. Croix, Machias, Union, Penobscot, Kennebec, Androscoggin, Presumpsoot, Saco, Kennebunk, Sinmon Falls and Merrimack, $147,000.

Streams draining to the Atlantic Ocean between Cape Cod and New York harbor—Taunton, Pawtucket, Pawcatuck, Thames, Connecticut, Housatonic—$34,200.

Hudson and tributaries. Hoosic, Batton Kill, Wappinger Creek, Walkill, Kinderhook crek $106,500.

NOT TO INTERFERE WITH SALE OF MEDICINAL TONIC

HARTFORD, April 13—(AP)— A twelve ounce bottle of the tonic, declared recently to be within the legal requirements of the prohibition law, has been sent to Attorney General Frank E. Healy by a Milwaukee, Wis. corporation. The company asks the attorney general whether there is a Connecticut law which would prohibit its sale now that the tonic has been allowed by federal prohibition authorities. The product is 3.5 per cent. alcohol, 25 per cent. solids and the rest non-alcoholic liquids. The basic compound is malt and hops.

The company will be informed that this state will not interfere with the sale providing the tonic complies with the pure food regulations.

STUDY IN PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, April 13—(AP)—Several of the departments of Yale university have begun a co-operative study in personnel management, according to a report to the personnel research federation, made public today. The department of government, applied physiology, industrial engineering, the divinity school and the bureau of appointments are working together to train students in the problems presented to industrial executives today.

Settlement in Case Created by Gilpatric

R. [illegible] Bradley of Putnam to Receive $20,000 in Bonds —Blair & Co. Allowed $20,616.67.

HARTFORD, April 13—(AP)—The terms of the settlement of the claims of Ransom H. Bradley, of Putnam, and Blair and Company, Inc., against the receiver of the First National bank of Putnam, which was wrecked by the plundering of its former cashier, G. Harold Gilpatric, were made public today by Lucius F. Robinson, counsel for the receiver.

The terms provided that the receiver deliver to Bradley $20,000 of Dallas Joint Stock Land bonds now in his possession and the receiver allow the claim of Blair and Company for $20,616.67. In addition the two claimants have agreed that, in order to divide the loss, that Bradley turn over half the bonds to Blair & Co., and Blair & Co. turn over to Bradley one half the dividends as received on his claim as it is allowed.

In the suit in the federal court just discontinued by the settlement, it appeared that Bradley ordered of the First National bank of Putnam, through Gilpatric, $20,000 of Dallas Joint Stock Land bonds. Gilpatric pretended he had bought them of Blair & Co. and gave Bradley a statement showing their purchase at 98, or for $19,600. Bradley paid down $19,000 with the understanding that he was to pay the balance on delivery of the bonds, plus accrued interest.

Gilpatric had not, however, purchased the bonds as he said, but pursued by Bradley for delivery of them, he ordered of Blair & Co. $20,000 of bonds on July 24, 1924. Blair & Co. delivered the bonds at a price of 101 1-2 plus accrued interest. But Gilpatric did not pay for the bonds, and two weeks later shot himself, leaving his tangled financial affairs for others to unravel.

In the suit both Bradley and Blair & Co. claimed title to the bonds, which remained at the bank, and the receiver, George M. Coffin, being unable to decide for them, allowed them to sue on their claims. Bradley was represented by John F. Carpenter, of Putnam, and Blair & Co. by Priaulx and White of New Haven. In the process of the settlement it was finally decided that which ever claimant was not entitled to the bonds was entitled to an allowance of his claims against the bank receiver. Bradley's $10,000 having gone into the bank and the bonds of Blair & Co. having remained in the possession of the bank. With this as a basis, it was agreed that the bonds should be delivered to Bradley and the claim of Blair & Co. be allowed as a general claim.

DOWAGER DUCHESS DE ROHAN AUTHOR AND PAINTER, DEAD

PARIS, April 13.—(AP)—Herminie, Dowager Duchess De Rohan, author and painter, died heer today. She was 73 years of age.

The Dowager Duchess De Rohan was a member of one of the most illustrious of the feudal families of France, which claimed connection with the ancient sovereigns of Brittany. She was the widow of the Duke De Rohan, deputy of Marbihan, who died in 1914. Her son, the 12th Duke De Rohan, died of wounds received in the battles of Verdun and the Somme.

She was born in Paris, July 28, 1853, a daughter of the Marquis De Vertellac, and was married to the duke in 1872. Her works include poems, Lande Fleurie, Les Lucioles and others.

The duchess was a member of the France-American committe, and also of the society of authors, French poets, French artists and the union of women painters and sculptors.

New Britain Elects Republican Mayor

Mayor Paonessa, Democrat, Defeated by Gardner C. Weld Yesterday 6,695 to 6,482

NEW BRITAIN, April 13—(AP)—Gardner C. Weld, republican, was elected mayor of New Britain today, defeating Mayor Angelo M. Paonessa, democrat. The vote was: Weld 6695, Paonessa 6482, Weld's majority 213. A total of 13,171 votes was cast.

Mayor Paonessa is completing two terms and was a nominee for re-election. Mr. Weld is comparatively a newcomer in New Britain politics. He is president of the Citizens' Coal company.

GREAT BRITAIN FACING SERIOUS COAL PROBLEM

LONDON, April 13—(AP)—For the moment interest lies rather outside than inside of the house of commons, which reassembled today after Easter, and it is already evident that the government is faced with an extremely difficult and delicate task in reconciling many conflicting points of view before a solution of the coal problem is possible.

The first conference between the coal mine owners and miners' representatives today ended in a deadlock. This leaves no alternative but intervention by the government, and a cabinet meeting has been called for tomorrow to consider the situation. At the conference the miners presented their detailed reply to the recommendations of royal coal commission.

The government had hoped that with the promise of a state loan to tide over the industry during the coming months, the miners as well as the owners would be willing to accept the commission's recommendation. This, however, the miners declined to do.

Briefly, they will consent to no increase in working hours and no reduction of wages, while they insist the minimum wage must be settled nationally, and not by districts as recommended by the commission. They declare: "No settlement is acceptable which fails to provide a wage enabling miners to get a decend standard of living."

No arrangement was made for a further conference, because it was found that neither side was willing to make any concessions on the question of a minimum wage. The door, however, is not entirely closed to negotiations, and it is thought that other meetings will be held tomorrow.

MUSSOLINI WELCOMED BY ARABIAN DIGNITARIES

TRIPOLI, April 13.—(AP)—The festival of rejoicing, in which the Islamic population of Tripoli was celebrating tonight the termination of the austere Ramadan period of one month, was converted into a brilliant manifestation when Premier Mussolini decided to pay a surprise visit to the quarter of the city inhabited by the Mussumans.

The premier's appearance at the gate of the ancient city accompanied by a guard of honor composed of Libyan Ascaris and Savaris was followed by a great rush of Arabs through the narrow lanes where the celebration had been going on since the Ramadan had been ushered out by a salvo of guns at 4 o'clock this morning. Parades, in which huge flags were carried, and sacred green flaks and multi-colored tribal ones with star and crescent, comprising singers, dancers and flagellating fakirs, which had been flitting through the streets all day long converged to meet the premier.

After a welcome by the Arabian dignitaries, Mussolini was conducted through the Turkish market, where he examined the long row of booths, containing silks, satins, rugs, beautiful colorful stuffs from every corner of the Moslem world, and conversed through interpreters with the dignified merchants, who were seated crosslegged.

WETS PICTURE DEBAUCHERY UNDER PROHIBITION LAW

Father Kasaczun of Sugar Notch, Pa., Described Orgies in the Homes of Miners—Mrs. Viola Anglim, Deputy Chief Probation Officer in New York City Family Court, Testified to a Lowering of Moral and Spiritual Conditions in New York—House Committee Will Begin Next Tuesday a General Survey of Conditions Under Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, April 13—(AP)—Intimate pictures of conditions under prohibition in the Pennsylvania anthracite districts and in the New York city tenements were given today to the senate liquor committee as the wets again took up their presentation after having given way to the drys for a day.

Father Francis Kasaczun, rector of the Holy Family church at Sugar Notch, Pa., described distilling and orgies in the homes of miners, while Mrs. Viola Anglim, deputy chief probation officer in the New York city family court, testified as to a lowering of moral and spiritual conditions in New York.

Before these witnesses were heard, Stanley Shirk, research director of the Moderation League, Inc., of New York, spent an hour presenting statistics and charts based on official police reports which showed, he contended, that drunkenness under bone dry laws was just as prevalent as before Volstead days.

All three witnesses emphasized what they contended was the demoralizing effect of prohibition upon the young. Father Kasaczun delared that in his section young girls who before prohibition would not have associated with men who drank habitually now will go only with youngsters who can supply them with liquor.

Bluntly and graphically, the priest described immorality in the homes of miners, at nearby resorts and road houses and declared that conditions had come to such a pass that even very young children drink liquor.

"I was in one home recently," he said, "and heard a three-year-old child crying, 'Moonshine, mamma, moonshine'. I asked the mother if she had ever given her children liquor and she replied probably at times when guests were present drinking."

Mrs. Anglim testified that her 14 probation officers in New York had told her of finding several hundred stills in their districts, most of them in tenement houses. This liquor is made in the presence of children, she asserted, insisting that the condition of women and children was worse since prohibition than before.

Mr. Shirk declared that it was "common knowledge" that drinking among boys and girls since national prohibition was adopted has been steadily increasing. He pointed to police reports of Washington, D. C., showing an increase of 54 per cent in the number of arrests of young people for drunkenness in 1924 as compared with pre-prohibition years.

Presenting figures to show marked increases in the number of arrests of drunken automobile drivers in recent years, Mr. Shirk attributed this largely to flask drinking on the roads and at parties. He explained that his figures had been obtained from police chiefs over the country and consequently were official.

Recalling Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, tomorrow, the wets plan to close their case Friday and then the drys will resume their presentation with 22 hours left in which to conclude.

Before the hearing is over, a new one will get under way at the other end of the capitol, the house alcoholic liquor traffic control committee having voted to begin next Tuesday a general survey of conditions under prohibition.

WET AND DRY ARGUMENTS IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 13—(AP)—Wet and dry arguments dinned upon Washington today from early morning until late night, reverberating through the halls of congress and uptown conventions and ending at a Jefferson day dinner.

The wets started off the day's barrage by calling three additional witnesses before the senate liquor committee to testify that moral conditions had grown worse under the Volstead act.

The drys countered through the woman's national committee on law enforcement with a challenge to the American people to "uphold the constitution."

Both sides went into action again in the afternoon, with Attorney General General Sargent delivering a broadside before the woman's committee against both violators and critics of the prohibition law, and Representative La Guardia, progressive-socialist, New York, in the house, asserting that 334 cases of liquor held under court order at Indianapolis, Ind., had disappeared.

Meantime, the senate civil service committee reported a bill to put prohibition agents under civil service and the house committee on liquor traffic control decided to begin next Tuesday a survey of conditions under prohibition.

Governor Ritchie of Maryland, topped off the day's proceedings with an address at the Jefferson day celebration tonight in which he pointed to the principles of Thomas Jefferson and to the bill of rights in defending his opposition to the prohibition law.

STORMY DEBATE IN SENATE ABOUT PREMIER MUSSOLINI

WASHINGTON, April 13—(AP)—Another storm of debate about Premier Mussolini broke today in the senate as the Italian debt settlement again was pressed to the front.

An address opposing the settlement and plastering with attacks on the Italian prime minister was delivered by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee. It brought protests from both sides of the chamber.

Characterizing Mussolini as a "despot" Senator McKellar said he was "the greatest evil that has befallen the Italian people in a hundred years," adding that the king was "putty in his hands" and that the royal household "has been bought off" by large appropriations for their use.

Then bringing 15 specific indictments against the fascisti leader, the Tennessee senator declared he had destroyed constitutional government in Italy; abolished free speech; muzzled the newspaper; in effect had abolished both houses of parliament and had established an "autocratic rule" as complete as that of the bolshevists in Russia.

A protest against the speech was voiced by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who declared no senator should make such an address about a friendly government. He added that one reading the senator's remarks might conclude that they were preparatory to a declaration of war.

"I want it understood that the senator is speaking for himself and not for the rest of the senate," declared Senator Reed. "His statements are bound to wound the feelings of the Italian people."

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, added his voice in protest, declaring that if the people of Italy want a dictatorship by Mussolini "that's their business."

"We ought to be very moderate here in our statements regarding a friendly power," he added, while Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, suggested that the senate should go into executive session so it might "receive the opinions of the senator from Tennessee without having them cabled all over the world."

Finally the discussion got around to what Thomas Jefferson would think and say about Mussolini if he were alive on this, his birthday anniversary. Senator McKellar thought he would condemn the premier, but Senator Copeland was equally certain that he would not attack a friendly government.

WATERBURY CARPENTERS CREATING NEW WAGE SCALE

WATERBURY, April 13.—(AP) — A stormy session marked the meeting here tonight of members of the Carpenters' union called for the purpose of creating a new wage scale. It was voted to ask $8.50 a day for the first year and $9 a day for the second year, the present contract system covering a period of two years. Many of the carpenters protested that the $9 a day scale should be in vogue for both years but they were eventually overruled. The present scale is $8 a day.

It is understood that the other building trades will adopt a similar scale before Thursday when the present contract expires. The present scale is $8 a day.

JUDGE LINDSEY'S TRIBUTE TO LUTHER BURBANK

SANTA ROSA, Cal., April 13.—(AP)—Judge Ben B Lindsey, who has transplanted many a drooping human tendril from the scur sail of the streets and brought it to the bloom of a fine citizenship in the sunshine of affection and understanding, was here today to pay tribute at the simple bier of another wonder-worker for human-kind, Luther Burbank.

The kindly judge, who changes the nature of the little human plants, and the kindly field worker and philosopher who had drawn a new flora from the soil of his Sonoma fields, were friends of years standing, drawn together through a kinship in growing things, plant and human.

On arriving from Denver today, Judge Lindsey went straight to the Burbank home, where he remained for two hours, conversing with the widow and close friends, and gazing on the white face of the dead.

Meanwhile, men were busy in the gardens across the way digging a grave in the shade of a Lebanon cedar.

Tomorrow, when the sun is dying out behind the hills toward the coast, the body will be borne across the wide highway to that grave and deposited there without requiem prayer, for he was no believer in the literal hereafter.

"Burbank was the world's most contented man," Judge Lindsey said.

"He had more real satisfaction and joy from his work than any other human being."

Referring to the religious controversy that recently swept around Burbank, Judge Lindsey said:

"It is a pretty pass when a man cannot air his opinions and views without a flood of criticism such as befell Burbank. We are living in an age of intolerance and fanaticism approaching the savagery of the days of the inquisition. What the country needs is brave men who will withstand such criticism.

"Burbank was one of the great prophets of his time."

Judge Lindsey will speak at both the Burbank funeral service and at the public services which will be held two hours earlier. At this public service, Dr. C. S. S. Dutton, pastor of the Unitarian church in San Francisco, who married Burbank and his secretary, Miss Elizabeth Waters, ten years ago, also will speak.

Minister of transportation and minister of agriculture, ad interim:—M. Jovanovitch.

INTIMATE GEN. BUTLER ATTEMPTED TO BROWBEAT SUBORDINATE OFFICERS

MARINE BASE, SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 13.—(By The A. P.)—Intimations that Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler attempted to browbeat subordinate officers into submitting written statements supporting the charge of intoxication he brought against Colonel Alexander S. Williams last month, came out in the closing hours of testimony at today's session of the colonel's court martial.

The question of what, if any, pressure was brought to bear on the officers of General Butler's command developed during the prosecution's attempt to impeach a defense witness.

This witness, Captain George F. Stokes, adjutant of the Fourth Regiment of Marines, had testified on direct examination that he was at the Hotel Del Coronorado on the night of March sixth, last, when Colonel Williams is alleged to have been drunk, and that he noticed nothing unusual about the colonel's behaviour.

He admitted that out on the hotel grounds, a little later he noticed the colonel was unsteady on his feet, and sick enough or intoxicated enough to be unfit for duty.

Upon hearing this admission, the judge advocate, Captain Leo Hermle, producted a written statement and asked the witness if he recognized it as one he had submitted to General Butler.

Captain Stokes said he recognized the statement as his own. Captain Hermle thereupon declared the admission that Colonel Williams was sick or intoxicated contradicted a flat assertion in the written statement to the effect that the colonel appeared to be perfectly normal.

Defense counsel objected vigorously to admission of the written statement as evidence.

Captain Stokes explained that the reason his statement appeared to contradict his testimony was that when General Butler ordered him to prepare the statement he understood the general to mean a statement confined to "what happened in the ball room of the Hotel Del Coronorado."

So, he said, he did not mention what he noticed outside, on the grounds of the hotel.

What helped him to be careful, he added, was the fact that when officers present at the hotel on the night in question first submitted their written statements to General Butler, the statements were handed back with the remark:

"You boys know what is wanted. Now, go back and write new statements."

"Do you mean to say," asked the judge advocate, "that General Butler's attitude or instructions led you to tell a lie in your statement?"

"No, there is no lie in my statement."

Whereupon, the wrangle between counsel over whether the statement should be barred from the record as "a confession obtained under stress," went on with rising bitterness until Captain Clifton B. Gates and Lewis R. Kirby of defense counsel threw up their hands and told the judge advocate to go ahead and do as he pleased. So the statement was admitted in evidence.

"GENTLEMAN RADIO BURGLAR" ARRESTED AT POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—A man who confessed to police that he was Brooklyn's "gentleman radio burglar" was arrested today while attending the opening baseball game at the Polo Grounds. The radio burglar terrorized residents of queens in a series of thefts in which he looted homes of 150 radio sets and shot four policemen who at various times confronted him. He was armed when arrested.

The identity of the "radio burglar" was learned by police from a pawnbroker to whom Hilton had sold some of his loot. His prison records disclosed the fact that he was an ardent baseball fan, and today at the polo grounds police and the pawnbroker's son watched the line of fans on hand for the opening of the season.

The pawnbroker's son first recognized Hilton and the police closed in on him, subduing him with blackjacks when he attempted to draw a pistol and fight his way to freedom, as he had done on several other occasions.

Hilton's confession in which he admitted fourteen burglaries, led to the detention by police of Morris Reiff, proprietor of a Third avenue radio shop, who is said to have admitted buying radio sets and silverware from Hilton.

According to police, Hilton used the aliases or "Frank Merriwell," "William Cody," and "William P. Hilton." Under these names, they said, he has served terms in Elmira prison, N. Y., Rhode Island state prison and Cranston prison, N. J.

Wets continued their testimony before the senate prohibition committee, the house liquor traffic committee decided to make its own survey.

NO REPORT FORM GILPATRIC ACCOUNTANTS UNTIL MAY

HARTFORD, April 13—(AP)—The special investigating committee consisting of former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, Morgan G. Brainard, and Charles G. Morris, for the purpose of investigating the financial manipulations of G. Harold Gilpatric, former State treasurer and former cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam, will not receive its report from the accountants until some time in May, it was learned today.

CHARGE OF IMPROPER USE OF MORE THAN $3,000,000

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—Charges that W. B. Ward, baking magnate, had improperly used more than $5,000,000 of the General Baking Corporation's funds to finance personal dealings in its stock were followed today by a counter accusation that an investigation by a special stockholders' committee merely represented an attempt by William Deininger, former head of the corporation's gain control.

The committee, asking that it be empowered to take action against the corporation's directors and officers, asserted that Mr. Ward and the Ward securities corporation had turned back to the General Baking treasury 119,900 shares of class "A" stock for which they were paid $8,547,935 These transactions, it was said, were made without the knowledge or approval of the board of directors until April 6, when a resolution ratifying them was adopted.

After the Ward holdings had been unloaded on the corporation at an average price of almost $72 a share, the class "A" stock broke sharply on the curb market, and today reached a new low level for the year at $44.50 before rallying to round $50.

Ward's activities, the committee indicated, were made possibly by his acquisition of a controlling interest in the General Baking Corporation, which he proposed to use as emcleus for a $400,000,000 merger involving the Ward baking and Continental Baking Corporations. The consolidation was never effected and subsequent plans to form a $2,000,000 Ward food products corporation were thwarted by federal action.

"BABE" RUTH CHARGED WITH NON-PAYMENT INCOME TAX

BOSTON, April 13—(AP)—Babe Ruth, home run slugger of the New York American league baseball club, was caught in the mesh of the law today. State authorities made known that they hold warrants for his arrest for non-payments of the 1923 and 1924 Massachusetts income taxes, and while Ruth hurried hither and thither trying to explain that he really did not live in Massachusetts, a traffic officer tagged the Babe's automobile.

George Herman Ruth of Sudbury, Mass., the authorities discovered, had paid no income taxes in 1923 and 1924. They did not say how much taxes the Babe was assessed, for the law enjoins secrecy, but the ball player was notified that he must explain his failure to pay. Having arrived in Boston with the Yankees, Ruth made haste to comply. He went to the state house and conferred with Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporations and taxation.

He issued from the state house accompanied by an income tax collectional official. They betook themselves to collection headquarters at Court street. The Babe left the car he was riding in parked in Court square.

The state people argued that Ruth had a residence in Sudbury where his wife and child lived. Ruth contended that he based his objection to paying solely on the claim that he had no legal residence in the state. A statement from the office of the tax commissioner set forth that Ruth had not paid the taxes.

FOUR CASES DISPOSED OF IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 13—With forty cases on the docket, the April term of the criminal side of the Windham county superior court opened in this city, Tuesday forenoon, Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich on the bench. But four of the cases were disposed of Tuesday, three of these cases being new. Two were for non-support, one for statutory burglary and the fourth for failure to give the right of way.

Raymond Saucier of Killingly, charged with statutory burglary committed on the night of February 1, 1926, when he entered the garage of Louis Morrison of Killingly and stole two automobile tires, pleaded guilty to the charge. County Protector C. L. Torrey, representing the accused, said that Saucier had mended his ways. At the time he made the break he was in financial straits, working only two and three days a week. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford said that he had reason to believe that the [illegible] would better himself if given a chance. Saucier has a wife and three small children. Judge Brown imposed a sentence of one year in jail, suspending the sentence and placing Saucier on probation for a year, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer.

Myron Pratt, formerly of Ashford, now a resident of this city, was charged with non-support of his wife and four children, since September 15, 1924. Pratt pleaded guilty. Mrs. Pratt has died since 1924 and two of the children are in the county home, one is cared for elsewhere and the other is being supported by the town of Ashford. County Protector Torrey said that Pratt showed a willingness to help his family and that he has agreed to reimburse the town of Ashford for the care of one of his children at the rate of five to six dollars a week. Pratt said that he earned $23 a week. He was told by the court that if he would consent to pay $10 a week on the bill his sentence would be light. Pratt agreed and Judge Brown imposed a suspended jail sentence of one year, Pratt is on probation and answerable to Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham.

Fred Edwin Baker of Hampton, charged with non-support of his wife and [illegible] children, pleaded guilty. County Protector Torrey said that Baker was [illegible] U. S. Coast Guard service and receiving $44 a month.

Should Baker be found guilty he would be ousted from a position which pays him a larger salary during the summer season. Baker has been suspended from duty since his arrest. The case was taken up later in the session by Judge Brown in conference with the principals and was nolled, on payment of $25.

Joseph Gagner, charged with causing the loss of life by [illegible] negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle and the charge modified to that of failure to give right of way on the highway on which charge he was found guilty. Judge Brown imposed a fine of $50 and costs amounting to $67.09. The case dates from the evening of December 12, last, when a car operated and driven by Elbee Gomo at the intersection of the highway near the railroad station in North Grosvenordale. Both Gagner and Gomo were residents of that place and overseers at the cotton mills there. A child in Gomo's car was thrown to the road and died shortly after at a hospital, from a punctured lung. It was said that Gagner was hurrying to his home but not driving fast past the intersection. Confusion of mind appeared responsible for the accident in which the Gomo car was struck broadside. The families continued friendly but gloom was cast over the homes. Attorney Bradford felt that due to the fact that the unfortunate collision was purely accidental and that Gagner had joined in the grief of the Gomo family, severe punishment was not necessary. Judge Brown then imposed the fine.

Court adjourned about 2 o'clock until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Much of the session had been taken up in conferences between Judge Brown, the state's attorney and attorneys for the defendants. At the opening of court prayer was offered by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, pastor of the local Methodist church.

TOWN CLERK F. P. FENTON LAUDS FLORIDA ATTRACTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 13—Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton entertained and instructed with a talk of Florida the Lunch Opportunity at the weekly luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club, at the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday noon. The newly elected president James P. Bath presided with ability. The program was in charge of Charles B. Pomeroy, new chairman of the entertainment committee, who introduced the speaker. The guests of the club were Rotarian Del Perry of New Britain, H. Clinton Lathrop, guests of Albert H. Smith and Mr. Card, guest of Roland B. Jordan. Prof. Richard E. Dodge, chairman of the On to Bridgeport committee reported that the following members were planning to attend the 1926 spring conference at the Hotel Stratfield: President, James P. Bath, Vice President R. E. Dodge, Secretary Gerard E. Loisell, Walter Abbe and Louis A. Kingsbury. The party will leave this city about nine o'clock Thursday morning, returning Friday night or Saturday morning.

The club voted to accept the invitation of the Willimantic Exchange club to attend their meeting of Wednesday evening, April 28, when Mr. Dillon recreational directors of Hartford will speak on Playgrounds. Among communications read by Secretary Loisell was a card of appreciation from Mrs. Leo A. Korper and daughters, Hartford, for flowers and expressions of sympathy sent on the death of Rotarian Leo Korper.

Several songs were sung under the direction of Song Leader Dr. R. B. Jones with John T. Quinlan at the piano. In his interesting talk Captain Fenton said that in his opinion Florida is only on the threshold of its boom. He went on to tell of its excellent climate, and wonderful agricultural resources. Twenty million of the thirty-five million acreage of Florida is available for agricultural and fruit growing industries. He expressed great faith in the future of the land.

The meeting adjourned at 1.30 o'clock.

Baby Fretful?
Avoid Constipation

Remember your baby is helpless, unable to point out that constipation is making its life miserable. You must be able to recognize the symptoms.

Convulsions, night terrors, grinding the teeth in sleep, feverishness, fretfulness—all indicate that poisons from baby's stagnant intestine are flooding the little body.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

MESSENGER BOY SUES FOR DAMAGED BICYCLE

Peter Wawrzenowicz, a minor, messenger boy for the Postal Telegraph company on Main street, through his father, Alexander Wawrzenowicz of this city, has brought suit against Fred Herman of this city, in a civil action claiming $60 damages. The matter is expected to come to trial April 17 before Justice of the Peace Frank N. Gardner at his office in the Central building, at 10 o'clock.

According to the papers, on March 27, 1926, at about 7:20 p. m. the defendant or his agents were conducting a drove of horses over and along Main street, and it is claimed that they negligently and carelessly permitted the herd to become unmanageable and to run upon the sidewalk and over the bicycle owned by the defendant, breaking and totally destroying the machine. The bicycle is alleged to have been worth $40 and it is also claimed that the messenger boy has to pay 75 cents per day for hire of another bicycle.

STAFFORD SPRINGS POOL ROOM CASE APPEAL VACATED BY GERRHOLT

(Special to the Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, April 13.—Paul Gerrholt, who was tried in the borough court last January for violation of the liquor laws and who took an appeal to the superior court, has vacated his appeal. Last evening he went to Tolland jail to serve the sentence as imposed by Judge Heald in the lower court. Gerrholt was fined $275 and costs and sentence to serve ten days in jail. He has paid the fine and costs amounting in all to $308.96 and is now serving the ten day jail sentence. The charges against Gerrholt were keeping with intent to sell, reputation and allowing minors to loiter in his pool room. A raid on Gerrholt's place on West Main street by the state police, previous to the arrest netted a large quantity of liquor in addition to a crate containing eight and a quarter dozen empty pint bottles, and other containers.

Chrysler "70" Royal Sedan $1995, f. o. b. Detroit

All America Has Taken The Incomparable Chrysler To Its Heart

The Chrysler "70" sells itself every time it exhibits its dashing appearance on road or highway. The contrast between it and other cars is so marked that the desire to own one is bred then and there.

But that desire is as nothing compared to the delight induced later on. For the Chrysler is just as far beyond comparison in performance, roadability, ease of handling and durability as it is in looks.

That the American people have taken the Chrysler to their hearts is no surprise at all—it is a very natural thing.

They are almost extravagantly enthusiastic about the Chrysler because the Chrysler has shown them long-lived motoring delights beyond all comparison.

We are eager to demonstrate the Chrysler's many advantages.

DANIELSON

PETER CHARON DIES AT NORWICH HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 13. — Peter Charron, on whose account Mandzig Kamillian is held in default of bonds at the Windham county jail in Brooklyn on a charge of assault with intent to kill, died during Monday night at the Norwich State hospital and the body was removed to Putnam.

At the instance of Coroner Arthur G. Bill an autopsy was performed Tuesday afternoon by Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner for the town of Putnam.

Charron was brought to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam last Thursday in an unconcious condition, and it is alleged that the state he was in was due to a beating that he received with a club in the hands of Kamillian, a man nearly 70.

The state will charge that Charron, with two other men, Nelson Beauchesne and Fred Mignault, said to be residents of Putnam, went to the Kamillian farm in a car last Thursday for a cider drinking party. Just what happened there has not been divulged, but the upshot of all the goings-on was that Kamillian attacked Charron with a club, and rendered him unconscious.

Kamillian was arrested by State Officer Nelson of the Danielson barracks, lodged at the police station here and held for a hearing under bonds of $2,000, which he could not produce. Saturday Kamillian was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward of the Killingly town court, but hearing on his case was continued to await the outcome of Charron's injuries. Kamillian's bond was continued at $2,000, not being able to raise it he was committed to the Windham county jail at Brooklyn and is still held there.

Tuesday's autopsy was intended to establish beyond reasonable doubt the exact cause of Charron's death. There is, of course, the possibility that he died from causes other than resulted from the terrific beating that Kamillian is alleged to have administered to him.

Charron became so unbalanced mentally at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Sunday that he was removed to the state hospital in Norwich, in charge of an officer from the Danielson barracks.

Charron was not questioned at any length concerning what happened at the Kamillian place. He could not be questioned Friday, the day after he was brought to the hospital, because his condition was so serious. Saturday, he was not sufficiently improved to have him go into any details relative to the affair in which he was injured and on Sunday he became insane in a degree that precluded any possibility of his giving a rational account of what officials wanted to know.

It is said that a cut that he had near the base of the skull had partly healed before he left Putnam for Norwich. His death came as a surprise, though last Friday he was regarded as in a dangerous state. He had shown such improvement on Saturday that there was some hope that he might recover.

Taking Charron's history was proving a difficult task for those who attempted it during Tuesday. He is said to have a sister and a brother working in Plainfield and another sister resident in Lowell. State Officer Nelson was tracing out this information.

Kamillian lives on a farm in an isolated section of the northern part of the town of Killingly, near Putnam Heights. He is a man of even temperment and apparently kindly disposition.

THE NEW FIRE ALARM SIREN BLOWN BY COMPRESSED AIR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 13.—Chief A. P. Woodward said Tuesday that an order will be placed soon with the Gamewell company for the auxiliary fire alarm siren that is to be installed at the central fire station on Academy street.

The device is known as the Gamewell diaphone, is blown by compressed air and is guaranteed to make the welkin ring when an alarm is pulled in. It will blow synchornized with the present steam siren on the plant of the Paco Manufacturing company.

The diaphone is said to shriek fire in an unmistakable tone, and there is never any danger of confusing it with some whistle—never a question as to whether or not it is a fire alarm. The diaphone was first developed for use on lighthouses and at other dangerous seaboard points. It can be heard at a greater distance than any other form of alarm.

The diaphone horn is placed on or near the roof of the structure where it is to be located. The motor compressor and compressed air reservoirs will be placed in the rear of the appartus room at the Danielson central station. There are two compressed air tanks, a small one near the diaphone, and a larger one down stairs from which the small one will be supplied.

Under favorable conditions the diaphone alarm can be heard for a distance of ten miles. It is rated a "howling" success in scores of towns and cities where it has been installed.

KAMMILLIAN ONCE FINED IN KILLINGLY TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 13.—Records of the town court of Killingly show that Mandzig Kammillian, held at Brooklyn in connection with the death of Peter Charron of Putnam, was fined December 9, 1923, for violation of the liquor laws. The fine, on two counts, amounted to $300, and in addition he paid the costs of prosecution.

Broadcasting of the fact that the New Haven road has one of its officers on duty checking up cars that park without authorization at the local passenger station had the effect of keeping many would-be parkers away on Tuesday. It appears that the impression has gained ground that those who park there without warrant might be hailed into court.

Communications received from a number of brokerage houses relative to the issue of $150,000 of school bonds of the town of Killingly indicate that these bonds will command a premium. F. A. Jacobs of the building committee, in touch with these concerns, says that he has been advised that June likely will be the most favorable month for making the issue.

In his annual report as health officer of the borough of Danielson, Dr. W. H. Judson enumerates eight cases of scarlet fever, four cases of diphtheria, three cases of tuberculosis, a very few cases of impetigo and an epidemic of measles in the borough during the past year. Prompt isolation of patients, Dr. Judson points out, prevented an epidemic of scarlet fever.

Rats in the city dump have claimed the attention of the health officer the past year. Some have been killed, some poisoned, but there remains work to be done there.

Chief A. P. Woodward is starting on his 25th year as head of Danielson's fire department. This is a record of long service surpassing that of any other man who has held the position of chief engineer in the history of the Danielson department. During Chief Woodward's administration the central station in Academy street has been constructed, a fire alarm telegraph system installed and the department completely motorized.

County Agent Frank L. Davis of Putnam will be at the home of Charles Breen in Scotland today (Wednesday) for conference with those who have matters to discuss with him.

Food, apron, fancy article sale, Ladies' Benevolent society, Congregational church, April 23.—adv.

Borough reports show uncollected taxes as follows: List of 1923, $308.20; list of 1924, $461.15; list of 1925, $926.22, a total of $1,799.57. This is being steadily reduced by constant effort at collection.

Exquisite lines of silk frocks—printed crepe, Georgette and crepe de chine, reasonably priced and in great variety, at the Alice-Eleanor shop. The outstanding lines in Danielson.—adv.

Danielson people have yet to make the record of casting their ballots in an election so that each and every ballot shall count. Three ballots were thrown out in Monday's election as bearing no marks whatsoever.

Danielson members of the Putnam Country club are now going in numbers to the links, which are in improved condition each day.

Henry A. Peterson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Royal Cord balloon tires (seconds) at surprisingly low prices. Goulet's Tire Shop, Union street. You save real money here.—adv.

A recommendation of Walter Anderson, retired warden, is a change in the borough charter to eliminate the need of filing borough tax lists, there being but one other municipality in Connecticut now duplicating this work, other cities and boroughs using the tax lists filed with the towns in which they are located for fixing borough assessments.

Danielson now has a total of 56 fire hydrants, two having been installed in the past year. At these hydrants water pressure varies according to location from 30 to 60 pounds.

The wedding of Miss Martha Noyes of Lyme and Richard Lee of Hartford, which was to have taken place Saturday afternoon at the home of the former's cousin, Mrs. D. W. Robertson in Portland, was postponed, to this week, due to the serious illness of the bridegroom's father.

POULTRY

PAN-A-CE-A

Prevents the backsets

It keeps the flock right on the road to early maturity.

You simply add one pound of Pan-a-ce-a to 50 pounds of mash, or one teasponoful for every 20 or 30 chicks once a day.

Pan-a-ce-a contains tonics that keep the flock hungry.

Pan-a-ce-a contains laxatives that helps the bowels throw off the poisons.

Pan-a-ce-a contains minerals very helpful to chicks during that stage of rapid growth of bone and feathers.

Costs little to use Pan-a-ce-a—the price of just one broiler will pay for all the Pan-a-ce-a 200 chicks will consume in 60 days.

In fact it costs nothing to feed enough Pan-a-ce-a to prove its worth if it should fail to convince you.

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13.—William David Case, 137 School street, Putnam, died of heart trouble Tuesday morning, about 6 o'clock.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Wilder, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a son, Fred H. Case, of Worcester; also six grandchildren, Charles Wilder, Jr., Janette Wilder, and Frederic, Jr., Lebbeus, Philip and David Case. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Daniel Brayton of West Thompson.

William Case began his life work here, about 50 years ago, in the shoe manufacturing business with the late Charles M. Fisher, on the site of the present passenger station of the New Haven railroad. Later he occupied for many years the factory on School street, now the factory of the Wheaton Building & Lumber Co., where he manufactured men's and women's shoes.

Burned out at the time of the fire, he began again and continued until April 1921, when he retired from active business.

He was one of the pioneers in the shoe line and as a boy carried uppers to farms all around this vicinity where the shoes were "pegged bottomed" by the farmers and topped by hand by the thrifty housewives of that day.

The death of his wife, Janette Whitford Case, occurred about two years ago. Mr. Case always had a deep affection for his home, his family and his home town, and took a keen interest in local affairs.

TWO IN BERNIER FAMILY MARRIED THE SAME DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13. — At the 7 o'clock mass yesterday morning Miss Edouilda Benoit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benoit of Bridge street and Le Roy Bernier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bernier of Providence street, were married by Rev. Fr. Adrian Dykeman. The fathers of the bride and groom were the witnesses. The bride was dressed in white crepe, wore a tulle veil with beaded headdress and carried white roses.

Because of a recent death in the family there was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Benoit after their return from a ten days' wedding trip, will take up their residence on Bridge street. Mr. Bernier is an employe at the Waterman Worsted company and the bride has been an employe at the Dady Silk mill.

One hour later, at 8 o'clock, at St. Mary's church, the sister of Mr. Bernier, Miss Dorothy Bernier became the bride of Armand J. Valade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Valade of Walnut street, Rev. Fr. Charles F. Bedard celebrating the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by Miss Antoinette Coderre of Worcester; the brother of the groom, Ulide Valade, of Bridgeport, was best man. The bride was dressed in white crepe, wore a tulle veil held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore pale blue chiffon over rose silk, with hat to match. Both carried white roses. The ceremony was performed inside the altar rail, as the bride is a Child of Mary.

There was a reception and breakfast at the home of the parents of the groom after which Mr. and Mrs. Valade left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and other points. They will make their home in Lakeport, N. H., where the groom is overseer at a cotton plant. The bride's going away gown was of green crepe, worn with a brown hat and coat.

ANOTHER CIVIL WAR SOLDIER, LOUIS LUCIER, DIES AT 85

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13.—Louis Lucier, 85, died yesterday morning after a long illness. He was a Civil war veteran, one of the few remaining survivors of the rebellion, in this city. He had a wide circle of friends and his death will be deeply regretted.

Mr. Lucier was born in St. Denes, Canada, February 20, 1841, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Florentine Lucier. He came to Putnam at about the age of 17, and with the exception of a few years in Norwich and Thompson, spent his entire life here.

This is exclusive of the more than four years in the military service for he enlisted in July 1861, and was not mustered out until the same month in 1865. While at home on a furlough, he married Miss Julienne Bibeault. There are five children, Napoleon O., Rosanna Lucier, Frank X. Lucier, Mrs. Napoleon Jette, Arthur G. Lucier and Waldo Marie Lucier, all of Putnam. Frank X. Lucier is one of the leading jewelers of the city.

HARD CIDER BLAMED FOR QUARREL AND DEATH

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 13.—Peter Charron of Killingly, died last night at Norwich. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital a week ago in an unconscious condition, apparently from a blow on the head, and for which Menzig Kamaitan, also of Killingly, is now a prisoner at the Brooklyn jail, awaiting trail by the superior court. Charron was transferred to the State Hospital for the Insane at Norwich. Charron has been wildly delirious at the hospital ever since he regained consciousness. An X-Ray taken at the hospital disclosed no fracture of the skull, but his condition has all along been regarded as very serious. The accused in the case has always been regarded as a peaceable and good citizen, and the whole affair appears to have been the result of excessive drinking of hard cider.

Arthur Williams of South Woodstock, 74, died from pneumonia at Day Kimball hospital. For some time previous to his illness, he had made his home with Mrs. Briggs at Abington, at a boarding place for elderly and infirm people. The funeral was held from the home of his son, Albert Williams, first selectman of the town of Woodstock. Burial was in Woodstock cemetery. Mr. Williams is survived by three sons, Albert Williams of South Woodstock, Arthur of Providence and John of Derby, Conn., also by a brother, William Williams of Webster, Mass. His wife, Ruth Olney Williams died many years ago and his only daughter, Edith Williams Morton, died several years ago.

Miss Emily Baynton, operating room nurse at the Day Kimball hospital, was called to Boston by the serious illness of her mother, who is a patient at the Boston City hospital.

Rev. James F. English who occupied the pulpit at the Second Congregational church Sunday morning, returned Monday to Hartford where his daughter Janet is ill. His youngest daughter, Alice, was buried at Hartford.

Miss Helen Curtis of Greenfield, Mass. is a new nurse on the staff of the hospital.

Miss Beatrice Stevens, the distinguished artist of Pomfret is making a replica of the quaint sign-board of the Ben Grosvenor Inn with its mounted Colonial horseman. The new sign will be hung on the outside of the Main building as the original signboard which dates from 1765 is now hung within the house for its better preservation.

The following officers of Putnam chapter, Royal Arch Masons, have been elected and installed for the year: High priest, Charles E. Richardson; King, George E. Brousseau; scribe, Ralph E. Thurston; treasurer, L. P. Merriam; secretary, A. W. Marcy; C. of H., Thomas Bell; P. S., George P. Miner; R. A. C., James McCulloch; M. of 3rd V., Allie King; M. of 2nd V., Itay C Bosworth; M. of 1st V., Otis Marrarty; sentinel, Charles Nichols; trustees, G. E. Brousseau, Dr. F. A. Morrell, L. Parker Merriam.

Pupils of North Grosvenordale grammar school who had perfect attendance for the winter term are: John Barylski, Rita Becca, Armand Remilliard, Jennie Becca, Loraine Beaulac, Helen Dryl, Clara Gould, Evelyn Pomper, Irene Beaulac, Ellery Chandler, Albert Houle, Joseph Lusiak, Ovide Laurion, James Cooper, Arthur Raymond, John Pannu, Henri Barylski, Lionel Remilliard, John Teneca, George Vanghel, Helen Johnson and Florence Fatsi.

A Well Child conference is to be held at the Emergency hospital, North Grosvenordale Wednesday, April 14, from 2 to 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Heath have returned to their home on Walnut street after spending the winter with their son Leslie Heath and family at Wethersfield, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Ballard of Reading, Mass., have been guests of Mr. Ballard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Ballard.

Robert Bruce, a student at the Boston university is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruce.

Miss Grace Maurer, an instructor at Brown university, Providence, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shaw.

Miss Madelaine Labonte of Pomfret street has returned from a visit with Miss Ecolia Mathieu at Hartford.

Miss Ruth Maynard has returned to her duties as a teacher at Leonard Bridge after a visit with her father, Henry Maynard of Woodstock avenue.

Mrs. George C. Lincoln of Worcester is visiting her mother, Mrs. Rufus Richardson at Pomfret.

Professor Bruce Simonds and Mrs Simonds of the department of music at Yale have been recent visitors at Pomfret.

Miss Catherine Geary of Portland, Conn., is the guest of her aunt, Miss Margaret Dolan of Chapman street.

Mrs. Francis Burton of Woodbury, Mass., is the guest of her son, Rev. N. B. Burton and family at the parsonage on Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gagnon of Main street have returned from a visit with friends at Providence.

Miss Anna Sherlock of Pomfret street is the guest of Boston friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dingwall have been entertaining friends from New York.

Miss Lottie Alley and sister of Woonsocket are moving into the house owned by A. St. Jean on Providence street.

Miss Eleanor Carpenter has returned from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Ballard at Winthrop, Mass.

Miss Alice Devine of Fremont street is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter C. Richards at Philadelphia.

Wilfred Lacroix and Benjamin Godley of New York have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bonneville.

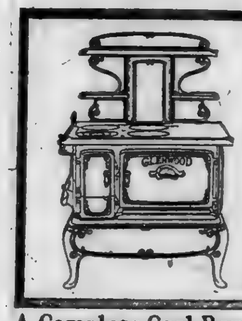
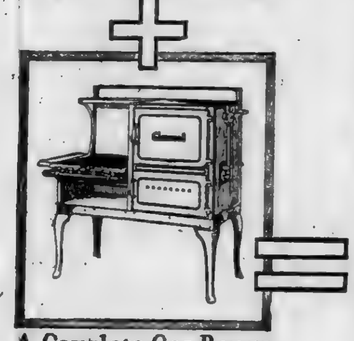
The GOLD MEDAL Glenwood is 2 ranges in 1



A Complete Coal Range



A Complete Gas Range

EVERY woman who keeps house appreciates the comfort of having a coal range for warmth in winter and a gas range to use in summer. But few can spare the kitchen space required by two complete ranges.

How much more convenient it is to have all the facilities of two ranges combined in one! Although the new Gold Medal Glenwood is only a little more than a yard wide, it has a gas oven, gas broiler, coal oven, five gas burners and four large coal covers. Nothing is skimped; every part is full-sized, to give you as much cooking space as you will ever need all the year round.

THE MEXICAN UNDERSTANDING

When matters seemed to have reached an anxious stage between this country and Mexico, it was announced by Secretary Kellogg that the prospects were brightening for an understanding. From that time on tension has been less severe and the announcement now made to the effect that an understanding has been reached with the neighbor to the south should end, at least for the present, the feeling that we were in for another period of strained relations.

Perhaps it would be too much to expect that there would be a complete smoothing out of the situation and a thorough adjustment of the differences of opinion that have prevailed, but there bids fair to be much relief as the result of making public the correspondence that has been carried on concerning these matters.

Uncle Sam raised an objection to the land laws under which a limitation was placed upon the ownership or disposition of land that was obtained before the constitution was put in force and under which the laws are enacted. It has like wise objected to the law which required the alien owners of certain Mexican land to regard themselves as citizens of that country insofar as citizenship is involved in the law. The objections have also included the old question of retroactivity and confiscation concerning the subjects of other countries.

The aim has been to protect the rights of American citizens and at the same time there has been involved ten rights of all citizens in Mexico for the objections have not come from this country alone.

As for the retroactivity question the attitude of President Calles appears to be much the same as that taken by President Obregon when gave assurance that it would not be imposed. This country is looking carefully after the interests of its subjects and in view of the position it takes under the Monroe doctrine it is inclined to do quite the same for the subjects of other countries. Some details may remain to be adjusted from time to time but the situation is greatly relieved by the understanding.

MAKE IT SEAWORTHY

The decision which has been made in Washington that Old Ironsides cannot be towed on its proposed trip along the coast until it has been made seaworthy must be regarded as exceedingly wise.

This vessel is a historical relic which it is desired to preserve and for which preservation funds are now being sought and to which expense large contributions have been made by the school children in many cities of the country.

That there would be many who would like the chance to see and go aboard the Constitution is fully understood. Great numbers have already seen it and it occupies a similar position to the Liberty bell except of course it cannot been possible to take it about the country in the same manner.

For it to be towed to the ports along the coast would no doubt bring not only hordes of visitors but an appreciable amount in small contributions for the necessary reconstruction cost, but until it is seaworthy there is a risk in such a trip which should not be taken.

With vessels which are actually in service going ashore, breaking loose from tugs and being wrecked there can be no disposition on the part of those who are responsible for the old frigate to take chances. The risk is too great, and certainly if modern vessels are required to be seaworthy before being moved from one port to another certainly one that has been inactive as long as Old Ironsides, and which is as valuable from a naval and historical standpoint, should not be.

Saving the old warship for the sake of posterity is one thing and saving it from the uncertainties of a trip along the coast is another. The latter cannot be disregarded in the effort to accomplish the former. It would be folly to try to move the ship and have it stick between ports just because sufficient consideration had not been made to see that it was made fit to be moved before it was allowed to leave its moorings.

BY DIRIGIBLE TO THE POLE

Not all those who are going into the far north are going through the air but there are those who are making elaborate preparations for such a trip in spite of and because of the results obtained by others on a similar quest.

Because there has been much talk about such a flight particular interest is bound to surround the attempt that will be made in the big semi-rigid dirigible Norge, built in Italy which has completed its flight of 1400 miles from Italy to England on its way to Spitsbergen.

This is the expedition which plans to cross the pole and land in Alaska under the guidance of Amundsen, who, it will be remembered, undertook a similar flight in an airplane only to return by a rare bit of good fortune without accomplishing his purpose after having been "lost" for a fortnight. That experience was sufficient to satisfy this intrepid explorer that there were no attractions in a flying machine for such purposes for him. He fully understands the conditions involved in finding a landing place or surface from which to again take the air, quite the same as was the case with the fliers in the MacMillan party.

But with the airship Amundsen believes the right vehicle is at hand and it remains for him to demonstrate it to his satisfaction. The flight to England, on which he was not a passenger, was successfully accomplished without the exhaustion of the gasoline supply and with enough in the tanks to have completed eight hours more flight or something better than an additional 500 miles.

Flying from Italy to England is not however to be compared with a flight across the pole. There are conditions in the polar region which were not encountered in crossing Europe. All will not be fair and rosy in the far north for storms of great severity are not only possible but can be expected, and there will be need for a sufficient supply of fuel to meet such conditions, but even with the many seeking the same spot no traffic jams can be anticipated.

HOME PRODUCTS

The idea has prevailed to a large extent that if you want fine goods it is necessary to go abroad, or on the other hand that if you purchase imported goods you are getting something better than those made in this country.

There is a question whether this is so if we are to judge by the goods which are being displayed by American manufacturers at the International Textile exposition in Boston. Here it is demonstrated that not only are the American industries using the best machinery to be had but they are turning out goods which make it apparent that it isn't necessary to go abroad for quality.

The result of such disclosure must be that just as soon as this can be brought to the attention of the purchasing public there should be an eagerness displayed in insisting upon American goods. It is through the use of the products of American industries that activity is assured and when it is shown that it is no longer necessary to get imported goods in order to be satisfied little else needs to be said.

It is a most important demonstration when it is shown that we must concede nothing to the foreign made product. Equaling it in style, design and quality leaves nothing but the sending home of those facts to the American consumer to command American business. "Buy American made Goods" is quite in keeping with the cry of "See America First." In each instance there is a sound basis for such a demand and likewise it is quite the same as the efforts which are being put forth by other countries. To keep our mills running and producing the high grade goods it is necessary that those who demand them and would insist upon getting them from abroad if not otherwise obtainable give full encouragement to home industries.

EGYPT BALKS

Egypt appears to be displaying a caution which is entirely uncalled for under the circumstances. It is entirely possible that it is not accustomed to receiving such offers as the proposed aluminum gift from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the purpose of establishing a national museum to house its archeological treasures. It is an amount that isn't disposed of in such a manner every day, and it seems to carry the idea that there is a mouse somewhere in the meal.

Naturally it was to be expected that such a gift would be surrounded with a certain number of provisions, but after changes in those had been suggested by the Egyptian government and accepted by Mr. Rockefeller it was believed that the way had been cleared for the carrying out of the purpose of the gift and that due consideration would be given to the preservation of the valuable art objects for the benefit of the entire world.

When Egypt digs further into the provisions and objects to the trustees for such an institution it indicates a distrust of the manner in which it would be established and directed and it apparently doesn't seem to fully appreciate the fact that something really worthwhile is the aim and purpose of the man who makes the offer. Egypt stands to gain so much through the acceptance of such a gift, which many another nation would eagerly jump at under similar circumstances, that it will be decidedly unfortunate if it fails to go through. Egypt should ponder well as to whether it is being guided by good advice, and discover before it is too late that it may be standing in its own light.

EFFECTIVE ABSENCE

"I want to know what you are going to do about that real nice young man you act so funny about," began the interested aunt a trifle severely. "You won't take him, you won't leave him go—when he is here you treat him carelessly and when he doesn't come you telephone to ask the reason! It's no way to act!"

"It makes him think!" declared the pretty niece with conviction. "Anything that will cause a young man to pause and do brain work these days is admirable from any angle! But since you are worried about it I will say that I haven't the least idea in the world what I am going to do with him: I can't make up my mind!"

"I am sure I don't know why young men will persist in hanging around a girl who treats them so roughly and rudely, but they seem to like it," declared the indignant aunt. "What they should do is to turn careless themselves and wander off a bit the way Tombo did.

"Tombo was the large, stately, black cat that belonged to the Agnew family and I guess there was not a day that some Agnew did not raise hands to high heaven and shout that really things had gone far enough and something must be done about Tombo, preferably with chloroform or an ax.

"If he had not been so terribly handsome a dose of cold something certainly would have been meted out to Tombo in his early days, because if there was anything wrong that cat could do he did it with trimmings and embroidery.

"He had psychic powers, too, and just before a caller all dressed up came in Tombo would hurriedly occupy the special chair that callers always chose and shake off all his loose fur, to cling to the party garments of the furious guests. He knocked down pet plants and he rolled all the spools of thread in the house under the radiators and poked all the pencils he could find way beneath the rugs.

"He yowled to come in when he was let out and he howled to go out when he was in and he scratched all when he was in and he scratched all the varnish off the doors in his impatience at any delay in either direction. He was always hungry or thirsty and insisted on letting them know about it emphatically; also he loved to climb into the basket of freshly ironed clothes just brought upstairs by the laundress, and scratch up a bed way down in the middle, more especially if he had come indoors wet and muddy.

"So the Agnews hated him and scorned him and cursed him and wondered whatever should they do with him and ran around waiting on him and scolding about it and saving 30 times a week that something had got to be done, and then not doing it.

"Till one night Tombo did not come and knock at the door just as the Agnew girl's beau was about to propose or at the moment when Mrs. Agnew had the first no-trump hand she had seen all evening. His pillow was unoccupied. He stayed away the next day and the next and by that time the Agnews were beating up the neighborhood. They were looking under bushes and in garages in trembling search for the mangled remains and excitedly vowing that it must have been the Larches' hateful police dog or the Vennings' Airdale which had got poor Tombo. Or maybe an auto had hit and hurled him into the bushes somewhere along the town road.

"So—they ate no meals trying to decide what and happened to their pet. For he was their pet now, their dearly-loved treasure. He was the grandest cat that ever happened, the smartest, most affectionate and intelligent, and they missed him and yearned for him and finally reluctantly concluded that he was dead and gone forever, and his place would be the same again.

"A week later Tombo yowled at the door and all the Agnews landed there in a body to welcome and exclaim over him. He stared them out of countenance and strolled on to his pillow where he proceeded to wash his face

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John J. Carty, who reaches his 65th birthday anniversary today, is an internationally known telephone engineer whose inventive genius made possible coast-to-coast telephone communication. For many years Col. Carty has been chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Cambridge, Mass., was his boyhood home, and as soon as he finished the public schools he found his way into the office of the then newly founded and struggling company. Natural aptitude for experimentation and physics led him to make himself unusually useful to his employers; his inventive talent found chance for expansion, and his career has been one of steady rise to the highest place in the electrical engineering profession, winning honors for him from technical societies at home and abroad, and a decoration from the emperor of Japan.

Today's Birthdays

Martin G. Brumbaugh, former governor of Pennsylvania, born in Huntington county, Pa., 67 years ago today.

Elmer Dover, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, born at McConnellsville, O., 53 years ago today.

James Branch Bavell, author of a series of popular novels, born at Richmond, Va., 47 years ago today.

Stories That Recall Others

A Radio Fan

Jimmie, age four, was listening to an afternoon bedtime story which was being told by Aunt Florence. The aunt, responding to drowsiness, first was aroused by hearing the remark, "Aunt Florence, your battery is running down."

Slightly Confused

A resident was waiting in a store for a car to the center of the city, and as was his custom had his token in his hand to avoid delay in getting on the car, as quite a number usually boarded the car at that point.

Several minutes before the arrival of the car he remembered that he wished two empty cigar boxes to take to the office and asked the clerk to wrap them. The clerk complied and handed the package to him. At this moment the car arrived and he handed the clerk the token and started for the car. However, the clerk called to him and explained to him that he was not selling empty cigar boxes for street car tokens much to the fellow's embarrassment.

From Small Beginnings

Steven V. White, the Wagon Boy, a Great Broker

One of the men who made history on Wall Street through unusual skill in the buying and selling of stocks was known to the newspaper world as "Deacon" White. His operations were watched with the greatest interst, and his business judgment was such that he had what seemed an uncanny knowledge of the market. Steven V. White, in spite of the fact that the world knew him as a man of money and of great financial interests, was entirely in Wall Street because he lifted himself slowly from the most humble circumstances.

One picture in his early life stands out very clearly. A rough farm wagon, covered with the top that is so characteristic of the wagons of the pioneers, went jolting and creaking over the almost unpassable roads that led over the mountains between North Carolina and the western parts of Kentucky. In the wagon a woman, dressed in the cheapest of clothes, held to her breast a baby not yet six weeks old. The father drove the horses, and looked toward the west. That family of pioneers was the White family, and the baby was the future "Deacon" White one of the masters of Wall Street finance. The transformation from the almost penniless condition of the pioneers to one of great wealth would seem impossible if it were not for the fact that America has many times brought about such changes.

The family was among the first to settle in Illinois. In the log cabin the little boy grew up, became strong and took part in carrying on the primitive farm work. The father was a conscientious man who saw it that his son gained an education. The boy went to the settlement school, worked and saved money enough to study in a small college, then worked his way through a law school, and became a successful lawyer. He showed unusual ability, was given political office, became a member of congress and slowly brought together a great property. When he was about 35 he came to New York where he became a successful broker, mastering finance as he had helped to master the farm in his boyhood.

Few who saw him in his office, or in his home that was filled with books and evidences of culture, knew that he had raised himself from the humblest condition in life to a place of pride and comfort.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

PRIZES OF THE GAME OF MAP

Equal in interest to cross word puzzles is the game of map hunting. The by-product of map hunting is a vocabulary of words from a score or more of ancient and modern languages, and a fresh point of view of geography.

Problems may be selected from the news of the day or from the map itself. Right now Chinese armies are fighting for possession of Peking. The question is what does Peking mean to the Chinese?

Equidistant from Peking are places named Nanyuan and Pelyuan. The syllable 'pe' or 'pei' is a familiar one in Chinese names. So is 'nan.' Everyone will think of Nanking. Further inspection of the map shows that Peking bears the same relation to Nanking, as Nanyuan does to Pelyuan: that is, the pe' is north and the 'nan' is south. When we remember from history that Nanking was one of the favorite capitals of China, the puzzle is solved; Peking means the north capital and Nanking means the south capital.

"Not only Chinese words but Russian, Spanish, Arabic and words of many other languages also, may be learned as readily by exploring expeditions—on a map," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society's headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"As a grade school pupil in geography, everyone had to learn the major rivers of Europe. What satisfaction when Russia finally was reached, for there ran the rivers of the three D's: the Dniester, Dnieper and the Don! They were easy. Yet the repetition of the D should have aroused suspicion. An adult intellect can see that there is something wrong between the 'd' and the 'n' of the first two names. A vowel has been left out. Perhaps it is the 'o' left in Don: Doniester, Donieper—three Dons for three rivers. Don must be Russian for 'river.' The map of Russia also shows that Dniester is south of the Dnieper, so one may correctly assume that what the Russians mean is Lower River, Upper River, and the River.

"Throughout the desert regions of northeast Africa and into Arabia, the map explorer is confronted with the term 'Bir' before names indicating small places; Bir Garrab in Egypt, Bir Sohuk in Cyrenaica, Bir-el-Meloosh on the Damascus-Bagdad post route. 'Bir' makes one think of a famous Biblical name, Beersheba. In the desert a community exists either where there is running water to make a pool or a well to supply water by bucket. Running water is so rare in the desert that is generally marked by a large community, an oasis, and therefore, 'bir' probably is Arabic for well. Indeed Beersheba confirms this! Sheba's well were seven. They supply water to thirsty travelers today even as they did to Abraham and Sarah. In Beersheba Jacob robbed Esau of his birthright and to the crossroads of the 'birs' came Elijah fleeing from the original Jezebel. On the limestone walls of the wells are deep lines worn by thousands upon thousands of ropes, a mute history of the venerable place.

"Before leaving this section of the map one should learn easily that a 'wady' is a stream bed, dry most of the year. Another Arabic word which now frequently pops into the daily news is 'Jebel.' The Jebel or Gebal Druses who are troubling the French in Syria are the 'Mountain' Druses. Jebal marks many mountain ranges in Africa and 'Jeb' appears beside single peaks. At the other end of the Mediterranean is Gebal-al-Tarik—now Gilbralter.

"Your seasoned man explorer never trusts spelling. He trusts sounds far more. He will 'hear' a similarity between 'wady' and the first syllable of Guadalquiver. The 'wady-al-Kebir,' the great river, is just as much a memorial to the Arabic invasion of Spain as the halls of Granada. Guadalajara, in Mexico, is an Arabic 'wady' name that shipped to the new world on a Spanish conquistador's galleon.

"One of the favorite lessons of the geography classroom is that Yangtze Kiank river is a gross error. Since 'kiang' means 'great river', the poor Chinaman struggling with English would be a trifle confused to hear an American say what would sound to his ears 'Yangtze great river river.' The same precautions must be taken with 'ho' meaning a river not so great, like the Howang Ho.

"A similar situation is suspected in India when one discovers numerous 'gangas' as labels for streams in Ceylon. Ganges is not far different from 'ganga' and both mean river, so Ganges rightfully should stand alone like the 'Don' of Russia and the 'Avon' in England. Avon is an old Celt word for river.

"To the map hunter duplication of syllables is a hint to some common geographic fact. He will discover that the 'pore' of Singapore and the 'pur' of Bhagalpur, India, both mean city. In China he will find the provinces of Kiang Si, Shan Si and Kwang Si. It is aparent that the provinces are far interior. Since the main population is on the coast, the Chinese must have referred to that tier of provinces as the west, much as American do the west coast. Investigation proves out another map puzzle, for 'si' is Chinese for 'west.'"

ART SALES PROVIDE HUMOR FOR BLASE NEW YORKERS

NEW YORK, April 14 —Blase New Yorkers have found a new way to amuse themselves. They attend current art sales and then try to make "wise cracks" about them across the night club tables.

A sub-deb who had "done" the Leverhulme sale gleefully told about a portrait of King George III by Sir Joshua Reynolds which went begging for a purchaser.

"Finally," she said, "some good-time Charlie came along and paid $700 for the second-hand thing."

Another night club party went afar as to put on an impromptu tableau of one of George Cruikshank's satirical drawings on prohibition. It was one that had been disposed of at the Leverhulme sale and was entitled, A Pretty Time to Come Home. The picture, a sephia wash drawing, showed an angered wife greeting the return of her drunken husband with an arm outstretched toward the clock, the hands of which pointed to 3 a. m.

One of the young men about town got a laugh for some obscure reason over the sale of a book on corpulency from the Leverhulme collection. It was by William Wadd and sold for $190 because it contained colored plates and an autograph of Daniel Lambert who weighed 739 pounds.

Broadway's interest in art, however, is not confined to subjects for "wise cracks." There is a distinct revival of interest in religious art.

The recent purchase of The Temptation of Christ by Tiziano Vecellio (Titian) by the Minneapolis museum for $200,000, created considerable comment. The painting at one time belonged to the famous Palais Royal Collection, of Titians owned by the Dukes of Orleans.

The Brooklyn Museum of Art and Science reports revived interest in the old masterpiece Madonna Enthroned by Bernardino Luini, who is regarded as the greatest of the followers of Leonardo da Vinci and one of the foremost painter of the Lombard school in the golden era of Italian art.

The painting was executed about 1510, probably in Milan, and shows the Christ child and His Mother. It was last owned by Sir William Agnew, British connoisseur and collector, who rated it as one of the three greatest madonnas in the world.

Sir Joseph Duveen of the New York office of Duveen Brothers, recently paid $410,000 for a Portrait of a Young Man by Rembrandt. It was owned by a Swedish cavalry officer and will be brought to the United States soon. Although there are 900 authentic Rembrandt's and discoveries of his paintings are often made, they nearly always bring large sums. Private collections in Europe are being rapidly drained of them because of the demands of Americans.

An offer to the schools of the state of all available young white or red pine trees at the state nurseries for planting on school grounds or publicly owned property has been made by State Forester Austin F. Hawes for the state park and forest commission.

IF HAIR IS DRY
BLAME CONSTANT
CURLING, WAVING

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just get a 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair.

"Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous luxuriance. Failing hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

WHOLE TOWN LISTENED IN WHILE NORWICH STATION WENT ON THE AIR

Norwich went on the air for the first time Tuesday night. Station WCBR, located in the Thayer building, with studio at the store of the Hanover-Curland company, corner Franklin and Bath streets, broadcasted a splendid programme at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday evening, featuring Thumm's orchestra. It was a trial test and the test proved very successful as telephone messages and telegrams virtually swamped the studio during the evening. The messages came from far and near, all reporting splendid reception on all kinds of sets.

Station WCBR, a 100 watt station, was officially opened at 7:45 o'clock by Announcer Charles H. Messter, a regularly licensed operator. After announcing the opening of the station Mr. Messter stated that John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, would be the first speaker. Mr. O'Rourke said in brief: This broadcasting station is made possible through the courtesy of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, the Norwich gas and electrical department and the Hanover-Curland company. The Norwich Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring this movement to put Norwich on the air. Norwich is the metropolis of eastern Connecticut. It is a city of 30,000 population and a city of diversified industries.

Secretary O'Rourke then introduced to the radio listeners, His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters. I feel a little embarrassed as this is my first attempt to address an unseen audience, said Waters. I am highly complimented to be the first mayor of Norwich to speak over a Norwich broadcasting station. I extend to all the best and most joyable compliments of the season, said the mayor in closing.

The programme of the evening then went on the air, being provided by Thumm's orchestra. Popular and new numbers were broadcast by the orchestra members who played in their usual most commendable manner. The programme included a saxophone solo by Fred Freeman, a trumpet solo by Ray Woods who also pleased the listeners with a vocal selection.

The programme had hardly been started when telephone messages began to flood the studio from scores of local and nearby listeners, all reporting the programme "coming in fine." There were messages from all sections of the city and town, and from nearby towns, also telegrams from listeners outside the city. The messages and telegrams were broadcast as fast as they arrived. During the evening, the baseball scores for the day, furnished by The Norwich Bulletin, were broadcast from the station.

The local station is in charge of Charles H. Messter, who owns the station equipment. It is a 100 watt station, with 2-50 watt oscillators, 2-50 watt modulators and has a 50 watt speech amplifier. The broadcasting equipment is located on the top floor of the Thayer building and the studio, as stated above, is on the second floor of the Talking Machine shop, the Hanover-Curland company, proprietors.

A gathering of local men and women, numbering about 20, was present at the opening of the station Tuesday night. It is the intention to provide good musical programme each day while the station is open in Norwich.

How long that will be has not been determined, but that it will not be regarded as an unmixed blessing was indicated by one very vigorous protest received by telephone at the Bulletin office Tuesday night, over the way the Norwich station drowned out numbers of others.

CHOOSES JAIL SENTENCE INSTEAD OF FINE

At the city court session Tuesday morning, Walter Paprocki, 32, of 189 West Main street, was presented on a charge of violation of the liquor law Judge Libby gave him the preference of paying a $200 fine with costs and serving 10 days in jail, or being bound over to the superior court on three counts, possibly a fourth. The accused man paid the fine and went to jail to serve ten days.

He was arrested a week ago Tuesday and his case was continued. In court Tuesday morning he entered a plea of not guilty. Prosecuting Attorney Lee Roy Robbins added to the charge against him, a count of "attempting to bribe a witness." Judge Libby later nolled the bribery charge. The judge stated that a perjury charge could have been placed against the accused and Prosecuting Attorney Robbins stated that another liquor charge could be brought against him.

It was charged that Paprocki tried to influence the testimony of Allyn Brown, colored, in an effort to have Brown tell the police that he did not buy the liquor in question at Paprocki's place, as charged.

Brown, called to the stand, told of buying the liquor from Paprocki and of turning it over to the police. Brown spent the night in the lockup and Paprocki was in the next cell to him.

In cross examining Brown, Lawyer Josiah Greenstein asked if he conducted a "shady" house. Brown denied this as he also denied selling liquor. He admitted that he had served time for theft and admitted buying liquor for friends once in a while.

The police spotter admitted that he was drunk the night he is alleged to have bought the liquor and claimed that he had several drinks at his home. Brown stated that when Captain Murphy asked him where he got the liquor, he had said Paprocki's.

"You were lying, wern't you?" said the defense counsel. Brown admitted that he was. Later Brown said that it was Sergeant Delaney and not to Captain Murphy whom he informed as to where he got the liquor.

The witness admitted that through the entrance to 189 West Main street a person could make his way to Brown's house. Attorney Greenstein accused the witness of going through this route and filling the bottle from his own cellar. This Brown denied.

"You were drunk, and you don't know," was the next question.

"To tell the truth," Brown said, "I don't remember."

Sergt. Matthew Delaney testified to seeing Brown come from No. 189 West Main street and pass a bottle to Fidel Williams. There was an argument about the price. Brown wanted $1.75 and Williams stated that the price was $1.50.

After Paprocki had been locked up, along with Brown, Sergt. Delaney was on desk duty at police headquarters. He heard loud talking in the cell room and investigating heard Paprocki offer to pay Brown's fine if he (Brown) would keep still.

Officers Charles Perry and Henry Davis, members of the raiding squad, corroborated Sergt. Delaney's testimony as to the delivery of the liquor to Williams.

Captain Thomas P. Murphy testified that the reason he locked up Brown for the night was that he was afraid that he might "skip". In his opinion Brown was not drunk. Sergt. Delaney expressed the opinion that Brown was not drunk.

Paprocki claimed that he had gone to bed that night at 9:30 and did not get up until the police went to his house to arrest him.

Two men were fined $5 each on intoxication charges and one of them was given 30 days in which to pay the fine.

Condition Satisfactory After Operation

Friends of Albert H. Chase of Sachem terrace, president of the Eaton-Chase company, learned with satisfaction Tuesday that Mr. Chase's condition was reported as satisfactory after a serious operation at the New Haven hospital on Monday. He passed a comfortable night after the operation.

PECK STREET BARN IS LOSS BY FIRE

A telephone call, quickly followed by a bell alarm from box 7, at one o'clock this (Wednesday) morning called out the fire department for a fire which practically destroyed a two story wooden frame barn at No. 25 Peck street. The barn is located in the yard and within a few feet of the two story house owned and occupied by Jack Grillo and family. Tony Grillo, brother of the owner, occupies the tenement on the ground floor.

The first the Grillo families knew of the fire was when Mrs. Tony Grillo was awakened by the crackling of the flames. She told her husband and he notified Jack Grillo. In the meantime a resident on West Main street had seen the fire and sent in a telephone call to the fire department. The box was pulled a few minutes later.

A couple of lines of hose were laid and the streams directed on the flames which were quickly squelched. Two firemen had a narrow escape when a section of the barn collapsed and nearly knocked down the ladder on which they were standing.

Mr. Grillo said that he used the barn as a storehouse for old clothing, etc., and that he had about 50 chickens in the cellar of the barn. He stated that there was no fire kept there and he was at a loss as to what caused the fire. The reflection from the burning structure could be seen from various sections of the city. The recall was sounded about 15 minutes after the bell had been pulled.

SUPREME CHIEF RANGER VISITS COURT SACHEM

Court Sachem, No. 63, Foresters of America, observed past chief rangers' night Tuesday evening in Foresters' hall with Supreme Chief Ranger Dennis J. Murphy of Lowell, Mass., as the principal guest and speaker.

Mr. Murphy gave a stirring talk upon the principles of the order and of what could be accomplished through co-operation in a court with a membership such as Court Sachem has. He spoke of the classes which are being raised throughout New England in a special membership drive and asked Court Sachem to do its part in giving him an increase in membership during his term as head of the order.

The meeting was called to order by Joseph C. Callahan, junior past chief ranger, and was conducted by Frank H. Quinley as chief ranger, Joseph Fortelance, Sr., as sub chief ranger, James H Casey as past chief ranger, Frank J. Murtha as lecturer, and Fred Nowrtzky as senior woodward.

Ten candidates were initiated and seven applications were received. A communication from the grand court announced the annual state meeting in New Haven, May 12.

Refreshments were served and a musical programme was given that included tenor solos by Edward Kane and selections by Allen's string orchestra.

SPRING CALENDAR HAS MANY HEALTH DATES

The spring calendar is filled to overflowing with special dates on which health workers are to meet together for discussion of their common problems, says the bulletin of the state department of health.

In the forefront of these dates is the Connecticut Conference of Social Work which meets at Norwich April 25-28. Various groups are meeting simultaneously to discuss such subjects as child welfare in its many aspects; community life through recreation and its urban and rural needs; family problems; health; delinquency, and mental hygiene.

May Day will again be dedicated to the child and plans are already going forward to make this a notable day in Connecticut health history.

On Saturday, May 8 the state home economics meeting will be held at New London. The chief discussion of the day will be "Indirect Teaching of Nutrition" by Professor Rose of Teachers' college. Local school health work will also be presented.

New London will again be host on May 12 when the Connecticut Public Health association meets there. An interesting program is under the making, including a tour of many points of local interest.

The American Health Congress, a meeting of most national health organizations meets in Atlantic City, May 17-22.

GOING TO FLORIDA TO PROVE GOVERNMENT CLAIM

Harry W. Pecan of East Great Plain left here Sunday for Stuart, Florida accompanied by Francis Palotti, secretary of state, and Frank Covello, one of Mr. Palotti's law partners, who are to attend a hearing to prove a government claim for Mrs. Pecan's mother, Mrs. Hitchcock. The claim passed to Mrs. Hitchcock when her husband was drowned last September.

Demurrer Overruled

A demurrer to cross-complaint of Westinghouse traction brake company has been over-ruled by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the suit of Anson T. McCook, treasurer of the state of Connecticut, against Groton & Stonington street railway company and others.

SEES NO ART IN WORK OF MODERNISTS

Daubs, that are not art, was the characterization given to the work of the modernists by Royal Cortissoz, New York art editor, when he lectured Monday night at Slater hall under the auspices of the Norwich Art association. Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, president of the association, introduced the lecturer to the good sized audience who followed his words with the closest attention and enjoyed his apt presentation of the subject and his sharp thrusts as he spoke upon "An Evening With the Modernists," illustrating his talk with stereopticon views that were well calculated to drive home his scathing and often witty arraignment of the modernists with convincing force.

As he opened his lecture, Mr. Cortissoz said that those who do not agree with him are inclined to call him reactionary, a Philistine, a conservative. He declared that he is a conservative and a militant conservative, at that, and that he proposed to heave a few bricks at the modernists, not because he enjoyed heaving bricks but because he thought the modernists deserved to have bricks heaved at them. He had done his best to comprehend them, he said, and he wanted to do entire justice to them. He had tried hard to find out what they were driving at and he had come to the conclusion that they are driving at nothing in particular. He could see neither beauty nor truth in their work.

Mr. Cortissoz went on to illustrate his points with an illuminating showing of the pictures of such acknowledged masters as Ahn, Corot, Millet, and others in contrast with the works of the cubists, futurists and post-impressionists. His conclusion of it all was that this latter day cult had achieved nothing constructive in the field of art, but that their work was marked with a certain spirit of charlatanry that was an insult to the integrity and honor of art.

INSANITY FROM ALCOHOL INCREASES IN "DRY" YEARS

The number of insanity cases in Connecticut due definitely to alcoholism is increasing rapidly enough to bring the figure as high as it was before prohibition in a few years, Dr Frederick P. Shenk, clinical director of the Norwich state hospital, told the mental hygiene society of Hartford at its monthly meeting Monday night. Dr. Shenk said that the statistics for Connecticut coincide with those for the country as a whole. Before prohibition, he explained, from 10 to 12 per cent., of all the people committed to insane asylums in Connecticut showed definite symptoms of alcoholism and after prohibition the percentage dropped until in 1929 only a little over 2 per cent., of the cases could be traced definitely to alcohol. Now however, he said, conditions have changed with a noticeable increase of from 5 to 8 per cent. This increase is continuing, Dr. Shenk pointed out, and predicted today that within a few years the number will grow to 10 per cent., approximately the same as before prohibition.

Dr. Shenk discussed the relation of mental diseases to mental hygiene and attributed the increasing number of psycho-neurotics to a general speeding up of life's activities.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK TO EMPLOYED BOYS

The Employed Boys held a fine meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening, opening with the blessing asked by W. N. Block after which a wonderfully prepared supper was enjoyed by all. President Lambert introduced John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce as the speaker for the evening. He advised that an employed boy should have an opportunity to continue his education. He told about the night school of Lowell, Mass., for the working boys which is regulated the same as the day school. He said that a boy who stops education at the end of grammar school as failing to advance and that an employed boy should endeavor to prepare himself for opportunities that will come in later life. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mr. O'Rourke. Remarks were made by Mr. Davis and Mr. Block after which the meeting was closed.

FUNERALS

Mrs. William E. Geary

The funeral of Mrs. William E. Geary was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her home, No. 214 Franklin street with a large attendance of relatives and friends. There were many beautiful floral tributes of esteem. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Dixon Brown, pastor of the McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church. The bearers were John L. Harris, John Harris, Charles Hill, and Henry Reeves. Relatives and friends accompanied the body when it was placed on the Federal express from New London Tuesday evening and a service and burial will take place in Baltimore, Md., Thursday. During the funeral service hymns were rendered by a quartette. Among the many relatives and friends present were mourners from Boston. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the local funeral arrangements.

Edward S. Bogue

The funeral of Edward S. Bogue, of 17 Washington street, New London, was held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at St John's church, Uncasville, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. James A. Meara, pastor of the church. The bearers were Thomas Jordan, W. J. Theroux, T. J. O'Shaughnessey, James Riley, Charles Ickrath and Edward Cowhey. Burial was in Uncasville.

A QUARTER MILLION FANS WITNESS OPENING GAMES OF MAJOR SEASON

(By the Associated Press)

Approximately 313,000 fans braved generally chilly weather to see the major league baseball races get away to a thrilling start.

Sensational pitching featured the opening battles yesterday. Walter Johnson started his 20th season with Washington by 'anking the Athletics 1-0, in a 15 inning battle, while Jess Petty, Brooklyn southpaw, shutout the Giants with one scratch hit before a Polo grounds crowd of 45,000, the largest of the day.

Georgh Uhle, returning to form with a victory for Cleveland over Detroit; and Ted Lyons, twirling the White Sox to triumph over St. Louis, also figured in fine prformances which opened up room for further debate over the effects of the so-called resin ball.

The Yankees and Red Sox, on the other hand, went to free-hitting extremes, Babe Ruth getting away to an auspicious comeback starting by contributing three blows toward the New Yorkers' 12-11 triumph.

The world's champion Pirates, meanwhile fell before the onslaught of the Cardinals in a game which saw the St Louis chieftain, Rogers Hornsby, start his drive toward a seventh straight National league batting championship by registering a perfect day at bat.

Cold weather kept attendance figures down with a total of 212,302, falling 21,000 short of the aggregate for last year's openings. Nevertheless the Browns and White Sox played before a record crowd of 37,000 at Chicago while throngs at New York, Detroit and Cincinnati were at capacity proportions.

The figures follow:

American league—New York at Boston, 12,000; Philadelphia at Washington, 25,000; Cleveland at Detroit, 35,000; St. Louis at Chicago 37,000; total 109,000.

National league—Brooklyn at New York, 45,000; Boston at Philadelphia, 8,000; Pittsburgh at St. Louis 17,000; Chicago at Cincinnati 33,204; total 103,302.

PHILLIES OPEN SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER BRAVES

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—(AP)—The Phillies opened the season here today by taking Bancroft's revamped Boston Braves into camp by a score of six to three. The Braves were helpless against the pitching of Carlson until the closing innings. Jimmy Johnson, former Brooklyn veteran pinch batted for hearn in the ninth and hit a home run with none on base.

The usual opening game celebration preceded the contest Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick throwing out the first ball.

CARDS NOSE OUT CHAMPS IN 1926 OPENER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 13.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals initiated the 1926 baseball season with a 7 to 6 victory over the world's champion Pittsburgh Pirates here today.

First Baseman Bottomley's home run with two men on base in the fifth inning featured and clinched the contest for St. Louis.

Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals was presented two floral pieces and a most popular player trophy awarded by a Cleveland news agency.

BIKE RIDERS THREATEN TO SUIT BECAUSE OF NO COIN

BERLIN, April 13—(AP)—A threatened strike of the riders in the six day bicycle race today was averted when wealthy sport followers put up a guarantee to pay the racers who have been worried by the poor attendance and the disappearance of the promoter, who is said to have lost $10,000.

At the end of the 120th hour the French team, Sergent-Louet, was in the lead with 1,895 miles and 278 points. The American team, Beckman and Eaton, was one lap behind, but in second place with 218 points. Goottfried and Junge, Germans, were third.

Army Football Squad Numbers 75

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 13—(AP)—Seventy-five cadets reported today for the opening of the Army's spring football drill. Rugby play will be a novel feature of future workouts. Such veterans as Captain Tiny Hewitt, Harry Wilson, Trapnell, Born, Harold and Harding were in uniform today.

FORT TRUMBULL STARS ARE GETTING INTO SHAPE AGAIN

The Fort Trumbull Stars baseball team of New London worked out Sunday afternoon at Morgan Park. Fielding and batting practice was the order of the day with a five-inning setto to wind up the session.

A large squad of players are trying out for the team and the squad was divided into two teams to finish off the day's work. Zepp and High opposed Seagrave and Donovan for battery combinations. Both worked well although they were not cutting loose on account of the cool wind that blew across the field all afternoon. The outfielders had a great day, both sets gobbling in all possible chances. The poor condition of the infield bothered the infielders as the ball was inclined to take very unexpected hops. The infield is due to have some work done on it so that next week the closeup men will be able to show to better advantage.

George O. Gadbois, 45 Nameaug avenue, New London, Conn., is managing the team again this year and John J. Dodds, 457 Ocean avenue, New London, Conn., is secretary. These two men have directed the destinies of the team for the past two seasons and are looking forward to a still better season than the past.

The first round drawings follow: Sound Beach vs. Hubbard Heights, Greenwich vs. Woodway, Westport vs. Wee Burn, Brooklyn vs. Shorehaven, Mill River vs. Ridgewood, Meadow Brook vs. Race Brook, Waterbury vs. Pine Orchard, Wallingford vs. New Haven, Stamford vs. Willimantic, Goodwin Park vs. Sequin, Hartford vs. Seattle Meadow, Wampanoag vs. Manchester, Highland vs. Farmington, Naugatuck vs. Litchfield, Wethersfield vs. Southington, Shenescossett vs. Norwich.

The first round must be played by June 5, the second round by June 12, the third round by June 19 and the semi-finals finished by June 27.

KING GEORGE IS MOST ATHLETIC OF EUROPE'S RULERS

LONDON, April 13—(AP)—King George, in taking up horseback riding, now stands at the top of the list among the European monarchs in the question of outdoor pastimes. The British ruler also plays golf, is an enthusiastic yachtsman, and is particularly fond of sport in the field during the shooting season.

The most strenuous athlete among the Monarchs, considering his age, is the king of Sweden, who although seventy-two, is an enthusiast at tennis.

The king of Spain plays polo and is also a good yachtsman. The king of Belgians is fond of mountaineering, and so is his queen. King Albert also goes in for aviation.

The least sporting king in the outdoor sense is the king of Italy, whose hobby is coin collecting. He has written eight volumes of a history of numismatics, and owns a collection of 10,000 coins.

ACADEMY PLAYS POMFRET SCHOOL THIS AFTERNOON

This afternoon the Academy baseball team goes to Pomfret to play the Pomfret school team in the second game of the season. The Academy squad after a smashing victory over the Alumni starts its campaign today against the high schools of the eastern part of the state.

Coach Brigham will use Lloyd Jarvis in the box and will save Johnny Greene for the game with West Warwick here on Saturday afternoon. The lineup that will be used against Pomfret will be as follows: Goldblatt, c; Jarvis, p. Burke, 1b; Cimikoski, 2b; Yerrington, 3b; Tombari, ss; Sadinsky, lf; Greene, cf; Hamil, rf. A large squad of substitutes will be carried with the team, including Johnny Marks, Eddie Brewer, Mish and Vitriano.

KEARNS AND WALKER SING PRAISES OF NAP DORVAL

NEW YORK, April 13—(AP)—Jack Kearns and Mickey Walker returned to Broadway today, singing the praises of Kearns' new heavyweight, Napoleon Dorval.

They will leave tomorrow for Scranton, Pa., to sign contracts for Walker's title match with Pete Latzo at Scranton, May 17.

Kearns said he would confer with Tex Rickard concerning a bout here for Dorval.

"I'm to start in at the bottom with him and take them all. I would like to take a crack at Willis or Tunney eventually and then send him out after Dempsey."

WALL STREET FAVORS GIANTS, SENATORS AND ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—Wagering today in Wall street on the outcome of the major league pennant races established the Giants as slight National league favorites over the Pirates, with the Senators and Athletics equal choices in the American league.

Betting commissioners reported they had placed wagers on the chances of the Giants at 8 to 5 and on the Pirates at 2 to 1. The latter odds prevailed for both the Athletics and Senators.

Financia opinion rates the other contenders in this order: National—Cardinals, Reds, Braves, Robins, Phillies and Cubs; American—Yankees, Tigers, Browns, White Sox, Indians and Red Sox.

SHARKEY WILL SUB FOR STONE AGAINST DELANEY

NEW YORK, April 13—(AP)—Jack Sharkey of Boston or Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia will substitute for Ad Stone as an opponent for Jack Delaney, Bridgeport light-heavyweight, at Ebbets field, May 26, Humbert J. Fugazy, the promoter, intimated today. Stone's knockout at the hands of Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, last night, eliminated him from the match here.

Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager, has agreed to meet any opponent except Paul Berlenbach.

RED ROCKET WINS BOWIE KINDERGARTEN STAGE RACE

NEW YORK, April 13—(AP)—Red Rocket of the Pastime Stable led throughout the four furlongs to win the Bowie Kindergarten stakes today. Best Friend was second and Bobby Jones third. The time was 48 1-5 seconds.

Lavigne, in the colors of R. Kassell, scored at Tijuana in a five furlong sprint, followed by Sunny Maid and Fried Joe. The time was 1:00 4-5.

SENATORS AND ATHLETICS FEATURE OPENING DAY WITH 15-INNING GAME

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Washington and Philadelphia opened the baseball season in gala style here today, battling 15 innings before the champion Senators won, one to nothing. The game was a brilliant duel between pitching veteran, Walter Johnson for the Senators, beginning his nineteenth season and Ed. Rommel for the Athletics.

More than 25,000 fans braved the chilly weather and saw Vice President Dawes toss out the first ball. A floral piece was presented to Manager Connie Mack Harris and Johnson received a loving cup.

Manager Harris crossed the plate with the winning run after he had singled. Goslin doubled and Joe Harris singled. Twice the Senators had filled the bags with two out, only to fall before Rommel's pitching. The Senators went hitless during the first four innings.

Twelve of the Athletics went down by the strike out route, Johnson's curves and fast ones appearing as effective as ever. Rommel struck out one man and walked five while Johnson passed three.

The veteran Peckinpaugh sat on the bench and watched his substitute, Buddy Myer play at short. The youngster handled four chances and muffed one.

PETTY ALLOWS GIANTS ONE HIT IN OPENER

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—Rallying behind sensational pitching by Jess Petty, the Brooklyn Robins shut out the New York Giants before an opening throng of 45,000 fans today, 3 to 0. The big lefthander yielded only one hit, a scratch double by Frisch in the sixth.

Zack Wheat, veteran Brooklyn outfielder, led the attack on Virgil Barnes, Giant moundsman, hitting a double, two singles and a sacrifice. He drove in Brooklyn's first run in the third, while Fournier batted in two more tallies in the seventh.

Rabbit Maranville, making his first appearance at shortstop for the Robins, played a spectacular fielding game.

Mayor James J. Walker of New York threw out the first ball. The score:

YATES LEADS FIELD IN MID-APRIL GOLF TOURNEY

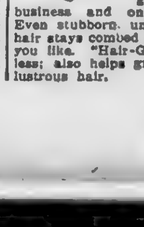
PINEHURST, N. C., April 13—(AP)—Arthur W. Yates of Rochester, N. Y., runner-up in the north and south open championship today won the qualifying round of the mid-April golf tournament here with a card of 39-38—77.

Yates' nearest rival was C. Ross Somerville, London, Ontario, who was five strokes to the rear. R. A. Stranahan, of Toledo, was third with an 83.

"Tiger" Flowers, who has been inactive since he toppled the middleweight crown from the brow of Harry Greb, is scheduled to get back into action on the night of April 16, when he is to take on Joey Gans for a bout before a club in Wilkes-Barre.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day



"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

REDS BEAT CUBS IN EXTRA INNING OPENER

CINCINNATI, April 13.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds took the opening game from Chicago 7 to 6 here today in a ten inning exhibition marked of rather free hitting, with poor fielding on the part of the Cubs.

Donohue was knocked out of the box in the 8th inning after keeping the hits well scattered until that period. Luque who replaced him pitched to two men and May took the mound in the ninth. Picinich registered the first homer of the season in the fifth inning and Freigau duplicated with a homer for Chicago in the eighth.

WHITE SOX OPEN SEASON BY BEATING BROWNS

CHICAGO, April 13.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox opened the American league season here today by defeating St. Louis 5 to 1, before a crowd estimated at 37,000. Lyons, White Sox ace, pitched in fine form.

Bunching hits off Gaston, the Sox led off with a two run lead. Gaston settled down and pitched well until he retired in favor of a pinch hitter after the sixth. Ballou, his successor, was driven from the mound after yielding five hits which brought three runs. Lyons, although touched for ten safeties, tightened up in the pinches and was given perfect support.

Everett Scott, former Senator and New York shortstop, made his debut with the Sox with a great game in the field.

WESTERLY

JOHN FERGUSON'S DEATH FOLLOWS THAT OF WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 13—The death of John Ferguson, 75, father of Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson and long a granite cutter in Westerly, occurred at an early hour on Tuesday morning at his home, 32 Highland avenue. His death occurred six days after that of his wife, Jessie MacLean Ferguson, who passed away last Wednesday morning.

Mr. Ferguson was born in Inveraray, Scotland. He came here about 40 years ago and for 38 years was employed at local granite quarries. About two years ago he retired from active work. His death, following an illness of about three weeks, was hastened by the shock of his wife's death. Mr. Ferguson was a member of the Pawcatuck Congregational church, in which he had served for years as a deacon. John Ferguson, Jr., and Dr. Alexander Ferguson are the only surviving children. Three other sons, Findlay S., William and Donald, are dead.

In Mechanics' hall Monday evening was held an open meeting of Ladies' auxiliary, No. 6, United Spanish War Veterans. The drill team from Providence and Pawtucket, consisting of 20 women, put on a drill that was very well executed. The evening's entertainment included two vocal solos by Miss Esther Taylor, a sketch, "The Dutch Cocktail," by John Sarrasin and Arthur Brennan, and two dances, the Charleston and Sailor's Hornpipe, by Miss Eunice Hughes. The president, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, presented a bouquet of red carnations to Miss Hughes. Mrs. Brucker, mother of Robert Brucker, after who the camp is named, was given a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations. Refreshments were served and Graichen's orchestra played for the dancing.

The services of the mission for women being held the past few days have been largely attended at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The opening service was Sunday evening. The retreat is in charge of two Marist fathers from Washington, D. C., Rev. Mr. Gerald Shaughnessy and Rev. Fr. Charles Doherty. Services for women will be continued throughout the week, with morning masses at 5:30 and 8 o'clock and evening devotions at 7:30. Next week a similar mission for men will be held.

Henry Delcore of Olneyville, R. I., a mill worker, who was arrested by Patrolman Fred Ferraro Monday afternoon was before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Third District court Tuesday morning on a charge of being intoxicated. He was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $3.80.

The Westerly Music club held its meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Sherman on Elm street. Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs of Ashaway was re-elected president. This was the last meeting of the club for the season, with the exception of the popular concert in May. Other officers were chosen as follows: Mrs. Thomas Perry, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Welch, secretary; Miss Kate Virginia Cottrell, treasurer; Mrs. Frank G Ahern, librarian; Mrs. Benjamin Brown, Mrs. Edward Coy, Mrs. John Findlay, Mrs. Ralph Koelb and Miss Marion Barns, executive board. The slate was presented by the nominating committee, Mrs. Paul F. Estey chairman. The evening's program was furnished by the pupils of music teachers who are members of the club, each teacher being allowed to present two pupils. In addition to the members of the club, the mothers of the performers were present.

The funeral service for Ida May, wife of Samuel Sharp, was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at her home, 21 Palmer street. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, officiated. The beares were Frank Morey, James Brown, Albert Senior and Thomas Burke. Interment was made in River Bend cemetery.

August Larson left Tuesday morning for a business visit in Boston.

Mrs. F. Virginia Briggs is en route from Jacksonville, Fla., where she has passed the winter to return to her home, 65 Beach street, Westerly.

Charles E. Dewey of New London was a business caller in Westerly and Pawcatuck Tuesday.

Jabez F. West of Norwich, connected with the plumbing department of the New Haven railroad, was in Westerly Tuesday.

Many Westerly fight fans attended the boxing bouts in Infantry hall, Providence, Monday night by Providence Posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Miss Margaret Davis, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Alva L. Davis of Ashaway, left Westerly Tuesday morning to resume her studies at the Boston Conservatory of Music.

The death of Everett M. Codlin, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Codlin of Moosup, former residents of White Rock, R. I., member of the class of 1928, Brown university, occurred Monday evening at the Jane Brown hospital, where he had undergone three operations since the first of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Kranish of Arcadia, motored to Westerly Tuesday.

Stonington Probate Judge Frank H. Hinckley, of Mystic, was a Westerly visitor Tuesday holding a session of court for Pawcatuck in the probate court rooms, Walton block.

A special meeting of Westerly town council was called to order Monday evening in the Westerly town hall by President John D. Nichols, when all the councilmen were in attendance. Special business to come before the council was to complete the work of selecting qualified jurymen from the voting lists of the town, continuing the work began at the last regular council session April 5th.

Albert H. Langworthy, Selden M. Young and Harlan P. Hakes were appointed appraisers for the town for damage done by dogs.

Joseph Taylor was voted a victualizing license for 49 Main street, in property owned by William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck.

A vote was passed authorizing Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown to have a list prepared of the keepers of swine in the compact part of the town of Westerly.

Mrs. Julia G. Davis of Natick, Mass., a former Westerly resident writes friends here that Monday next she began her return trip east, having left Pasadena, Cal., for San Francisco going then to Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash. Describing her visit in Pasadena Mrs. Davis said that up to Easter the weather had been excellent and on that afternoon rainy weather began. Easter morning she attended the sunrise service in the stadium, called the "Rose Bowl", attended by six thousand people. Raising a huge white cross covered with flowers, just before prayer, was described as an impressive part of the services. In the forenoon a pageant was witnessed at the Huntington hotel, which depicted in costume "the first Easter of the mission fathers," by the mission players. Rose Bowl was again visited in the afternoon, to witness the Knight Templar Easter service, which was to include, the releasing of two hundred pigeons, one of which was to go to Washington, D. C., to President Coolidge, but rain prevented the service, which was postponed to the following Sunday, when Mrs. Davis planned to attend.

H. P. Ballou returned to Hartford Tuesday afternoon from Atlantic beach, where, with a force of men, he has been making repairs at the casino, which will be opened in May. Mr. Ballou will return to Atlantic beach casino on Thursday next and remain there continuously until the first of May, when a number of men will be employed in painting and making renovations. During the winter, Mr. Ballou has worked on the organ which he took to Hartford for the purpose of renewing worn parts. For the coming season new records have been purchased for the organ and for the merry-go-round.

John E. Kindris of Hartford, accompanied by his brother, who is to be the chef, have been busily at work at Oaks Inn, Shore road, preparatory to reopening it about May. An orchestra will supply music for dinners and dancing at this inn the coming season.

Dr. John E. Ruisi of Westerly and Timothy J. Connors of Pawcatuck were passengers on steamship H. F Alexander, which sailed for Miami, Fla., Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from Pier No. 86 North River, New York.

Workmen Tuesday completed the job of cutting down and removing the trees and brush on the West Broad street property of Max Novogroski between the Walton block and the Pawcatuck river bridge. When the plot is cleared stone will be brought from the Moss barn site on the top of the West Broad street hill, to be used in the foundation of the business block to be erected next to the Walton block.

NOANK

When the road was put in from Main street to Groton Long Point bridge, a large steam shovel, painted red, has parked at the bottom of Prospect Hill. People around there complain about it. When automobiles come down the hill one might hit it. No light is put on at night. It spoils th looks of the on at night. It spoils the looks of the climb to the top of Prospect Hill and look down to the village; it is the best view they can get, but the red steam shovel shut off part of town. It is about two years since the road was finished.

Armour's Food Products to Sustain Byrd's Daring Polar Flight

"OUR LIVES may depend on the quality of our *Pemmican and we must be absolutely sure of its quality," says Commander Byrd, and so he arranged with Armour and Company for his supply of the food to be taken on his flight to the Pole.

Richard E. Byrd, Lieutenant Commander, U. S. N.; who sailed Monday, April 5th, for the polar regions on what is in effect an unofficial effort on the part of the U.S. Navy to reach the North Pole in an aeroplane and to explore and claim for the United States any land which is found thereabouts

Commander Byrd's faith in the quality of Armour's products is not confined to Pemmican—and properly so, for the same excellence distinguishes Star Hams, Cloverbloom Butter, Star Lard, Star Bacon and all Armour products.

Note that when life depends on quality, Armour products are chosen.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Blacky the Crow Tells What He Saw

No matter how one really tries
'Tis hard to believe another's eyes.
Bob White.

Blacky the Crow came flying over the Green Meadows toward the dear Old Briar-patch. Blacky's eyes are sharp. There are no sharper eyes anywhere than the eyes of Blacky the Crow. So it was that as he looked down he saw Bob White and Peter Rabbit gossiping.

"Caw, caw caw!" shouted Blacky, and headed down so as to alight close to where Bob White and Peter were. Peter could hardly wait for Blacky to get there. No, sir, Peter could hardly wait. He almost danced with impatience.

No sooner was Blacky on the ground than Peter poked his head out through the brambles. "You're just the fellow we wanted to see," cried Peter.

Blacky's eyes twinkled. "Look to your heart's content, Peter," said he.

"Did I see some strangers?" asked Blacky in a tone of great surprise

"I don't look any different than I did the last time you saw me."

"It isn't that," cried Peter impatiently. "We want to know about strangers you saw."

"Did I see some strangers?" asked Blacky in a tone of great surprise.

"That's what we want to know," spoke up Bob White. "The story has gone all over the Green Meadows and through the Green Forest that you discovered two strangers. Is it true, Blacky?"

Now, Blacky the Crow dearly loves to tease others. He put on a look of great surprise. "Now where," said he, "did you hear any such a story as that?"

"Never mind where we heard it. Tell us if it is true," retorted Peter Rabbit.

Blacky had it on the tip of his tongue to keep on with his teasing, but decided not to. "Yes," said he. "I have twice seen two strangers."

Peter edged up a little nearer. "What do they look like?" he demanded.

Blacky cocked his head on one side and pretended to be thinking very hard. "Well," said he, "one of them looks something like Mrs. Grouse, but with a longer tail; and the other—but, goodness, what's the use of telling you? You wouldn't believe it if I did."

"Yes we would," cried Peter. "Yes we would. We would believe anything from you."

Blacky chuckled. "All right," said he. "Let's see if you can believe this. The other stranger has a bright red face, beautiful green neck and a white collar around his neck. He wears a beautiful spotted coat and he has the longest tail you ever saw for one of his size. Oh, he is a handsome fellow. I can tell you! But he knows it. Yes, sir, that fellow certainly knows it. He struts around and shows off as if he considered himself a little bit finer than anybody else. I have an idea that fellow is going to make some trouble sooner or later, I'll have to admit that he is handsome. But you know the old saying that 'handsome is as handsome does,' and I'm just waiting to see how this fellow really turns out."

"What did you say his name is?" inquired Peter eagerly.

"I didn't say," replied Blacky. "Excuse me, Peter, there is Mrs. Blacky over yonder and I must see her at once." With this Blacky spread his black wings and off he flew.

Excellence comes into its own

In the past twelve months a substantially greater percentage of purchasers of America's finest motor cars has come over to the Willys-Knight Great Six. . .

This superb automobile is forging ahead in popularity solely as a result of its outstanding performance-record and the superior beauty and luxury it affords. . .

The advantages of the silent, super-smooth, super-efficient sleeve-valve engine—the only motor-car engine that actually improves with use—the supreme comfort of the magnificently-built Willys-Knight chassis and the richness of this car's equipment and appointments admit of but few competitors in the luxury-group of fine automobiles.

The Knight sleeve-valve engine is a patented engine. Its general use is prohibited by law. Other car manufacturers would gladly pay millions of dollars for the privilege of using it. But this is not now permitted, nor will it be until the Knight engine patents in America expire 7 years hence.

The New Willys Finance Plan means a smaller down payment, smaller monthly payments; and the lowest credit-cost in the industry.

N. LONDON MARRIED MAN FACES JAIL-ACCOSTED TWO COLLEGE STUDENTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—Helen Ellis, a member of the class of '29 at Connecticut college and Mary Vernon, a freshman, with Dr. Benjamin Marshall, president of the college, accused Leslie Young, a married man residing with his wife at 320 Connecticut avenue of the most offensive sort of conduct, in that he accosted the two young girls on the college campus of adjacent thereto last night about 9:30 o'clock. Young attempted an alibi and declared that he was not guilty as claimed by his accusers, though he was in the neighborhood where the alleged offensive conduct occurred. He admitted that about all the girls said was true except that he accosted them both the girls had the courage to appear in the police court this morning where the facts were sought and all who heard the testimony considered it a plausible story of what happened. Misses Ellis and Vernon were strolling across the college land when, they claim, Young passed them close enough to have been touched by either of the students. He spoke to the girls in a way that was patronizing, saying, "Hello, pretty ladies." That was a surprise greeting for the young ladies, but they retained their composure so that they had a good view of the man. They saw his face and observed his clothing so that they were ready to make oath today that Young was the offender. They described him and they saw his face to face under an arc light at the juncture of Deshon street and Mohegan avenue, after he was arrested and brought to account for his conduct. Though Young claimed in court that he was innocent of wrong doing, he failed to enter any protest when he was taken into custody, or to claim that he was not the man who had spoken to the girls. He did attempt to say that he did not have the opportunity to deny what the students had affirmed, but in this he was contradicted by the officers who arrested him. They said he had every opportunity to declare his innocence, but that he failed to utter a word of protest against arrest. Young is alleged by the police to have pinned a vile note in the automobile of Mrs. Seldon Manwaring, a year or more ago and then to have been punished with a severe fine. If that is true he did not learn the lesson his experience should have taught him. Two new officers on the police force acted in this case and they discharged their duties well. Their testimony in court was of the positive sort and they related the occurrences after they had taken Young into custody very clearly and accurately. Young was found guilty as alleged and was sentenced to jail, but he is determined to take his chances on acquittal in the common pleas court, for he appealed and gave a bond for appearance there next month.

G. C. MORGAN'S POLICE DOGS TO GET OWNER INTO COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—Attorney G. Curtis Morgan will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with maintaining dogs alleged to be a nuisance at the residences of the attorney, Broad street, corner of Channing street. Attorney Morgan has made it known that he intends to fight the matter.

Attorney Morgan owns two police dogs and twice the police have been complained to, the dogs having attacked school children. It is not these complaints, however, thatb ring the attorney into court as a defendant, for additional complaints have been made to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky because of the alleged continual barking of the animals during the night season and causing residents of that neighborhood much annoyance. When Attorney Morgan did not cause the animals to be removed from the Morgan premises, nor cause their alleged yelping to cease, he was ordered to appear in court. Numerous witnesses have been summoned to testify as to the alleged annoyance caused by the barking of the dogs.

Gertrude C. Newfield has sold to Marian J. Fellman a house and lot on Ocean avenue.

The New Haven police have requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for two automobiles, stolen from the former city late last night. One car is a Hudson sedan and bears registration, A-107, while the other is a Ford delivery car registration, 17149.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maria Hills were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 62 Washington street, Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of the Montauk avenue Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Mary McGibney, of Norwich and Frank Garaganno, 21 Reed street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Mary, widow of Nelson Flora, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Garney, 700 Williams street. Mrs. Flora, who was of advanced years, had been ill some time. She formerly resided in Ticonderoga, N. Y., but had been a resident in New London for a long time.

Miss Alice M. Larkin, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Larkin, died this morning at the residence of her parents, 329 Williams street. Miss Larkin, an only child, had been in ill health about a year and her condition had been critical for several weeks. Miss Larkin was born in New London and was educated in the public schools. She was graduated from Williams Memorial institute in the class of 1923, of which class she was vice president. She was a member of the class of 1925 Willimantic Normal school and it was while pursuing studies at that institution that her health began to decline and caused her to abandon her course of studies. Miss Larkin was a charter member of the Crowley club and was also a member of the Children of Mary.

Mrs. Ralph Williams, 29 Cottage street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital this forenoon she sustained a fractured leg and which injury will necessitate treatment for a number of weeks. Mrs. Williams was on Shaw street and in stepping from the curb to the highway lost her balance and fell in such a manner as to fracture the right foreleg She was given temporary relief and then transferred to the hospital.

Mrs. Daniel Shea 21 Spring street, intends to seek damages from the city as a result of injuries sustained yesterday, when she fell on an alleged defective sidewalk. She is now confined to her home.

Mrs. Shea was on Bank street shopping. Just after she had left a store entrance and started to return home Mrs Shea stepped on the edge of a depression and was thrown to the sidewalk The sidewalk it is claimed has been in a defective condition for a long time and more than once the police have reported the existence of the dangerous spot.

Patrick Hanley was sent to jail to stay 30 days for intoxication. Patrick was released after serving a term Monday, but he went right at the old offense as soon as he got where he could get a drink. He claimed he met a fellow day who gave him a couple of drinks and that he couldn't stand them. "Give me another chance" was his appeal. But it was in vain. He had his chance when he came from jail.

Tony Coronna parked his car on Bank street near the Capitol theatre and then went to sleep in the car. He was found by Policeman Courtney after he had been "in bed" two hours and ordered to court. Tony did not have a license that authorized him to operate the car, when he was invited to find it He was fined $5.

Michael Siri, of Bank street, proprietor of a public service automobile, complained to the police this evening that he had been victimized of a fare. He stated that a man hired his car to take the passenger to East New London, but when the machine arrived on Main street, corner of Hallam street, the passenger alighted on pretense of performing an errand. Siri waited 20 minutes for the passenger to return, and when the fellow failed to put in an appearance, Siri complained at the police station. A parcel containing a quantity of bakery stuff was left in the car by the passenger and this Siri took charge of.

William Gunn has sold to Stephen Pukas a parcel of land on Crystal avenue.

The recently formed Citizens' Party of the borough of Groton held its caucus last evening for the purpose of making nominations for the coming election. The meeting, at which Henry Gamber presided was attended by a representative group of voters and taxpayers and they displayed considerable interest in selecting their slate. George R Hempstead was nominated for warden, but he had opposition in William G. Stebbins. A tie vote resulted on the first ballot, each contestant receiving 15 ballots, but between the counting of the first ballot and the taking of the second ballot additional voters appeared and the final ballot resulted in Mr. Hempstead receiving 18 ballots and Mr. Stebbins 17. The following were nominated for the office of burgess: George Marquardt, Horace Newbury, J. A. Thompson, William G Stebbins, Charles B. Lunz, J. B. Sullivan. Leo Brogan was nominated for clerk, and Milton M. Baker for treasurer As only two days remain in which to make additional nominations, it is not probable that other nominations will be made. Mr. Stebbins today stated that he was unaware that he was to be nominated and that he had not authorized his name to be put before the meeting. He also intimated that he would announce his declination.

LIVE WIRE ON TRACK HOLDS UP TROLLEY TRAFFIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 13—The trolley wire of the Connecticut company, carrying heavy voltage fell to the ground on Bank street, south of Golden street late this afternoon and while traffic was at its height. In falling the wire landed on the tracks and causing a complete tie-up of all cars for it caused grounding, which was not relieved, until the wire had been taken from the track. A force of repair men were put to work and succeeded in making repairs in about an hour. During the task of making repairs all traffic was suspended on Bank street and the main line cars between State street and Ocean Beach were operated to Montauk avenue by way of Washington and Truman streets. The accident did not cause more than a slight interruption to traffic, other than the temporary discontinuance of the operation of cars through Bank street.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Starting tomorrow there are going to be five great Keith Albee vaudeville acts on the program that we predict will be a sensation.

A racing picture as exciting as the old ones in which Wally Reid starred, comes to the Broadway theater for a three day run starting tomorrow and judging from the first-night audience, it's going to be well-liked here. We speak of The Checkered Flag featuring charming Elaine Hammerstein and a stellar support cast headed by Wallace MacDonald.

This picture, directed by John Adolfi, tells a most exciting tale, well illustrative of the adage "true lover never runs smooth." The lovers have to struggle against adverse circumstances, time and even themselves before their love reaches a happy fulfillment.

Elaine Hammerstein is splendid as the girl who risks her life in a breakneck auto race to save the fortunes of her sweetheart and to prove to him the sincerity of her love. Wallace MacDonald is all that one looks for in a hero and Lee Shumway is good as the villain who causes all the mischief. Robert Ober and Peggy O'Neil in character roles are responsible for most of the laughs. Don't miss this one It's a good story well played.

Strand theater

Strongheart, the first and greatest dog actor, has yet another success to his record, the same being North Star the latest Associated Exhibitors release, which is coming to the Strand theater Friday and Saturday.

Strongheart, the dog whose dignity and character have made him the object of worship to most children and dog loving adults, began is colorful career as a police and Red Cross dog durin gthe war. For months he carried aid to wounded soldiers and rescued men lost out on No Man's Land.

Strongheart made such a favorable impression upon Trimble and Miss Murfin that he was purchased by the latter and given a trainer to prepare him for his new profession. He showed such an intelligent response that in almost no time he was ready for the filming or the picture.

This all led up to The Silent Call the picture which made motion picture history and which first introduced the dog as an actor to the industry. Two original stories by Trimble were the next Strongheart vehicles, Brawn of the North and The Love Master, which created quite a furore, with the dog making personal appearances and enjoying all the adulation of any other celebrated star.

White Fang, the great Jack London story, was the next to be filmed, and was followed by the present release, North Star.

Polar Flight

One of the most interesting aspects of Lt. Commander Richard E. Byrd's projected polar flight is that of food. When Commander Byrd's Fokker monoplane, driven by three motors, hops off from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, some time about the middle of May, the flyers will be depending for subsistence largely on a concentrated meat food, called Pemmican, Armour and company has contributed four hundred pounds of this highly specialized food product to Commander Byrd's enterprise.

Years before white men ever set foot on this continent, Pemmican (the word comes from the Cree language) was a famous Indian food. The lean and fat of dried venison was ground to a paste into which was mixed berries and corn meal.

Armour and Company has developed, this primitive Indian food to a point where the late Commander Peary pronounced it the most satisfactory and absolutely indispensable food for arctic travel. It is a beef product made by dehydrating the meat and adding suet, currents, raisins and spices. It resembles the United States army ration, except that in the latter all fat is removed, as it might otherwise become rancid. The coldness of the arctic regions precludes this possibility in Pemmican.

In its final form Pemmican is a solid, chocolate brown in color, whose various ingredients are bound together by the suet. The addition of spices and fruit render it not unpleasing in taste. It may be eaten sliced if desired, but it is most palatable when made into a gruel or porridge. So highly concentrated is Pemmican that a very little is sufficient to sustain life for a considerable time under the most arduous conditions.

The first jump the Fokker monoplane will make will be one of about 400 miles to the northernmost tip of Pearyland. Here a man will be dropped in a parachute to find a suitable landing place for the plane. If he is unsuccessful, he will signal the plane, and another man will be dropped, also in a parachute, with Pemmican packed in hermetically sealed tins. The two men will then start on their journey back to the base at Cape Morris Jesup, which will have been advised of their coming by radio from the plane, and will have started Eskimos to meet them with dog teams.

Lt. Commander Byrd sailed Monday, April 5th, from Brooklyn, in the shipping board steamer "Chantier." The "Chantier" carried forty-four persons and two airplanes. It will pick up an ice skipper at Tromso, Norway the only port of call before Kings Bay. In addition to the Pemmican, practically all the provisions for the expedition were also supplied by Armour and company.

Broad Theater

The grim humor of Time is the motivation of Time, the Comedian, Robert Z. Leonard's latest directorial achievement for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the feature attraction at the Breed today and tomorrow. The story is that of an unhappy wife whose erotic affairs bring about her husband's death, and due partially to passage of time and her own self, she is shelved by her former admirers.

An excellent cast has been assembled for the picture including Lew Cody, Mae Busch, Gertrude Olmstead, Creighton Hale, Roy Stewart, Paulette Duval and others. The film is based on a story by Kate Jordan and was adapted to the screen by Frederic and Fanny Hatton. Oliver Marsh was the photographer.

The Fox news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

POETRY

Happiness

For many days the sky was blue,
And sunshine poured its glory
On the bare gray earth.
High in a leafless maple
A little house finch sang—and sang!

"He sings because the sky is blue," said some,
"He cannot keep from singing in this sunshine,"
Said others, passing by;
And I, too, said, "This sky and sunshine
Must make him very happy."

Today no blue is seen,
No sunshine warms the earth,
A chilling wind has blown since dawn—
And rain falls steadily.
High in the leafless tree a house finch sings.

Louder and more joyous the song
Was poured in melody unceasing;
And as the light fades into gloomy night
He sings to tell the world
That this has been a lovely, lovely day.
—Caroline Lawrence Dier in The Christian Science Monitor.

"Here Is the Place"

Here is the place where Loveliness keeps house,
Between the river and the wooded hills,
Within a valley where the Springtime quills
Her first ling wind-flowers under blossoming boughs;
Where Summer sits braiding her warm, white brows
With bramble-roses; and where Autumn fills
Her lap with asters; and old Winter frills
With crimson haw and hip his snowy blouse.
Here you may meet with Beauty. Here she sits
Gazing upon the moon, or all the day
Turning a wood-thrush flute, remote, unseen;
Or when the storm is out, 'tis she who flits
From rock to rock, a form of flying spray,
Shouting, beneath the leaves' tumultuous green.
—Madison Cawein.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Hubby, I saved ten dollars today. What did you buy?—University of Pittsburgh Panther.

How did you get those two black eyes?

My wife gave me a pair of socks for my birthday.—Colgate Banter.

Daughter, I think my junior partner wants to marry you.

No doubt about it, dad. I've got him sold on that proposition.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Hi-We gotta railroad up hum, -fastest in the world. A collision on that is impossible.

Ram—Impossible! How cum?

Hi—We only got one train.—Wesleyan Wasp.

A. E.—Why doesn't a woman ever ask another woman's advice in choosing a dress?

A. P.—Why should she? You don't ask another country how to win a war. —Green Onion.

The model—It's funny that every actress thinks she's under thirty.

The Smock—Not as funny as every woman under thirty thinking shes' an actress.—University of Iowa Frivol.

The Married One (looking at the heavens)—I have a feeling there's a storm brewing.

The Unmarried One—Thank heaven! That's a feeling we bachelors know nothing of.—Detroit News.

They tell me, said the girl in the brown hat, that you drive pretty fast. Do you?

Yes, said the man on her right; I hit 70 yesterday.

Kill any of them? she asked, languidly.—Tit Bits.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The smallest military tank can be loaded on a motor truck.

The population of Egypt has doubled in the last 40 years.

Phonograph records of primitive languages that are dying out are being collected by scientists.

Early violin makers of Cremona, Italy, used maple wood from local forests for backs of their violins.

There are in England about 100,000 children of gypsies or other wanderers who have never been to school.

Passengers traveling on German railways can now talk with the outside world by means of the radio-telephone service.

California has a new game farm, where Chinese pheasants and other fine game birds will be bred and later released into forests and fields for hunting.

Ohio housewives are attending "meat schools" to learn how to identify and how to prepare the seventeen kinds of steak and eight kinds of roasts sold in most butcher shops.

When D. M. Stone returned to his parked car at Woodruff, S. C., he found the top had almost disappeared. A goat had devoured it. The animal had even consumed the celluloid window.

Japanese mines in 1925, according to a report of the department of commerce produced $77,500 ounces of gold 4,134,375 ounces of silver and 93,524 tons of copper. These are all increases over the 1924 production gold by 10.2 per cent, silver by 12.5 per cent and copper by 3.5 per cent.

A big buck deer nearly wrecked the interior of the home of Jerry Parmenter of Londonberry, N. H. Awakened by a crash of glass, Mr. Parmenter rushed from his bedroom and encountered the deer halfway up the front stairs. The animal smashed through the balustrade fell to the hall floor and was injured. Mr. Parmenter killed it with an ax in the hallway.

Snow has no terrors for the Salt Lake City street department. Water taken from municipally owned boiling springs is used to make it disappear as if by magic. The springs, located within the corporate limits, produce vast quantities of water which nature has heated to approximately 106 degrees F. This is carried in tanks to the business district, and the high pressure pumps flush out the snow, clearing it within a few hours, regardless of the depth. The water contains 1,380 parts of sulphates to the 1,000,000. Thrown on the snow under high pressure, a cloud of steam arises and quickly the street is cleared.

AUCTION NOTICE

By WITTER BROS., Auctioneers
Office, 42 Main St., Danielson, Conn.
We will sell for L. S. Anthony at the Aldrich Stock Farm, at North Stonington, Conn., on MONDAY, APRIL 19,
at 11 o'clock A. M. — rain or shine.
35 head of cattle, consisting of: large fancy, forward springers, new milch cows with calf by side, heifers, bulls, and veal calves; also 1 pair of very fancy Devon oxen, five years old, broken to suit the king's taste. No doubt if you will see a better team in a one ring this spring. The horses consist of nice matched pairs and single horses, including a corking nice pair of brown chunks weighing 2600 pounds, as good as grows. A lot of double and single harnesses, blankets, etc. 10 large shoats and 1 Chevrolet touring car will also be sold. Mr. Anthony runs a very clean, high class sale and always has the goods advertised if not more. Terms cash. Sale rain or shine. Caterer will attend.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks strong; local traction issues rally 3 to 6 points.

Bonds irregular; public utilities strong.

Foreign exchanges steady; French franc firm in light trading.

Cotton lower; southern selling.

Sugar easier; commission house selling.

Coffee firm; steadier Brazilian market.

Chicago.

Wheat strong; active covering of May shorts.

Corn higher; sympathy with wheat.

Cattle; easier.

Hogs; dull and lower.

MARKET CLOSED STRONG.

NEW YORK, April 13.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices displayed a complete reversal of form in today's market, selling off sharply during the morning when pressure was renewed against the speculative industrials, then rallying briskly during the afternoon. Closing quotations were generally higher, net gains of one to nearly six points being spread over a long list.

A softening of money rates and a sudden upturn of over four cents a bushel in May wheat stimulated the demand for stocks, which came largely from the short interest. While bear traders succeeded in uncovering a number of new weak spots during the morning, there were indications that many issues, particularly in the motor and merchandising groups, had been oversold, at least temporarily.

Standard industrials displayed good recuperative power. U. S. Steel common showed a net gain of over one point at 119 3-4, after selling down to within a small fraction of the year's low at 118, and Baldwin rallied from 99 1-2, where it was up 1 1-4 on the day. General Electric rallied from 287 1-2 to 295 3-4, up 2 3-4 net.

Local tractions showed outstanding strength on buying based on the belief that an agreement, regarding new subway construction and bus lines, will shortly be reached between the city and transit officials. Interboro Rapid Transit soared nearly six points to 38 1-4 and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Third Avenue Railway and Manhattan Modified Guaranteed closed 2 to 3 points higher.

Publication of unusually favorable 1925 earnings statements by several of the leading railroad systems brought fresh buying into the railroad shares. This was particularly apparent in such issues as Atchison, New York Central, Southern Railway, and Union Pacific, all of which closed 1-2 to 2 1-2 points higher. Erie issues also registered moderate improvement despite the slim hope held out by President Underwood for an early resumption of dividends on the first preferred stok. Secretary Mellon's advocacy of lower interest rates on railroad indebtedness to the federal government was a sustaining influence.

The short interest in the motors was quick to retreat on the first sign of strong buying power. Hudson rallied from a low of 64 to 68 3-4. General Motors from 116 1-2 to 118 7-8 and Mack Trucks from 107 to 109 7-8, all closing near the top.

Oils received better support on reports of a decrease in the daily average of gross crude oil production last week. Sharp recoveries also were recorded by Allied Chemical, the American Agricultural Chemical issues, American Water Works, California Packing, Coca Cola, Columbia Carbon, Famous Players, Foundation Company, S. S. Kresge, Postum Cereals, Pullman, Sloss Sheffield, Stewart Warner, Tobacco Products, Union Bag and Paper, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, United Cigar Stores, U. S. Rubber and Woolworth, all up 2 to 5 points.

The sharp rally in wheat, inspired by Broomhall's estimate of a shortage in the world's supply, featured the commodity markets. May wheat closed at $1.63 7-8 a bushel, a net gain of 4 5-8 cents on the day, with more moderate advances in the other options. The cotton market was dull with closing prices showing net declines of 3 to 12 points. Raw sugar was unchanged but futures closed 3 to 5 points net lower. Coffee advanced 3 to 15 points on buying influenced by reports of a scarcity of the product for contract delivery.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent. and then dropped to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling dropped 1-8 of a cent to around $4.85 11-16 and French francs were slightly firmer around 3.44 1-2 cents. Spanish pesetas rallied over 7 points to around 14.36 cents on the prospect of an early peace in Morocco. The Canadian dollar was quoted at a premium of 1-16 of a cent.

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Wednesday, April 14, 1926.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The southern disturbance is now central near Cape Hatteras where the barometer reads 29.90 inches and the northwestern disturbance has advanced to the upper lake region. Pressure is high from the lower Mississippi valley, northeastward to Nova Scotia.

The disturbance off Hatteras will probably advance east Northeastward to Northern New England attended by showers Wednesday or Wednesday night in the lower lake region, Western Pennsylvania, the North Atlantic states and the northern portion of the middle Atlantic states.

Otherwise mostly fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday in the states east of the Mississippi river. The temperature will rise Wednesday almost generally in the Washington forecast district, but the area of high pressure and colder weather now over the northwest will overspread the lower lake region and the Ohio valley Wednesday night and the middle Atlantic and North Atlantic states and Tennessee Wednesday night or Thursday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh southerly and partly overcast weather Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh to strong northeast dimishing and overcast weather probably showers Wednesday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Increasing cloudiness followed by showers Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday probably fair and colder.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Tuesday:

7 a. m.	28	30.40

TAFTVILLE

The last meeting of the season of the Mens' club of the Taftville Congregational church is to be held at the church vestry Thursday evening. The executive committee of the club has decided that the evening will not be a ladies' night. A chicken supper will be served at 6:30 and there will be music and speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fallow and family of New Bedford, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Cole of North Third avenue.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Tomas on Lorenzo street is being repainted.

TRIAL BEGUN OVER SALE OF REAL ESTATE

The $9,000 damage suit brought by Dr. Alfredo Crocicchia, Isabella Crocicchia, Murray and Emma B. Crocicchia of New London against Theodore Hines was in progress Tuesday before Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court in New London.

The case arises over the sale of a number of parcels of land in Haverhill, Mass., and Salem, N. H., the plaintiffs claiming that the defendant was fraudulent in representing his financial status. The trial was late in starting and it was shortly after noon when the first witness, Dr. Crocicchia took the stand.

He said that he first met the defendant June 5, 1922, when his son George came to New London for a visit and met his friend Hines with him. According to the physician, Hines wanted to sell the property in Haverhill and Salem, some of which was in his wife's name, some in his daughter's name and some in his own name. He told of taking a trip into Massachusetts and New Hampshire with Hines to look at the land.

Attorney C. Hadlai Hull appeared for the plaintiffs, while Attorneys Maretz and Sherman, both of New Haven, represented the defendant.

FEWER APPLICATIONS AT NORWICH EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

HARTFORD, April 13—(AP)—Applications from unemployed persons for work have steadily increased in the state during the past three months, while at the same time demand for workers by employers has kept pace with the rate of increase, according to reports made to the state department of labor from its five free employment bureaus.

During March 4, 636 unemployed applied at the bureaus for situations. This was an increase from 3,739 in February and 3,589 in January. Last month, however, employers made 3,-436 individual applications for help, a gain from 2,969 in February and 2,-214 in January.

Applications for employment increased at all bureaus during March, except Norwich where there was a decrease from 622 to 547. The increase at Hartford was from 947 to 1,379; at New Haven from 437 to 793; at Bridgeport from 971 to 994, and at Waterbury from 762 to 943.

Applications from employers for workers showed a fairly equal increase at all bureaus, with the biggest gain at New Haven, where the increase was from 404 to 791. The bureaus were successful in getting situations for more than 71 per cent of the persons who applied for work.

A CORNER IN THE PENN PENNIMAN LIBRARY

JAMES E. PENNIMAN, N. F. A. '80, ESTABLISHES THREE NOTED LIBRARIES

Norwich Free Academy has sent out many illustrious graduates who have done worth-while work in the world; but it has remained for one, James Hosmer Penniman, of Philadelphia, to blaze a new trail which no other alumnus will ever be likely to duplicate—that of establishing libraries of education.

When a boy, Mr. Penniman lived at the home of his cousin, the late Mrs. John F. Slater—now the R. H. Howe residence, on Broadway, attending the Academy, from which he was graduated with the class of 1880. He was in the 1884 class at Yale and has won his Litt. D.

Mr. Penniman's Norwich roots lie very deep, for his great-grandfather Hon. James Lanman, Yale, 1787, is buried in the City cemetery on Oak street, his grave marked by a substantial, four-square monument which sets forth his prominence as an able, eloquent and successful advocate, prior to his death, Aug. 7th, 1841. Not long ago, Dr. Penniman had the monument inscriptions entirely re-cut, as they were becoming effaced.

Furthermore, Dr. Penniman never forgets his sense of gratitude to the Academy for the start it gave him along the road to knowledge—more especially along the shining path of literature. As he expresses it, "The Academy did its work well; Prof. William Hutchison and the Blackman sisters were wonderful teachers." It is an interesting fact that it was James H. Penniman who had the artist Emmons—who had painted many of his ancestors—paint the fine portrait of Professor Hutchison which his class at graduation gave to the Free Academy.

Giving libraries has almost become a habit with Dr. Penniman. Brown university had a strong claim on his affection and he forthwith gave to that Providence university the Penniman Memorial Library of Education established at Brown university—in memory of his parents, Maria Davis Hosmer and James Lanman Penniman, Yale 1853; grandson of Chiron Penniman, Brown 1791; great-grandson of Elias Penniman, Brown 1774.

To the University of Pennsylvania Philadelphia, he has given the Maria Hosmer Penniman Library of Education, as a memorial to his mother.

The Penniman Memorial Library of Education of Yale university was established by Dr. Penniman in memory of his parents, James Lanman Penniman, Yale 1853, and Maria Hosmer Penniman. Although the Philadelphia library is accounted one of the finest, the Yale Penniman now has 80,000 volumes——nearly three times the size of the Maria Hosmer Penniman library, University of Penn. Andrew Keogh, librarian at Yale, has publicly acknowledged Dr. Penniman's services to the university, mentioning, among other facts, that he has established a library which, although instituted only in 1920 has already become an important part of Yale's literary resources. Dr. Penniman, he writes, has done four things towards building up the Yale Memorial to his parents. He has sent us many hundreds of volumes on education that he had purchased. He has authorized the purchase at his expense of hundreds of volumes recommended by the department of education or by the library staff. He has purchased and temporarily placed in the Education Building at 28 Hillhouse avenue such books, magazines, and reports as are needed for daily use. He has given to Yale many incunabula and other fine or unusual specimens of book making, with autograph letters of importance or interest.

The accompanying cut represents the Penniman library of University of Pennsylvania, yet pictures only half of that fine collection of books. Yale Penniman is twice as big as the Penn Penniman; consequently it is easy to infer the value of such a priceless addition to Yale resources.

Year after year, the Yale bulletins recount the discrimination, taste, devotion and above all the generosity of Dr. Penniman, in selecting, providing purchasing, rare and costly volumes and MSS. to increase the practical usefulness of the Yale Penniman. As an example, one paragraph in Librarian Keogh's report reads:

The story of the Penniman Library for the year is chiefly one of steady growth along lines now well established. Several hundred volumes came as gifts from Dr. Penniman, who also paid for all the works on education recommended by the library. Three incunabula (St. Vincent Ferrer's De fine mundi, (1481); Mancinellus's Scribendi orandique modus, Ulm (1499); Lochmaier's Parochiale curatorum, Nuremberg (1495); and an edition of Bishop Giovanni Antonio Campano's Orationes Rome, (Utopia 1519), of which the printer has not yet been identified were added, and an unusual collection of "Annuari" of the universities of Italy. These yearbooks were noticed by Mr. Stokes during a stay in Rome, and were brought to the attention of Dr. Penniman, who promptly purchased them. The collection numbers 328 volumes, includes practically all the Italian universities, and covers the last 50 years. It is an excellent index to the state of higher education in that country; but it is of wider value because the volumes contain many inaugural and preliminary discourses by the professors, and many biographical and bibliographical notices of members of the faculties.

In the Norwich Academy—or somewhere— Dr. Penniman learned the habit of industry; for not only does he provide books for the studious but he also writes them. Besides this, his busy pen is ever at work on reviews, criticisms, informing papers and the like for newspapers and periodicals.

He reveres George Washington and has written a fascinating tale of George Washington at Mount Vernon on the Potomac, to give a clearer idea of the character of Washington and to set a higher standard for American patriotism. This tribute was published by the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union, Fairfax County, Va.

Another of his ideal heroes is Lafayette and he has written "Our Debt to France; What Lafayette Did for America."

"Books and How to Make the Most of Them" is another of his publications—helpful and practical, as its name implies.

"Philadelphia in the Early Eighteen Hundreds" is a delightful story of contrasts between then and now—with innumerable sidelights thrown on a period of Quaker City history exceedingly illuminating.

What amazing things Dr. Penniman can do in a lighter vein is evidenced in a clever little book titled "The Alley Rabbit," a charming chronicle of the doings and characteristics of Raoul, "a book in which the Samuel Johnson of cats is treated in the manner of Boswell." In referring to this story of a remarkable pet the Philadelphia Ledger says "Dr. Penniman makes his alley rabbit take rank among feline immortals."

During the World war, keenly satirical and clever poems on timely themes, written by Dr. Penniman found their way to the magazines and papers.

TEMPLETON CHURCH CALLS PASTOR FROM WAUREGAN

The Trinitarian Congregational church at Templeton, Mass., has extended a call to Rev. William Fryling of Wauregan, Conn., to assume the pastorate. Although no definite response has been received as yet, indications are that the pastor will accept the new post.

In token of appreciation of his faithful service at the Wauregan Congregational church Rev. William Fryling was presented with a gold piece by the church school a week ago Sunday. A similar coin was presented to Mrs. Fryling, also a token of esteem and appreciation.

Mr. Fryling's official pastorate at the Wauregan church closed April first. Mr. Fryling has not announced his plans as yet.

Was Former Connecticut Pastor

Rev. William H. Woodwell, 82, who died several days ago at the home of his son in Kensington, Md., was buried Sunday at West Medway, Mass. He was a retired Congregational clergyman, a native of Newburyport.

He had served as pastor of churches in Wells, Me.; Mount Vernon, N. H.; Orient, N. Y.; New Marlboro, Hampton and Haddam, Conn.; Seabrook, N. H., and Pomona, Fla. He also spent a few years on the Hawaiian Islands as preacher and teacher.

SHEFFIELD GRANDCHILDREN WILLED $2,000 EACH

Joseph Earl Sheffield and Miss Mary Stewart Sheffield, children of Mrs. Tracy Farnam of New London, are each beneficiaries in the sum of $2,000 under the will of their grandfather, George St. John Sheffield, who left a net estate of $1,073,088.46 when he died at Providence, R. I., on Dec. 14, 1924. The young man is at present a student at Yale and Miss Sheffield is residing at the family residence at 967 Pequot avenue, New London.

The will of George St. John Sheffield directed the division of the estate as follows:

Amelia Daggett Sheffield, widow, of No. 132 Taber avenue, Providence, R. I., $5,000 in cash, and all furniture, household and personal effects, absolutely. Also a life interest in the remainder of the property, with the right to will $100,000. What then remains at her death is to be divided as follows:

Joseph Earl Sheffield of No. 317 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn., and Mary Stewart Sheffield, grandchildren, each $2,000.

The Russell Trust association of New Haven, $10,000.

Yale university, for its alumni fund, in memory of his late sons, Joseph Earl and George, $2,000.

Yale university, two-thirds of the remainder, and the Scientific school, better known as the Sheffield Scientific school, of New Haven, the remaining one-third.

The gross value of the estate left by Mr. Sheffield amounted to $1,156,709.83.

Mr. Sheffield, known as the "grandfather of Yale rowing" and son of Joseph Earl Sheffield, founder of the Sheffield Scientific school, Yale university, died after an illness of three weeks in his 83rd year and was laid to rest at the Old cemetery, New Haven. He was a retired Wall street banker.

A life-long rowing enthusiast, he was a member of the class crew of '63. Before the advent of varsity rowing at Yale. Born at New Haven on April 2, 1842 he was the son of Joseph Earl and Maria Sheffield. He received the degree of A. B. from Yale in 1863 and A. M. from the same institution in 1866. He is survived also by a sister, Mrs. William J. Boardman, of Washington, D. C., and a niece, Mabel Boardman, who is connected with the American Red Cross.

OBSERVED THEIR 56TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kay of 38 Poquonoc road, Groton, observed the 56th anniversary of their wedding on Sunday at their home, with nearly all members of the family gathered. They were married in Groton April 11, 1870, and have resided at 38 Poquonnoc road ever since their wedding.

Mr. Kay was formerly employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, but was retired from the service about 25 years ago. He is 76 years of age. Mrs. Kay, who was married at 15 years of age, celebrated her 71st birthday anniversary last Friday night at her home.

Although they are both past the 70 year mark, they are in excellent health and enjoy the comfort of a large and happy family.

All members of the family, with the exception of one son, and several friends were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kay Friday night on the occasion of Mrs. Kay's birthday anniversary. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock following which music and dancing were enjoyed. They were presented many gifts by their children and friends.

Junior Woodcraft and Forestry Club

A group of eight Coventry boys met recently with Rev. J. N. Atwood to organize a club. After the various kinds of clubs were explained by County Agent Tucker, the boys voted in favor of a woodcraft club. This being a new type here in Connecticut, the plans are being shaped up for development into a young foresters' group as the boys grow older and interest continues. The officers elected were: President, Andrew Liebman; vice president, Earl Koehler; secretary, Warren Gillette.

ENTERS JUDGMENT IN FAVOR OF O'HARA

An amendment suggested by Judge Allyn L. Brown in his memorandum of decision in the suit of Michael F. O'Hara of New London against the Hartford Oil Heating Co. having been filed with George E. Parsons, clerk of the superior court, judgment for O'Hara for $484.88, with costs of $93.49, has been entered by the court clerk.

O'Hara brought suit against the Hartford Oil Heating company for $7,500 damages on the claim that two oil burning heaters which he installed in the rectory and convent at Taftville in September, 1925, would not burn the oil, which it had been represented could be used for fuel and he was forced to remove them.

Judge Allyn L. Brown wrote the following memorandum of decision in giving judgment for O'Hara:

I find that exhibits A and H together comprise the contract between the parties, and accordingly the plaintiff may forthwith amend paragraph one of his complaint by striking out the words: "A copy of said contract being annexed hereto and marked as exhibit A" at the end thereof, and substituting therefor the words: "Which contract is comprised of exhibits A and H in evidence."

I further find that the two model "T" electrol burners furnished by the defendant to the plaintiff pursuant to the contract and installed in the Catholic rectory at Taftville did not "burn fuel oil 28-32 Baume in a satisfactorily," and that they would not do so, and that accordingly the defendant was justified in rescinding the contract as he did.

I further find that the expense so caused the plaintiff by changing the installation at Taftville, to May burners, was $220.76 and that the loss caused him on his contract to install an electrol burner for Mr. Cutler at Mystic was $250. These items, with interest from Oct. 6, 1926 of $14.12, a total of $484.88, the plaintiff is entitled to recover in this action. The other items of damage based on claimed loss of profits by the plaintiff, etc., are in some instances covered by a compensating profit on May burners installed by the plaintiff upon his becoming the agent for this burner after rescinding his contract with the defendant, and the rest are too speculative to permit of a recover herein.

Upon the filing of the amendment referred to in the first paragraph hereof, judgment may be entered for the plaintiff to recover of the Hartford Oil Heating Co., the present defendant corporation, $484.88.

SILK WEAVERS STRIKE AGAINST WAGE REDUCTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 13—About 100 weavers in the employ of the Edward Bloom Silk company went on their annual strike this morning. It is probable that the strikers will be out of work a week or more, for it is believed, that it will be all of that time before an adjustment satisfactory to both employer and employes is reached. It is also hinted that employes in other departments of the mill will join in a sympathetic strike if the demands of the weavers are not granted. The weavers are paid 12 cents on all perfect work of the single and silk work per yard, while 11 cents is paid for imperfect work. The three-ply weave silk rate has been reduced to nine cents to eight cents on perfect weave and seven cents per yard on imperfect weave. The strikers dislike the reduction and that has brought about the strike, the strikers declaring that they can earn but approximately $21 per week and that they are forced to work until 7 or 8 o'clock at night in order to obtain this weekly wage. The strikers demand that the old working wage be adopted and the new scale discontinued.

GAVE MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS MADELINE O'CONNELL

A delightful miscellaneous shower was held Monday evening at the home of Miss Madeline O'Connell, 11 Bushnell place, in honor of her approaching marriage to Michael Aldi of this city. Fifty friends of Miss O'Connell gathered at her home to shower her with gifts and during the evening a number of the them furnished an entertaining program. Miss Mary Walsh gave the intricate steps of the Charleston, Miss Alice Flynn offered recitations, Miss Anna Spicer played piano selections and the Misses Johanna and Margaret Shaffhauser rendered vocal selections, which were all very well received. The feature of the evening was a mock marriage, which was performed by the following: Miss Mary Walsh, minister; Mrs. Bert McCabe, bride; Mrs. Whalen, groom; Miss Margaret O'Connell, flower girl; Miss Sally Donohue and Miss Frieda Blinderman, bridesmaids. The bride-to-be received many pretty and useful gifts, which were arranged in a basket beautifully decorated in yellow. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and punch was served by the Misses Margaret O'Connell and Gladys Williamson. The arrangements committee was the Misses Margaret O'Connell, Gladys Williamson and Sally Donohue.

Among those present were the following from the Norwich telephone exchange office: Misses Anna Gaffery, Anna Spicer, Madeline O'Neil, Mary Hussey, Mary Walsh, Viola Nolan, Gladys Williamson, Sally Donohue, Margaret O'Connell, Catherine Leahy, Mary Dunn and Frieda Blinderman.

S. Edgerton, Vernon.

NORWICH MAN SUES FOR ACCOUNTING FROM RAILROAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—Carl W. Brown of 12 Warren Street, Norwich, Conn., today filed suit in the United States District Court here against the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, asking for an accounting. Brown, who holds 100 shares of preferred stock, alleges that the railroad, while failing to pay accumulated preferred stock dividends, has resumed the payment of common stock dividends in violation of an agreement with the preferred stockholders made at the time of reorganization in 1916. This agreement the petition states was that no dividends should be paid on common stock in any year until the holders of preferred stock had been paid six per cent and that no dividends should be withheld in any year in which the road showed a net earning so that a fund would be created for the payment of common stock dividends in subsequent years. In only two years since reorganization, the suit recites, did the railroad fail to earn a sufficient sum to pay the $45,000 of annual preferred dividends. Preferred stock holders in that period received only one and one half per cent dividends, the unpaid accumulation now being more than $3,000,000 according to the petition. On the other hand, the petition alleges, four dividends on common stock were paid during 1925. The court is asked to determine what sum the preferred stockholders are entitled to and to restrain the railroad from paying any further common stock dividends until the issue raised shall have been determined.

C. I. BABCOCK NOW EMPLOYED IN BAHAMA ISLANDS

Charles I. Babcock, formerly of Jewett City and Norwich, is now at Nassau, Bahama Islands, superintending the erection of a large hotel. After its completion he expects to locate in Florida, with his wife and infant son.

Mr. Babcock graduated from Norwich Free Academy and then from Worcester Polytechnic institute in 1921 after which he spent three years in South America where he was employed as engineer by the Fred T. Ley Co.

SENATE TO VOTE ON ITALIAN DEBT NEXT WEDNESDAY

Administration Leaders Are Confident That the House Bill Will Be Passed—Opponents Will Endeavor to Send It Back to the Committee or Reject It Outright—Senator Borah Was in Readiness to Oppose Immediate Action on the Agreement.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—An agreement to vote on the Italian debt settlement next Wednesday at four p. m., was reached today by the senate.

Administration leaders are confident that the house bill approving the settlement worked out by the American and Italian commissions last summer will be passed. Opponents hope to be able either to send it back to committee or reject it outright.

An effort first was made today to obtain consent for a vote at 2 p. m. Wednesday, but Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, objected, with the declaration that he regarded the settlement as a species of intolerable grand larceny. Later he declared that if the agreements were approved, the people would repudiate the action of congress.

After this development, there were cries of "vote, vote," with Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee sitting poised and ready to take the floor to stave off immediate action.

He finally arose and announced that while efforts to get an agreement were going forward, he would discuss the proposed amendments to the Volstead act.

Meantime, Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, reached a compromise with Senator Reed and the proposal for a vote Wednesday was made. Some senators threatened to block it, but it finally went through with a provision limiting debate to 30 minutes for each senator beginning at noon Wednesday.

ATTY. GEN. SARGENT WOULD NOT ANSWER SEN. WALSH

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—Flat refusal of Attorney General Sargent to answer several questions asked by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, faced a senate judiciary sub-committee today in its consideration of the Walsh resolution for information regarding the prosecution of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, last year.

The resolution directs the attorney general to inform the sub-committee regarding the expenses of conduct of the prosecution of Senator Wheeler on the charge that he had acted illegally in connection with oil lands and whether the department of justice plans to institute perjury cases against George B. Hayes, New York lawyer, and prosecuting witness at Great Falls, Montana, trial.

Mr. Sargent's refusal was based on the ground that the resolution was broad and that the information desired by Senator Walsh should be disclosed because publication would be prejudicial to the public interest.

Referring to data regarding two witnesses who the government contends had been corroborated Hayes' testimony that he met Senator Wheeler in New York and was asked by him to assist in obtaining land for Senator Walsh, asked Mr. Sargent whether he had a copy of that data.

"I have not," answered the attorney general.

"Will you tell us the names of those witnesses?"

"No, I will not."

"Is it your point that the attorney general is charged with the responsibility of instituting proceedings—the executive branch of the government?" he asked Senator Walsh.

"The department of justice, I presume," replied Walsh.

He said the attorney general said he could not furnish the information Senator Walsh wanted until the senate asked for it.

"I consider it the duty of the senate to ask for it," he added. "I consider very grave if it intends to ask such a question I can't ignore what I consider my duty."

The attorney general was standing pat on his refusal to be drawn out when the committee session adjourned.

WOMAN IN COMMONS A PROBLEM FOR BACHELORS

LONDON, April 14.—(AP)—There is great agitation among the bachelor commoners as to whether the only unmarried woman member of the house, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, will be invited to the bachelor members' dinner on April 23. Some are opposed to any woman attending others argue that a bachelor is an unmarried member of either sex.

The only man who knows is Sir James Agg-Gardner, the famous chairman of the kitchen committee, who is 80, says he is old enough to keep it secret until the official list is made public.

There are 38 bachelor commoners, among them Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, former chancellor of the exchequer, who will be congratulated for returning from his recent American visit unmarried, Lord Hugh Cecil and the most eligible and wealthiest of all parliamentary unmarried men. One of the toasts of the dinner will be the Prince of Bachelors—the prince of Wales.

REV. GUY WILLIS HOLMES MUST APPEAR IN COURT

BOSTON, April 14.—Rev. Guy Willis Holmes of New Bedford, expelled from the Methodist ministry for conduct unbecoming a clergyman and indicted by the Suffolk county grand jury on immorality and other charges, will appear in superior court for arraignment as soon as his condition permits, possibly tomorrow, the district attorney's office was informed today.

Ernest Laycock, counsel for Holmes, said that his client was suffering from ptomaine poisoning at the home of his mother-in-law's home in West Greenwich, R. I., and was under the care of a physician. The attorney also said declared that Holmes could not appear for several days, but then added he would try to produce him tomorrow.

AURORA BOREALIS WAS FELT IN NEW ENGLAND

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—The aurora borealis, which interfered with telegraph communication to an unusual extent even into the far south last January, made itself felt again tonight in New England and northern New York state. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, as well as the American Telephone and Telegraph company, reported considerable interference on their lines in those districts.

DIRIGIBLE NORGE HAS ARRIVED AT OSLO, NORWAY

OSLO, Norway, April 14—(AP)—The dirigible Norge, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar expedition, made fast to her mooring mast here at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon after an uneventful flight from Pulham, England. The Norge started on this journey shortly before midnight last night.

The whole city was agog with excitement from early in the morning, the weather was beautiful, somewhat misty in the morning, but clear by noon, with bright sunshine and without wind.

The Norge dipped her flag in greeting when passing Amundsen's house on the Fjord, six miles from the capital. Many American and Italian flags were displayed, and every available place on the roofs was utilized as a point of vantage to watch the great ship coming in.

King Haakon made observations from the windows of the palace, while the members of parliament, Premier Lykke, former Premier McWinckel, and other prominent officials were on the roof of the Sporting. It was a holiday for the school children, while thousands of automobiles stood in long files on the roads leading to the landing place.

Royal guardsmen were ready to assist in the landing under the direction of Italian air officers and engineers, while a squadron of cavalry kept the spectators at a safe distance.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate agreed to vote Wednesday on the Italian debt settlement.

The census bureau reported increased cotton consumption in March.

The senate asked Secretary Mellon what funds the Thompson Philippine mission will use.

Captain Wilson Brown was designated commander of the presidential yacht Mayflower.

The Spanish War Veterans' pension bill was passed by the senate and sent to conference.

Republican house leaders agreed to give farm relief legislation right of way as soon as a bill is reported.

President Coolidge renominated Chairman Hooper, Samuel Hazzard and Walter L. McMenimen for the railroad labor board.

Restricted government sale of non-intoxicating beer would probably aid prohibition, Assistant Secretary Andrews testified at senate hearing.

ALLEGED RADIO BURGLAR PLEADED NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—A plea of not guilty was entered in Queens county court today by Judge Adel for Paul E. Hilton, alleged radio burglar who has terrorized the Richmond Hill section for the last three months and is said to have shot four policemen, one fatally.

Hilton, who was arraigned on a short affidavitt charging homicide, was remanded to jail without bail for a further hearing on April 16.

Morris Reiff, accused of purchasing 16 of the radio sets stolen by Hilton, as well as silverware, was held in $25,000 bail for a hearing Friday. He is charged with criminally receiving stolen goods.

Today Hilton was taken to the various houses he is said to have robbed. Patrolman Frank Donnelly, who was shot on March 26 immediately after the burglar fatally wounded Patrolman Arthur Kenney, positively identified Hilton in police headquarters yesterday.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 14—(AP)—Dr. Thomas S. Young told the International Council of Religious Education Instruction in Public Schools indicates that all denominations "can be brought together on common ground."

Dr. Hugh S. McGill, Chicago was reelected general secretary of the council.

It was decided that the provincial and denominational bodies of the Canadian council be taken into the International council on the same basis as obtain the United States for the state and denominational bodies.

LAUNCH SINKS FOLLOWING REMOVAL OF RUM CARGO

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 14—(AP)—The Allen S., a 50 foot gasoline cruiser, lay today on the bottom of the Seaconnet river, at Tiverton, R. I., near here, but her cargo of alcohol and whiskey valued at $25,000, which she attempted to land yesterday afternoon, was in the custody of the coast guard officials because a member of the crew informed the police. The race between the rum runner and the coast guard cutter 024 was close, but the pirate craft reached a dock and her crew jumped into a waiting motor car and disappeared. This morning when the cutter was towing the rum runner to Providence, the launch sank in mid-stream.

HAVANA, April 14.—(AP)—The Cuban cabinet today accepted the plan presented by sugar growing interests to reduce the crop by 10 per cent.

HERRIN REQUESTS MILITARY FOR ELECTION NEXT TUESDAY

HERRIN, Ills., April 14.—(AP)—Tallying on death's scoreboard the results of the sixth inning of its civil war, Herrin viewed with foreboding today an approaching city election next Tuesday, and appealed to military forces to remain in control of the city until the vote is taken.

A county and station primary yesterday was the occasion of a renewal of the factional strife which had been dormant since a thousand residents of the community "got religion" in a revival meeting 11 months ago, and six men died in a gun battle in front of a voting place at the Masonic hall.

While Mayor Marshall McCormick was appealing to national guard officers today to keep militiamen in the city until next Tuesday's municipal election is over, Coroner George Bell of Williamson county reached and called an inquest for Friday over the corpses of the slain yesterday.

Each faction—the Klan group and the anti-Klan force—has three dead in the latest episode of Herrin's long tragedy, and 19 have died in the civil war since February, 1924. Yesterday's shooting marked the sixth time the factions had "shot it out" in 26 months of the 19 fatalities, ten victims have been Klansmen and nine anti-Klansmen.

Bitter enmities arising out of liquor raids led by the late S. Glenn Young more than two years ago are blamed specifically by friends of the Klan victims for the shooting. Mayor McCormack called the motive "revenge on the part of bootleggers and others". Mrs. Ben Sizemore, widow of one of the slain Klansmen and an eye witness, said the assailants avowedly intended to kill John Ford, former police chief and reported cyclops of the Herrin Klan, whose brother is one of the dead. Ford has declined to talk until he faces the county jury.

Arlie O. Boswell, states attorney and a Klansman, said the shootings were "purely for the purpose of intimidating voters" and declared they would not have happened "if the mayor, chief of police and sheriff had done their duty."

Oren Coleman, the candidate endorsed by the Klan, was nominated for sheriff by the republicans with a huge plurality over six opponents. He is a former school teacher and a war veteran.

MUSSOLINI VISITS ANCIENT CITY OF LEPTIS MAGNA

TRIPOLI, April 14—(AP)—Benito Mussolini picked out the fifth and important day of his Tripoli visit—devoted primarily to an inspection of the excavations of the ancient city of Leptis Magna—to cast off the cloak of the Caesar of the new Roman empire and appear in a role the world little knows that of a likeable, boyish and very human person.

He drove his own car 150 miles at such breakneck speed that he left all the other cars behind and caused that to which the Associated Press correspondent was riding to turn turtle in a sand-dune.

Instead of wearing his customary tense expression, Mussolini smiled constantly, talked freely with the members of his entourage, pinched and kissed the cheeks of little fascists in fatherly fashion and gave the camera men opportunities for good correspondents, to whom he lengthily described the things he had seen in the last few days and the enthusiasm with which he had been welcomed.

On one occasion, at the ruins of Leptis Magna, when forced to come down a steep ladder backwards, Mussolini stopped for a moment, obviously considering whether to order the photographers to refrain from snapping him in that unsainly attitude, but decided in the negative, and so continued his descent, while those around laughed and applauded. The premier was somewhat embarrassed by the situation and made a casual remark with the manifest intention of covering his confusion.

GYPSY WOMAN STAGED HOLD UP IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, April 14.—(AP)—Driven by the police from their camping ground at Blakeslee's quarry in Russell street, between 75 and 100 gypsies went to North Haven today, where a woman member of the band held up and robbed Mrs. A. Fritz in a Washington avenue gasoline station after threatening to stab her with a dagger. The band then continued through Meriden in the direction of Hartford.

New Britain and Hartford police were requested to watch out for the gypsies who are belived to have been responsible for the robbing of two Stamford women of $4,000 a few days ago.

The gypsy band made its appearance here last night, travelling in automobiles and carrying supplies in a truck. They camped at the quarry last night but were ordered away by the police this morning.

TO ELECT PRESIDENT OF BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

BOSTON, April 14.—(AP)—The board of directors which will elect a new president of the Boston and Maine railroad to succeed James H. Hustis resigned, was chosen today at the annual meeting of shareholders. The slate presented by the present management of the company was returned by an overwhelming majority. Of the 814,000 shares outstanding 678,603 were represented in the voting for directors. Nineteen of the 21 members of the board received the full number. Two new dirtctors were added to the board, Louis M. Atherton of Swampscott and William Dexter of Boston. Nathan L. Amster of Brookline and Clarence Carr of Andover, N. H., were supported by 53,415 shares.

LEGISLATION FAVORABLE TO NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

BOSTON, April 14.—(AP)—The legislative committee on railroads today cleared the way for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company's purchase and operation of the Springfield and the Worcester consolidated Street Railway companies. The committee voted to report a bill authorizing the railroad to purchase the capital stock of the New England Investment and Security company and the Springfield Railway company, voluntary associations which control the trolley lines.

Andrews Favors Non-Intoxicating Beer

Under Strictest Regulation of Government Control—For the Home and Class Hotels and Restaurants.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—An opinion that the sale of non-intoxicating beer under the strictest sort of government control would improve conditions under prohibition was drawn from Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, today by the wets during testimony before the senate liquor committee.

On the stand for another two hours, the official in charge of federal prohibition enforcement would not commit himself on the sale of light wines because he was not prepared to say that non-intoxicating wines could be produced.

Contending for consumption of beer only in the home or in high class hotels and restaurants, General Andrews declared that the sale of beer in saloons would be as "disastrous" to prohibition enforcement as the saloons could be used as blinds for the dispensing of hard liquors.

He conceded that there was a great deal of distilling in private homes and agreed with Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, the one wet member of the committee, that this must lead to breaking down of the morals of the families so engaged.

He also agreed with his wet questioners that as his forces dried up the sources of commercial supply, distilling in the home probably would increase.

Before General Andrews left the stand he took issue with the statement given recently to the committee by District Attorney Buckner, of New York, that 60,000,000 gallons of alcohol is diverted to bootleggers yearly.

"Our best figures are that during last year from 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 gallons were diverted," he said. "I think Mr. Buckner's statement was based on erroneous information and also on lack of information.

After Mr. Andrews left the stand the treasury sent to congress a supplemental estimate of $2,931,000 to carry on prohibition next year with an explanation that when the original estimate was submitted the new organization set up for enforcement had not begun to function fully.

Prohibition also got into the senate debate during the day, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, arguing that the efforts to modify the dry laws were to really an attempt to modify the constitution without the sanction of the people.

Senator Borah was subjected to some heckling by the wets of the senate and at one point the declaration about assaults on the constitution was applauded vigorously both by senators and spectators with Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, an ardent dry, leading the demonstration.

After Senator Borah had concluded Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, one of the wet leaders, replied that there was no assault of the constitution, simply a movement for that which the constitution permits—liquor non intoxicating in fact.

With Senator Reed taking the lead in a vigorous and at times humorous examination of General Andrews and with a captured illicit still on exhibit in the room, the committee session today proved one of the most colorful in the week and a half of the wets presentation of their case.

Regarding modification of the Volstead act to permit non intoxicating beer, as proposed by Senator Edge, the assistant secretary proved a hesitant if not reluctant witness. Judge Codman, counsel for the wets, took up that phase of the inquiry and Senator Reed interposed to complete it.

General Andrews insisted on it being made perfectly clear that beer was to be under government manufacture and distribution with no drinking on the premises and no saloons of any kind. With all those stipulations agreed upon by the wets he gave his opinion that such sale would aid in improving conditions.

ANTI-SALOON MEN AWAIT EXPLANATION BY ANDREWS

WASHINGTON, April 14. — (AP) — Anti-Saloon league officials issued the following statement after Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury had testified today before the senate prohibition committee regarding government controlled manufacture and sale of non-intoxicating beer:

"We have no comment to make until General Andrews himself clarifies the statement attributed to him by the newspapers."

It was signed by National Superintendent McBride, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the organization's legislativ committee, and Wayne B. Wheeler, the league's general counsel.

To Test Validity of Riot Act in Passaic

American Civil Liberties Union to Act in Defense of Those Made For That Purpose. Textile Strikers — Arrest

PASSAIC, N. J., April 14—(AP)—Minor disturbances in Garfield and Lodi, and additional threats of the near martial law of the riot act for Passaic county today were developments in the Passaic district textile strike.

The Garfield disturbance resulted when an attempt was made at a "free speech" meeting to test the validity of the riot act which has been in effect in Bergen county for the past two days. Norman Thomas, former socialist candidate for governor of New York was arrested while addressing two hundred textile workers.

Thomas was taken to Hackensack where he was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of violating the riot act. He will be given a hearing tomorrow afternoon. The case came up before Justice of the Peace Hargraves, who clashed with Arthur Garfield Hays of the American Civil Liberties union of New York yesterday.

Representatives of the American Civil Liberties union said they would fight the case on the ground that the strikers' meeting was orderly and on private property leased for the occasion. Such a meeting is not subject to provisions of the riot act, they said.

Police permitted Thomas to speak for eight minutes before arresting him. He admonished his audience to be orderly and then said, "They have taken your leader and held him in bail; that is a mockery to American justice."

Under Sheriff Donaldson then ordered park, where the meeting was being held, cleared, and placed Thomas under arrest.

Eight strikers were arrested at the Lodi disturbance following an attempt to picket the homes of negro employes of the United Piece Dye Works. The negroes resented the attempt and attacked the pickets with clubs, bricks and weapons of all description. Several persons were injured.

BURIAL OF BURBANK AS SIMPLE AS HIS LIFE

SANTA ROSA, Calif., April 14—(AP)—The body of Luther Burbank, first citizen of Santa Rosa, was buried in sod tonight with a cedar of Lebanon planted by the great horticulturist many years ago as a monument and headstone.

The burial was as simple as the daily routine in the cottage where Burbank lived and worked. No prayers were said aloud at his bier, and the stillness of evening in the home was unbroken by funeral orations.

Old friends and former fellow workers carried the casket to the grave from the room where Burbank died. A few words were spoken informally by close friends, a song was sung and the body was lowered to its final resting place.

Elizabeth Burbank, the scientist's widow and his sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson of Heraldsburg, Calif., were the principal mourners. Besides these, only a chosen few of the oldest and closest friends of the family were at the grave or their home.

An unexpected and unannounced visitor at the burial was Marshall P. A. Albee of Berkeley, California, who was a classmate of Burbank in the Lancaster academy of Massachusetts in 1866 and 1867.

The path from the Burbank home to the grave was lined with flowers that the hands and brain of the scientist had transformed to a more beautiful state. A guard of Boy Scouts stood at attention while the casket was borne between their ranks.

In the funeral cortege were Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford university, Mayor Charles O. Dunbar of Santa Rosa; Judge Rolfe Thompson of Sonoma county; Jerome O. Cross, superintendent of Santa Rosa public schools and Frank P. Doyle, banker.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN UNEMPLOYMENT IN MARCH

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—Unemployment decreased slightly during March, as compared with February, and, with optimism prevailing in practically every industry, the labor department today announced, employment prospects for April are "decidedly bright."

Building construction was reported to have increased in every section of the country, and preparations were said to be under way for considerable city and county improvements, large state road programs, and for greater activity in agricultural districts.

A majority of the textile mills, except those in New Jersey, where a strike has affected nine plants, were operating on a full time basis during March, and while forces engaged in mining anthracite increased slightly, employment fell off in the soft coal fields.

POSSIBLE THAT COLONEL WILLIAMS WAS DIZZY FROM MEDICINE, NOT DRUNK

MARINE BASE, San Diego, Cal., April 14—(AP)—Tooth ache and hexyl resorcinol were hailed before a military tribunal here today and branded as the causes of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler's accusation of drunkenness against Colonel Alexander S. Williams.

The tooth ache was General Butler's, already familiar to the court martial trying Colonel Williams on a charge of being intoxicated at the Hotel Del Coronado a few hours after he had given a dinner in General Butler's honor.

The hexyl resorginol was Colonel Williams. It was the medicine his physician had been prescribing for him since last January, and five witnesses were called by the colonel's counsel to convince the court that instead of being drunk on the night of March 6 at the Hotel Del Coronado, Col. Williams was merely upset by the hexyl resorcinol he had been taking in accordance with his doctor's orders.

They agreed that the chemical compound frequently caused distress to the patient by inducing stomach sickness, dizziness, nausea and other discomforts likely to spoil any party, Either a dinner at one's home or a dancing party at the Hotel Del Coronado.

Before the hexyl resorcinol testimony began the defense called Commander E. C. White, naval surgeon, and he gave testimony corroborating that of the two dental experts who yesterday declared dental lesions could induce visions and that General Butler had been having plenty of trouble with dental lesions.

Commander White said the general came to the naval hospital March 15 last for examination and treatment. He said he found him suffering from low blood pressure and nervous exhaustion, and that he was "nervous, easily excited, and poor of vision in his left eye."

The general's condition, he added, probably was due to his strenuous years as Philadelphia's director of public safety and to "the absorption of toxins from diseased teeth."

The defense rested its case without having called the defendant to the stand.

Rebuttal testimony will be introduced tomorrow by the prosecution and arguments will be heard.

MAN KILLED, SEVERAL HURT BY COLLAPSE OF WATER TANK

Tank Outside Leather Factory in Peabody, Mass., Dropped 60 Feet and Burst—12,000 Gallons of Water Was Sent Against the Side of the Factory With Force Enough to Destroy a 30 Foot Section of the Wall.

PEABODY, Mass., April 14—(AP)—One man was killed and half a dozen were injured when a 15,000 gallon water tank collapsed outside the N. H. Poor Leather Tannery here today. The tank dropped 60 feet and burst, sending 12,000 gallons of water against the side of the factory with enough force to rip away a 30 foot section of the wall.

The dead man and his injured fellow employes were at work in the cellar of the plant when the tank fell. All were thrown from their feet by the shock and several were picked up half drowned after the onrush of water through the side of the building had hurled them across the plant.

John Voksky died from internal injuries several hours after the collapse at the J. B. Thomas hospital. Three others, Clement Desures, Benjamin Bokowsky and M. Hedman, were held at the hospital with broken bone. Three other men were allowed to go home after treatment.

The tank was being repaired when the collapse occurred and one worker was seated on top of it when the supports gave way. He rode down on it and was pulled from the wreckage uninjured.

PADLOCK OFFENSIVE RENEWED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 14—(AP)—A padlock offensive against 42 night clubs, restaurants, inns and roadhouses, stretching from lower Manhattan to Catskill and Monticello was launched tonight by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

Two squads of his assistants, with prohibition and narcotic agents, started out on a series of flying visits to clamp on the padlocks immediately after information against them had been filed. The process servers believed their intentions had not been heralded in advance, and boasted that tomorrow would disclose a "trail of padlocks" left in their wake.

This will set the record for the number of padlock proceedings instituted at one time by Mr. Buckner's agents, exceeding the previous record of 41 padlocks two days before Christmas, 1925.

Among the New York city places were included night clubs in the theatrical district, a number of Greenwich Village places, one described as "an exclusive apartment club," one catering to down-town business men and another in the financial district, and a "loft club" said to have been known only to a limited clientele.

A month has been spent in gathering evidence against the places, it was said, and the list of officers cooperating with Mr. Buckner in that work included three of his own assistants; Major Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator for New York; Police Commissioner George V. Claughlin, Dr. Harry B. Fisher, of the New York Civic league and Ralph Oyler and Richard Nash, narcotic agents. A special squad under Charles Forbes, general prohibition agent, also was enlisted in the work.

BRIEFS ORDERED FILED ON SCHOONER J. DUFFY

NEW HAVEN, April 14—(AP)—Attorneys in the libel action of the United States government against the owner of the schooner J. Duffy, seized as a rum runner December 20, 1925, were ordered to file briefs within a month by Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States district court following an all-day session here today. F. Ritchie, of Nova Scotia is the owner of the vessel. He was represented by Attorney Louis Haile, of New York. The government was represented by Assistant U. S. District Attorney George A. Cohen.

The J. Duffy was seized off New London by the U. S. S. Downes, commanded by Lieutenant Fletcher W. Brown of the United States coast guard service with a cargo of 2,000 cases and 108 barrels of liquor. Lieutenant Brown testified that he had seen the J. Duffy off Rum Row and noted her on his log. Later he claimed he found her riding without lights but told conflicting stories of her position.

The ship obtained her cargo at Havana and was bound apparently for Nova Scotia. The schooner was putting into the Connecticut port for a fresh supply of water and repairs to an auxiliary engine, it was said, when she was captured. The liquor was confiscated and the ship libeled. The owner is endeavoring to have them returned.

SMITH WINS ILLINOIS SENATORIAL PRIMARY

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP)—Colonel Frank L. Smith, making his race for the republican nomination for the United States senate, 29, over William B. McKinley, senior Illinois senator, by upward of 150,000 votes, incomplete returns of yesterday's primary indicated tonight.

Colonel Smith's supporters attributed his victory to his opposition to United States adherence to the world court for which Senator McKinley voted. Senator McKinley, in a statement from Washington, however, said his only "pronounced opposition" came from Hearst papers and the papers whose editors "are on the state payroll of the Small-Smith combination."

Backers of Colonel Smith in attributing his victory to world court opposition rather than to any considerable support by the political organization headed by Governor Len Small pointed out tonight that Governor Small's candidate for the republican nomination for state treasurer, William Stratton, had ben defeated by Garrett DeForest Kinney, by more than 50,000 votes.

George E. Brennan, campaigning for the democratic nomination on a wet platform, piled up a vote three times the size of that cast for both his opponents.

BERGDOLL ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF SEDUCTION

MOSBACH, Germany, April 14.—(AP)—Grover C. Bergdoll, the American draft evader, was speedily acquitted today of charges of seduction and impairing the morals of minors after a trial which lasted seven hours before a court composed of one judge and two jurors.

The state's carefully built up case, after two months' investigation, blew up under the testimony of the psychoanalyst, Professor Hans Gruhle of the University of Heidelberg, who testified that his examination of seventeen-year-old Leisel Schmidt the chief against Bergdoll, convinced him that she was of "subnormal mentality and untrustworthy."

The girl herself was put on the stand, and wilted during the examination by Bergdoll's counsel; she was unable to picture the circumstances of the alleged attack on her three years ago, so as to convince the court.

Facing a sentence of from one to ten years for each offense, Bergdoll admitted that he had received the greatest scare of his life, despite previous hectic escapades.

Nervous and wild perspiration streaming down his forehead, Bergdoll bitterly attacked the private detective, Sachs, a former American, who had preferred the charges and who was not present in court.

To the Associated Press correspondent Bergdoll said: "I am through with Americans. I have lost all respect for Americans, because they have hounded me and by underhanded methods, such as the employment of Sachs, have tried to throw me into jail. But the accounts are not closed. I will file a counter suit for damages and libel against Sachs."

In the course of his testimony Prof. Gruhle, designated the evidence of Leisel Schmide as not worthy of belief.

Bergdoll quickly regained his composure amid the congratulations of hundreds of the populace. He then entered a restaurant and ordered a bottle of wine for every policeman and court officials, who drank to his health. He proceeded to Karlsruhe by motor.

NEW ENGLAND WATCH AND WARD SOCIETY ENJOINED

BOSTON, April 14.—(AP)—The New England Watch and Ward society today was enjoined from interfering with the distribution of the American Mercury. Judge Morton in federal court granted the petition for a temporary injunction brought by Arthur Garfield Hayes of New York on behalf of the magazine company after the April issue of the Mercury had been suppressed here.

Today's decision gave H. L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, his second victory in Massachusetts courts within a few days. He was acquitted by Judge Parmenter in municipal court after his arrest charged with possessing and selling obscene literature. The judge found that "Hatrack" a story in the April issue of the magazine which Mencken had sold on Boston common, was not indecent. Mencken met with a reverse when the East Cambridge court fined a Cambridge news dealer $100 for selling the issue.

The federal court decision held that J. Frank Chase, secretary of Watch and Ward society had no right to compel news dealers to suppress books and magazines by organized threat, either open or covert.

The injunction restrains the defendants from "interfering with or preventing in any way sale of the American Mercury of any future issue, by threat or intimidation." The decision made no mention of the petitioner's request for an accounting of the damages up to the present time.

EVANGELIST IS READY TO RETURN TO HERRIN

HATTIESBURG, Miss., April 14.—(AP)—Howard S. Williams, Hattiesburg evangelist, who is conducting a revival at Pensacola, Fla., told the Hattiesburg American over the telephone today that he is ready to return to Herrin, Illinois, and to endeavor to restore order there if his presence is desired. Eleven months ago Williams, during a revival at Herrin, brought about peace that had lasted until yesterday.

Williams already has made arrangements with the army and navy aviation bases at Pensacola to take him to Herrin by airplane if his presence is considered necessary.

"I have telegraphed friends and officials in Herrin," he said, "that if I can do anything in the world toward restoring quiet and order there I will gladly return. I am in the midst of the biggest revival of my career, but I am willing to close it for a day or two if I can be of any assistance in Herrin."

Williams has not received a reply from Illinois.

Miss Hattie Manley, guest of Mrs. William H. Peckham for three weeks returned Wednesday to her home in Hartford.

Dr. Edward J. Ottenheimer has returned from a vacation in the middle west.

The weekly meeting of Willimantic Exchange club was held Wednesday night President D. A. Case presiding. There was a large attendance and H. Clinton Lathrop was a guest. The program consisted of two orations on The Constitution delivered by Miss Natalie Burnham and Russell Beckwith who won first and second prize respectively in the local high school oratorical contest last week. The prizes were given by the exchange club and Miss Burnham will represent the local school in the county contest. With them were Stanley Sawicki and Miss Katherine Smith who had participated in the contest at the school. A vote of thanks was extended Rev. Charles Kelly and Director Charles N. G. Wheeler for the services of the St. Joseph's Boy Scout band at the State Exchange club night at Hartford last Monday. It was announced that the date of the playground meeting to be held jointly with the Rotary club at which Richard Dillon of Hartford will be the speaker, had been changed to Tuesday evening, April 27th.

The April meeting of the town school committee was held at the home of the chairman, William J. Sweeney, Wednesday evening. Communications were read by the secretary, E. A. Case. Report of the truant officer, John A. McKenna, showed two cases investigated. Medical Examiner Dr. W. P. S. Keating was not present to report. It was voted to give Miss Katherine Wheeler a gift of $200 for her efforts in continuing the music and glee club work at Windham high school. It was also voted to extend Principal James L. Harro thanks for carrying on the music in the school. The town schools were left without a hired director by the absence of Charles H. Caswell. It was voted that schools go on daylight saving time, provided the entire town adopts the movement. George W. Hickey, committeeman, reported on a conference held with the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co., and announced that a flat rate of 10c had been granted to the schools, resulting in a saving of about $200 a year.

A GARAGE, CAR AND COOP BURNED AT THE SCHUS PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 14—A three-space garage in which was a Ford coupe, and a hen coop adjoining on the Solomon Schus property, Ash St., just over the city line were completely destroyed in a spectacular blaze, shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night. The fire threatened a barn some 60 feet away, but this building was saved by the efforts of a bucket brigade. A large pine tree against which the garage was set played a part in making the blaze turn a large area into daylight and added to the danger by sending a shower of sparks into the air. The wind, however was such that they were not carried to the house. The fire broke out a few minutes after Mayer Schus, son of Solomon, had driven the Ford coupe to the garage and is believed to have started from gasoline dripping on a heated exhaust pipe. Insurance, the amount of which was not determined Wednesday night, was carried on both the building and the car. The pumper and hook and ladder trucks of Engine Co., No. 1 responded to a telephone call. When they arrived the garage was in ruins and the place being out of the city limits Chief Henry J. Kelley ordered his men to return at once to the city. It was apparent that the message had been misleading in some manner. Chief Kelly stated the name of the party who called and left word that he wanted to see him. The Schus home was formerly the old Spencer place. A few weeks ago Schus moved about 50 chickens from the coop now destroyed to a new building. Some half a dozen hens lost their lives in the blaze.

WINDHAM

The April meeting of the Parent-Teachers association Monday afternoon was largely attended. A program of music and recitations was given by the school children and there were well rendered piano solos by Margaret Barstow and Alice Jacobs. At the business session in charge of Mrs. Harry Moseley, the president, the secretary and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Sidney Alling and Mrs Guy Richmond. There is about $24 in the general treasury and $87 in the playground equipment fund. Mrs. H. G. Bacher was elected delegate to the state convention in New London on the 22nd. Miss Clara Johnson, Mrs. E. R. Leffingwell and Mrs. Cassius Barstow were chosen a nominating committee to bring in the May meeting a list of names for officers for the year. Cocoa, sandwiches and cake were served.

The members of the Woman's Guild of St. Paul's church are giving entertainments every month to raise money for the church one or more members being responsible for each month. As Mrs. Josephine Bingham and Miss Mary Packer have birthdays in April they chose this month. Last Friday being Miss Bingham's 80th birthday a supper was served at her home. Between 50 and 60 persons enjoyed sandwiches, potato salad, stuffed eggs, cake orange shortcake and coffee, prepared by Miss Packer and Mrs. Richards and assisted in serving by other members of the Guild. The tables were set in the double parlors and were attractive with many flowers, candles and a birthday cake. The proceeds were $42. Miss Bingham received many flowers, post cards and gifts.

Mrs. Alfred Harvey was the guest of Misses Anna and Grace Bates in Hartford over the week end, witnessed the Student Prince and attended the Marion Talley concert.

DEATH OF MRS. JAMES BARRY AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 14. — Mrs. Mary Sullivan Barry, 61, widow of James Barry, died Wednesday evening after a long illness. Mrs. Barry was born in Ireland, April 10, 1865, the daughter of John and Mary Sullivan. For 29 years the family has lived here. She is survived by six children, Attorney John T. Barry, Edward, Joseph and May Barry Mrs. John Peterson, all of Jewett City and James of New York. Two children died in infancy. There is one grandchild, Her husband died ten years ago. She leaves two brothers, Charles Sullivan of Norwich and John Sullivan of Lincln. Mrs. Barry was a wise and loving mother, giving her children every opportunity for a good education and they have become worthwhile in the world. Her neighborliness in sickness and death was proverbial, long as she had her health. Her family has given her most devoted and unremitting care during her long and painful illness.

Sherman R. Waters was stricken with a shock some time Wednesday afternoon. His wife found him upon the floor at 7 o'clock when she returned from a trip to Pachaug. He had been ill during the week, but was around the house and much better.

Arrangements have been made by Jewett City chamber of commerce for a novel public entertainment in Rioux's hall at 8 p. m., Tuesday, April 20. A demonstration will be given of a telephone switchboard. The chamber of commerce has secured for this the cooperation of the telephone company. This demonstration, which has been given in several places of the state has met with favor everywhere because it helps to explain to the telephone-using public how to make the most of telephone service and is highly entertaining and amusing.

Twelve persons take part in the demonstration. A miniature switchboard is set up and in the first part of the program the operators show how a telephone call from one subscriber to another is handled. Other operators demonstrate on the switchboard how toll line calls are handled and there also is a complete explanation and demonstration of the so-called A-B service.

Following the demonstration of the switchboard, which embraces explanations of the many phrases commonly used by operators such as "The line is busy," "They do not answer", and the various reasons why these situations arise, a laughable sketch is presented by other actors and actresses taken from the ranks of the telephone workers.

The purpose of arranging this demonstration is to give the public a better understanding of the telephone industry and the vigilance that is maintained in attempting to give the subscriber the kind of service which he desires. Above all, the demonstration seeks to impress upon the public the fact that with their cooperation better service can be given to the greater satisfaction of the public, the telephone workers and the management of the company.

Following the demonstration the experienced operators who take part in it hold their places at the switchboard and answer any questions which those in the audience wish to ask. The crowd is then permitted to come up for a closer inspection of the apparatus and after each performance many have done this and have learned some of the mysteries of telephone operation by which they have been puzzled.

The demonstration is accompanied by a program of motion pictures.

SUNDAY MOVING PICTURES VOTED FOR PAWCATUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 14—One hundred and thirty-five residents of the town of Stonington, four-fifths of whom reside in Pawcatuck, were in attendance at the special town meeting in borough hall, Stonington, this evening at 8 o'clock, to vote on the question of Sunday night moving pictures in Pawcatuck. The matter of Sunday night moving pictures, to be conducted by Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265 Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the purpose of placing a world's war memorial in Pawcatuck, was decided by a vote of greater than 5 to 1.

The meeting was called to order by Selectman John Fribance, there being on the platform Selectman Arthur F. Babcock of Pawcatuck, Joseph Varkas of Stonington and Town Clerk Elias B. Hinckley. Selectman Fribance was made moderator and Clerk Hinckley read the call for Sunday night pictures to be given by Harley P. Chase post, signed by Henry P. Walton of Pawcatuck and 22 others.

Captain Elvin Byers presented the resolution permitting Chase post to show pictures in Pawcatuck until a sufficient amount has been secured to purchase the lot at the junction of South and West Broad streets and to erect a suitable world war memorial thereon. It was expressly understood that the entire proceeds from the Sunday night moving pictures are to be used for this purpose A. J. Toomey of Pawcatuck seconded the motion.

Stephen E Crouch, of Pawcatuck, said that he favored raising funds by public subscription, was opposed to holding moving pictures on Sunday and wanted a vote taken by ballot.

William E. Martin of Pawcatuck said what he thought on the records of the town against Sunday night moving pictures. In Mystic he said $650 had been raised by public subscription for a World war memorial. "Young people of Pawcatuck do not want them," he said, "especially the kind of stuff they are." Mr. Martin moved that the resolution be laid on the table indefinitely. A voice vote was taken and Moderator Fribance declared the no's had it and the tabling of the resolution was defeated. Dr. James Weeks claimed that as a ballot had been called for, no other method would be legal.

With Dr. Weeks and Carl Elvin Byers as tellers, paper ballots were cast. The total vote cast was 98. Yes 82, no 16 Eventually moving pictures Sunday night are to be shown in Pawcatuck.

DANIELSON

SWITCH TO FAST TIME COMING AT MOST OF THE BIG MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 14—The forecast Wednesday was that daylight saving would be April 25, by practically all the town of Killingly and the town of Plainfield, insofar as manufacturing concerns stepping up their operating time an hour is concerned. The canvass by a committee of the Danielson chamber of commerce, Herbert H. Pepler and Sidney P. Marland—to determine the sentiment of manufacturers has taken them not only to manufacturers of the town of Killingly, but to other manufacturers in the towns of Plainfield and Putnam.

In Killingly, the sentiment has been found to be such as to warrant the forecast that fast time will be adopted by practically all its mill concerns. Woodyear already is operating on an earlier schedule than other plants, so will make no change. In Plainfield, sentiment among the manufacturers were found to be much the same as in Killingly and there are Putnam concerns that favor adopting fast time. In the Quinebaug fast time will be adopted on all probability, though possibly not until a little later in the season.

Action in favor of fast time by the manufacturers is bound to have a tremendous effect in spreading its adoption to other business concerns, banking institutions and other organizations. Such action is certain to influence the time schedules of thousands of [illegible] operatives, members of their families, as well. Merits and purposes of adoption of fast time by manufacturing concerns will put Killingly on a fast time basis until late next September.

[illegible] that has been sought after for two seasons of keeping one time schedule or another seems to have been agreed upon by the officials of the chamber of commerce committee. They have followed their instructions to sound out sentiment and have found it largely favorable to fast time in manufacturing circles, which are all important in this matter.

[illegible] impression may not go out that the manufacturers are unanimous in favor of the change it must [illegible] mentioned that the Quinebaug company with mills in Danielson and the Wauregan company had not up to early Wednesday evening given assurances that they would adopt a fast time schedule. Rather it was said, had these mills definitely decided to adhere to their present schedule of working hours.

A review of the attitude of manufacturers in the Quinebaug Valley disclosed Wednesday would tend to indicate that fast time will be generally adopted Apr. 25. This plan does not necessarily involve tinkering with the clocks or other time pieces, or in any manner flaunting any state law in opposition to daylight saving.

MRS. AMOS KENDALL DIES, RESULT OF MORNING BURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 14—Mrs. Amos Kendall, 84, severely burned Wednesday morning at her home on Reynolds street died unexpectedly Wednesday evening after making an effort to get out of bed unassisted.

Mrs. Kendall arose in her night dress while preparing to start a fire, and used a piece of newspaper from the table to start the fire in the stove and was on her knees in the room with it when her night dress caught fire. Instantly it blazed and enveloped her in flames. She was alone in the house and there was no inhabitant near for her, though it cause [illegible] It was found that every [illegible] of Mrs. Kendall's body was burned from her face down to her knees. Dr. George M. Burroughs was called and attended the injured woman who stood the shock of her injuries well. The burns were said not to be [illegible] dangerous, but they were so extensive and so painful that Mrs. Kendall's condition was regarded as serious from the first. Mrs. Kendall [illegible] for many years a resident of [illegible].

BOROUGH CAN HAVE HOTEL JUST BY SAYING THE WORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 14—Danielson can have a modern fireproof hotel if it so wants one. There is the statement of William S. Brown, owner and landlord of the Attawaugan hotel, a hostelry that has served Danielson for upwards of half a century. Mr. Brown said Wednesday morning that he stands ready to enter into an arrangement with responsible people of this community to promote such an enterprise and outlined some of the details of a plan he has in mind. He is willing to go a long way in his own account in financing the proposition "and I would shoulder the entire cost myself if I had the funds," he said, "for such a hotel can be made a paying proposition."

Briefly, Mr. Brown's proposal is for a modern brick structure with 100 rooms. The present street level frontage would be given over to two stores separated by a broad entrance leading to the hotel lobby on the second floor of the proposed structure. Mr. Brown mentioned including a dining hall 60 by 60, without a post, that could serve for dinner dances, either public or private as occasion might warrant.

Mr. Brown has certain facts and figures out of his experience as a hotel landlord in Danielson that make the proposal look alluring. Danielson needs a new hotel. It can have it, as Mr. Brown says, if it wants it badly enough, and in a splendid location.

If one happens to be reading this item about breakfast time this (Thursday) morning, one may ponder the enthusiasm of the trout fishermen who sat up all last night, in many instances camped at favorite pools along the stream, that they might hold favored places on Snake Meadow brook as it was thrown open to fishing this morning. Flisaing a state-leased intensively stocked trout brook is a brand new experience for the trout fishermen of this region and there is a legion of them along the route of Snake Meadow today. The stream runs a distance of about seven miles, through the towns of Killingly and Plainfield.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said Wednesday afternoon that he had received no report up to that time on the autopsy performed on the body of Peter Charron, whose death under peculiar circumstances has aroused interest.

Members of the W. C. T. U. met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. J. Craig of Winter street. Mrs. Clinton F. Pellett was in charge of the program, dealing with Medical Temperance in a most interesting manner. Mrs. John A. Paine gave sketches from a well known publication on Medical Temperance by J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, these followed by other articles and poems. Tuesday being the birthday of Mrs. Anna Dexter, mother of Mrs. Craig, two birthday cakes were presented her—one from the W. C. T. U., the other from Mrs. Craig. The gifts were a great surprise to Mrs. Dexter who was observing her 86th anniversary. The cakes were cut and served, with ice cream. As to one's being as old as one feels, Mrs. Dexter remarked that she is still young, notwithstanding her advanced age.

A delighted audience was that attending the production of Old Lady 31, under the auspices of the Killingly Woman's club, at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday evening. A carefully coached and efficient cast of local people presented the production in a thoroughly pleasing manner, evidence of this being the frequent applause and other appealing manifestations. The cast was made up of: Florence Hargreaves, Frederick C. Littleworth, Ruth H. Arnold, Marjorie E. Paine, Myra J. Frink, Jennie N. Alexander, Mary W. Street, Ruth E. Spaulding, J. Kimball Hargreaves, Burdette C. Hopkins, J. Leo Bodo, Elizabeth R. Woodworth, Gwendolyn V. Clarke, Louis W. Danielson. The cast had been coached by Mrs. Harriet Theeb Mrs. Alfred L. Reed was general chairman and Miss Helen M. Keller musical director. Music was by Killingly high school orchestra under the direction of Leona G. Krans, assisted by Alice Maud Bacon, Thelma Cegan, Andrews and Mario Del Pesco.

The proceeds of the play will be added to the Killingly Woman's club scholarship fund.

State officers here are interested in Francis LaPlante, now held by the Providence police to answer to charges of automobile thieving. The specific counts charging thefts of automobiles are on file against him. Connecticut's interest in LaPlante is to determine whether he had any connection with the stealing of cars that found their way into the town of Plainfield, where they were sold, later recovered and returned to their rightful owners.

The pastor of Goodyear church spoke Sunday morning from the text Luke 10:14 "and when he had spent all" and pointed out a few of the pencils that now accrue to those who find themselves utterly destitute. Poverty cures many vices, enforces labor, demonstrates "who's who" in friendship and gives a traitor into real value.

Chief A. P. Woodward played fire department on his own hook Wednesday at the noon hour when he directed a stream from a small chemical tank on a blazing awning on the Center street side of the Windham County National bank building. This may have been caused by a carelessly flipped cigarette.

In the April number of the National Grange Monthly appears an article on Lecturer as a Life Art written by Rev. Charles A. Downs, lecturer of Killingly grange and a resident of Goodyear.

The third and fourth degrees will be conferred upon a class at a meeting of Killingly grange next Monday night. The officers held a special meeting for the work this week. Killingly grange has received and accepted an invitation to neighbor with Moosup Valley, R. I., grange Wednesday night, April 21, and will furnish the program. A large delegation plans to attend.

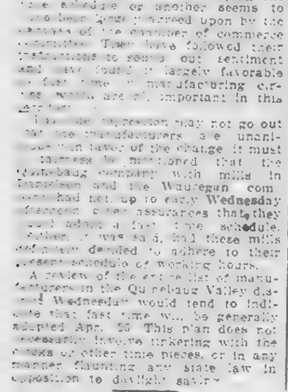
Mrs. Harriet Barbeau Boucher, 44, wife of J. J. Boucher, died Wednesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. Mrs. Barbeau had been in poor health for a considerable period of time and a hospital patient for a number of weeks, having undergone a serious operation. Mrs. Boucher was born in Danielson, on the West Side, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toussant Barbeau, and had spent her life here. She leaves her husband, who is engaged in business here, and a number of brothers and sisters.

George H. Thornton, 67, died Wednesday morning at his home in Abington, where he had lived for many years. He leaves three sons, Howard, at whose home he died, Frederick and William, both of Abington, and two daughters, Mrs. William Davis of South Woodstock and Mrs. Clarence Dagget of Central Village. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Henry Young of South Woodstock.

Firemen had a 15-minutes' workout Wednesday afternoon, when they were called, at 1:30, to subdue a grass fire that was gaining headway in the North Main street section. The recall was sent in at 1:45.

Distribution of little heaps of sand at intervals along the state highway near Wauregan forecast the plans of the state highway department to do the usual spring oiling of state highway surfaces in this territory.

The A. T. and T. company has distributed transformers all along the route of its underground cable line between Hartford and Danielson. These transformers are to be placed in manholes along the route during the spring and summer season. The line is on the New York-Boston route and one of the most important in the east.



Has effective way to treat sore muscles.

HOW TO GET RID OF MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Beach Patrolman Advises this Treatment

After exposure to dampness and cold, and after hard exercise, muscles will stiffen up and get lame.

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City writes that he has found this treatment the quickest and most effective way to take out the stiffness and pain:

"Just pat on a little of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub. It's the liniment—not the rubbing—that helps. You'll get relief right away. I've tried all sorts of other things, but nothing gets results like Sloan's."

Hundreds of letters like this tell of the wonderful relief from muscular pain that Sloan's gives.

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

PUTNAM

BITE OF A TARANTULA FATAL TO OSCAR C. LYNCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 14—A bite of a tarantula a week ago caused the death last night of Oscar O. Lynch, 48, at his home near North Grosvenordale.

In a fruit store at Webster, Mass., a week ago Mr. Lynch put his hand on a bunch of bananas suspended from the ceiling. As quick as a flash of lightning the venomous spider darted from its place of concealment among the bananas and bit him in the hand. Mr. Lynch saw the spider and tried to pull his hand away but it was too quick for him.

When he got back to North Grosvenordale he went to Dr. Lapalme who cauterized the bite. Two days later his hand began to swell and a Webster physician was called in consultation. In spite of all that could be done the swelling continued, extended to the arm and the shoulder. It is said that his arm was swollen to more than twice its natural size.

Mr. Lynch was unmarried, and made his home with relatives a short distance out of the village. For a number of years he had been in the employ of the Grosvenordale company.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL IN LINE TO WIN AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 14—The speaking contest of the Windham County High schools will be held in Danielson Friday, April 16, at 2:45. It was originally planned to hold the speaking at the high school auditorium, but because of the noise and confusion from the construction work in progress there, the parish house of the Westfield Congregational church has been secured.

There is to be one representative from each of the five schools in the county: Woodstock Academy, Plainfield, Putnam, Windham, and Killingly high schools. The winner will be eligible for the state contest, which is to be held at Hartford May 7, and will receive a prize of $25. Prizes of $100, $75 and $50 are offered by a Hartford paper for the three leading in the state trials. The Connecticut champion speaker is to be sent to the eastern zone semi-finals at Louisville, Ky., May 14, and the seven zone winners are to participate in the National Contest at Washington, D. C., besides being given a trip to Europe.

Miss Lois Parsons, of Pomfret, will represent Putnam high school. She was Putnam's representative in the contest of last year and won second place in the state. She has improved and developed so much that her friends are confident that she will do as well this year and will possibly finish first.

The speakers must deal with the Constitution or with the influence of Washington, Hamilton, Franklin, Marshall, Madison, Webster or Lincoln on the framing or interpretation of the document.

The suit brought by Mr. and Mrs. John Bubrick against Michael Pisarko et al, to recover $5,000 and damages growing out of the sale of a farm at Dayville has been decided by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in favor of the defendants. A factor that seemed to have great weight in the decision is that the court did not believe the statement made by Mrs. Zubrick on the witness stand that she paid Pisarko $3,000 in cash at his office in New York for which she got no receipt.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Dickenson says:

"While it would seem from the evidence that the situation came within the rule making a broker liable to an accounting when he deals with the property to his own advantage by himself purchasing it and reselling it at a greater price, the amended petition cannot support a judgment under this theory because it treats the defendants, Michael Pisarko, Peter Pisarko, Vera Porkuny and Peter Owdly as vendees and not as brokers alleging that they agreed to sell the property in suit to the plaintiffs, and setting up fraud in ostensibly payments thereon by false representations as to the character and contents of the instrument (the contract of sale.)

"Even upon this theory the plaintiffs might be entitled to recover did it not appear from the evidence that they themselves have attempted to perpetrate a fraud in representing the amount they paid in. For the evidence is convincing that the initial payment made in New York was $300 and not $3,000 as the plaintiffs say.

"Judgment is directed for the defendants to recover their costs."

A Library Institute for representatives of libraries in Woodstock and nearby towns, will be held Friday, April 16, at Howard Bracken Memorial Library, Woodstock Hill. In the morning Mrs. Greta Brown of New Britain, will talk on "Reading With a Purpose." Luncheon will be served in the chapel by the Ladies' Aid society. The speakers in the afternoon will be Mrs. May Sutcliff of New York, whose topic will be "Poetry"; Miss Julia Carter of New Haven, who will talk on "Books for Children", and N. Searles Light, director of rural education will speak on "School and Library."

and it is more and more being recognized that there is value worth recovering in the vessels themselves even though there may be no cargo of bullion or other recoverable goods of great worth.

The raising of the merchant ships that were sunk about the British Isles has been decidedly profitable, or at least the recovery of the cargo of gold laden ships has handsomely compensated the salvagers for the expense involved, but good success has been obtained in the actual raising of warships, particularly those which were sunk by the Germans off the coast of Scotland.

Perhaps through inspiration gained by such results it is interesting to note that an Italian company is to begin this spring the work of raising 39 warships that were sunk in Turkish waters, the wreckers figuring that [illegible] per cent. of such vessels as they recover they will be able to get a compensating profit. Ninety per cent. of the recovered material will go to Turkey.

This is another determined assault upon waste. Many millions are represented by those sunken warships, and while it will not be possible to obtain anywhere near what was represented by their cost there is nevertheless material of value worth recovering. It offsets the claim which is too often made that obsolete warships should be taken out and sunk instead of being junked. Not only are these but there is the additional disadvantage of breaking them up under water or raising them. And even under those circumstances a good profit is anticipated.

FIGHTING FOG

Nothing baffles the mariners like fog. It envelops the ship on all sides and through that impenetrable curtain it is impossible to see beyond a short and uncertain distance. What lies beyond has to be chanced. The radio compass is of great benefit in [illegible] such conditions, the submarine bells, the whistles and the [illegible] are of much assistance in warning [illegible] and the lead helps in determining shallow water, but the need [illegible] the intervention or the elimination of fog.

[illegible] the machine which is now [illegible] at the naval air factory [illegible] will accomplish the desired results remains to be seen. [illegible] will offer some relief there will be cause for much gratification.

The claim is made that with this apparatus it is possible to clear a space on land 2000 feet wide and 1000 feet each of all fog so that a landing field could be used, and certainly if that can be done the same thing can be accomplished in harbors and elsewhere. This is done by electrically charging [illegible] so that it is made fog proof. In these days of aviation it is readily recognized that those who fly as [illegible] who sail are deeply concerned over the fog danger. Possibly [illegible] has developed something that will solve a problem which has hitherto defied solution, and for that reason the testing out of the apparatus will be awaited with eager concern [illegible] group of interested persons. Whatever progress can be made [illegible] will be heartily wel-

BROOKHART'S PLAN

[illegible] keeping with claims that were [illegible] the action by the [illegible] Senator Brookhart is to [illegible] to open up a campaign of [illegible] and he is apparently going to solicit not only the [illegible] Lafollette progressives [illegible] going to ask the republicans [illegible] state to nominate and elect [illegible] he is going to do in fact [illegible] that it will be time for [illegible] election of the senior senator of [illegible] Senator Cummins, who [illegible] highly valuable state rep- [illegible] and national legislator.

[illegible] apparently doesn't take [illegible] consideration the fact that he was [illegible] by the voters of his [illegible] that his denunciation of the administration and the party principles [illegible] seem to sour on him. He doesn't [illegible] that they resent his [illegible] them as a republican candidate [illegible] flopped to other standards [illegible] them to cast their votes for [illegible] Democratic opponent rather than [illegible] him to go into the senate under [illegible] conditions.

[illegible] how he expects the republicans [illegible] to fall in line and stand by [illegible] again in view of his conduct in the past is difficult to understand. [illegible] must be thoroughly fed up on such a man who is ready to be anything so long as he can obtain his personal ambitions. Perhaps he will be able to pull the wool over their eyes and arouse their sympathy because he was unseated, but they haven't forgotten his political sharp practice in a short a time. He is entitled to far less support in his own state than he had in the upper house of congress. He apparently doesn't appreciate the fact that Iowa has already turned him down once and plans to go back to more trouble for someone else.

THE NEW HOUSE

Because two people are very much in love with one another is no indication that they have similar tastes in all things. Elizabeth Mathers awoke to this fact with something of a shock two weeks after her marriage to her husband, John.

She had been a teacher of art in an Ohio college when she first met the big, burly, open-hearted electrical engineer who had come to the town on business which kept him there for several months. There was something so fine, so genuine about the big fellow that the dainty little Elizabeth, always so hard to reach by men, found her heart hopelessly lost to him before she had known him a month.

Following the ardent courtship there was the year of waiting while John in a Nebraska city prepared a home for his future bride. And Elizabeth in her little room in the Ohio college town dreamed wondrous dreams of the home on which he was working. In these dreams she embodied all the ideals she had ever had of a home. But she knew little of the actual details of the house that was being built by John, for he was keeping it all as a grand surprise for his loved one. She only knew that he was not sparing in the money he lavished upon it and that it took up every spare moment of his time when he was not writing to her.

Then came the wedding day and the two week's honeymoon trip, and at last the day, which was to be the climax of all, when John was to take Elizabeth to the house which had accupied so large a place in the thoughts of both for the past year.

It was in the blaze of the midsummer sun that they arrived before it. Elizabeth, looking about and seeing nothing of the house of her dreams said "What's the matter? Why are we stopping here?"

And John, laughing from sheer joy, replied, "Why, it's our home, dearest, right there!"

Elizabeth turned and stared unbelievingly at the flamboyant bit of architecture that glared out at her from the landscape. It seemed to mock, not invite her. Her husband not yet well enough versed in the expression of her face to read all that was written there, misook that for one of pure amazement. He chuckled gleefully.

"I knew I'd surprise you, dear, and I've sure done it. This is worth it all. Why you're just about dumbfounded!"

"And well am I, my dear," Joan continued, "there's no better than the outside."

"If by 'better' he means more garish and gaudiness, why certainly is better in his eyes," thought Elizabeth as she looked at the gay decorations and the ill-shaped shiny furniture and the noisy rugs. Like a big, pleased boy her husband led her from room to room, pointing out its merits.

"I just can't wait until mother comes to visit us," he said once. "She surely will think this is the grandest little mansion she ever saw."

"I'm tired, John, so tired," she said at last, with tears in her eyes. He mistook the tears of disappointment for weariness and was at once a moment.

"To be sure, darling, I should have remembered. You'll lie right down here on the couch with your eyes tight shut and I'll bring you a cup of piping hot tea. Of course [illegible] the home when you're all fagged [illegible]

ed. John's old dearness came back to her. After all she had him. His love and his tender care were more, after all, than anything else. Surely he had put a world of love into this awful little house and she would try to remember only that. So at last she said, "John, it was dear of you to work so on this home. I know what it must have meant in time and money, too. And I shall let the thought that you have done all of this for me make precious every nook and corner of it."

The look on John's face was worth a million times the effect it had cost to say this much.

It was the next morning just after they had finished their unpacking that the sundisappeared behind a black cloud.

"Going to storm," said John, going to the window. "Well, I should say! It's a cyclone, sure as anything."

Two hours later they stood in the midst of a scattering of shining, varnished sticks and bits of gaily colored tile, all that was left of the little new house. Even Elizabeth couldn't be wholly glad when she looked at John's face.

"Did you have insurance?" she asked at last.

"Three thousand on the house and one thousand on the furniture."

Elizabeth laughed aloud.—Detroit News.

From Small Beginnings

P. T. Barnum, the Storekeeper's Son, the Great Showman

Every boy and girl who goes to see the great circus that is still associated with the name of Barnum has at least some respect for the man who established that amazing entertainment. Many of the older people remember the curly-haired, fat, happy-faced figure of the great showman, the man who said openly that the American people like to be humbugged, and who set about to humbug them to their heart's content, and to delight them as well. P. T. Barnum himself was once only a small boy, and [illegible] "Barnumism" is a [illegible] who will read the book will enjoy it beyond measure.

Like so many other men who gained success, Barnum began with a series of failures. For him as for others who became great, failure was only a whip that drove him on to try again, and to try harder than before. He first tried to imitate his father and to become a storekeeper, but he failed dismally and lost money instead of making it. Then he tried managing a newspaper, but he was unfortunate enough to make enemies who were so powerful that they put him in jail. He gave up the newspaper business and went to New York. There he exhibited a negro woman said to be about one hundred and sixty years old, and to have been George Washington's nurse. That only exhibit of the [illegible] and [illegible] was [illegible] to rest a pass into it without passing [illegible] The dairy room was filled up, but not fast enough to hide an abnormally [illegible] marketing and [illegible]

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Ray T. Baker, who has announced his candidacy for the United States senatorial nomination in Nevada, is well known in Washington, where he was prominent officially and socially during the Wilson administration. He is, however, a product of the far west and has spent much of his life in that section. His father was a prominent California lawyer, chief counsel for the Southern Pacific company, and his brother was attorney-general of Nevada. Mr. Baker himself was engaged in mining and business in Nevada until about 1914, when he went to Russia as secretary to the American embassy in Petrograd. On his return he was appointed director of the mint by President Wilson, a position he held for several years. During this period he was an intimate member of the white house circle and accompanied the president on several trips. In 1918 Mr. Baker married the widow of Alfred Gywnne Vanderbilt.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

NAMED BY ANGLES AND VIKINGS

Mayors of 21 Camdens have been invited by Camden, New Jersey, to attend the dedication of the new bridge over the Delaware river connecting Camden and Philadelphia.

Existence of 21 Camdens put "Camden" well up in the list as one of the most popular town names in the United States.

"Franklin leads the list as a favorite label for a town," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society, "by being repeated 31 times in 31 states.

"The name Franklin is a tribute to the great American of Revolutionary fame. Camden, too, is a tribute to a Revolutionary hero, but Camden honors an Englishman. Charles Pratt, a London lawyer, made such a name for himself before the bar that he was raised to Earl of Camden. This earl's subsequent opposition to the tea and stamp taxes made him many friends in America so the colonists in tribute to their champion named for him towns in South Carolina, Georgia, Maine, New Jersey, North Carolina and New York and also four counties. The other Camdens have been established by sons from the Revolutionary Camdens.

"That, however, is not the whole story of Camden. Like so many other English names imported and scattered broadcast over the United States, Camden is a thumb-nail picture of a particular little spot in England. Charles Pratt took his earldom from a manor park in the county of Kent, which is south of London.

"To our Anglo-Saxon ancestors 40 generations back, 'Camden' would convey a description just as vivid as the names Thousand Islands and Great Salt Lake do to us.

"[illegible] Britannian forefather would [illegible] 'Den' is a wooded vale where swine feed.

"That gives us the materials for a picture of the birthplace of our twenty-one Camdens: a zigzagging ravine [illegible] Kent [illegible]—the slopes are forested [illegible] to make [illegible] acorns are [illegible] for the swine. Swine were [illegible] our Anglo-Saxon [illegible]

"With [illegible] of a few 'tool' syllables [illegible] and 'den' one can [illegible] [illegible] of the monuments [illegible] America has imported from England. The syllable 'ing' is to English names what the 'Mac' is to a Scotch name and 'O' to an Irish name. It is the mark of a clan. Thus the Hastings were the noble class of the Goth tribes in England. By a little digging therefore, one finds imbedded in the name for Hastings, Nebraska, the proud title of a valiant tribe that ruled and prospered in Kent, England.

"Billings, Montana, has an intimate link with the state of Delaware and Delaware bay which is not apparent. The Billings were the aristocratic tribe of the Varini who lived in Lancashire. Now the name Varini became in time 'Warrings,' giving the title to Warrington, England. When a conquering Norman French lord came into control of Warring tribe after the invasion he became Lord de la Warr. A later holder of that title who was made governor of Virginia explored a great bay and the shores of the bay which now bear the name of the Lord's house, Delaware.

"Other handy syllables for excavating name origins are: 'or' or 'ore,' denoting a settlement on the shore of the ocean or a river; 'leigh,' 'ley,' or 'lea,' meaning an untilled swamp land; 'ey' or 'ea' showing the existence of an island; 'bury' marking a fortified place; 'borough' a hill that was a meeting place; 'ham' meaning the home of an early Anglo-Saxon around which a village grew up; 'by' the Scandinavian equivalent of 'ham' and therefore marking the home of a Viking or Danish invader who settled in England.

"There are innumerable humorous examples in which these thumb-nail geographical sketches telling about an English town have been carried over to the United States with no thought of whether they apply or not. Windsor, England is on the shore of the Thames where the Anglo-Saxons put it, but many of the 18 Windsors in the United States boast no more than a creek. The 'ea' marks Chelsea, England, as once an island in the Thames mouth, which it is not now. Neither are its 11 brother-by-names Chelseas in the United States islands.

"Pupils in school today think they have a hard time spelling many of our town and state names. They really have much to be thankful for. The original names were often jawbreakers. There are four Worcesters in the United States whose silent 'r' is often a stumbling block to the best spellers. How much more of a stumbling block is the name of the Worcesters' progenitor, 'Hwic-wara-ceaster,' meaning the 'castle of the inhabitants of the country of the Huicci.' Boston was once known as 'the town of St. Botolph,' and a short-lived name of North England returned to earth after [illegible] Newcastle-upon-Tyne, which is [illegible] largest city in America, New Eurowk.

How Her Thin Weak Boy Grew Strong and Took On Weight

My boy was run down—just about skin and bones, and no appetite, writes Mrs. Baker of Boston.

"I am writing you in the hopes that other Mothers will read this voluntary testimonial regarding McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. My boy, Emanuel, was run down completely, just about skin and bones; also irritable and with no appetite.

"I noted a wonderful improvement in him while taking your tablets and purchased three more boxes. His appetite picked up, and he is now sturdy and strong. A cheerful youngster and a happy mother want to thank you.

WEDDINGS

Brown-Wall

Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Mary's Memorial church, Michael J. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of No. 61 South street and Miss Margaret Teresa Wall, daughter of the late James and Catherine O'Brien Wall, of No. 23 North Cliff street, were united in marriage by Rev. William A. Keefe. About 50 guests were present. Mrs. William A. Malone presided at the organ and Edward T. Connelly sang. The best man was John J. Wall, a brother of the bride, and the bridesmaid was Miss Anna M. Brown.

The bride was charming in a madonna blue suit and carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a gray georgette and carried pinks of the valley and carnations. Following the wedding ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the groom's parents.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace and the bride's gift to the groom was a gold piece. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a diamond bracelet and the groom's gift to the best man was a gold piece. The bride received numerous and useful gifts from her many friends.

Following a wedding trip to New York city, Providence and Niagara Falls, the bride and groom will reside at 52 N. 2d North Cliff street. They will be at home to their friends after April 15th. The rules governing motoring was a beautiful suit.

Mr. Brown is employed by the Norwich Gas and Electric department as a steam fitter. Both the bride and groom are graduates of St. Mary's parochial school. They have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy married future life.

BETTER INSURANCE RATES FOR SOME SECTIONS

Notice has been received by local fire insurance agents from the New England insurance exchange of a change in classification for certain sections outside the Norwich city limits, which gives a substantial reduction in the fire insurance rate on dwelling property and effects, when located within 300 feet of a public hydrant. The change applies to Laurel Hill outside city limits, Norwich Town, Occum, Taftville, Thamesville outside city limits and Yantic, all of this territory now being in Class D instead of Class E. The change is in effect at once, applying to renewals and new business alike.

Under Class D, the rate per $100 for the ordinary dwelling house or two-apartment house, with combustible roof, was 53 cents for one year, 57 cents for three years and 92 cents for five years. Under Class E the rate was 82 cents, 90 cents and $1.48 respectively.

On contents the new rate is 24 cents for one year, 40 cents for three years, and 96 cents for five years. The superseded rates in this class were 33 cents, 82 cents and $1.32 respectively.

A reduction is allowed for houses with non-combustible roofs and the rates vary, as they did before, for houses containing more than two apartments.

It is understood that better fire protection through improved water supply has been a factor in securing the better classification.

Baltic has also been advanced from Class E to Class D, with the notation that hydrants connected to private system of Baltic Mills Co. are to be considered as public hydrants.

TWO ENJOYABLE PROGRAMMES THROUGH NORWICH STATION

The Norwich broadcasting station, WCBR, with studio at the store of the Hanover-Cleland Co., on Franklin street, was again on the air Wednesday morning and evening and again all the reports were that "It was coming in fine."

In the morning at 10 o'clock Miss Gladys L. Peckham of the Norwich gas and electric service department broadcast "Cures for Spring Fever" and gave a recipe for California, or mock chicken pie. She is experienced before the microphone, having broadcast from WEAN, Shepard stores, Providence, and WBZ, Westinghouse station, Springfield, having a fine, clear-speaking voice that is well adapted for the work.

In the evening the programme of the Norwich Rotary club's ladies' night was put on the air with complete success.

At 12:30 today (Thursday) the station will broadcast the noon meeting of the Norwich Lions club with humorous features, speech, music, group and club singing.

Thursday night is designated as City of Norwich gas and electric department hour of music. Miss Peckham will give a short talk on how to get better results with gas, an ideal fuel. She will also give a cooking recipe on how to make banana nut cake. The hour of music will be presented by Miss Betty Kaufman, pianist, of Philadelphia; George Gulle, violinist; Lyle Fillmore, tenor; Mrs. A. H. Manes, pianist, all of this city, and Prentice Chase, vocalist, of Jewett City. The accompanists for the artists will be Mrs. Manes and Miss Mary Bresnahan.

THOUGHT NEW ENGLAND MILLS WERE ON FIRE

At 7:40 o'clock Wednesday evening central fire headquarters received a telephone message from a woman living in the vicinity of the Norwich Belt Mfg. company's plant, stating that she could see flames coming from the plant of the New England mills, nearby. The Greeneville company and Squad A made a hurried trip to the scene of the blaze and found a lively bonfire burning in the rear of the plant. The woman had seen the flames from the bonfire and thought the mill plant was on fire. The firemen extinguished the bonfire which had been burning since 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Brush Fire at Cemetery

The fire department went out on a telephone call at 2:48 p. m. Wednesday for a brush fire at St. Mary's cemetery. The brush and grass were being burned over and the flames got a little too near a garage in an adjoining lot. The brush fire was quickly extinguished.

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL MEETING RE-ELECTS JAMES C. MACPHERSON PRESIDENT

At the annual meeting of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association Wednesday evening at the "Y" building, James C. Macpherson was re-elected president for another term. Preceding the annual meeting the board of directors held their annual business session with a supper at 6.15 o'clock. The supper menu was served under the auspices of the King's Daughters. Routine business matters were discussed at the meeting.

At 8 o'clock President Macpherson called the annual meeting of the "Y" membership and the usual reports were heard and accepted. The departmental reports showed considerable activity during the past year. General Secretary Edwin Hill read his annual report as did President Macpherson. The president's report, as read, follows:

Then it becomes my sad duty to recall to your memory the loss of one of our trustees, Frederick W. Lester.

Our inspiration and enjoyment on this occasion when we are closing the fiscal year of this association and facing the wide-open door of great opportunity in a new year comes from a pleasant retrospect of real accomplishment during the past twelve months.

Established custom from the earliest history of this association calls for a report annually from your president and it is my privilege to render tonight such a report for the fortieth year of the association's existence.

As I look over the membership of our board of directors I miss the presence of one whose interest was at all times evident during his membership here, Mr. Leonard O. Smith who created a lasting memorial in his gift toward our endowments in the sum of five thousand dollars. We shall miss him and his great helpfulness seriously in the years to come.

It was my privilege to preside at the meeting held January 12, 1917, at which time Mr. Lester was elected to our board of trustees, and we, who knew him from close association during many years are united in our admiration of his sterling integrity, his vigorous and faithful attention to every responsibility and his courteous and kindly consideration at all times.

Even despite a continued depression in some business conditions, this association has maintained a very consistent and active program during the past year and, with the addition of new enterprises, each department has been functioning at top speed. This I am sure, is evident from the departmental reports you have heard here tonight.

Our employed staff remains the same as for the past five years and I feel that the efficiency of the association are in capable hands.

Finances and Business

While the real value of the work done here cannot be measured in dollars and cents yet it is with some measure of pride that I record that for twenty-one years the conscientious and capable handling of the funds entrusted to the association for the purpose of carrying on the works has enabled us to complete each year with all bills paid, in addition to maintaining that excellent record, this year we are able to reduce by five hundred dollars the mortgage on our property.

The income from invested funds now in the hands of our trustees has been satisfactory and compares well with other years.

Our buildings and equipment appear to be in good condition, requiring no heavy expenditure for their upkeep.

I am, however, still somewhat concerned about the size of our mortgage and hope that effective measures may be undertaken toward its reduction.

Religious Work

This department of our work, under Shepard B. Palmer and committee, has had an active and fruitful year.

Shop meetings have been held each week at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company, and for part of the year at the West Side silk mill. Our Sunday afternoon meetings have won, maintained and merited a remarkably strong support. Sunday afternoon meetings are being held for boys with a fine attendance and interest. Bible study groups are growing steadily in interest, and numbers. Perhaps no finer piece of work for men has been accomplished locally, than our Lenten Friday-noon meetings in the lobby under the leadership of Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth. I believe the inspiration, the influence and the enthusiasm for these meetings will extend through the year.

The excellent series of meetings held in cooperation with the churches, with Dr. Judkins of Glens Falls, New York, has left its impression in a wonderful way upon the spiritual life of this community.

Boys Work

Perhaps one of the most fundamental services we render here is to the boy life of the city. We enjoy, at the present time, the best equipped boys' department we have ever had, and, under Mr. Davis, boys' work secretary, its service is already at a higher standards and increased efficiency month by month.

Town and County Work

This is our new department and a new responsibility. The past six months have been devoted to gradual development of a strong program whereby the benefits and privileges of this association can be placed within the reach of the boys and young men on the farms, in the factory, and in the stores of adjacent places.

Physical Department

An intensified interest in the proper development of a fine physical manhood is apparent day by day in our gym and pool. Our ever faithful physical director, Mr. Fritz, I am persuaded is putting over a fine piece of constructive work for both business men and boys.

Women's Use of Gym and Pool

Under a committee of members of the Women's auxiliary, who have assumed full charge, the young ladies and girls of the city have been enjoying the use of our gymnasium and pool for the past six weeks. This privilege, granted by our directors after thorough investigation, has proven one of the outstanding services rendered by the "Y" in recent years. The fact that there has been no local provision for girls' club life and no equipment for their use made this move is a remarkably popular enterprise, the appreciation of which, is amply attested by the very large numbers who have availed themselves of the privileges and a numerous waiting list.

It seems an opportune time for me in behalf of the directors, to express our thanks to the committee of ladies who have so splendidly handled the project and solved its problems without friction. The multiple expressions of enthusiasm and enjoyment that come to my ears signify the fine piece of work they have done.

Women's Auxiliary

Again, as an association, we record our gratitude to that fine group of loyal helpers, who have not only pledged liberally toward our annual budget, but who have also made marked improvements in our dormitories and elsewhere about the buildings.

More keenly each year do we realize the large place they fill in our activities.

Due to his need of a respite from labor our representative in China, Robert W. Clack, has given up his post for a time and a new secretary now represents this association in that field of foreign service.

We have succeeded this past year in caring for a larger portion of our apportionments for general agencies than for some years and we hope soon to care for our entire share of each.

Initiated by the local association this city has had a Thrift campaign that cannot fail to prove helpful along many lines. The assistant to our general secretary, Lewis R. Church, proves a valuable and conscientious factor year by year and his faithfulness and interest are manifest at all times.

In closing this report may I call your attention to the record of this association in this community.

Only an institution predicated upon the building of a better manhood, the advancement of all of the interests of the kingdom and continuously teaching the truths of the Christian faith could exist as the "Y" has been covering forty years. This mission defined in wisdom by the founders of the association has been faithfully adhered to under General Secretary Mr. Hill, and we know that year by year there is increasing evidence of approval of our efforts, an ever extending influence for good, until thousands of young men everywhere are turning to the "Y" for their recreation and guidance.

I have spoken frequently of the personal sacrifice of time, energy and means in behalf of our work by our directors. May I again thank you one and all and may you feel to encourage at this time when our service is needed more than ever.

In behalf of our association I again thank the newspapers of the city for frequent helpful and generous space contributed to our needs for publicity and the many courtesies shown us.

May I ask your continued support and while I had hoped to be relieved of the duties of this office this year I desire to give my best efforts toward the welfare of the association and the advancement of its work in this field.

To Make Trip To Germany

William Budzeck of 68 Division street is preparing to make a visit to Germany. He plans to sail from New York April 17, and be gone six weeks.

AUTOMOBILE KILLS MULE ON NORWICH TOWN STREET

A few minutes after 1 o'clock this (Thursday) morning an Oldsmobile closed car, registration N-5198, driven by John McNally of Norwich Town, collided with a wagon drawn by a mule, on the curve near the Sacred Heart church in Norwich Town, almost instantly killing the mule and wrecking the machine. The wagon was being driven by Herbert L. Harris of Preston who was accompanied by George Strong, of No. 103 High street, both colored.

They had driven down Wightman avenue and had just completed the turn in to West Town street, headed toward the city. Mr. McNally was driving in the opposite direction and after making the curve, ran head on into the mule, throwing both Mr. Harris and Mr. Strong off the wagon and turning the wagon completely around. The impact threw the automobile to the left hand side of the road, and after sideswiping a telegraph pole it came to a rest with the left hand wheels on the sidewalk. The mule evidently dropped in its tracks and the wagon, after being swung around by the crash was partly over the dead animal.

The shafts were ripped and torn from the wagon and two lanterns, which Mr. Harris claimed were lighted, were thrown into the road. Mr. Harris escaped unhurt but Mr. Strong was slightly injured when he struck the roadway.

The crash shattered the windshield and right front door window of the automobile and Mr. McNally received a cut in his back from the flying glass. He was taken into a nearby home where he was attended by a physician.

The automobile was badly damaged. The right headlight was smashed and twisted, the radiator pushed back and bent, left rear mudguard and left running board practically ripped from the machine and left rear tire blown out.

Sergt. John H. Casey was notified of the accident at police headquarters by telephone and he in turn notified Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town who conducted an investigation.

GUS LAMBERT HAS PLANS FOR SUMMER TIME

Gustave Lambert, the well known constable and ex-boxer announced Wednesday night a plan to do away with "daylight saving" and yet provide time for the average citizen to work in his garden or attend ball games. Mr. Lambert suggests that, instead of advancing the clock on April 25th, standard time be maintained and that the usual holidays be held every week during the summer season. He suggests that Wednesday afternoon and Saturday afternoon of each week be declared in for holidays for factory, shop and store employes, and that the extra lesiure hours be made up by adding an extra hour and a half to the ordinary working hours during the full days, that is Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Just how this plan would work out he wasn't prepared to say but he did state that it was worth considering and might possibly work out to the satisfaction of all concerned. Asked how postoffice employes, newspaper men, and bank men could arrange to have two half-holidays a week, one Wednesday and the other Saturday, in spite of the fact that they are largely dependent on the mails, Mr. Lambert said he felt that the majority should rule and expressed the opinion that factory mill and store employes would favor the plan he suggested. Mr. Lambert's attention was called to the fact that the railroads are going on a daylight saving schedule by advancing their trains one hour, maintaining standard time for their train operations, and that consequently mail would arrive an hour ahead of the present schedules, but he stated that he believed this difficulty could be overcome.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Frederick A. Friswell

The funeral of Mrs. Frederick A. Friswell was held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her home, No. 18 Kinney avenue, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. There were numerous and beautiful floral tributes. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, conducted the service and burial took place in Maplewood cemetery, Rev. Mr. Abbott conducting a committal service at the grave. The bearers were William Burgess, Ernest Pollard, William C. Bode, Jr., and Carlyle Avery. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

ROTARIANS WITH GUESTS ENJOY PROGRAMME FOR LADIES' NIGHT

About 200 Rotarians and guests enjoyed the sixth annual "ladies' night" of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday evening while countless people in eastern Connecticut listened in on station WCBR and heard the enjoyable programme that was broadcast direct from the hotel ball room where the banquet was being held. That those on side the beautifully decorated and [illegible] enjoyed the programme as put on by the Rotarians was evidenced by the numerous telegrams and phone calls received during the evening from those who heard the programme in their own homes.

At 7 o'clock sharp with D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra playing a snappy march, the Rotarians assembled in the ball room and with President Edwin A. Harris acting as toastmaster the banquet opened with the singing of America and invocation by Rev. William A. Keefe, an honorary member of the club. As has been the custom for a number of years, William G. Park installed no little enthusiasm in the guests with his peppy leading in the chorus singing of popular and old time favorite melodies.

EDWIN A. HARRIS
President

The hall was handsomely decorated with palms banks of ferns and hydrangea, multi-colored balloons and flowering shrubs. The tables were prettily decorated with baskets of cut flowers. The floral decorations were by Rotarian Otto F. Ernst.

The following menu was served:

Grapefruit Cardinal
Hearts of Celery Queen Olives
Fresh Vegetable Soup
Braised Tenderloin of Beef
Mushroom Sauce Rosette Potatoes
Early June Peas
Hare's Head Pecan Bread
Rotary Ice Cream
Coffee Assorted Cakes Cigars

During the dinner D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra, E. J. Caron, leader, rendered a very delightful programme of dinner music interspersed with piano solos by William O'Brien and a violin solo by E. J. Caron. The programme rendered by the orchestra was as follows: Drifting and Dreaming, Reaching for the Moon, Chancey Butterfly, My Bundle of Love, Sweet Man, I Never Knew, Always, I Love My Baby, Lonely Little Melody, Too Many Parties, Remember, and My Blues.

One of the first numbers of the entertainment programme was the singing of the double male quartet, Eben Learned, Frank J. Aubrey, Joseph C. Worth, James Rountree, Henry J. LaFontaine, Frank R. Murdy, William G. Park and Grosvenor Ely, who sang "The Bells of Shandon". This number was so enthusiastically received that the quartette responded with "Women" a catchy number by Kratz.

Another pleasing feature of the musical programme was the two solos by Mrs. W. Clayton Burgy, A Brown Bird Singing (Hayden Wood) and Howdy Do, Miss Springtime. Mrs. Charles A. Saxton accompanied at the piano. Mrs. Burgy and Mrs. Edwin A. Harris rendered a most delightful duet singing The Barcarole from the Tales of Hoffman. Mrs. Saxton also was at the piano for this number.

One of the other pleasing duet numbers was when Mrs. Harris and Henry J. LaFontaine sang "Friendship" and "Golden Days", two songs that were very charmingly rendered.

Duet numbers seemed to be very popular with the guests and Henry J. LaFontaine with Mrs. Burgy sang Tea for Two, Mr. LaFontaine playing the accompaniment for the first verse and Mrs. Burgy for the second and both playing a duet for the encore. This was a very pleasant part of the entertainment, and one that merited no little applause.

Two selections by Frank R. Murdy, On the Road to Mandalay and A Cottage Small by a Waterfall, were very beautifully rendered in a bass voice that showed remarkable quality and power. Mr. Murdy's solos are always one of the pleasing features of such a gathering.

The musical programme of the dinner came to a close with another number by the Rotary club quartette, "Smile" and was followed by Much Ado About Nothing as an encore. C. A. Gager upon insistent demand rendered that time honored favorite "Hortense". Regret is expressed because the broadcasting of the musical programme was over before the bashful Mr. Gager could be dragged to the piano by the sergeant at arms of the club to "do his stuff".

President Harris expressed regret at the inability of District Governor Rev. John Allison of Holyoke, Mass., and Mrs. Allison to be present at the affair. Saying that he had a "pinch-hitter" for the ex-pilot governor, President Harris presented former President J. Nelson Weymouth, who is now a member of the New Haven club. Ex-President Joe responded, expressing his pleasure at being able to attend the dinner and said that he thought there was more real friendship in a club like Norwich with its 60 odd membership than in a larger club of 200 such as has the New Haven club. Mr. Weymouth was heartily greeted when he addressed the Rotarians, for Norwich Rotary has always had the interest of its ex-presidents at heart.

One of the surprise features of the evening was the Italian scene from Julius Caesar. This was a prologue to the scene that the Shakespearian players, [illegible] Julius Caesar and Mark Antony, [illegible] playing the double to perfection and without make-up, John J. O'Rourke as Brutus, and Rae Bliven, Joe Worth, Alex Abbott and others as the unruly and sarcastic band of rabbis. This little farce was really a gem of the theatrical art and was most thoroughly enjoyed.

After the awarding of the customary favors to the ladies the evening was turned over to Joseph C. Worth, [illegible] of entertainment. The four main [illegible] were selected by the [illegible] committee.

[illegible] Rotary club [illegible] Wednesday afternoon and Saturday afternoon of each week be declared in for holidays for factory, shop and store employes, and that the extra lesiure hours be made up by adding an extra hour and a half to the ordinary working hours during the full days, that is Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Just how this plan would work out he wasn't prepared to say but he did state that it was worth considering and might possibly work out to the satisfaction of all concerned. Asked how postoffice employes, newspaper men, and bank men could arrange to have two half-holidays a week, one Wednesday and the other Saturday, in spite of the fact that they are largely dependent on the mails, Mr. Lambert said he felt that the majority should rule and expressed the opinion that factory mill and store employes would favor the plan he suggested. Mr. Lambert's attention was called to the fact that the railroads are going on a daylight saving schedule by advancing their trains one hour, maintaining standard time for their train operations, and that consequently mail would arrive an hour ahead of the present schedules, but he stated that he believed this difficulty could be overcome.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Often Caused by Bladder Weakness. It's Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

A. C. Eckhart, 2217 St. Clair St., Cleveland, O., says, "After taking Lithiated Buchu tablets one week, the burning and smarting left me, and with no desire to get up nights. You should get the credit as I had tried many things. I will be glad to write my experience to any one. Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as epsom salts do the bowels, driving out deposits, neutralizes excess acids, thereby relieving irritation that causes getting up nights. CLIMAX IN HEAVYWEIGHT NEGOTIATIONS EXPECTED SOON

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—Indications pointed today to a climax on the much-discussed heavyweight championship fight negotiations within a few days.

Despite the persistent and apparently irreconcilable opposition of the athletic commission, Tex Rickard was understood to be pressing plans for the match in August. Tex Rickard, Jack Dempsey and Leo Flynn, Dempsey's manager, conferred last night. Nemo, challenger, Harry Wills, the promoter, according to his manager, Jess McMahan, will have

PHILLIES WIN SECOND STRAIGHT FROM BRAVES

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP)—The Phillies won their second straight game of the season from the Boston Braves this afternoon, 10 to 1. Henry Mitchell, the Braves pinch-hitting recruit, started fairly well but weakened from the mound in the seventh inning. Four hits in that inning, capped by Cy Williams' first home run of the season, accounted for five runs. Wayland Dean, starting his first game for the Phillies, was master of the situation from start to finish. He was never in danger. Score:

TO MOCPETE IN SWEDISH ROYAL TENNIS TOURNEY

STOCKHOLM, April 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Molla Mallory, American tennis player and former American women's champion, who will compete in the Swedish royal tennis club tournament April 18-25, has arrived here. Her partner in the mixed doubles will be Marcus Wallenberg, the Scandinavian champion. Mrs. Mallory expressed the opinion that the Stockholm indoor courts are the best in the world.

Mrs. Mallory will visit with a sister in Stockholm.

O'Neal Sent To Springfield

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP)—Manager Fletcher, of the Philadelphia Nationals, announced today that Oran O'Neal, a pitcher, had been sent to the Springfield, Mass., club of the Eastern league, on option. O'Neal sang with the Beaumont, Texas, and Waterbury, Conn., teams last year. He came to the Phillies late in the 1925 season.

BRITISH GOLF GETS GOING WITH BIG PRO TOURNEY

LONDON, April 14.—(AP)—The first big guns of what is going to be Great Britain's busiest golfing season since the war boomed over the rolling hills of suburban Roehampton today, when half a hundred native professionals, including all the famous names in British golfdom, and a few overseas contenders volleyed and thundered with irons and woods in the early season fight for the six qualifying places in the Roehampton club's annual 200 pound invitation competition.

The honors of the day went to George Gadd, the Roehampton club pro, and James Ockenden of Hangerhill, who banged their way around the course, which is 1,000 yards short of championship length, in 137. Behind them trailed Abe Mitchell, Archibald Compston, Harry Vardon, Arthur Havers, J. H. Taylor, George Duncan and other notables. Fifteen Britons returned 145 or better, and the fact that they did it, two rounds, in only one shot more than average fours, cheers many a native heart tonight, for it is taken as proof that professionals have been practicing their stuff these past dreary winter days and are ready to meet the forthcoming American invasion with a high standard of play.

It is still a little too early for the Americans to start preparations for the British open championship and none competed today. Aubrey Boome, the French winner of the event last year, returned 144, and was the only foreigner to qualify.

The Australian champion, Tom Howard, who has shocked his mother country by his unorthodox putting—he keeps his eye on the hole instead of on the ball—finished with 159. Two Argentinians came after him with 162 and 165.

Abe Mitchell, the man upon whom the anxious and hopeful eyes of the kingdom are focused for the rehabilitation of Great Britain's supremacy in the ancient game, thrilled the galleries with the mighty distance of his shots and the accuracy of his approaches. He followed the leaders with 152, which was also Compston's figure. Harry Vardon led the old guard with 144. J. H. Taylor and George Duncan, bringing up the rear with 145.

In the play-off Len Holland won sixteenth qualifying place for the match play which begins tomorrow. The others qualifying were W. B. Smith, Robson Havers, Williamson W Robertson, Jack Smith and T. G. Renouf.

DEMAR AND STENROOS WILL RACE IN AMERICAN MARATHON

BOSTON, April 14.—(AP)—A hopeful tussle in the American marathon here next Monday materialized today with the announcement that Albin Stenroos, Finnish star and olympic marathon champion, was among the entries. Clarence De Mar, four times winner of the Boston event, will match his speed over the standard olympic distance with that of Stenroos, an opportunity he has been awaiting ever since 1924. It was in that year that the Melrose typesetter finished third in the olympic marathon in Paris won by Stenroos.

The entries to date totalled 96, to which 25 must be added before Monday to bring the entries to last year's number.

So far there are six teams to compete for the team prize offered for the first time this year, these being the Hampstone athletic club of Toronto, the Olympic A. C., Portchester, N. Y., the Melrose A. C. and Finlan A. C. of New York, the American A. C. of Worcester and the Dorchester club of this city.

WARRIORS TO PLAY JEWETT CITY ALL STARS SUNDAY

The Warriors baseball team face a tough assignment Sunday in its opening game of the season when they travel to Jewett City to clash with the speedy Jewett City All-Stars. The game will be played at Slater Field.

The Stars are composed of the pick of the Jewett City baseball talent and will be out for the local team's scalp. Included in the line up is Stanley, who starred in left fane last season, performing with Ashland A. C., Joseph's and the All-Stars. It is reported that he will be the choice of the mound duty Sunday. Others who will perform are Burda, Parkhurst, Sawicki, and many other fast men.

The Warriors intent on starting off the season by placing the game on the right side of the ledger will present their strongest lineup which will include Bob Burns, Bill Burns, Ou Kenny, Chubby Gibbs, Leo Morin, Leo Hamil Johnny Fitzgerald, J. Tombari, Ellie Segal, Ed Healy, and Tommy Winters.

The team will leave Franklin Square on the 1:15 p. m. bus. The game is scheduled to start promptly at 3:00 p. m.

NOAH WINS HANDICAP AT HAVRE DE GRACE TRACK

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—H. P. Whitney's Noah, ridden by Pony McAtee, scored his second victory in the Harford handicap, feature at the Havre De Grace opening today. He won the event a year ago.

Extra Dry was only a short length behind at the finish of the six-furlong dash, and had a head over the pressing Senator Norris. The time was 1:12 4-5.

Tinmara and Cudgeller were other victors on an interesting inaugural card.

Deep Thought scored in the Calgary claiming handicap of a mile and 70 yards at Tijuana over Melachrino and Celua Prince in 1:42 4-5.

JARVIS WINS PITCHING DUEL FROM SUNDRY IN CLOSE GAME AT POMFERT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

POMFRET, April 14.—Lloyd Jarvis pitching for the Norwich Free Academy won a tight pitching duel from Sundry of the Pomfret school team here this afternoon, the score being 5 to 2 in favor of the visitors. The game was one of the best ever played on the local diamond and for the exception of the seventh inning was a splendid pitching battle.

Jarvis and Sundry pitched brilliant games with honors practicaly even, although the Academy team gave their hurler better support. The visiting moundsman fanned 11 of the local hitters but issued four passes and hit one batsman. Sundry hurling for the local school had 12 strikeout victims but issued two passes and hit three of the Academy batsmen. Pomfret was only able to touch Jarvis but for two hits, one a triple by Thayer and the other a double by Kevers. Sundry was mighty stingy with his hits also, only allowing the Academy boys three hits, Burke and Jarvis getting a double each and Goldblatt coming through with a single.

The game started off with everything closed down tight and for three innings it was a close battle. In the fourth inning Pomfret scored without making a hit. Jarvis walked the first man and the second man was safe on a fielder's choice. Plunkett who had walked stole third and Foster was thrown out at second on an attempted steal on the next pitch. W. Plunkett fanned and then Jarvis hit Hitchcock. On an error by Goldblatt, D. Plunkett scored the first run. The next two men were easy strikeout victims.

The Academy team promptly evened up the score in their half of the fifth inning when an error by Hitchcock gave Tombari a life on first. Tombari went to second when Sadinsky grounded out to Ridgeway. Burke was safe on a fielder's choice and Tombari came to rest at third. On the squeeze play Tombari scored when Goldblatt laid down a perfect sacrifice. This ended the scoring until the seventh inning.

In the seventh Tombari was safe on another error by Hitchcock and was advanced when Sadinsky singled through short. Burke followed with a double, scoring Tombari, Sadinsky pulled up at third. Goldblatt fanned. Greene walked, filling the bags. Ryan Sundry hit two batsmen forcing in two runs and then the fourth run scored on a fielder's choice.

Pomfret also scored in this inning when Thayer lashed one of Jarvis' offerings for three bases and then came in on an infield out. This ended the scoring of the game. Jarvis did not allow a hit until the seventh inning and only one after that a double, in the next frame which did no damage.

RING STARTS POORLY BUT TURNS BACK ROBINS

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—Jimmy Ring won his first league game as a Giant pitcher today when he turned back the Robins by a score of 9 to 5. Ring got off to a poor start, being tapped for two runs in the first inning, but he quickly settled down.

Jess Barnes was the first of three Brooklyn pitchers to face the Giants. He was pulled out under fire in the fifth inning and was followed by McWeeny and Ehrhardt.

Travis Jackson made the first home run of the season at the Polo ground when he drove a ball into the left field stand in the fifth inning, scoring a runner ahead of him.

SENATORS BUNCH HITS AND BEAT ATHLETICS

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—Philadelphia bowed again today to air tight pitching and Washington took the second game of the opening series, 3 to 1. Coveleskie held the visitors to six hits while Harriss and Quinn were touched for ten.

The Senators bunched a few in the fourth to score their three markers, while the Athletics scored in the sixth after being held from the counting block for 20 consecutive innings. Walter Johnson shut them out yesterday for 15 innings. Score:

TO EMIGRATE TO STATES AFTER FAILING IN BUSINESS

KREFELD, Germany, April 14.—(AP)—Hubert Houben, champion sprinter of Germany, who recently competed in the United States, has failed in business and has virtually decided to emigrate to the states.

Houben with Emil Bedarff, another track star, had been conducting a sporting business in Krefeld. The firm was in financial difficulties when Houben sailed for New York, Jan. 5, and has now been thrown into bankruptcy.

Houben was greatly impressed with the United States and the reception he received despite his failure to measure up to the expectations of sport fans at home and abroad. Several athletic associations are reported to have extended invitations of membership to him.

COACH DOLE UNCERTAIN WHO WILL START AGAINST BROWN

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, April 14.—With the opening game against Brown only one week away, Coach Sumner Dole of Connecticut Aggies is faced with no small task in grooming his team for that encounter. The Aggie team has been outdoors less than a week, a time far too short for Dole to get an accurate line of his material when so much of it is green and untried.

At present, Schofield at short; Ahern at third; and Makofski either pitcher or center field, are the only men who are certain of starting against Brown. Other than these men and Gilbert, the remainder of Dole's squad is green material.

The Aggie coach is daily trying out his candidates in an effort to obtain the best combination, and so many shifts have been necessary that it is out of the question to name any one lineup that seems likely of starting the first game.

In addition to Makofski as a pitcher, Dole has Nanfeldt, Eddy and Brooks, the latter two of which are sophomores. Makofski seems to have the edge on the group thus far. Gilbert and Williams are the outstanding candidates for the backstopping berth Gilbert played catch regularly in 1925, though last year he played the outfield. His two seasons of varsity experience may be the deciding factor when Dole makes his choice, as Williams is a sophomore getting his first taste of varsity ball.

Kennedy, another sophomore, is the leading candidate for the first base position, though in this he is being pushed hard by Horne. In case of emergency, Dole can use Makofski on first, as he has played that position regularly last year.

Finding the best man for the second sack is one of Dole's greatest problems right now, though Yardsley and Allard seem to be the leading candidates. If Williams should catch there is a possibility that Gilbert would be shifted to the position. Last season he played second base for the freshmen, turning in creditable performances.

Either Makofski will play center field, depending on which of the two happens to be pitching. Leading candidates for the other two outfield positions are Apollo and Watson.

Yesterday the varsity and freshmen played a five-inning practice game, the frosh winning 5-0. In this they evened up for an earlier 4-2 defeat handed them by the varsity. Metcalf, frosh twirler from West Hartford, pitched good ball and kept the varsity batsmen in check at all time. Two hits was the best the varsity could make off his delivery. The varsity battery was Makofski and Gilbert.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY HANDS YALE SQUAD 9 TO 5 BEATING

NEW HAVEN, April 14.—(AP)—New York university defeated the Yale baseball team here today, 9 to 5. Although Yale made eight hits, one more than the visitors, seven infield errors proved costly, for eight innings Holabird held New York to four hits, but in the final he let in three runs when Lincoln tripled with the bases full. New York took the lead in the first making three runs on three base hits, an infield hit and an error by the shortstop.

Yale rallied in the seventh when with two men on base, Jones reached third on an error, but in the mix-up failed to touch the bag. Although the tying run had crossed the plate, Jones was called out and the run disqualified.

Score by innings:

BALTIC INDEPENDENTS LOSE TOUGH GAME TO TAFTVILLE

The Baltic Independents and the Taftville Crescents engaged in a hard fought basketball game Wednesday evening at the Baltic gym with the latter team emerging with the long end of the score. The score was 28 to 23 and it was the final game of the season to be played by the Baltic team, which has had a fine season to its credit. Wilcock, Andrews and Rondeau were pointgetters for the Baltic squad, which, as a whole, played a good game, but the weight and cleverness of its opponents proved their downfall. The shining lights for the Taftville team were Pingree, Yerrington, Eccleston and Gaucher, the last named piling up a total of 17 points, a pretty score. The score:

ARRESTED FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT BUT IS RELEASED

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—Ted Coy, former all American fullback from Yale, employed football tactics embellished with a few tricks borrowed from the prize ring when he believed himself in danger of being thrown for a loss in Columbus avenue today. The scrimmage was stopped by a patrolman who played the role of referee and blew the whistle. Magistrate Simpson, as umpire, ruled that no rules had been broken and let him go.

The patrolman who arrested Coy for disorderly conduct testified that he had refused to move on after an altercation during which he had struck his companion and a taxi driver. Coy said he had gone into action when a man he did not know invited him into a taxicab. Fearing the man had some ulterior motive, Coy used his fists freely. The magistrate upheld his right to protect himself even against imagined danger.

Since leaving college Coy has received wide notice because of his matrimonial affairs. His first wife, Sophie D'Antignac Meldrim, who got wide notice for her part as "Sadie Th
